EXCESS PROFITS TAX HITS SNAG IN HOUSE; SINKS

Revival by Radicals Killed in Hurry.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—A proposal to reënact the excess profits tax was rejected by the house today during consideration of the income tax bill. The vote was 74 to 167. While some Democrats supported the amendment, as offered by Representative Frear, insurgent Republican of Wisconsin, most of them lined up against it. The Democrats previously joined with the insurgent Republicans in overruling a point of order against the offering of the amendment.

The amendment was similar to the former law except that the rates were made 10 per cent on excess profits amounting to less than 20 per cent of the invested capital and 50 per cent on excess profits over 20 per cent of the invested capital. The rates in the former law were 20 and 40 per cent.

Representative Burtness [Rep., N. D.] sought to cut the 50 per cent rate in the Frear amendment to 20 per cent, but the proposal was beaten by a vote of 106 to 128.

Offers Wet Tax for Bonus.

Representative Frear said that the excess profits tax would yield from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 annually.

When a point of order was made against the Frear amendment, Representative Graham [Rep., Ill.], who was presiding, submitted the question to the house, which overruled the point of order by a vote of 143 to 111.

Representative Hill [Rep., Md.], leader of the wets in the house, offered as substitute for the Frear amendment his bill providing for the financing of a soldier bonus by a tax of 20 cents per gallon on beer and wine, and permitting 2.75 per cent alcohol in beer. The chairman promptly ruled the Hill amendment out of order, and when Mr. Hill appealed from the decision of the chair the ruling was sustained by a vote of 226 to 8.

Plan to Foil Democrats.

If congress forces the Democratic tax reduction bill upon them, thus necessitating the wielding of the veto, President Coolidge and his administration leaders believe they have hit on an alternative that will satisfy the public demand for tax reduction.

Rather than accept an unscientific reduction of the income tax, the President, his close advisers insist, will refuse to accept a bill embodying the high surtax rates now voted into the measure by the coalition of house Democrats and Republican insurgents.

The President, it is declared, would not hesitate to kill the coalition revision of the Mellon bill, and administration leaders would counter immediately with a resolution providing for a blanket reduction of 25 per cent in taxes on incomes of 1923 to be paid this year.

Mellon Gives Figures.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today made public a letter to Representative La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.] in which he held that the soldiers' bonus could not possibly be paid within the estimated treasury surplus under any of the tax reduction plans under consideration.

The secretary declared the bonus would not be paid under the Mellon plan, the Garner Democratic plan, the bill as reported by the house ways and means committee, or even if the high rates should be changed as proposed by Mr. La Guardia to make the normal tax rates 2 per cent and 5 per cent, with the surtax graduated up to 40 per cent. Mr. Mellon said that loss of revenue under the Mellon plan would be $323,000,000; under the Garner plan, $620,017,000, and under the ways and means committee recommendation, $341,440,000.

"The estimated surplus," said the secretary, "as it appears in the budget message of the President to congress for the fiscal year 1924 is $320,639,624, and for the fiscal year 1925 $395,681,[illegible]. The estimated cost of the bonus bill in the form vetoed by President Harding is shown in my letter of Dec. 11, 1923, to Representative Andrew, a copy of which is inclosed."

Reveals Bonus Cost.

In the Andrew letter the secretary disclosed what the cost of the bonus would be under each of the three options, which estimated the total direct cost of the bonus as $5,085,833,687, with an average for the first four years of more than $250,000,000 a year.

"From these figures," continued Secretary Mellon in his letter to Representative La Guardia, "it is obvious that the bonus cannot be paid within the estimated surplus, if any of the tax plans is adopted, nor would the estimated surplus justify the payment of such a bonus if any of the three plans were changed in the respect of making the normal tax rate 2 per cent and 5 per cent and the surtax rate graduated up to 40 per cent, which are the figures specifically mentioned by

BORAH URGES IMPEACHMENT OF DAUGHERTY

Slemp Called for 10 A. M. Monday.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The Republican party rupture over Attorney General Daugherty's retention in the cabinet appeared to widen today.

The most significant development indicating that the President has no present intention of yielding to the demands of senate old guard Republican leaders for the attorney general's head, came late in the day when Mr. Coolidge approved Daugherty as a delegate-at-large from Ohio to the Republican national convention.

This was regarded as a victory for Republican party machine leaders, headed by John T. Adams, chairman of the national committee, who yesterday defended the attorney general and appealed to the public on behalf of an administration officer who had been denied a hearing on charges which Mr. Adams declared were absolutely false.

Senators Demand Ouster.

With the attorney general thus encouraged, Republican senators who have been advising the President to get rid of Daugherty adhered to their view that this should be done for the welfare of the party.

The subject was again one for senate debate, with Senator Borah [Rep., Ida.] declaring that the ousting of Daugherty was not a political issue but a necessity in order to restore public confidence in the department of justice. The Idaho senator advocated impeachment proceedings and offered to join with the Democrats in such a move.

At the offices of the Republican national committee it was announced that Chairman Adams had received hundreds of telegrams from party leaders all over the country commending him for his defense of the attorney general and asserting that some one in high place had to take a firm stand against "political lynching."

DELUGE OF MUD AND OIL

Other developments in the oil controversy were:

1. Subpœnas were issued for H. F. Taff, Washington manager of the Western Union Telegraph company, and Thomas P. Dowd, Washington manager of the Postal Telegraph company, ordering them to produce copies of all telegrams passing between persons in Washington and Edward B. McLean and Albert B. Fall in Palm Beach, Fla., and Edward L. Doheny, J. W. Zevely, and Fall in New Orleans.

2. Senator Robinson [Dem., Ark.], Democratic leader, charged that William J. Burns, head of the bureau of investigation in the department of justice, was returning to Washington, not to assist in uncovering corruption and official wrongdoing but to institute "an investigation of the investigators" with the aim of intimidating or hampering them.

3. C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the President, notified the committee that he would respond to its summons and would be ready to take the witness stand Monday morning.

Renew Fight on Monday.

4. No effort was made to speed up action on the resolution for investigation of conduct of Attorney General Daugherty and the department of justice, but there was every indication the measure would be adopted Monday, after which a fight probably will

Big Oil Fee, Now Admitted, Stirs Party

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The World [Dem.] this morning says: "Astonishment is growing in Democratic, if not in Republican circles, at the failure of the senate committee on public lands to bring out the full story of William Gibbs McAdoo's connection with Edward L. Doheny.

"This astonishment is based not alone on the almost complete absence of cross examination when he took the stand in Washington on Feb. 12, but upon Mr. McAdoo's own decision not to make the complete statement that had been expected of him, when his supporters met in Chicago a week later.

Four Points Unexplained.

"Four matters stand out, under these circumstances, as having not yet been fully explained. They are:

"1. That the $100,000 retainer which McAdoo received from Mr. Doheny was but part of his understanding with the oil man. If a "certain situation" developed in Mexico—in an effort to bring about which McAdoo actually went there in February, 1921—he would have received $900,000 more, a total of $1,000,000, exclusive of the $50,000 he received personally after his New York law firm was dissolved.

"2. That he had himself made reference to this contingent fee, although not in these words, in the letter of Feb. 7, in which he asked to be heard by the committee, but that neither in Washington nor in Chicago did he make further reference to the incident.

"3. That while McAdoo told the committee he did not appear for Doheny interests before the treasury department, of which he had been head, he did not say anything about having appeared there for other interests. In his letter of Feb. 7 he said he had made such appearances, specifying the treasury department and the shipping board, but that statement was not pursued, either by his examiners or himself.

"4. That he did not offer any explanation except that he feared that the newspapers would be "vicious and unfair," for not having severed his Doheny connections immediately after the Doheny-Fall relation had been revealed in January instead of waiting until the day after Mr. Doheny himself had made known the retainer of McAdoo."

FEE WAS TO BE A MILLION

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 23.—William G. McAdoo, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, declared today that his law firm would have received a fee of $1,000,000 from the Doheny interests if its negotiations in the Doheny companies' Mexican affairs had been successful.

McAdoo made this statement in a telegram to the New York World, replying to a telegram from the World.

Mr. McAdoo declared that if a congressional committee would start an investigation of the private business connections of all presidential candidates he would be glad to submit himself unreservedly to such an inquiry. He assailed what he termed "a continued effort to make my private law practice a political issue."

Mexican Oil Only.

"The matter of my employment in connection with Mexican affairs by the Doheny companies already has been covered in my testimony before the senate committee," he said. "This matter has nothing whatever to do with the naval oil leases under investigation by the senate."

He added that under his arrangements with the Doheny company, "If my firm had succeeded in getting a satisfactory settlement of the Mexican question, Mr. Doheny's companies would have paid an additional fee of $900,000. As I stated to the senate committee, my firm received a fee of $100,000, but with several hundred million dollars of property at stake, our services, had they been effective, would have been lightly compensated by the additional fee."

In conclusion the statement said:

"Any discussion of the business or affairs of the clients of my New York law firm, unrelated to the oil inquiry and without the permission of such clients and the conduct of my former law partners is clearly inadmissible."

AIRMAN'S WIDOW SHOT DOWN BY BOOZE MANIAC

Mrs. Dorothy Arnold, 23 year old widow of "Cleo" Arnold, a student aviator who was burned to death last summer when a flaming plane crashed near the Cicero aviation field, was shot and probably fatally wounded last night in a rooming house at 1241 South Wabash avenue.

Other roomers in the place told the police the shot was fired by an unidentified man crazed by moonshine.

At St. Luke's hospital physicians said Mrs. Arnold may die.

Washington's Picture Fund Gaining Fast

The Tribune will receive and acknowledge subscriptions for the Washington picture fund.

The movement for the purchase for Chicago of Gilbert Stuart's painting of George Washington, now on view at the Art institute, made real headway yesterday. The plan is to obtain the portrait for a permanent possession of the people of Chicago and to hang it in the institute.

Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art institute, received a letter from Walter L. Ehrick of New York, owner of the painting, saying the price of it is $100,000, but that if the fund now under way in Chicago reaches $75,000, he will sell for that sum. Mr. Harshe regards this as equivalent to a contribution of $25,000.

So the goal is fixed: $75,000 for an art and historical treasure for the people of this city.

Chicago Fund at $4,607.

The local funds, including the $1,000 each from The Tribune and the Herald-Examiner, now amounts to $4,607.50. During the day The Tribune received a $1,000 contribution from John C. Shaffer, editor of the Chicago Evening Post, and $100, given last night by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. Also $1 each from James L. Doherty and Thos. Spolanski.

"I am sure Chicago will not fail to raise the money to buy this picture," said State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. "It is a chance of a city's lifetime, and we must not fail."

Mr. Shaffer's contribution of $1,000 was accompanied by a letter saying:

"I am pleased to supplement your effort to secure a fund of money sufficient to purchase the Gilbert Stuart portrait of Washington, now exhibited at our Art institute, and therefore subscribe $1,000 to this fund."

An anonymous gift of $1,000 was received by the Art institute for the Washington picture fund. Frank G. Logan already has contributed $500.

Two other contributions, acknowledged by the Herald and Examiner, totaled $350.

Washington Penny Day.

Mayor Dever started a movement for a penny subscription. In a statement to the public he said that:

"Whereas, it is highly desirable that the school children of the city be privileged to participate in this patriotic plan,

"I therefore proclaim Wednesday, Feb. 27, 'Washington Penny day' for the school children of Chicago, and I urge that each and every school child contribute at least one penny to this worthy enterprise."

Jerry Thomas, a schoolboy from the northwest side, had a dollar for the fund. After viewing the picture he gave the money to an Art institute guard "for the picture." Thomas Spolanski, a taxi driver, handed a dollar to a Tribune reporter whom he had carried to and from the institute.

"That picture is a peach," he said. "I'm going to have my kids see it."

Expert Is Enthusiastic.

Enthusiastic approval of the popular subscription plan was given by John E. D. Trask, who in May will become director of the Art institute of Milwaukee. Mr. Trask formerly was director of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. He was passing through Chicago and stopped to see Mr. Harshe and view the painting. He gave a dollar toward the fund.

"I am giving you this dollar because I know Chicago needs this painting and because I believe in the public subscription manner of procuring it," he said. "I believe every one in Chicago ought to have a hand in its purchase. I would give a dollar to every city that wished to buy a Stuart. I know this painting, and I know other Stuarts. This one is worth much more than the price mentioned."

Meanwhile Chicago displayed great enthusiasm in the picture by crowding into the Art institute and giving it one of the busiest days in months.

Strike Ties Up Cuba; Army Ready to Act

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—A general strike of union labor throughout Cuba began at 10 o'clock tonight with a complete tie-up of all transit facilities. The strike is expected by Monday to involve more than 25,000 organized workers and to affect all industries employing union labor.

The strike was called suddenly late today. The steam and electric railroad workers were the first to go out, causing a stoppage of transit lines throughout the republic, including the electric lines of Havana and those connecting the city with the adjacent municipalities of Mariano, Guanabacoa, Regla, and Rincon.

Ties Up All Ships.

The federation of Bahia, the workers' organization, includes the textile industries, the chauffeurs, and sugar mill and tobacco workers, machinists, lace workers, the pharmacists' helpers, linotypists, and other tradesmen.

There will be no newspapers issued tomorrow. Ships will not be able to discharge their cargoes, as the longshoremen are strongly organized and are joining the walkout with solid ranks.

The direct cause of the strike is the refusal of Gen. Jack of the United Railroads to permit his workers to affiliate with the Brotherhood of Railway Workers of Cuba.

Troops at Strategic Points.

The afternoon newspaper La Noche says that "behind all this there has been organized a revolution of sinister proportions."

The government tonight is distributing troops at strategic points.

Saunders, Former Chief of Piggly-Wiggly, Is Bankrupt

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 23.—Clarence Saunders, former president of the Piggly Wiggly corporation and Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in United States District court here late today. Saunders listed assets aggregating $3,244,-079 and liabilities totaling $1,876,919.

Mr. Saunders attributed his action to the protracted litigation which resulted from his sensational operations in Wall street more than a year ago.

"Accommodation paper" aggregating $1,402,269 and listed as the largest individual debt, represents money borrowed "for stock purposes."

The largest item in the list of assets is "liquidated claims," $1,880,560. Petitioner's property is valued at $700,-000, including Mr. Saunders' present home and his unfinished million dollar mansion "Cla Le Claire."

SLAIN BRIDE LIVED IN FEAR, FRIEND TOLD

Search Is Started in New Orleans.

With the arrest in Louisville yesterday of Miss Ruby Downing—companion of the slain bride who forsook the simple regimen of an Ohio farm for the gay life of the city—detectives who are trying to solve the strange murder of John Duffy and his wife began to see glimmerings of light.

After a day of patching together the bits of evidence in the double murder the police devoted their efforts to establishing the correctness of one of these theories, with the latest evidence tending toward the last, revenge:

1. BOOZE. Was Duffy, alias Dougherty, gunman and desperado, the victim of the Chicago bootleggers' ring, and slain with his wife over a booze transaction?

2. CRIME. Were they murdered after a quarrel over the division of loot from robberies? Duffy had a long record as a killer and holdup man.

3. REVENGE. Were the Duffys followed from Louisville by a jealous and disappointed suitor of Mabelle Exley Duffy, and did he kill them both by a prearranged method?

First Revenge Clew.

It was Ruby Downing who first gave the police in Louisville a clew to the revenge motive for the killing of the honeymoon couple whose bodies were found Friday—one on the snow swept prairies at the southwestern edge of town, the other in an apartment at 1216 Carmen avenue—eight days after they had been married in Louisville.

A telegram and a special delivery letter in which Ruby referred to Jack Horton as a double crosser led to the request that Ruby be arrested.

"I can't understand Jack's doing such a dirty trick," she wrote in a letter mailed from Ashland, Ky., on Feb. 20. "I am surprised. I always thought he was more of a man than that . . ."

Pictures Disillusioned Bride.

Questioned by the Louisville police as to what she meant, Ruby at first feigned ignorance of the entire matter.

Then, dispatches state, she admitted receiving a long distance call from Mrs. Duffy, whom she knew as Maybelle Exley, telling her that she had married Duffy in Louisville on Valentine's day.

"Maybelle told me that things looked shaky here," Ruby added. Then, between sobs and hysterical fits of laughter, the little cabaret sister related a series of facts which brought several other names into the case and led to a sudden scurry of activity on the part of Chicago detectives.

"Maybelle told me over the long distance that Horton and Freddie's wife and Goldstein and his wife left and took everything with them," Ruby sobbed. "She said she was puzzled by them leaving in such an awful hurry, but she thought she would just let things drift along and see how they'd pan out."

Learn Who the Others Are.

Who and what "Freddie" and "Goldstein" are and how they connect up with the mysterious pursuits of Horton and Duffy were told the Louisville police, dispatches state. They refused to disclose any further information, however, but sent a complete telegraphic report to the Chicago detectives.

Ruby's story was of sufficient importance to make the Chicago police anxious to question her in detail. Last night Assistant State's Attorney Harold Levy started for Louisville to bring her to Chicago. The girl agreed to wave extradition.

Police Seek Two Couples.

Yesterday word was passed "down the line" to watch out for "Jack" Horton—also known as Cecil and Orlando Horton—and for Morris Curtis. Minute descriptions, followed up by photographs which were sent special delivery, were flashed to the police of Galesburg, Indianapolis, Louisville, and New Orleans. Both men are thought not to be accompanied by their wives.

It was Horton who occupied the Carmen avenue apartment where Mrs. Duffy was found murdered. It was Curtis who was locked up with him in Town Hall station last August, when they were arrested for carrying guns. The occupations of both men are hard to discover, so far as questioning neighbors is concerned.

The police, however, declare that they have been mixed up with the bootleg fraternity of Chicago for some time.

Curtis and his comely blonde wife lived in an apartment at 910 Winona avenue. Dressing well, with no visible means of support, they rented the place on Jan. 7 from Mrs. A. Ingraham. On Feb. 14—the day that the Duffys were married in Louisville—they disappeared, without mentioning the matter to any one in the building.

It was on the same day that Curtis' pal, Horton withdrew his automobile from the Argyle garage and took it to the Cadillac agency for a complete overhauling.

Local detectives declare they have information that Horton did not leave the city until after the murder. When he left the garage he announced that he was going to drive to Detroit—"on some business for the Chicago and Northwestern railroad"—but police say they know where he moved to after starting out from the Carmen avenue apartment. The place was in the same neighborhood, they intimated.

Feels Sudden Prosperity.

Officials of the Northwestern claims department said they had no employé of the name of Horton. The proprietor of a billiard hall at 19 South Clark street said Horton formerly came there to play; had represented himself as a railroad brakeman. In December Horton discarded his habitual rough clothing and appeared well dressed and with a new Cadillac car, and with apparently plenty of money.

It is known to the police that soon after the double murder Horton's Cadillac car was placed in a garage 200 miles south of Chicago.

A checkup of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis shows that on Feb. 14 Curtis requested Harder's Storage company at 4015 Broadway to call for two trunks and a suitcase. When asked where the warehouse receipt should be sent he said Galesburg, Ill.

Trunks Ordered to New Orleans.

Four days later the storage company received an unsigned note, accompanied by a $5 bill, directing that the trunks be forwarded to New Orleans. A telegram followed the letter to say that Curtis had inadvertently neglected to sign it, but that the order to ship was O. K.

Both the note and the telegram were from Indianapolis, where Horton's mother lives and where he was convicted several years ago of stealing two diamonds.

Incidentally, a sidelight on Curtis' talent was revealed during his brief sojourn at the Winona avenue address. Mr. and Mrs. Vernon MacDonald, who live in the same building, returned one night to find that they locked themselves out. As they were debating what to do the Curtis couple came up the steps.

Window Easy to Curtis.

"Easy," said Curtis—and within a few minutes he had entered the MacDonald apartment through a window and unlocked the door.

The close association of Horton and Curtis further was revealed to the police when they learned that both men gave as a reference when they made applications for apartments, the name of W. J. Richardson, who operates a poolroom at 19 South Clark street.

Richardson said Horton was a bootlegger. Horton was a friend of "Yankee" Schwartz and others identified with beer wars and gun play.

Thinks Alibi Prepared.

Acting Captain of Detectives William Shoemaker declared last night that he is confident Horton will be in custody by tomorrow morning.

"I believe that an alibi was carefully prepared days before the murders and that the plans were all laid for a getaway," he said. "The motive for the crime is still cloudy, but it is probable that Duffy and the girl were killed because they knew too much."

Shoemaker holds to the theory that Horton and Duffy, associated for a long time in paths of the underworld came to the parting of their ways with the latter's marriage on Valentine day. It is thought the slayer or slayers called late Thursday night, found that Duffy was not home, and then went out to find him and lure him into an automobile.

Then, after murdering Duffy and throwing his body beside the prairie road, it is thought that the slayers returned to the apartment and shot Mrs. Duffy as she slept on the davenport. This second murder is accounted for, according to the detective chief's theory, by the underworld axiom that dead men—and women—tell no tales.

Men of the Underworld.

Developments earlier in the day tended merely to strengthen Horton's and the slain man's, Duffy's, affiliations with the underworld. A description of Jack Dougherty, Philadelphia gangster who was charged with murdering a colored preacher and committing more than 100 robberies, tallies with that of the man who lies dead in a south side undertaking room.

A telegram from the Philadelphia police stated that the nude figure of a girl, with the initials "J. D." on either side of it, was tattooed on the right arm of Dougherty. A similar tattoo design is on the right forearm of the slain man.

Horton of "Rogues' Gallery."

Jack Horton's past record was verified when Sergt. Edward Baynes took a rogues' gallery picture of Orlando Horton out to the neighborhood of the Carmen avenue apartment. Four persons—two attendants at the garage where he kept his car, Mrs. Edith M. Selby from whom he rented the flat, and Samuel J. Mitchell, the rental agent who first identified Mrs. Duffy—pronounced Orlando and Jack one and the same person.

The police record shows that on March 12, 1919, Orlando Horton was sentenced to an Indiana prison for larceny and given the convict's number 11,310. He was placed on probation.

Later he was rearrested in Los Angeles for violation of his parole, and resentenced on March 12, 1920. Twenty-seven months later he was discharged.

Since coming to Chicago Horton was arrested again and again for carrying a gun—so many times, in fact, that Patrolman Frank L. Jensen was accused of "persecuting" him. Last August he was fined $100 by Judge Joseph La Buy on the revolver toting charge.

"When I arrested him Horton told me he was working for Hirshie Miller," said Jensen.

Horton Two Gun Man.

The chain of circumstantial evidence against Horton tightened with the statement of John Clark, colored night manager of the Argyle garage, that he often had seen Horton carrying two guns.

"One was a .45 caliber automatic pistol and the other was a .38 revolver," Clark declared.

The significance of this is seen in the fact that Duffy met his death with three .38 caliber bullets in his head. A .45 bullet was found behind the wall in the front room of the Carmen avenue apartment, where it had dropped after passing through Mrs. Duffy's head and boring through the davenport on which she lay sleeping.

By the time it had passed through the wall the force of the bullet was spent.

Brother Reads of Murder.

Positive identification of the slain bride came during the morning, after her brother, Lester Exley, a commercial artist living at 5555 Magnolia avenue, read of the murder as he was going to his office in the loop. He immediately telephoned his wife to meet him at the Summerdale police station and together they went to the undertaking room at 4932 Broadway.

"Yes, that is my sister," Exley said. "The last time I saw her was in Norwalk, O., when I went to visit my parents last summer."

Mr. Exley's wife had visited Duffy's young bride on Wednesday. A letter from the girl's mother, living on her little farm two miles north of Norwalk, led to the visit.

Wanted to Live Own Life.

Leah Exley—who had refused to stay home because she could not make enough money there to buy the clothes and pleasure that were hers in Louisville, where she worked as a manicure and insisted on being known to the cabaret crowd as Maybelle—had written to her mother from Chicago to tell of her marriage to Duffy.

Mother on Farm Worried.

The older Mrs. Exley was anxious about her daughter. She wanted her son to find out what kind of a man Duffy was.

"So, last Wednesday afternoon I went over to see Leah and her bridegroom," Mrs. Lester Exley said at the coroner's inquest. "I met my sister-in-law in the vestibule just as she was going out shopping. I introduced myself and then accompanied her to the grocery store.

"When we returned there were two men in the apartment. One Mrs. Duffy introduced as her husband. I don't remember the name of the other, although I dined there and was with them for several hours. I was too much interested in finding out about the marriage."

Mrs. Exley described the strange man as light complexioned, with blue eyes, modish clothes, and a clean cut smooth shaven face. He was about 5 feet 10 inches tall.

Did He Seek Revenge?

Immediately police sent broadcast the stranger's description, and detectives were on the lookout for him. It was thought that he might have been a sweetheart of Miss Exley in the days when she was in Louisville. Perhaps he was angry because she had jilted him to marry Duffy, and, calling on them under the guise of a friendly visit, was waiting his time to kill them both.

Mrs. Exley told Deputy Coroner Charles F. Kennedy that her sister-in-law appeared to be quite happy.

"But she was very uncommunicative about her husband's affairs," Mrs. Exley added.

"She said something about him 'working downtown,' but she didn't say what he did. He had a fractured finger, which Mrs. Duffy said was the reason he had not gone to work that day."

The young bride did not volunteer any information as to how her husband hurt his finger. Police seized on this fact as significant that Duffy was not engaged in any lawful pursuit, for the propensity of people to gossip about their ailments is well known.

Planned Family Reunion.

There was a touch of irony in the murder of the couple. It was furnished by Mrs. Exley, who told the police that last night—some eight hours after she was testifying at the inquest—she and her husband were to be sitting at dinner with the Duffys.

"When I left them Wednesday they invited us to come over Saturday night," she said.

Lieut. Schoemaker announced late last night at the detective bureau that the police were searching for an ex-convict in connection with the double murder. The man, whose name the police will not disclose, is said to be a former husband of the dead woman. The man served a term in the Columbus, O., prison.

SEEKS MURDER CLEWS

Edward A. Evans, finger print expert of the police bureau of identification, powdered the cups found in the flat that was occupied by John Duffy and his wife, in the hope of finding clews to their slayers. He looked over all other articles that could yield any chance of a clew. The table had been set for three persons when the police broke in and found Mrs. Duffy's body.

Bullets Cause Burglar to Drop Part of His Loot

A Negro burglar hurrying along 35th street near Michigan avenue last night with the proceeds of a robbery—five fur coats, a suitcase filled with evening gowns and satin slippers, and some expensive window drapes—disappeared down an alley amid a rain of bullets fired by South Park Policemen Gorman and Young. He dropped the suitcase and the drapes, but held on to the coats.

Quiet Farm to Deep Purple Story of Slain Leah Duffy

From the little farm on the rural route outside of Norwalk, O., where Mrs. Leah Exley Duffy lived in pastoral simplicity not so long ago, to the Chicago apartment on Carmen avenue, in which she was found shot to death, was a journey of easy stages, as the police have pieced out her story.

It was a journey in which the young woman drifted from the ennui and bucolic companionship of cows and chickens to the town manicure shop, then slipped along from one short stage to another, and came to the end of the adventure in the milieu of Johnny Duffy and such—Duffy, or Daugherty, known to the police in Philadelphia as one of the slickest "two-gun" boys east of Chicago or Herrin, Ill.

From Farm to Demimonde.

Reconstructing the girl's life, the police have learned from bits of torn letters, from pictures, and from other signs recognized by those versed in such lore, that she had not long been of the demimonde of the deep purple.

She was only 21 years old, and from her antecedents it is certain she was acquainted with St. Matthew's advice about the gates and the ways; it also is certain that she did not heed it.

Certainly, the police say, she revolted against the cloistered and protecting atmosphere of the little farm, walked gaily through that wide gateway despite St. Matthew's warning, and pattered with satin slippered feet down the broad road that led to her destruction.

Names Clew to Career.

In a simple idiosyncracy—her preference for a given name more high sounding than her own—the police found a key to the impulse that led her from the farm.

"Her real name is Leah," her friend, Ruby Downing, told the Louisville, Ky., police, "but she always preferred to be called Maybelle."

In a drawer a few feet from the davenport on which "Maybelle's" body was found in the Carmen avenue apartment detectives found a picture that told them the story of Mrs. Duffy's start. It was captioned on the back, "Mother and Dad," and showed her father, George H. Exley, feeding his white Wyandottes.

Scores of the snowy fowl are clustered about his feet in the picture. He smiles with pride as he tosses out the cracked corn to them. And "Mother" Emma Exley stands at the gate, her wrinkled, careworn, but Spartanlike countenance turned directly to the kodak—the picture undoubtedly was taken with a kodak.

Away at one side of the picture stands the old pump. The gateway on the farm also is wide, one of those that lifts and swings back for the cows to enter, and "Mother" Exley holds one hand on it as she smiles into the camera lens. Over across the fields are trees. It is peaceful there.

Where Music Is Mad.

It was from the midst of these scenes that the girl who was Mrs. Duffy, probably without benefit of clergy, the police are led to believe, went to the town manicure shop and then into the cities where the lights were shining and the music was mad.

She came to Louisville along the way, and there it was that she met Duffy, the "two gun" man from the east, whose revolvers did not speak quickly enough for Chicago, it appears. With Duffy she came to Chicago, into the circle of Horton and Freddy and his wife, and into that of Goldstein and Mrs. Goldstein, whose recent sudden departure puzzled her.

It was in a long distance conversation with Ruby, the friend who is held by the Louisville police, that "Maybelle" told of "Freddy and his wife, and Goldstein and his wife," and how "they left suddenly, taking everything with them."

Drifting—to Tragedy!

"Things look shaky here," she told Ruby; and Ruby says she does not know just what "Maybelle" meant by that, but quotes her as adding: "I'll just let things drift and see how they pan out."

That, the police say was the way with the girl—"letting things drift" and drifting with them, and it is the "panning out" which ended with her body under the crimson stained sheet in the Carmen avenue apartment that the detectives now are straining themselves to reconstruct.

TWO FIGHT OVER RUM DEAL, GUN; BOTH WOUNDED

A quarrel, said to have arisen over a booze deal, and a struggle for possession of a gun landed Alfred Gertsch, 1525 North La Salle street, and Edward McDermott, 1100 Wolfram street, in the Alexian Brothers hospital last night. Gertsch was shot in the groin and McDermott received a bullet in the leg.

The shooting occurred in the home of Gertsch's uncle, Alfred G. Gertsch, former owner of the Iroquois hotel, 3025 South Michigan avenue, now living at 1523 North La Salle street.

According to young Gertsch, he was attending the furnace in his uncle's home when he heard his uncle and McDermott quarreling over some booze McDermott was supposed to deliver. He rushed up to find McDermott, he said, pointing the gun at his uncle. The fight followed.

FAMILIES RUN AS BOMB BURSTS; LABOR WAR SEEN

A labor bomb was touched off in the vestibule of a twenty-one flat building at 1146 East 45th street shortly after 11 o'clock last night. More than a dozen families fled to the streets, some in their night clothing, when windows caved in. The vestibule was wrecked, tiles were hurled in all directions, and part of the wall was blown out.

According to the police Victor De Patie, janitor of the building, is acting business agent for the janitors' union. Labor troubles, they believe, are responsible. The building has changed ownership three or four times in the last few weeks, the police say.

2 DEAD, 2 DYING IN BOOTLEG FIGHT WITH SNOOPERS

Middlesboro, Ky., Feb. 23.—Two men are dead and two are probably fatally wounded, one other man was slightly wounded, and two are in jail as the result of a clash at Nash, Ky., in which federal prohibition agents and civilians engaged.

The dead are: William Litterell, justice of the peace, and his son, John Litterell, of Kaylor, Ky. W. B. Saylor, federal prohibition agent, and Roy Litterell, are critically wounded. Millard Overton, a raider with Saylor, was slightly wounded. The men arrested are D. C. Sellers and R. S. Saylor.

Two Killed in Rum Duel.

Booneville, Ark., Feb. 23.—A three cornered pistol fight—sequel of a prohibition officer's raid four years ago—was staged in the street here today. Two men were killed and a third is under arrest on a charge of murder.

The dead men are W. H. Wilson, 56, former federal enforcement officer, and Jess Woolridge, 30, farmer.

Four years ago Wilson raided the Woolridge farm. The men met here today and quarreled. Both drew their weapons. Witnesses said Wilson tripped Woolridge and shot him to death as he lay on the pavement.

Snooper Killed; 7 Held.

Glen Rose, Tex., Feb. 23.—Seven persons are under arrest as a result of the slaying of Richard Watson, booze informer. The leading banker of the village, C. A. Milam, today took his place in jail alongside the six previously accused. Later the seven prisoners were driven away in automobiles to Cleburne and Meridian for safekeeping.

He Yells So Loudly, Two Holdup Men Take to Heels

When two holdup men ordered Leonard J. Peterson, a collector for the National Tea company, to hold up his hands, he took a deep breath and gave such a yell that the robbers took to their heels. The attempted holdup was staged last night at 446 West 65th street.

FAHERTY ORDERED $200,000 'EXTRA' PAID—WITNESS

Notebook of Secretary Reveals "Reason."

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Michael J. Faherty's complete domination of the board of local improvements during the Thompson administration and his practical dictation of extra-legal payments to paving concerns was shown in the Faherty-Detweiler larceny trial yesterday in the testimony of Miss Louise Chandler, recording secretary of the board.

It cost the city more than $200,000 in extras to open the Michigan avenue link bridge in time for Mayor Thompson's birthday in 1920, Prosecutor James J. Barbour asserted. He put in evidence the payment of an extra $165,000 to the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company. This was for extra lumber purchased at Faherty's direction to use in building more concrete moulds. Faherty guaranteed the payment and made good.

$28,000 to White Company.

Then came $28,000 more to the White Paving company, which held a subcontract with the dredge and dock concern.

"If the White company had $28,000 it should have been paid by the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, and not by the city," Mr. Barbour declared. The Great Lakes company refused, holding the White company to contract prices, regardless of prospective losses.

But Faherty brushed all this aside, as the following record from Miss Chandler's notebook for the board meeting of June 18, 1920, shows:

"Mr. Faherty (to the board): The conditions surrounding this improvement are such that the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company claimed they had a contract with the White Paving company, and the White company said they did not, and there was litigation about it, and I ordered the White company to go ahead with the work and I would see that they were paid. The $1.75 a square yard over the contract price was because they had to get stuff here in trucks, change their plant from coal to oil burning, and make various other improvements, and I was in a hurry for it."

No Debate Over Price.

David Clark, a member of the board, moved to pay the $28,000, and Oscar Wolff seconded the motion, according to Miss Lansing's testimony. There was no debate, no questioning of Faherty's action. Other meetings of similar nature will be described tomorrow.

The defense agreed to admission of much evidence by stipulation. The legality of the warrant under which all payments were made was admitted after some testimony on this point from Frank D. Gleason, chief auditor of the board.

Gleason succeeded Frank J. Roach, who appeared before the grand jury in this case. He is now in Cuba under pension from the city. The defense offered to bring him back if the state would guarantee expenses but there is little likelihood of this, as no great disputes have developed so far in the trial. The trial is proceeding without any of the bitterness and feeling that has characterized other cases of this nature. The payments complained of are all admitted by the defense, and the justification is the urgent and beneficial character of the improvement.

Time has been saved by stipulations of evidence but the case will probably take all of this week, Judge Wells M. Cook indicated. The defense is expected to make a motion to have the jury instructed to bring in a verdict of not guilty.

MEXICO HOLDS UP ORDER EXPELLING TRIBUNE WRITER

Rebels Prepare for a Stand at Colima.

BY FREDERICK WRIGHT.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mexico City, Feb. 23.—Mexican officials apparently have decided to let the matter of the order issued for my deportation drop. Officials here have been giving both THE TRIBUNE and myself considerable unfavorable publicity in the papers of the capital.

I have demanded that in addition to revocation of the deportation order, the government issue a statement of public vindication. Mrs. Rosalie Evans issued a statement to the press today in which she said she alone was responsible for the story on which the deportation proceedings against me were based.

According to a government statement, the deportation order is suspended.

Mr. Wright sent a dispatch to The Tribune on Friday stating that the secretary of the interior had ordered his deportation from Mexico on a charge of "persistent misinterpretation of political news."

The particular story which caused the issuing of the order was written under date of Monterey, Mexico, by Ralph Cameron, who is now in the United States. Mr. Wright knew nothing of it; had nothing to do with the article in question.

Mr. Cameron's story described the plucky efforts of an American woman, Mrs. Rosalie Evans of Brownsville, Tex., to defend an estate owned by her and her late husband in the state of Puebla. Mrs. Evans was forced to defend her property time and time again, often at the point of a pistol, from bolshevik bands and grafting politicians. Finally Obregon troops under Gen. Almazan seized the estate, burning and pillaging the principal buildings. Mrs. Evans escaped only through the fidelity of some of her Indian servants.

Charles Beecher Warren, newly appointed United States ambassador to Mexico, took up Mrs. Evans' case when he attended the pre-recognition conference in Mexico City last summer, demanding that the Mexican government protect her interests.

Battle Imminent at Colima.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Guadalajara, Mex., Feb. 23.—The combined forces of Gen. Estrada and Gen. Dieguez, rebel leaders, were reported last night to be within one day's march of Colima, where the concentration of the insurgents continues. Apparently Gen. Estrada has resolved to stake all on a final encounter with the federal forces at Colima.

Rebels Win Battle.

Laredo, Tex., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Advices received here today state that Gen. Romero has occupied Tehuacan, state of Puebla, after defeating the federal garrison there.

GENERAL FREED FROM WIFE 'ANY MAN WOULD LOVE'

Accuses Man Servant; Calls Her Shrew.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—[United Press.]—Brig. Gen. Reginald Francis Legge, D. S. O., a hero of the world war, has been granted a divorce from his wife, daughter of a Mohammedan, after one of the most sensational trials in the history of the British courts.

Mrs. Legge, described as "the type of a woman to whom a man would make love if he had any encouragement," conducted her own cross-examination and by questioning accused her husband of infidelity with different women. Counsel for the general, headed by Sir Ellis Hume-Williams, K. C., brought an amazing story of the married life of the couple. The brigadier general, then a captain, first met his wife on a pier in Brighton in 1899. They became friendly and Legge took a room in Brighton, where they used to meet.

"After a while," Sir Ellis said, "the girl informed him of her condition, and consequently they were married secretly at Brighton."

Had Fits of Temper.

Gen. Legge had to return to his duties in Africa, where he remained until 1902. When he returned he went to Morley's hotel in London and telegraphed to his wife to meet him there.

"Even at that time she began a series of scenes which has marked this unhappy married life," Sir Ellis said. "She appears to be a woman of uncontrollable temper and nervous disposition. Throughout their married life she has been in the habit of screaming and having seizures of temper. They were requested to leave hotel after hotel owing to the way in which she behaved until life became almost unbearable."

Too Friendly with Servant.

It was the coming of a German-Swiss manservant named Landolf into the Legge home, however, that caused most of the trouble. Mrs. Legge's relations with Landolf were more than friendly, Sir Ellis said.

Mrs. Legge, however, appeared to vary her indiscretions with free fights with the German-Swiss.

"On more than one occasion she had a free fight with him in the hotel," Sir Ellis said, "she attired in a night dress and he in trousers and shirt."

Discharges Three Attorneys.

Mrs. Legge retained three attorneys during the course of the trial, but revoked the authority of each in turn and conducted cross-examination herself.

Husband and wife faced each other, the former on the witness stand.

Mrs. Legge, who was constantly admonished to stick to the issues, sought to draw from her husband admission that it was at his suggestion that Landolf, the servant, had been engaged to massage her. She claimed that upon an occasion when Landolf was found asleep in her bed he must have dozed off during the massage.

The defendant also asked her husband if it were not true that he had become engaged to a Swiss circus rider, a spy, and a trained nurse while absent from home during the war.

"Screamed for Three Days."

"When your wife was going to have a baby, did you not hold a revolver at her head?" Mrs. Legge asked the general.

"No," he replied.

"Will you describe the scene you say took place at the Piccadilly hotel in 1910?" she asked.

"For three days you kept on screaming, shouting, and crying at intervals."

"What for?"

"God only knows."

The jury granted the general a divorce, finding his wife guilty of misconduct with Landolf, and awarded him custody of the children, except the oldest son.

WOMAN JUROR DECIDES, CHANGES MIND NEXT DAY!

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 23. — Mrs. Emma F. Ware of this city today startled the United States District court with the announcement she had "changed her mind" regarding a verdict she had helped to return as a juror.

Yesterday Mrs. Ware signed a verdict in a $150,000 damage suit brought by heirs of four grade crossing victims against the Pennsylvania railroad in favor of the railroad company.

The verdict was reached last night by the jury and sealed, after which the jurors went home. Today when Judge J. Whitaker Thompson broke the seal Mrs. Ware said she couldn't sleep last night because she believed she voted the wrong way.

"I am sorry, but I do not agree with the verdict," she said.

In view of Mrs. Ware's action Judge Thompson ruled that the original verdict be filed but that counsel for the plaintiffs would be allowed to file a motion to have it set aside.

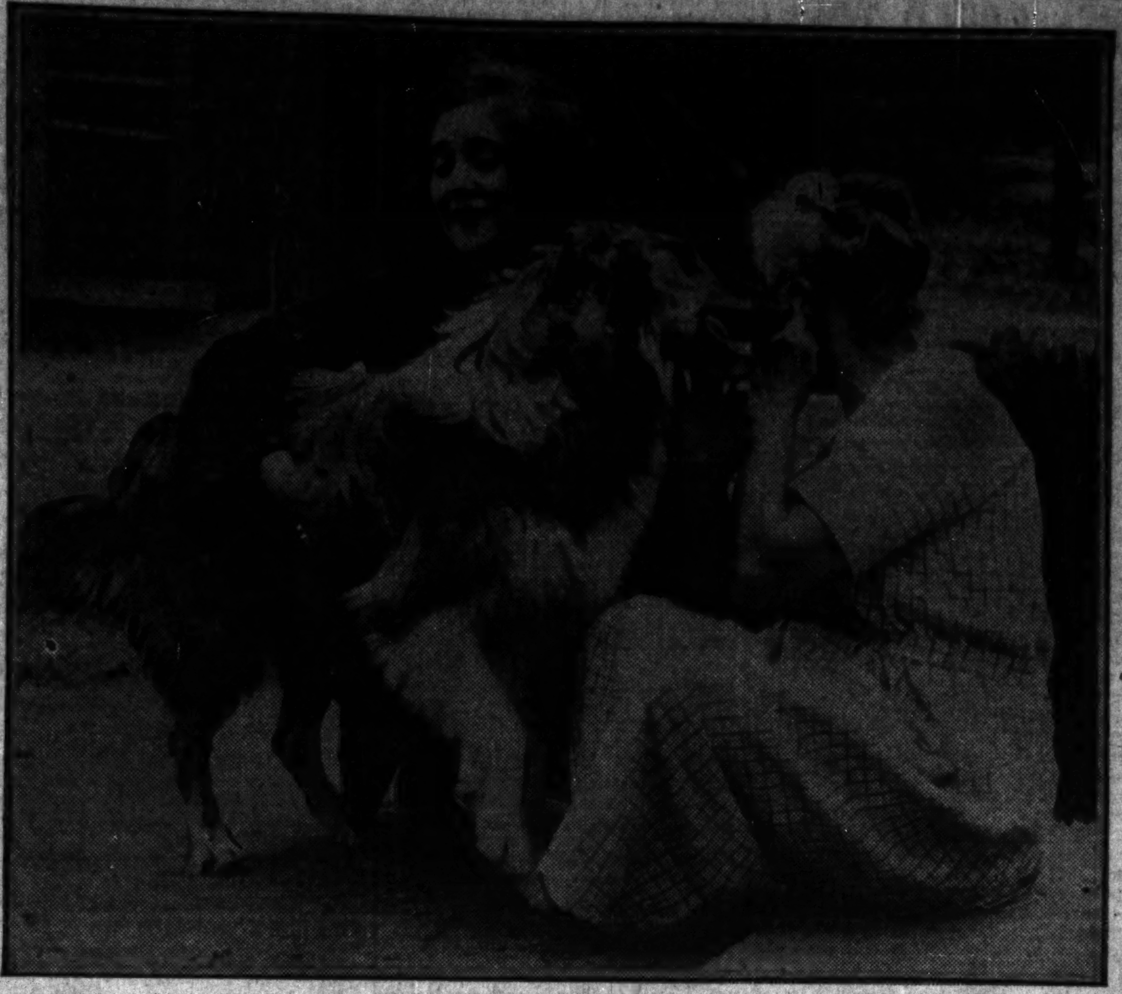
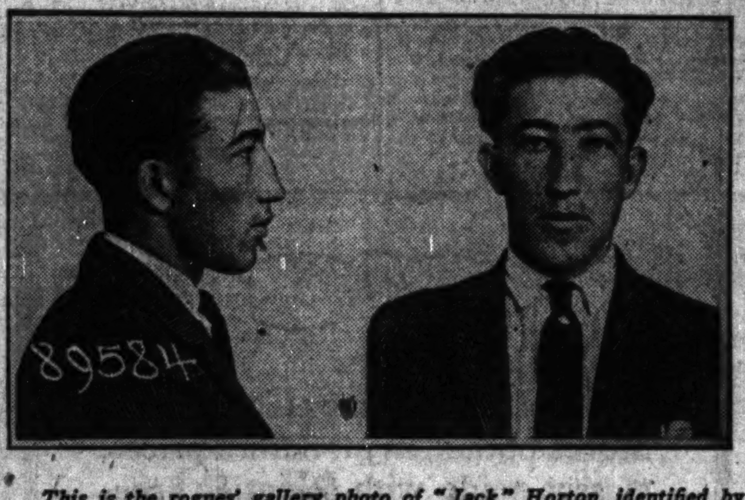
SCENES AT OLD HOME OF SLAIN WOMAN, AND FIGURES IN MYSTERIOUS DOUBLE MURDER

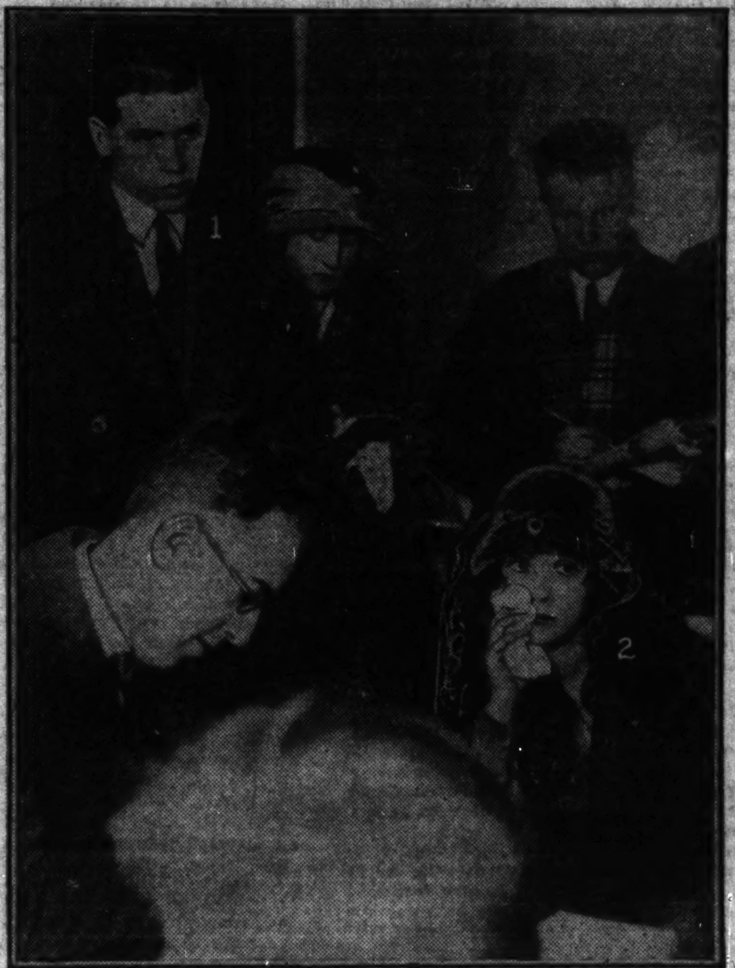


At the left is Leah Exley as she appeared when she and her mother, at the right, played with their collie at the Exley home near Norwalk. That was before the young woman became "Mabelle." Leah, a Bible name, had not seemed just the thing.

Mr. and Mrs. George Exley have been accustomed to feed their chickens at their home on the outskirts of Norwalk, O., as they are portrayed in this picture. Their daughter on last St. Valentine's day married John Duffy at Louisville, Ky., where the young woman had a job. The young couple moved to Chicago. The bride's parents were worried because they did not know anything about Duffy.



This is the rogues' gallery photo of "Jack" Horton, identified by several persons as the same as Cecil C. Horton, from whom the Duffys sublet the Carmen avenue flat. Horton, for whom the police are hunting, has a criminal record, and John Duffy, the slain man, is believed by the police to have been Jack Dougherty, Philadelphia gangster, wanted in that city for murder.



Lester Exley, brother of Mrs. John Duffy, is No. 1 in this picture. His wife, No. 2, is telling Deputy Coroner Kennedy how she saw her sister-in-law at the Carmen avenue flat last Wednesday, and there was a strange blond man there with the Duffys. Mr. and Mrs. Exley were to visit the Duffys on Saturday evening, but early on Friday Duffy was found murdered on a prairie and that evening Mrs. Duffy was found murdered in the flat. On the left of the picture, seated, is Deputy Coroner Kennedy.

BRITAIN CALLS ON NAVY FOR AID IN DOCKERS' STRIKE

Sailors Move Mails from America.

BY PAUL WILLIAMS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Feb. 23.—[Tribune Radio.]—Sailors from the British navy were used to move American mails held up by the dock workers' strike. This was the first time the Labor-Socialist government called upon its fighting forces for assistance in the strike, and the precedent will give the strikers something to talk about in their nationwide meetings tomorrow to consider the proposals of the employers.

When the Minnekada anchored off of Plymouth this morning 4,500 bags of mail from New York were shifted by its crew to tenders. The crews of the mail tenders refused to take them to the docks. The Plymouth postmaster was notified. He hurriedly communicated with the postmaster general and then asked the port commander for help. Naval tugs towed the tenders to the quays, where volunteers put the sacks on the train.

Refuses to Haul Baggage.

The problem of first class passengers on the Berengeria was not so easily solved. The train carrying them stopped 100 yards out of the station and the locomotive engineer announced that he would not haul the baggage another foot because it had been handled by nonunion men. The three rear coaches, containing the baggage, were detached and the train proceeded. The baggage followed in trucks, and arrived today.

The second class passengers loaded their baggage on their train themselves and experienced no difficulty.

Reports this week from the chief industrial centers show that production is not greatly affected by the strike. But the cessation of traffic to and from the ports is creating difficulties, owing to the congestion of warehousing accommodations, which is becoming acute. The stoppage of general export and import trade for a week has involved the merchant and other interests in serious losses. Further, it has weakened business confidence and increased the disposition to defer orders.

"We Are Not Idiots."

The ship owners spoke gloomily at the annual banquet of the chamber of shipping today. But they obtained some reassurance from Sydney Webb, Labor president of the board of trade.

"If you could only forget for a moment what you have been taught by your favorite newspapers you might realize that the Labor members are of the same race as yourselves and if they are idealists they are not idiots," he stated.

About 5,000 shipyard workers struck at Southampton today for the same rates of pay prevailing in London.

Fire Sweeps Loop Building Occupied by Desk Firm

Fire of uncertain origin early this morning swept through a five story building at 163 West Monroe street, occupied by McCoy, Reuter & Co., a desk concern. Fearing the flames would spread through other old structures nearby, they turned in a 4-11 alarm. Fire Chief Buckley estimated the loss at about $60,000.

RESORTERS FEAR FRENCH PLAN TO TEST SUPER-GUN

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—[Tribune Radio.]—The preparatory tests of France's new super long range gun, capable of bombarding England and blockading Southampton, are causing protests along the Brittany coast, where many Americans possess summer villas.

It is planned to emplace the giant naval piece near Barneville to hold target practice southward, with the giant shells falling in Mont St. Michel bay. The projectiles would fall along the popular beach resorts, including Granville, which is greatly patronized by Americans.

It is claimed a shell traveling sixty-five miles might land anywhere within a radius of two or three miles in width, thereby threatening the celebrated ancient fortress on Mont St. Michel, whose dome is the original of the Tribune Tower dome.

Short shots, it is feared, might drop anywhere along the beaches, menacing the populace.

DRUNKEN DRIVER GETS REBUKE AND TEN DAYS IN JAIL

John Zidek, 6154 South Morgan street, manager of a lampshade concern, was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to ten days in jail by Judge Fitch in the night court for driving an automobile while intoxicated. John McGuire, 3158 Lowe avenue, who was found nursing a gallon jug of wine in Zidek's car, was fined $100 and costs.

"A man like you ought never to be allowed to drive a car again," Judge Fitch told Zidek.

The pair were arrested by Policeman J. A. Binder when they failed to heed his traffic whistle at Dearborn and Madison streets.

'THE YELLOW KID' NOW ACCUSED OF STEALING A WIFE

Mike Canazzo, Big Tim's Pal, His Accuser.

JOSEPH WEIL.

Joseph Weil, the "Yellow Kid," has been accused of many things. He is without a peer as a con man. He accepted one of Small's paroles. He even awaits trial on a recent con game charge.

But he now enters the lists of "other men"—the divorce co-respondents' field. And it is Mike Carrozzo, "Dago Mike," labor leader and erstwhile pay of "Big Tim" Murphy and Vincenzo Cosmano, now sojourning in Leavenworth prison for the Dearborn street station mail robbery, who accuses Weil of luring away his wife.

"Yellow Kid" Surprised.

Carrozzo yesterday brought suit for divorce against his second wife, Helen, whom he married last August. He named one "Joseph Weil, alias J. R. Warren."

Its a new rôle for the "Yellow Kid." So new that he doesn't himself believe it.

"I've heard of Carrozzo," he said when informed of the suit. "But I've never seen nor met his wife. It's the bunk."

It looked as though there might be some mistake, so Carrozzo's attorney, George J. Spatuzza, was called. "Who is this Joseph Weil?" he was asked.

"None other than the famous 'Yellow Kid,'" he replied. Then the lawyer gave this information on the alleged romance.

"It seems that the affair started only a few weeks ago, when Mike was down in Cuba," the attorney said.

Hurries Back from Cuba.

"Mike's friends began wiring him from Chicago that his wife was running around with Weil, so he hurried back and found it was true. The divorce suit is his answer."

Carrozzo, with "Big Tim" Murphy, back in 1920, were guests of the county for four months in connection with the murder of Maurice "Mossy" Enright. During that time they transacted from behind the bars of the county jail the business of the Street Sweepers' union, of which Mike was president.

The men were freed when former State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne said the state was unable to proceed with their trial on account of the disappearance of "Tony" Gifaldo and "Tommy the Wop" Fusco, its star witnesses.

INVOLVES KIN OF FRENCH PREMIER IN DAUDET DEATH

Royalist Claims Son Was Murdered.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—[Tribune Radio.]—The mysterious death of Philippe Daudet, 14 year old son of the royalist leader Leon Daudet, after being hushed up since the time of the occurrence, now threatens three months later to break into a gigantic scandal, rocking government and high political circles as did the Dreyfus case.

Numerous newspapers and high political leaders concur with Leon Daudet's story that his son was shot down by police either as revenge against the father or through brutality in arresting the youth, who was alleged to have been an anarchist.

Kin of Poincare Involved.

Premier Poincare's name is again dragged into the case through M. Daudet's accusations that a secret police official named Lannes, who is a brother-in-law of Premier Poincare, and Chief of the Secret Police Marlier engineered the whole plot to have Philippe murdered.

M. Laflouater, in whose book store Philippe took refuge while detectives waited outside, has been found to be a stool pigeon for the police, who furnishes them information about the anarchists.

Framed Suicide Plot, Claim.

M. Daudet and his friends declare a detective rushed inside the book shop and shot down Philippe. The father claims the detectives after discovering the boy's identity, plotted to make the case appear one of suicide. He thus explains the mystery of the disappearance of the boy's overcoat for three days, as it was by the coat that the police claimed to have identified young Daudet.

Deputy Buisson announces that he will interpellate the government for the purpose of clearing up the mystery surrounding the scandal next week.

DEVER BACKERS WARY OF INSULL "BEARING GIFTS"

See Peril to Their City Ownership Plans.

Mayor Dever and his advisers are clinging confidently to a hope that purchase negotiations will be resumed tomorrow with the surface lines' security owners.

Meanwhile, a vigorous study of possible alternative construction plans are under way, as the administration's first move to repair its municipal ownership fence, weakened, it was admitted by an aldermanic clamor for "more and better transportation now" and Samuel Insull's unsought promise of elevated extension and subway digging.

Ready to Extend "L" Lines.

Ordinances granting the necessary permission to build the $23,000,000 worth of elevated extensions already have been prepared by Mr. Insull's attorneys, it is said, and are ready for presentation to the council.

If the city cannot or does not dig subways, sufficient funds can be raised by private subscription to begin work, the utility magnate said on Thursday night.

The Insull plan to finance the extensions by the sale of shares to "consumer-riders" was denounced by an administration leader in a formal statement as "a clever scheme to injure, if not kill, municipal ownership and operation of transportation facilities in Chicago."

As a result, Mayor Dever has demanded a declaration from both surface and elevated lines' owners of their intention to continue sale parleys with the city.

Insull Forces Make Reply.

"Every complaint made by Mayor Dever and his advisers regarding the plans of the Chicago Rapid Transit company to extend its lines with an expenditure of $23,000,000 was answered by Mr. Insull before the complaints were made," read a statement issued from the transit company's offices yesterday.

"There will be nothing more to announce, because all of the complaints made against the plan by the mayor in his statement of Friday night were answered by Mr. Insull in an address Thursday night before the Chicago and Cook County Bankers' association.

"In that speech, Mr. Insull made it perfectly plain that he was willing and ready to adapt his plans to any practicable scheme of municipal ownership or municipal operation that the city might devise. His plan as proposed was extremely elastic and easily capable of being fitted in with any plan the city might have."

"City Stands Pat," Dever.

"The city stands pat," declared Mayor Dever. "Let's have a genuine agreement or disagreement. The lines accepted my program once. If they wish to abide by that acceptance, all right, and if not, all right.

"This administration's stand on municipal ownership and operation is the same today as it was the day I came into office. I have violated no promises, and the city's cards are on the table. We have offended no one and are not offended. The negotiations ought to be concluded."

"The people of Chicago want service, more service and less talk," declared Ald. Arthur Albert [43d]. "They don't care whether they get it from a municopally owned system or a privately owned and operated system, but they want it and want it now.

"I am ready to vote now to give the elevated lines a blanket franchise, if necessary to secure relief from the intolerable conditions now existing."

Fears Big Fare Increase.

Albert pointed out that in the proposed Schwartz certificates, by which the city proposes to acquire the existing lines, the municipality agrees to maintain a sufficiently high rate of fare to guarantee interest and other charges.

"What is there in those certificates to protect the car riders against a 25 cent fare?" Ald. Albert asked. "If the fare is not high enough and the city's obligations not met promptly the lines will go back to the original owners, and there will have been another huge waste of public money."

TROTZKY QUITS EXILE; MAY BE LEADING REVOLT

Russian Peasants and Troops Fight.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—[Tribune Radio.]—Leon Trotzky, Russian minister of war, has disappeared from Suchom, according to latest secret reports from Moscow. Soviet officials fear he has joined the strong Red army forces which are supporting him and is preparing the civil war, which he therstened in his recent ultimatum.

Meanwhile the Russian bourgeoisie in Berlin are uniting behind M. Miljukow, leader of the left wing Russian cadets, who are demanding that all the Russian bourgeoisie within and without the boundaries of Russia support M. Trotzky, who is called the sole representative of democracy in Russia today.

Ultimatum of Trotzky.

"This is my second and last warning," M. Trotzky said in his ultimatum to the central committee of the communist party heads. "I warned you once, and I warn you again that unless the measures of violence taken against the chief leaders of the Red army are stopped immediately by M. Zinovieff, M. Kameneff, and M. Stallin, who are responsible for these measures, the Red army will stand up and overthrow the trio in the hugest revolt Russia has seen."

Reports of countless uprisings from Petrograd to Vladivostock show the strength of M. Trotzky's followers. The center of the battle is within a triangle between Koslov, Yelets and Valuiki, where the red troops are fighting soldiers sent from Moscow. The peasants in this district started the uprising. They are supported by the local garrison.

Moscow sent a detachment to restore order, but the detachment never arrived. The train was derailed and most of the men exterminated by the peasants.

Hold Off Division of Troops.

Moscow sent a division of 10,000. The garrisons at Koslov, Yelets and Valuiki attacked these troops. Severe fighting is still on, but the Trotzky troops, having the support of the population, seem to be in a better position.

The peasants in the Astrakan districts are well armed with machine guns. Moscow seems powerless there, as the revolt is supported by all the villagers.

The province of Verkhneuralsk, in the Urals, is seething. A special court has been sent from Moscow to try all the workers for the January uprisings. Five unemployed and one worker were ordered shot and executed immediately, for carrying anti-Communistic posters.

THROUGH ROUTES AVOIDING LOOP, HOPE OF EXPERT

Wants Long Haul Traffic Off Crowded Streets.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

EUGENE S. TAYLOR

Three things will do a lot towards ending the traffic tangle downtown which makes life a continuous jumping and dodging contest for 3,000,000 loop pedestrians and a snails' race for 150,000 vehicles.

So said Eugene S. Taylor of the Chicago plan commission in a report yesterday. He remarks that the first necessity is to keep out of the loop all traffic which merely parades through without stopping, this to be done by finishing the quadrangle of the wide streets skirting the loop—Michigan avenue, Roosevelt road, Canal street and South Water street.

Way Around Almost Complete.

The "quad" almost is complete on three sides—all but South Water—and it is expected almost to double traffic movement capacity in the central business area. Mr. Taylor, it may be mentioned, deals with the traffic question and not with other phases of the transportation problem, but he is strong for a subway.

One encouraging feature of his suggestions is that they might be put through quickly, as such things go, before 3,000,000 Chicagoans develop into human kangaroos. Here are his three steps for lessening the jam:

1. Complete the wide street "quad" around the central area, to keep through bound vehicles out of the loop.
2. Break the barriers that bind the loop.
3. Cut through more north and south streets and develop a system of major and through streets throughout the city.

How Space Is Congested.

"Completion of the South Water street improvement," Mr. Taylor says, "is the final link in the development of a quadrangle of wide streets around the loop. Every fourth vehicle in the loop today is through bound; it does not stop anywhere downtown. The quadrangle will enable one-fourth of the present loop traffic to avoid the loop altogether.

"Besides that, when the produce market goes, every sixth vehicle will be taken off loop streets. No greater relief to traffic can be brought about than that which will result from the quadrangle keeping produce market and through bound vehicles out of the loop.

Opposes "Bottle Neck."

"Michigan avenue was the first project to break the barrier that built the loop. The La Salle street widening will be the second, provided that the improvement is carried all the way to Lincoln park. If it should end in a 'bottle neck' at Ohio street, as has been urged by some selfish interests seeking private gain at public expense, then the La Salle street improvement will not break the barrier, but merely dent it a little.

"Between the heart of the city and the south and southwest sides, the barrier (consisting of the Chicago river and the railroad yards) is formidable indeed. But the Chicago plan commission has been pounding away at it for fifteen years. Mayor Dever, Commissioner Sprague, and Corporation Counsel Busch are making splendid progress toward getting the river straightened between Polk and 18th streets.

Key to Better Conditions.

"Upon this depends the opening of Market, Franklin, Wells, La Salle, and Dearborn streets south to connect with Archer avenue, Wentworth avenue, and the other south and southwest side streets.

"The third step is to develop our streets upon a scientific, comprehensive and practical basis. For immediate traffic relief the city should set aside a comprehensive system of 'through routes' for rapid traffic, to supplement the existing boulevard system.

"As it is today, we have only two good through rapid traffic streets to the south, two to the west, and one to the north. To remedy a condition like this the technical staff of the Chicago plan commission, in coöperation with the city council committee on efficiency and economy, is now working out a complete 'through street' plan for all Chicago.

To Break Up Congestion.

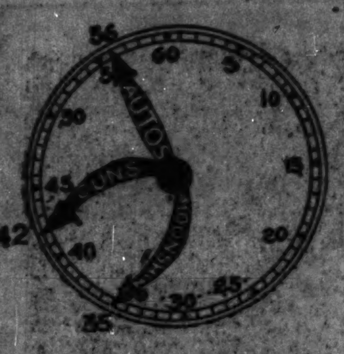
"This 'through street' system, when properly paved, marked, lighted, safeguarded, and controlled by traffic signals, will provide ten times as many through traffic thoroughfares as we now have.

"The present trouble with the street system of Chicago is lack of streets that extend all the way through the city, owing to natural and artificial obstructions. These obstacles can be surmounted, and a system of major thoroughfares extending from one end of the city to the other, be developed. A start on such a system has been made in connection with such Chicago plan improvements as Western avenue, Ashland avenue, Ogden avenue, Robey street, and the other street improvements now under way or contemplated.

Also Favors the Subway.

"There is merit in the idea of subways and elevated sidewalks, and to extend the traffic tower system; to regulate pedestrians as well as vehicles, and in other schemes for relief of congestion which have been advanced. All are more or less worthy of consideration."

HANDS OF DEATH



The clock indicates the number of deaths caused by automobiles, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1.

VETS IN HOUSE PROMISED QUICK ACTION ON BONUS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—Assurance was given today by Representative Longworth, the Republican leader, that the house would have an opportunity shortly to vote on a soldiers' bonus bill.

This assurance was given to a group of house members who are former service men who called on the party leader to urge quick action by the ways and means committee on bonus legislation and an immediate vote by the house after a bill is reported.

Mr. Longworth said the committee would take up the bonus bill as soon as the house disposes of the pending tax measure.

TWO BOYS, MAN DIE; SPEED TOLL ADVANCED TO 56

Two Taxi Drivers Held by the Police.

Two boys and a young man were victims of speed yesterday. The deaths raised the total number of the county's victims of autos and trucks to fifty-six.

GEORGE VANIKAIS.

George Vanikais, 5 years old, 501 West 38th street, was killed by a truck driven by Michael Constantine, 3307 Auburn avenue. The police released the driver when witnesses said the boy walked into the path of the truck.

The other boy killed was Alfred Rechtman, 13 years old, 1217 North Washtenaw avenue. He was struck by a Checker taxicab while crossing in front of 2643 West Division street. The driver, Samuel Borden, 208 South Springfield avenue, is being held until the inquest.

Car Skids; Farmer Dies.

John Weber, 21 years old, a farmer living in Maine township, was killed when his car skidded into a ditch at Lincoln and Crawford avenue. An inquest will be held tomorrow morning.

Roselle Heilrietel, 14 year old high school girl, who lives in Chicago Heights at 1313 West Main street, was probably fatally injured when she was struck by a taxicab. Henri Schlitzer, 616 East 63d street, driver of the cab, was held pending the outcome of the girl's injuries.

After a chase of a mile in Western avenue county policemen overtook and arrested I. Hendrichs, 5478 Ellis avenue, road superintendent of the De Luxe Cab company. He was charged with speeding fifty miles an hour and with carrying concealed weapons.

When his case was called in Speeders' court Hendrichs did not appear. His $200 bond was forfeited and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

CHICAGOAN IS INJURED.

Hammond, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Jammed in an auto between a truck and a street car, Roy Bears, Chicago, was probably fatally hurt last night in Whiting. Bears was removed to a Chicago hospital.

"WAITERS' FLASK TRUST" LEADERS HELD FOR JURY

Joseph Pearce and John Thelmer, alleged leaders of the "waiters' hip flask trust," were held in $1,000 bonds each for violation of the prohibition law by United States Commissioner Glass yesterday.

They were arrested late Friday night by Capt. John Naughton and his squad from the Sheffield avenue station in a richly furnished apartment at 2925 Sheffield avenue. "Kitty" Carpenter, said to be the divorced wife of a former head waiter in a loop café, also was taken into custody.

The police charge the apartment was a clearing house for cabaret booze orders from all parts of the city. By taking the phone orders that came pouring into the place they learned that orders were accepted to deliver booze to any cabaret through any waiter named at any hour of the night.

Argue City's License Power on Wednesday

Arguments in a suit to nullify the city's power to license soft drink parlors pending before Circuit Judge Hugo M. Friend, will be heard on Wednesday afternoon. The suit, brought in behalf of more than fifty dealers, is viewed as the first real test of the law. Should it succeed it would remove the weapon by which Mayor Dever closed hundreds of saloons.

ARREST CONFIDENCE MEN.

Stanley Kerilkowski and Frank Burns, arrested yesterday by detectives of the Kensington station, were charged with operating a confidence game. Two young Indian girls who they say they intended to marry were with them.

3 FAITHS URGE RELIGION FOR SCHOOL PUPILS

Catholics, Protestants, Jews Unite in Move.

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—For the first time in New York a religious meeting was held recently in which Catholics, Jews, and Protestants participated, with clergymen of each faith among the speakers. The meeting was held at the Waldorf-Astoria and it was for teachers in the public schools, more than 3,000 of whom packed the grand ballroom of the hotel.

The gathering was under the auspices of Chapter Theta Pu Alpha Pi, an organization of Roman Catholic women, who are teachers in the public schools of Manhattan, the Bronx and Richmond. They invited the Protestant and Jewish teachers in their respective schools to attend. Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes was the last speaker.

Religious Training for Children.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss religious instruction to children who attend the public schools. It was made plain that this instruction would be outside of school buildings and outside of school hours, and that each pupil would be taught the faith of his parents.

A committee was formed a few months ago, consisting of Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, representing Archbishop Hayes; the Rev. Dr. D. de Sola Pool, rabbi of the Spanish and Portuguese synagogue, representing the Jews, and Watson S. Moore, president of the New York Federation of Churches, representing the Protestants.

They issued a "New Year's Greeting to the Citizens of New York" to the effect that they had formed a committee to see that every child in New York should receive the advantage of the religion of his fathers. The committee adopted as its motto, "Every New York child under the systematic religious instruction of its faith." It was at the request of Mgr. Lavelle that the Catholic Teachers' association called the meeting. The chairman was Loretto M. Rochester, president of the organization.

Speakers at Meeting.

Dr. Pool delivered an address, and the Rev. Dr. Walter M. Howlett, in charge of the Daily Vacation Bible School association, represented the Federation of Churches and spoke for the Protestants. The archbishop and Mgr. Lavelle spoke for the Catholics.

Supreme Court Justice Thomas C. T. Crain, an Episcopalian, and Judge Alfred J. Tally, a Catholic, also spoke. Edward W. Stitt, assistant superintendent of public schools, sat on the platform with four district superintendents.

The program began with "The Star-Spangled Banner." It closed with the singing of "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name" and the benediction by Archbishop Hayes. Afterward the archbishop held an impromptu reception on the platform. Bishop John J. Dunn and a dozen monsignori and priests were with Mgr. Hayes.

Archbishop Discusses Meeting.

"I have sat here this afternoon rather as an auditor listening to the various speakers on this momentous occasion," said the archbishop. "I call it momentous because so much depends on whether we are to avoid the dangers that have been pointed out to us.

"It is not encouraging to find a defense being proclaimed for the extent to which our boys and girls are going risky. We are told it is the love of adventure only. But you cannot have such adventures and not carry the scars and wounds into eternity itself.

"These speakers have all declared that religion is the one salvation fo our children. After all, religion is a part of human life. Religion nowadays is on the front page. It is a live question.

"We are anxious about the future of America. There is such a large percentage of the American people that is not affiliated with any religion. But I believe that at heart the American people are religious. We have reverence for authority, and that reverence, I think, will save us. But we must teach our children reverence for law.

"Ought All to Get Together."

"The child needs something more than a teacher to instruct it in the secular branches. Surely we ought not to deprive education of that essential need which we get from religion itself.

"The great defect in so many of our schools and universities today is that they have closed the door in the face of God. What kind of shepherds would we preachers be if we did not try to protect our children in this manner?

"You have been listening, in my judgment, to as fine a series of talks on this subject as it has ever been my privilege to hear.

"We ought all to get together and pray God to give us the light, the aid and the courage to put our purpose into effect. I call this an afternoon well spent and one which will be of greatest profit to the children of our beloved city."

Rabbi Talks for Jews.

Rabbi Pool declared all were present for the same purpose. "I consider it a privilege to greet you in the name of your fellow citizens who are Jews," he said. "The interest of our Jewish people today in religious education is nothing new. It is simply the revival of our traditions, which, sad to say, we have been too apt to forget.

"The Bible is filled with instructions for propagating religious education. Two thousand years ago we had in Palestine a compulsory system of attendance at a religious school, and from this little school there has been handed on from generation to generation instruction in our religion. So far as we fail to do this now we fail as American citizens.

"I have the honor of being connected with a synagogue which is 270 years old, and I am proud to say that from the first we have had a religious school. We Jews want to do our share, but we cannot do it alone."

Dr. Howlett said the teachers were best equipped to do this work. "It is only as our children are taught religion that our civilization will be preserved, kept pure and good," he declared.

"It is to the interest of all three branches of faith represented here that all our children are taught religion. We are all in this country together. We must do this thing together or perish together. We have about given up the idea that this could be done in the public schools. I think the time has come when we can all get together on a general platform. The time was when this was not so.

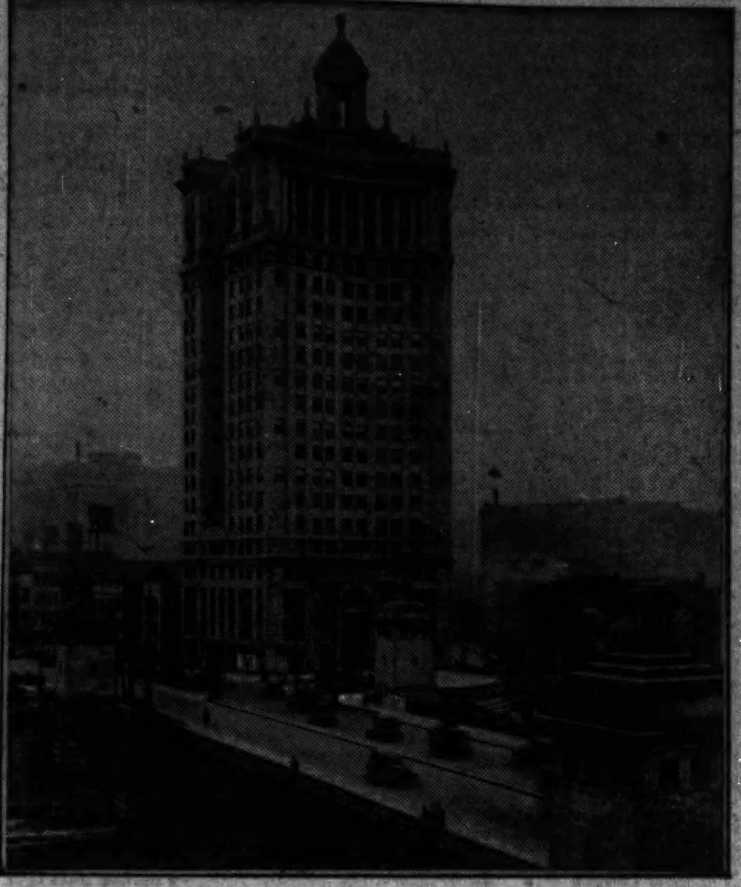
"We should do this work outside of the public school time. I wish we could get public school time. If all the children who are not receiving any religious instruction at all should pass by a given spot, two by two, three yards apart, it would take a month for them to pass."

Judges Give Their Views.

Justice Crain deplored that while the city authorities did so much for the protection of the life and limb of its children, so little was done for their souls.

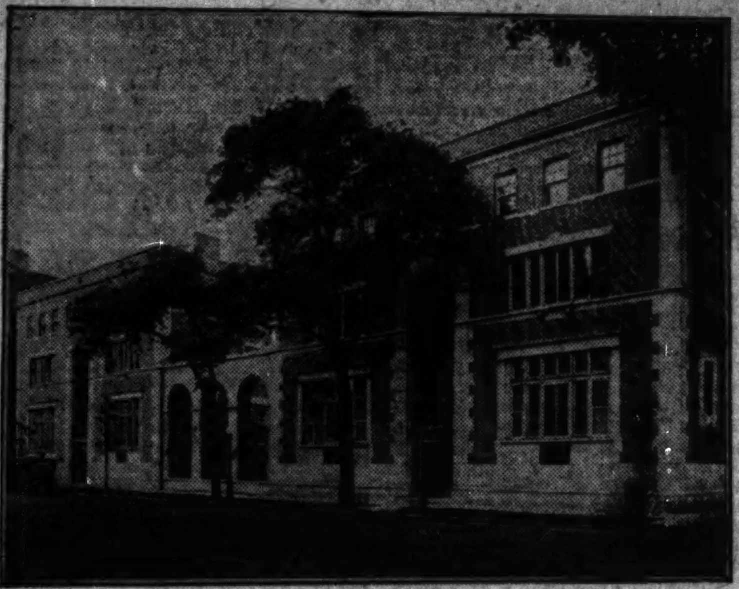
Judge Tally declared that the teachers should zealously labor for the teaching of religion to the children. "We judges are faced in the courts day after day with real concrete sin," he said. "We understand the necessity for this work you are attempting to do."

PRIZE WINNING ARCHITECTURE



The gold medal for the most beautiful building of the year in the north central section was awarded for 1923 to Alfred S. Alschuler, architect of the London Guarantee and Accident building, which faces the southwest corner of the link bridge. The contest was promoted by the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank. [Trowbridge Photo.]

The gold medal, in the same contest for the best work in remodeling was awarded to Clark & Walcott, architects, and Bennett & Parsons, consulting architects, for the work on the parish house of St. Chrysostom's Protestant Episcopal church, 1424 North Dearborn parkway.



Honorable mention for remodeling was given to Rebori, Wentworth & Dewey, Inc., architects, for work on the Duplex apartments, at Schiller street and North Dearborn parkway.

ALFRED S. ALSCHULER.

In the remodeling contest Lowe & Bollenbacher, architects, received honorable mention for the changes in the Clara B. Welles building at 152 East Ontario street.

ALSCHULER GETS MEDAL FOR BEST BUILDING OF 1923

London Guarantee & Accident Designer.

BY AL CHASE.

Alfred S. Alschuler has won first place in the annual gold medal contest for the most beautiful new building of the year in the north central district. The jury of award selected the London Guarantee and Accident building, designed by Mr. Alschuler.

Clark & Walcott, architects, and Bennett & Parsons, consulting architects, were awarded a gold medal for the best remodeled building in the district—St. Chrysostom's parish house.

Flat Builders Honored.

The duplex apartments at Dearborn and Schiller, designed by Rebori, Wentworth & Dewey, were given honorable mention in the "new building" class, and Lowe & Bollenbacher received honorable mention for remodeling the Clara B. Welles building at 152 East Ontario street, to be occupied by the Kalo shop.

The report of the jury of award, composed of Charles E. Fox, president of the Illinois Society of Architects; Pierre Blouke, president of the Chicago Architectural club, and Alfred Granger, president of the Chicago chapter, A. I. A., was made last night to the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, which originated and conducts the contest.

"In making the award for the London Guarantee building the jury has considered not only the architectural value of the building, but also its importance in the development of the city of Chicago and the amount of architectural knowledge shown in the making of the plans and elevations," the report states.

Old Houses Made New.

Commenting on the award of the gold medal for the St. Chrysostom's church parish house, the report says:

"The architects have remodeled two typical city houses, now a complete unit both on the outside and the inside.

The plan shows a knowledge of the essentials of such a building and a proper appreciation of economy in construction. The result is a parish building that would be a credit to any community, and will form a vital part of the new church when it is built."

In giving honorable mention to Lowe & Bollenbacher's remodeling of the building at 152 East Ontario, the report comments on it as a structure "of great refinement and real distinction, such as one finds generally in New York and Washington, but not commonly in Chicago.

To Promote Good Taste.

"The jury hopes that the award of honorable mention to the designers of this building will do much to stimulate more taste and distinction in alteration jobs and help to give character to the new development of the north side, as well as in other sections of the city."

An exhibition of the entries in the gold medal contest will be held shortly in the lobby of the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank. The date will be announced in a few days.

'24 ROBIN HOOD NEVER ROBBED POOR MAN AND PAYS HIS INCOME TAX

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—A modern Robin Hood, who pays income tax but "who never robbed a poor man or hurt a guy in his life," has been discovered in St. Paul.

The following letter was received today by the internal revenue bureau here together with an income tax report from a man who said he was a burglar.

"This is my income tax for 1923. I didn't file one last year because my salary was under $1,000—way under, if you know what I mean, I was in the cooler eight months of the year.

"My business is burglary and I'm not ashamed to say so, because I never hurt a guy and never robbed a poor man in my life. I am giving my name and address because I know your department has to keep it secret—that's the law."

The internal revenue department will not make known his name to the police or anybody else, officials said.

POINCARE BILL TO BOOST FRENCH TAXES 20% WINS

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—[Tribune Radio.]—Despite his 65 years, a severe attack of grip, and the worry and fatigue resulting from the last six weeks of political turmoil, Premier Poincare at 7 o'clock this morning won the support of a majority in the chamber of deputies by a vote of 363 to 218 for adoption of his new fiscal program.

The financial reforms are expected to net 7,500,000,000 francs ($375,000,000) through additional 20 per cent taxation, economies, and retrieved unpaid taxes, thus balancing the budget without heed to German reparations payments and strengthening the franc, which has depreciated 80 per cent.

The new finance reform provides for raising 4,000,000,000 francs ($200,000,000) annually through increased taxation; 1,000,000,000 francs ($50,000,000) through economy in the administration; 1,000,000,000 francs through increased railway rates, and 500,000,000 ($25,000,000) through the allocation of the match monopoly, heretofore held by the state.

Bank Run Halted by View of $2,000,000 in Currency

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The sight of $2,000,000 in currency being unloaded from armored trucks before their very eyes today succeeded in stopping a run in Harlem's "Little Italy" on the private bank of Lionello, Perrara & Co.

"STALLED AUTO BETTER TEACHER THAN COLLEGE"

In most cases, college students will get more mental discipline in a few hours of trying to find out why a Ford will not start, than in equal time spent in the college classroom, Charles G. Du Bois, president of the Western Electric company, told alumni of Dartmouth college at their gathering in the Congress hotel yesterday.

The general attitude toward examinations, lectures, theses, and other college duties is more of a desire to "get by" than it is to learn, Mr. Du Bois said, and he stressed the idea that the present educational processes are frequently out of date.

"During the last half century the world's knowledge has been evolutionized," he said, "but as yet we have not related the application of this new knowledge to our educational institutions."

Signor Rosetti, an Italian attorney representing the Egyptian government, declared the government did not recognize the legal entity of Mr. Carter. The Countess of Carnarvon was not cited. The judge adjourned the case until Tuesday to enable counsel to argue the point privately.

'I'M NOT SCARE'T,' SAYS KITTY, BUT SHE CRIES A BIT

3 Tell of Mrs. Malm's Alleged Confession.

She may have been "different" enough to have been the leader of a band of north side gunmen, but Katherine Malm, on trial for the murder of Edward Lehman, failed yesterday to hold the interest of even the most alert trial fans in Judge Walter P. Steffen's court.

The first time she heard her "girl friend," Blanche King of Indianapolis, go back on her and try to connect her with the Lehman shooting, Katherine fainted dead away twice.

Tell of Alleged Confession.

The second time things went wrong was yesterday morning when a trio of police officials followed up this evidence with details of Katherine's alleged confession to participation in the shooting, and her voluntary reënactment of the scene. This time the girl cried some real tears.

But late yesterday, when Eric Noren, confessed chauffeur for the Malms on that early November morning they "pulled the job at the sweater joint," told his version of the shooting, Kitty seemed to find the proceedings dull and colorless. But undisturbing.

Last night as Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Pritzker and Robert McMillan indicated the state would rest its case before noon tomorrow, Kitty confided to her counsel, Attorney Jay J. McCarthy, that she was no more "scare't" of the jury's verdict than, in the old days, she had been afraid of "the cops."

"Hang me? That's a joke," and she reached for a glass of water.

"Gonna Tell Truth."

"Say, nobody in the world would hang a girl for bein' in an alley with a guy who pulls a gun and shoots. And she even gets a piece of lead in her own head. But even that ain't the truth, and I'm gonna tell the truth when I get up there."

This story, to be told by Kitty tomorrow, will contradict the testimony yesterday of Eric Noren, now in the county jail. He confessed to participation in the murder of young Lehman.

He tried not to appear gleeful as he told about the evening of Nov. 3, when, about 1:30 at night, he drove the Malms around town until, several hours later, Malm ordered, "Drive me to the Delson sweater joint." Katherine, he recalled, spoke up and said "she'd go along."

Noren remained at the wheel while the Malms got out, sneaked through a yard, down an alley, and to the rear of 2051 Lincoln avenue.

Heard Four Shots.

"Then what happened?" questioned Prosecutor Pritzker.

"I heard five shots, so I started the car and drove it over on Barry avenue. Then the Malms came out. She was bleeding and said, 'He shot me.' Then she caved in, and Malm lifted her into the car, head first."

Before Noren was called to the stand, Albert C. Stemwedel, the watchman whom Lehman accompanied on his rounds the night of the shooting, was called, unexpectedly, as the court's witness.

Everybody in the courtroom listened for the answer as Stemwedel was asked: "Did you recognize anybody that was there?"

"Yes, sir, I thought it was Walter Bockelman, but I was not positive."

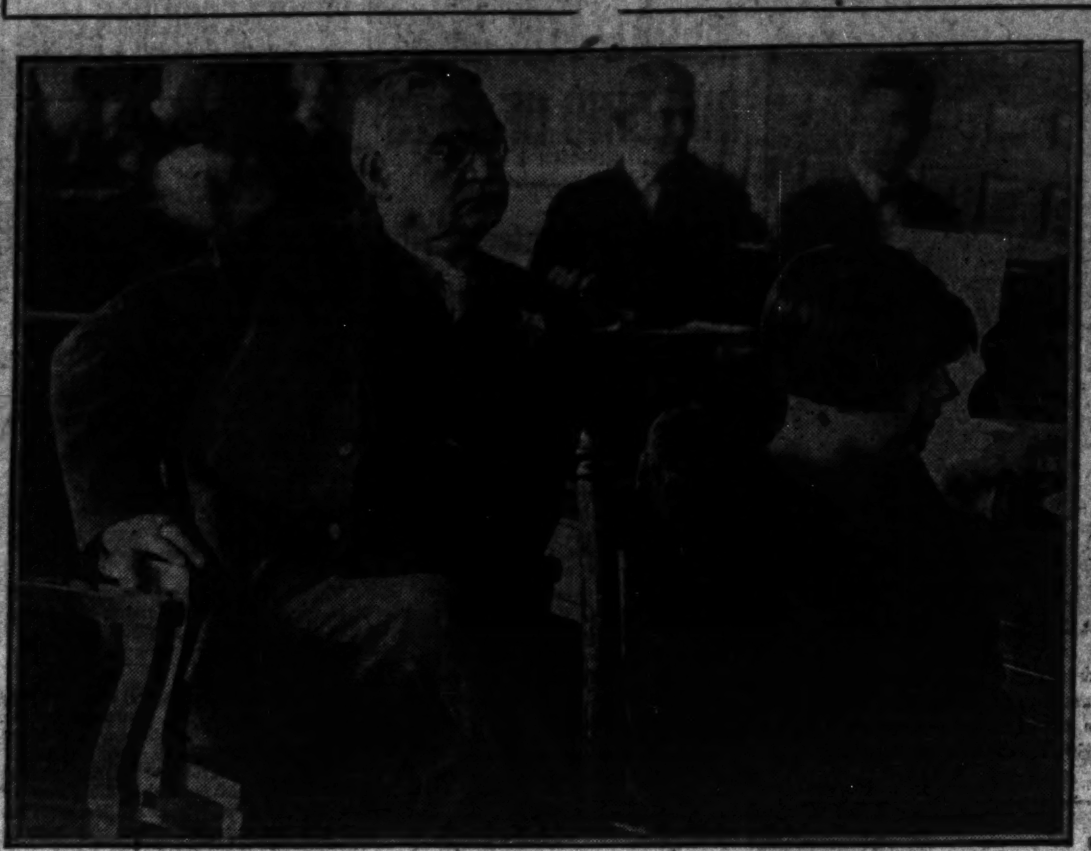
Didn't See Kitty There.

He declared that at no time that night had he seen Katherine Malm, or any girl, on the premises of the Delson company.

Deputy Superintendent of Police Matthew Zimmer repeated details of a questioning he had conducted of Kitty Nov. 27, the day she returned from Indianapolis and gave herself up at Hudson avenue station.

Policewoman Theresa Johnson told of accompanying the girl on Nov. 28 when she reënacted the scene of the killing. The reënactment, Miss Johnson emphasized, "was absolutely voluntary."

TEARS COME AS THREE ACCUSE HER



Mrs. Katherine Malm's eyes filled with real tears yesterday as she heard three police officials tell the court of her alleged confession of implication in the murder of Edward Lehman. But after the court's closing she reiterated that she wasn't "scare't." [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Black, former dean of the dental school, also having received the award.

Jilted Woman Breaks Up Honeymoon; Calls Police

Perhaps Frank Wesolowski, 1247 Division street, never had been warned concerning the fury of a woman scorned. Anyway he married Julia Rosa yesterday morning. Before noon he was under arrest on information of Anna Hadrosak, who told the police the newlyweds were "celebrating on a gallon of moonshine." Frank will be arraigned tomorrow.

SKIBA'S SLAYERS TO BE HANGED; RETRIAL DENIED

Judge Caverly Holds Guilt Is Proved.

Lucius Dolton and Henry Wilson, colored, were sentenced to be hanged April 18 for the murder last January of Policeman Vincent Skiba of the South Chicago police station.

Judge Caverly pronounced sentence yesterday following a heated argument by defense attorneys seeking a new trial for the two men. The assistant state's attorneys in charge of the case opposed the motion.

Judge Holds Case Is Clear.

"There is little use of arguing this case to any great length," Judge Caverly said when attorneys had finished. "The evidence is so clear.

"These men went out to commit robberies. When they were stopped by an officer of the law they pulled their revolvers and killed him."

The judge then read the official order commanding "the sheriff to take the men to a safe and secure spot between the hours of sunrise and sunset on the day of the 18th of April and there hang them by the neck until dead."

Beg for Another Trial.

Dolton and Wilson appeared to have little concern in what transpired. When asked if they had anything to say before sentence was pronounced they both begged for another trial. While they were leaving the courtroom Dolton lighted a cigaret.

PRODUCTION OF GAS LAST YEAR BREAKS RECORD

Washington, D. The indicated domestic demand was placed at 6,685,035,280 gallons, which, with exports of 871,116,614 gallons, made a total demand of 7,556,894 gallons, an increase of 36.64 per cent.

MELLON DENIES CORRUPTION IN REVENUE BUREAU

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon denied today persistent reports of corruption in the internal revenue bureau and declared that proposed overhauling of the bureau would result in nothing but harm.

For weeks there have been circulated charges of inefficiency and irregularity in connection with tax cases particularly, and in congress movements are under way to bring about investigation and reorganization of the bureau.

In answer to inquiries on this subject Secretary Mellon issued a formal statement.

"I know of no instances of corruption in the bureau of internal revenue," said Mr. Mellon, "except a few which have been prosecuted criminally. I have found governmental employés generally honest and loyal to the government, and I believe such is the case in the bureau of internal revenue.

"The training necessary to handle tax cases is highly technical, and education and experience are essential. The employés in the bureau have this training and experience, and are functioning satisfactorily. To disturb the situation by creating in them the impression that an "overhauling" is to take place, would be to destroy the morale of the organization and render the existing machinery much less effective."

Over 100 Different Designs of High Grade Homes, suitable for City or Suburb, are shown in our Book of "Honor Bilt" Homes. A few of these homes are illustrated on this page. Many have already been built in our most exclusive suburbs. (We put you in touch with bonded contractors.)

The labor saved by our "Honor Bilt" Ready-Cut System, coupled with the many other exclusive "Honor Bilt" Home advantages, has enabled our customers to save from $500.00 to $2,500.00 on their homes. "Honor Bilt" Ready-Cut houses are NOT portable or sectional buildings. They are the better type of solidly built frame construction. Come and inspect "Honor Bilt" construction at our Beautiful Exhibit. Judge for yourself.

The ready-cut idea, "the great labor saver," is simply applying to residence construction the same principles as are used in the construction of modern skyscrapers, where the steel is all cut and fitted before it comes to the job. Skyscrapers are "Ready-Cut"—Why not your home?

Here's What You Save

Over 30,000 "Honor Bilt" Houses Have Been Built in the U. S. A. Many have been built in Chicago, New York and other large cities where we have had an opportunity of comparing values of "HONOR BILT" houses with houses built in the ordinary way. In the Tabulation Below We Give You a fair comparison based on observations of our customers. Many of our customers have sold at prices that yielded as much as $5,000.00 profit.

WOMEN'S CLUBS RALLY TO HELP MEN U. S. FORGOT

Town of 20,000 Also Joins Rescue Crusade.

"TO THE COLORS"

Every patriotic citizen who is behind the move to get America's "lost battalion" out of the prisons and give the soldier prisoners the same freedom that has long since been given the slackers and the spies is invited to attend the big massmeeting in Medinah temple, Cass and Ohio streets, at 2:30 next Sunday afternoon. The committee to rescue the "lost battalion" has headquarters in room 203, Hotel Sherman. It may be reached by telephone by calling Franklin 2120 and asking for room 203.

Two of the city's women's clubs, a women's organization of wartime auto drivers and a whole Illinois town yesterday got behind the campaign of the ex-service men to release the "lost battalion."

The army crusading to release the soldier-prisoners—men who fought for the country, but are still in prison while radicals, spies, and slackers who fought against it have been set free—grew.

Town Pledges Support.

The Rev. Charles D. Wilson of the First Methodist Church of Harvey, Ill., called the headquarters of the committee to release the "lost battalion," room 203 of the Sherman hotel, yesterday and pledged the support of the town to the movement to free the soldiers.

Mrs. F. O. Glisdorff, 1629 Jarvis avenue, pledged the 800 members of the Rogers Park Woman's club, and Mrs. Ida C. Schoessling, president of the Altrui club, a woman's organization of Jefferson Park, told Chairman Claude Foubare to count her club members in.

Then came Mrs. Sidney D. Goldenberg, colonel in charge of the United States Liberty Drivers of Chicago, a wartime organization of 100 patriotic women, which has never ceased its activities.

100 Auto Drivers to Help.

"Each of our women must drive her own car," Mrs. Goldenberg said in offering the backing of the organization, "and so we place 100 cars at the disposal of the committee to rescue the 'lost battalion' in the event they should be needed.

"We have kept right on with our work since the close of the war, visiting hospitals and in every other way possible aiding the ex-service men. We feel that the rescue of these soldier prisoners is a most worthy cause, and we are solidly out to see that justice is done them."

Mrs. Glisdorff of the Rogers Park Woman's club said her organization will hold a meeting Tuesday evening at which resolutions to be sent to Washington will be adopted. Mrs. Schoessling said the Altrui club also will pass resolutions of a similar nature at an early meeting.

Another Meeting Next Week.

The Rev. Mr. Wilson of Harvey is planning to hold a big massmeeting at 8 o'clock on the evening of March 2—next Sunday.

"I have asked every organization and association of men and women in Harvey to join with me in this," the pastor said.

"The whole town will be behind this when we hold our meeting."

Meantime a meeting was held in chambers of Judge Joseph Burke of a subcommittee to assemble facts and information concerning what has so far been done toward getting the men out of prison.

At this meeting the World War Veterans presented evidence which that organization has gathered that nine of the men in Leavenworth penitentiary were discriminated against in the release of political prisoners some time back.

The nine, it was stated, were such cases as should technically have come under the terms of that release; but they were as they have been since their imprisonment "forgot."

Appeal to President.

John J. Riley, chairman the executive board of the World's War Veterans, after a meeting of the board, last night sent the following telegram to President Coolidge concerning the cases of these nine men:

"Mr. President: The executive board, World's War Veterans, respectfully beg to again call the President's attention to the rank discrimination in favor of the enemies of our country.

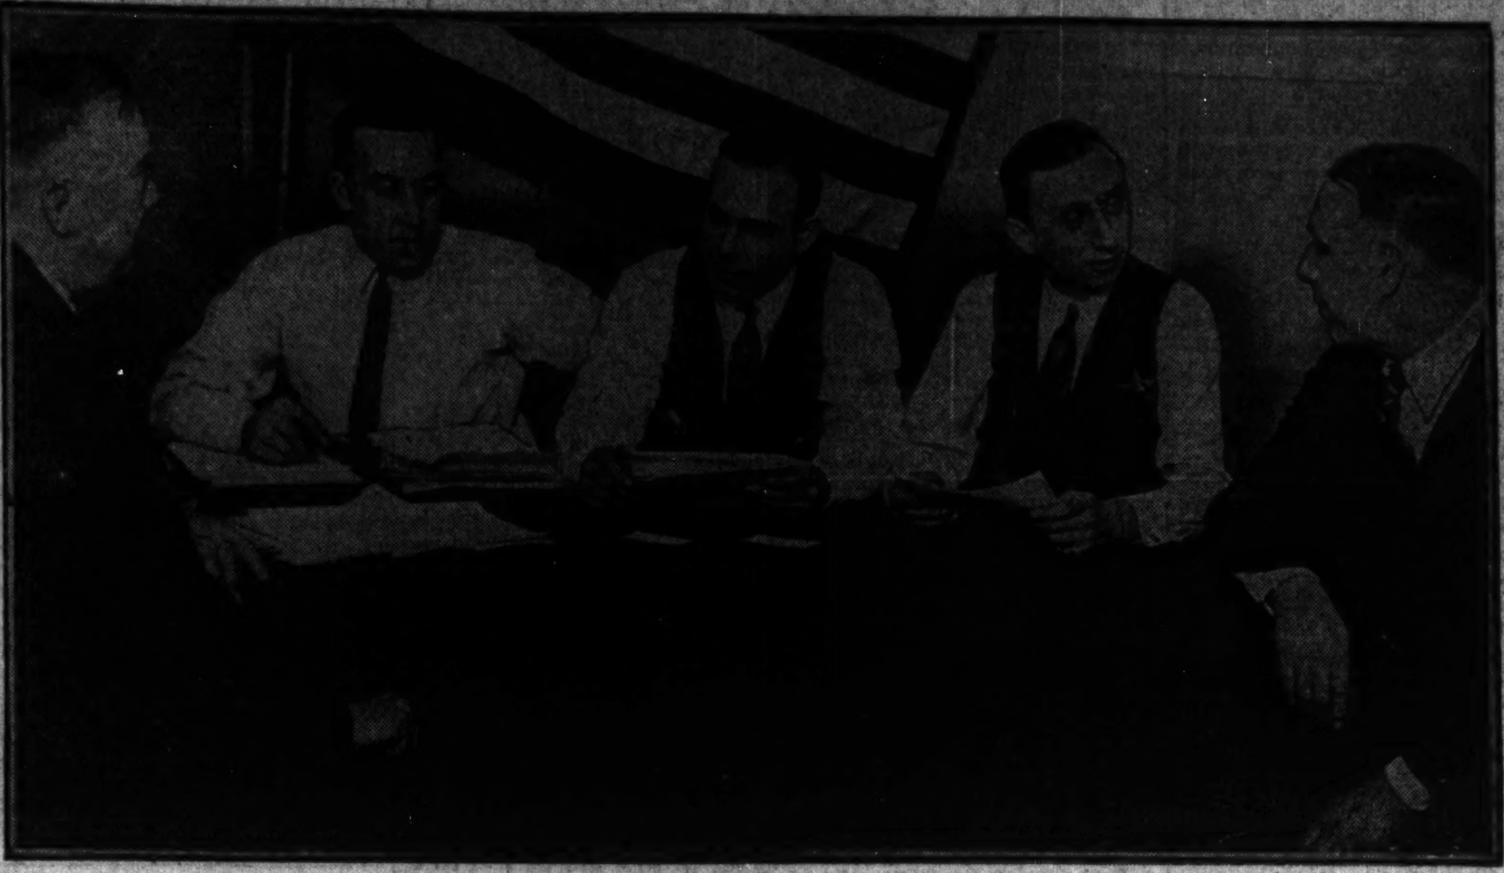
"According to latest reports from the war department, there are still nine military prisoners in the United States disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kas. These men are still confined for absence without leave and desertion, besides other petty infractions of military discipline.

Showed Their Disrespect.

"In refusing to even don a uniform of the United States army, the conscientious objector was not only guilty of desertion, but was guilty of disrespect towards the President of the United States, the United States government and army of the United States, and several other serious charges of conspiracy and sedition. The same ruling that freed the objector should have freed and been applied to the men now in the disciplinary barracks.

"This organization stands ready at all times to support the President of the United States and all military and naval officers of this nation in preserving discipline in the service and respect for the same in this nation, but we cannot but feel that as no blacker crime against the country could be committed than treason, and as the traitors have all been freed and their actions condoned in some quarters, we are asking for the release of all wartime military prisoners in every military and naval prison or other place of confinement as a protest against the lenient treatment of our war time enemies."

STRIVE TO FREE "LOST LEGION"



Among the leaders in the movement to free soldiers still held in Leavenworth prison while slackers and traitors were released are members of the Committee to Review the Cases of Prisoners of the World War. From left to right those in the picture are: Ernest W. Turner, state representative; Frank J. Nolan, chairman of the organization subcommittee; Claud Foubare, chairman of the entire committee; Alderman J. O. Kostner, a committee member; Frank Bering, manager of the Hotel Sherman, who donated the use of the headquarters to the committee.

Youthful Soldier, Broke, Steals Army Shirts, Gets 15 Years at Leavenworth

BY DONALD EWING.

Leavenworth, Kas., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—A 15 year old boy sentenced to fifteen years for stealing some $1.37 army shirts. A pal only a few years older given the same sentence. Another boy, who enlisted at 17, fought through the war, and then accidentally killed a German civilian in a street brawl, brought on by too much wine. Sentenced to life. All model prisoners; all anxious for another chance.

These were some of the things brought out today as a military board of review delved into the cases of Leavenworth's soldier prisoners who have watched I. W. W.'s and slackers come and go while they seemingly stay on forever behind the bars of the federal penitentiary.

Take young Paul Yobski. He is an Illinois boy. Born and bred American of Polish parents. When America went to war, Paul, only 17, went with it. Then Paul went to France. More training and finally the trenches.

Kills German Civilian.

Then the armistice, and Paul was sent to Germany with the army of occupation. One night there was a brawl on the street. Yobski killed a German; he claims it was accidental, and that claim is backed up by the fact that even a stern war department, when the case was placed before it by influential persons, quickly commuted his sentence to ten years.

A plea for further clemency for Yobski brings the reply that clemency already has been given, but it is pointed out that this clemency brings an interesting light into the soldier-prisoner situation.

"It shows," said Reuel Elton, national adjutant of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, tonight, "that the army admits that courts martial in France and Germany did oversentence soldiers, giving them the limit regardless of circumstances or conditions. It shows also that when pressure—real pressure from influential sources is brought to bear, the army acts and acts quickly.

Joins Army at Age of 15.

Vernie Spires is another young soldier who got into trouble when virtually a child. His case presents some complexities, for it cannot be stated definitely whether it comes under the present military board's jurisdiction.

Vernie was 15 when he slipped into the army, getting in because he was large for his age. He was one of those sent to Russia, assigned to the quartermaster corps. He was stationed in Manila for awhile. There he and Frank Hoskins, a pal, went broke. Pay days were few. They stole some army shirts worth $1.37 each from the supply depot where they worked. Each got fifteen years. Vernie has served five already—and he's barely 21 years old now.

The board of review which listens to the prisoners' stories in the secrecy of a locked chamber with no one but the two army men and the one prisoner present, has finished fifty-nine cases. All of the Houston rioters have been heard, and today it developed that another of these rioters has become a hero since being sentenced.

Proves Himself Hero Twice.

When Private Tyler of the rioters was called it developed that twice he has saved Warden W. I. Biddle's life when a vicious prisoner tried to sneak up behind and crack that official over the head with stones. On another occasion he saved a guard from a famous assassin who wanted to add one more victim to his list.

It has developed that whatever action comes from the board of review will depend almost entirely on the whim of the members. It is freely admitted that they simply talk things over with a prisoner a bit, and if they happen to feel like recommending clemency they can do so, while, if they happen to take a dislike to a man, that man is out of luck.

CHILD DIES OF SCALDS.

J. V. Adamatis, 14 months old, 919 West 33d street, scalded by boiling water two days ago, died yesterday at the Lakeside hospital.

SOMEBODY said to us the other day that he didn't think much of the illustrations we use in our advertising. He said it after he had looked at the furniture itself.

"These cuts," he said, "don't do the goods justice." And we agree with him; they don't. Take, for example, the bedroom suite shown here. These simple outline drawings merely indicate the "lines" of these beautiful pieces; that's all we expect of them. But if we showed you the finest examples of the illustrator's art, such illustrations would come far short of presenting the real beauty of the goods.

No. You'll just have to see the furniture itself if you're to know what it really is. And, considering the remarkably low prices, we can honestly advise you to see it. You'll see what Scholle-quality is like; you'll see how very low the prices are for such quality.

And if you buy this, or anything else in our store, you may know that you can always get the money back if you're not satisfied.

Don't be disappointed if you pick something in the list of bargains, and then find, when you get here, that it's gone. In some cases there's "one only"; somebody else may get here ahead of you.

IS THE TRIBUNE REACTIONARY?

From time to time, as we look upon such fruits of our labors as fall from the Vox Pop tree or from the lips of candid individuals we may meet or pass, we grow somewhat introspective. Too much introspection undoubtedly is bad. That way lies either a form of mania, an intolerable egotism, or the ridiculous and futile figure of a Buddha wrapped in solemn contemplation of his navel. But a reasonable amount of introspection, on the other hand, may prove clarifying, chastening, and salutary. That is precisely the amount for which we strive.

For those who try always to read between the lines, to find a hidden motive in every human action, and especially in every journalistic statement, to doubt that honesty can exist for itself alone, we are willing to admit a selfish, a commercial, thought, if they will, behind such of our self-analysis as follows.

THE TRIBUNE is a successful journalistic enterprise, as judged by most modern standards. It is our purpose to keep it so. We believe we can do that only by retaining public confidence—in the accuracy and comprehensiveness of our news items, in the good faith and reasonable intelligence of our editorial opinions, in the honesty of our advertisements, in the helpfulness of our various departmental features, in the clean amusement of our comic strips, and in the hearty grasp of the paper as a whole.

We believe that a newspaper must be entertaining or it will not be read by any great number. We believe that it must be instructive or it will not be favored by the most valuable class of readers. We believe it must be constructive or it will not progress with the community it serves. It is our purpose, both for selfish and (if we may say it) for unselfish reasons, to accomplish all these aims.

Yet frequently we find ourselves condemned for taking an unpopular side of some public question. Take, for instance, the railroad question in this country today. In the popular mind, the railroads are—or were—an impersonal business octopus, grinding down the farmer with high freight rates, corrupting the lawmakers, and otherwise demoralizing the country. We have held that they are as essential to the modern life of the nation as is the system of veins and arteries to the life of a man. For that reason we have insisted that the nation cannot afford to demoralize their service, either by too restrictive legislation or by discouraging the financing of needed extensions, improvements, or maintenance. We hear that is capitalistic and reactionary.

The matter of demagoguery in politics is another such issue. The demagogue appeals to popular ignorance and prejudice. He speaks and acts on this basis, for temporary and selfish ends, regardless of the effect upon society or upon the future of the nation. We assail him because our interest as a newspaper is wrapped up with the interest of the community and of the nation. The demagogue's interest ends with his life. The newspaper's interest properly extends from generation to generation and properly ends not with the life of any one man but with the failure of its purpose or the failure of the community which it serves. Yet we are assailed for assailing demagogues. Who are we to decide who is the demagogue and who the high minded, far visioned statesman? Only intelligence and honest purpose, whether selfish or otherwise, can say.

Through it all, at times, we recognize a real danger of misconstruction of effort. The people who feel themselves thwarted or offended are too frequently the only people who act. Those who feel themselves approved or supported merely go blandly on their way. Thus, while we may battle successfully for the eight hour day for all men in the steel mills, despite the pain of such a battle to the capital invested in the steel business, while we recognize the benefits which the development of unionism has brought to the workers, while we fight for subways to give Chicagoans better transportation regardless of its effect upon the so-called traction barons, while we urge development of a nation-wide super power system to stimulate industry and provide more comforts and luxuries in the lives of all, we hear complaints of a reactionary, capitalistic press.

Is THE TRIBUNE reactionary? Was Charlemagne reactionary when he sought to restore the glory, the peace, the civilization, and the prosperity of the early Roman empire? Was Roosevelt reactionary when he acted to preserve American natural resources in a country which never before had thought of needing to preserve them? Is the present national administration reactionary in attempting to reduce taxation back toward the pre-war schedule? If reactionary, to what end?

PROHIBITION—THE ONLY THING VALID IN THE CONSTITUTION.

Attorney General Daugherty, in his report on prohibition enforcement to President Coolidge, says that the injunction is working well and that more federal districts ought to make use of this remedy, "the results of which have been most commendable."

Prohibition by injunction is a device to get rid of jury trials. In wet sections of the country, where prohibition laws are not on the conscience of the citizens, it might be difficult to get verdicts of guilty. When the offender can be put in contempt the judge can punish.

There have been cases reported in which an injunction having been issued against the sale of liquor on certain premises, punishment was decreed for the offender because he violated the law on other premises not covered by the injunction. These are extreme cases, but the general theory of the process of enforcement by injunction is to avoid giving the offender his constitutional right to trial by jury.

People who believe that the most important thing in the United States is prohibition enforcement believe that any process by which it is enforced is good. Their answer is that if a citizen does not give an enforcement officer reason to believe that the law has been violated, there will be no impairment of constitutional rights. Furthermore, a citizen who violates the Volstead act has no constitutional rights.

That then justifies search and seizure without writ, double jeopardy under state and federal law, two punishments for one offense, and the abolition of trial by jury. The ardent supporters of prohibition believe that the eighteenth amendment repealed all articles of the constitution which in any manner defined or abridged the methods of its enforcement. It began by denying what had been the American citizen's right of liberty and of personal choice and decision. With that gone the rest of the constitutional guaranties could easily be swept out of the way.

McADOO'S WAY TO STABILITY.

William G. McAdoo, having been declared untainted and in every way a desirable leader and potential savior of the nation by some 700 of his Democratic friends assembled for that purpose, "accepts the command" to run for the Democratic nomination for the presidency. That was to be expected as orthodox politics. Mr. McAdoo thereupon carries his orthodoxy through to the announcement of a platform upon which he will make his race. It also was to be expected. There are to be no surprises in this campaign in so far as Mr. McAdoo is able to dictate it. He is thoroughly conventional.

First, the candidate promises to drive corruption out of Washington. It has been made, we suspect, in the course of every national campaign since Washington. If it wasn't made as the result of the war contract exploitation of the taxpayers while Mr. McAdoo was a member of the administration the Republicans missed a bet which the Democrats are not missing now. To reduce corruption in any government is essential, and to promise to do it is inevitable.

Having landed that blow, Mr. McAdoo proceeds. He would call a new international conference in Washington to relieve the troubles of the world by reducing armaments, promoting peace, restoring stability, and advancing prosperity. He would "take the grip of Wall street off the treasury department." That ought to get him the votes of the people who prefer to have their finances managed as they have been in the Dakotas rather than as they are by banks which do not fail. He would repeal the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill. He would reform the railroads. He's had experience in that field. The railroads are still struggling to recover. He would do various other promising things.

It's a full order. Going back to the second item we find restoration of stability as the objective. How an American President could restore stability by reëngaging in international conferences, overturning the tariff, attacking the railroads, reducing federal revenues while increasing federal obligations, etc., etc., we leave to the voting public.

NATIONAL PARKS FOR THE MIDDLE WEST.

Secretary of the Interior Work has set aside 9,121 acres of public lands on Isle Royale, in Lake Superior, as a nucleus for a new national park for the benefit of the nature lovers of the middle west. That, we believe, is a commendable move. Isle Royale is a natural beauty spot, abounding in moose and caribou, and many varieties of birds. It would provide a preserve and breeding place of great value.

But while steps are being taken to improve and restrict this area for national park purposes, the interior department ought not to overlook the pending McCormick bill for the establishment of the Upper Mississippi Wild Life and Fish Refuge. The region involved in that project is much larger than the Isle Royale district proposed to incorporate as a national park, and has most of the advantages of Isle Royale, without some of the disadvantages.

It has not the moose and caribou herds, but it is a much more productive area for bird and fish breeding, and in addition is more easily accessible to hundreds of thousands of persons in the middle west. It has the support of more than 100,000 members of the Izaak Walton league, all of whom are lovers of nature and of clean outdoor sport.

Both projects would be to the benefit of future generations as well as to the present. But if either one is to take precedence over the other, we believe the more varied advantages of the upper Mississippi reservation should give it that preference.

ANOTHER LAW TO MAKE US GOOD.

One hundred religious leaders of the country meet in Washington in conference on the subject of action to obtain cleaner moving pictures throughout the country. Out of the conference two things are expected. One is a movement toward community activity in favor of better films. The other is an organized effort in support of Representative Upshaw's bill for a federal commission of six members to censor films and control exhibition through licensing.

The two ideas are strangely incongruous. The first is valid and proper. Community sentiment can, and ought to, operate toward improvement of moving pictures. It can do so without any law. It can check exhibition and production of vulgar, suggestive, tawdry, and otherwise bad films by the simple process of refusal to attend the exhibition of such films. No movie house will continue to show pictures which are unattended, and no movie producer will continue to produce such pictures. That is as it should be.

But the idea of federal censorship, through which six persons shall be empowered to tell 109,999,994 others what they shall see, enjoy, and approve in moving pictures, is beyond all limits of reasonable liberty, human rights, and private conscience. It is another dangerous attempt to make people moral, high minded, and of superior taste by law. To exactly the extent that it would take away the necessity for personal discrimination and selection between good and bad, it would weaken the moral fiber of the nation. The evils of such a law would be far greater than any evil which could follow the present practice of allowing the people to choose the movies which they will attend, and to which they will send their children.

THE COMMUTERS' TICKET.

After snows, the garden. Chewinks and thrashers singing and a thrush at sundown. Candles winking in the woods when the south wind comes across the blossoming grapes. Ritualistic tulips have been in processional before the altar. Peonies have burgeoned and made a glory. Larkspur and summer phlox have swept in as a wave. The thickets have had blood root and violets, trilliums and mandrakes, wild geraniums, phlox and wild roses. The great cathedral of the woods is deep in green. The cardinal which wintered in the snows is a flame in the green with the tanager who did not stand the rigors. The corn is in tassel. The peas are dried vines. Zinneas and asters are along the garden walk and the wild sunflowers nod in the wind. A mirage in February. Why not? After the garden, snows.

THE NAVAL 50-50.

Recently the partly completed super-dreadnaught Washington, on which $20,000,000 had been spent, was towed from a shipyard at Camden, N. J., to the Philadelphia navy yard to be prepared as a target and destroyed in accordance with the navy limitations. That is in keeping with the Washington agreement which stopped competitive warship building.

This competition was not only provocative but it was expensive, and the limitation relieved the American budget of heavy costs. The United States was given a paper equality with Great Britain and the two navies were to be the largest of the world. That will be all right if we keep what the agreement gives us.

Of the eighteen American battleships six require modernization. Four, as recently reported, cannot maneuver or fight until they are equipped with new boilers. They are held to be unsafe at more than twelve knots, which puts them out of the fleet. Two others, the Texas and New York, although not out of action, need modernization. The department wants to change all six to oil burners. The four which are about out of commission can be converted at an estimated $3,500,000. They can be modernized for about $9,000,000.

The navy department asked two years ago for money for this work. It has not been approved by the bureau of budget. The great naval expenditures have been stopped, but that is all the more reason for keeping the existing ships at top condition. If the navy department has six ineffective ships for lack of appropriations, it is nowhere near the British standard, if even near the Japanese. We should think the administration would be uneasy if these facts of navy deterioration are true.

There is much about oil for the navy. Give it the burners.

WILL SMALL ANSWER?

Small's chance to prove his case is wide open to him. All he has to do is to answer questions. They are proper questions for him to answer. There are many of them. Some have been asked as a trial of his responsiveness. Candid replies will encourage the asking of more, and the whole matter can be cleaned up.

If Mr. Small will reply every Republican in Illinois will have information with which to cast an intelligent vote in the primaries. If Small will answer without evasion and prove that the opposition to him has been doing him an injustice we'll admit his integrity and his fitness to be governor of Illinois.

His fitness is the predominant issue in Illinois at this time. The state wants to know whether he was directing the public funds through a bank physically nonexistent into the hands of two political and personal associates for investment in very profitable loans.

That is one of the many charges against him. If he will not reply explicitly to questions which the citizens have the right to ask, he is avoiding his opportunity to win the confidence he says he deserves. It is a simple matter for him to gain it. Answer the questions.

The Other Side

TAIL THAT WAGS THE DOG.

[Milwaukee Journal.]

In defending his lakes-to-gulf waterway bill—which is the McCormick bill in the senate—Representative Hull says the proposed measure allows Chicago 10,000 cubic feet of water from the great lakes solely "to settle for all time that no more than 10,000 cubic feet per second can be put through the canal." This would be a masterly "settlement" from the Chicago viewpoint. It would give that city its maximum hopes, all that even a Chicago conscience has the elasticity to ask for, and more than twice as much as war secretaries, engineers and other experts have said is safe to take from the lakes.

Representative Hull chides Milwaukee, and thus other lake cities, because, in opposing his bill, he says, they oppose a waterway that would not only give them an outlet to the sea, but also would serve the great Mississippi valley. But the gentleman from Illinois ignores the fact that Chicago's selfish water grab for drainage and power purposes and water needed for a ship canal are distinct questions. He ignores the assertions of engineers that navigation in the canal would be impeded by the current if Chicago continued to take 10,000 cubic feet a second.

If Representative Hull wants support for the lakes-to-gulf waterways he can get it from the lake states by the simple expedient of separating the two questions and making the lakes-to-gulf proposal honest. He need only offer the waterway section of his bill without the tail that is wagging the dog—the Chicago water steal provision.

INGENIOUS, ANYHOW.

The class had been told to draw a picture of a river, with two figures sitting on the bank. Going round the class the teacher came to a boy who had finished his drawing. She looked at his paper and was surprised to find only a river.

"Why, Jack," she said, "where are the two people I told you to draw?"

"Well, you see, ma'am," he answered, "I'm not very good at drawing people, so I put up a notice: 'Trespassers will be prosecuted.'"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR NARCOTICS.

SEVERAL years ago Prof. Macht of Johns Hopkins university discovered a new remedy by the application of logic. The rule is that remedies are discovered by rule of thumb, by accident, or by trial and error. Prof. Macht reasoned that a chemical containing carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen, in which the elements would be arranged in about a certain way, should be of service in relieving conditions in which there was spasmodic pain.

The next step was to take his elements and build them together after about the pattern which logic directed. This he did. The next step was to try the new product on unstriped muscles (such muscles are those of the pelvic organs, the air tubes, and the blood vessels), since most paroxysmal pains are due to spasmodic contraction of that kind of muscles. This experiment showed that the new compound acted as a sedative to this kind of muscle.

The next step was to try the new compound on people who suffered from spasmodic disorders such as are caused by contraction of unstriped muscles. Most of these disorders are characterized by spasmodic pains, though some of them have other spasmodic features, but are painless.

The next step was the development of various preparations of the drug. The final step was to have the physicians, and, in some measure, the people, give it an extensive trial. All of these steps have been taken, and benzyl benzoate has come into fairly general use. It is used in asthma, hay fever, urticaria or nettlerash, in colic, diarrhœa, with griping pains, in painful menstruation and in angina pectoris, gallstones, and kidney stones.

In a recent number of a Journal of the American Medical Association Dr. R. H. Babcock tells of the use he and Dr. Bayard Holmes Jr. have made of it in relieving the pain and shortness of breath of angina pectoris. It did not relieve all the cases they used it on. But in a certain percentage of cases it acted better than anything else. They were led to use it in their first case because the man was also having kidney colic.

The reason for writing about this drug is that it is a harmless substitute for morphine and opium. The promiscuous taking of opiates does more harm than good, and yet tons of them are used annually. The people should know that in a long list of cases benzyl benzoate is effective in relieving pain, cramps, and coughs and that the use of morphine, opium, heroin, and codein in these complaints is not justified.

MIGHT TRY DRY CLIMATE.

Troubled writes: I am a man of 47. Am troubled with a buzzing noise in my head and also partial deafness in my left ear.

During foggy or rainy weather, the noise is a constant source of annoyance to me and, as a result, I can hardly hear my own voice. But during settled weather this buzzing is relieved and my hearing becomes a trifle better.

Do you think there is a cure for me? Can you tell me what to do?

I believe that a change of climate would help me. Do you think so? If so, what part of the country would you advise me to settle in?

REPLY.

As a rule, people with buzzing in the ears and other head noises had better train themselves to disregard the noise. Cures fail in about nine out of ten cases. It is a case of locking the stable after the horse has escaped.

Since you are better in dry weather, you might try a dry climate. Go to Arizona, New Mexico, Western Texas or Southern California east of the mountains.

CALORIES IN CHOCOLATE.

S. C. B. writes: 1. Please tell me how many calories there are in an ordinary chocolate malted milk; also, in the ordinary size 10 cent cake of chocolate.

2. How many calories should one eat in order to gain weight? How many should the ordinary person eat? How many to get thin?

REPLY.

1. One tablespoonful of malted milk gives 38 calories. Soda fountains do not use the same recipes. A piece of sweetened milk chocolate 2¼x1x¼ gives 100 calories.

2. Gaining weight is only recently connected with calories. I might reply 3,000 to 4,000 without giving you just the information you want. Obesity results especially from eating too much starch and sugar. The amount of meat eaten is of some consequence, but is of less importance than the amount of starch and sugar. The amount of fat eaten is of still less consequence. Of the three types of food, fat is the richest in calories and at the same time less fattening.

MANY CALLS FOR ASHES.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—Our alley between Diversey and Parker avenues in the 4700 block is impassable. We should like to have it filled with clean ashes. We threw ashes in it right along, but we do not have enough to remedy the condition. Do you think the city would furnish the ash filling? R. F. D.

This request for filling will be placed on file and taken care of as soon as possible. The superintendent of this ward is besieged with requests of a similar nature, and endeavors to take care of them in their turn.

THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

PIGEONS AS PETS.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Is there any law which would prohibit me catching one or two of the pigeons which fly around the loop streets? They do not seem to belong to any one and I should like to take a couple of pair home for my children to have as pets. G. D. J.

Section 18 of chapter 61 in the Smith-Hurd 1923 Illinois statutes provides: "It shall be unlawful (a) for any person to . . . attempt to . . . catch or have in possession, living or dead, any . . . non-game seed-eating bird . . . or any other non-game bird . . . other than an English sparrow, crow, blackbird, bluejay, Cooper's hawk, sharp-shinned hawk, goshawk, duck hawk, pigeon hawk, great horned owl, or cormorant."

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—Will Potomac avenue between Lavergne and Laramie avenues be paved this spring? It needs it. Also the alley could stand some improvement. R. P.

We will soon hold a public hearing on the proposed paving of Potomac avenue, between Lavergne and Laramie avenues, but there is no chance that the street will be paved in the near future. As soon as we are ready to hold the public hearing the property owners will be notified, and we will do everything we can to hurry the proceeding along.

EDWARD J. GLACKIN, Secretary,
Board of Local Improvements.

HAVE A JOINT ACCOUNT.

Glen Ellyn, Ill., Feb. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—We have our bank account made out as follows: "Mary A. Brown or John B. Brown." If one dies, does the whole account revert to the surviving spouse, without having to take the matter to the Probate court? E. B.

No. In order to accomplish such a result, you should arrange to make the account expressly joint. Take the matter up with the bank officers.

WELCOME THE NORTHWEST'S "COME BACK."

Fargo, N. D., Feb. 19.—I must take exception to your editorial in the Feb. 16 issue, entitled "The Northwest's Error."

In the first place you say we must clean house if we expect to get back in the good graces of the rest of the country. I hasten to assure you that is exactly what we have been trying to do for eight years and right at the present moment we are like a fellow who has been lying in a hospital for about a year and gets out and tries to walk with the old-time vigor. He is pretty weak for a few days and that is exactly our condition. We are slowly getting stronger after our radical politics of the last eight years, but the going is "plenty tough," so don't pan us like you did in that editorial and I assure you that we are doing all that is humanly possible to put North Dakota back on its feet.

We have had to put up with a lot the last few years, such as "I'm from North Dakota; go ahead and laugh," and "I'm going back to the U. S. when I leave here," and "out where the 'worst' begins," etc.

As to our banking situation, we have had about 800 banks in the state, which was about 400 too many, according to our population, and naturally, when the depression hit us, some of them had to close and are still closing, which will be a good thing for the state when the liquidation is finished.

We are not broke out here yet, but, as the fellow says, "badly bent," but we still have our health and three squares a day and we'll "come back" just as sure as night follows day, but give us a chance. CHAS. E. FINKLE.

GOOD WORK BY THE I. N. G.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 16.—Once more the National Guard has proven its much disputable value to the community. In our own state it was thought prudent to call the National Guard into service, to give to the citizens that security which had become weakened by those who had little regard for law.

The crisis never developed, due to the fact that we possessed an adequate force of highly trained National Guardsmen.

Our policy is law and order, and to enforce such is our mission. Being prepared for just such emergencies does not constitute militarism, but it does constitute peace.

The National Guard is one of the three component parts of the United States army for our national defense and is composed of citizen soldiers who are always ready to protect our country from the enemies without as well as those within our borders.

MATTHEW R. JOHNSON,
First Lieutenant 8th Infantry, Illinois National Guard, Publicity Officer.

IF MALIGNED, WHY DOESN'T SMALL ANSWER QUESTIONS?

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 14.—If the people would consider the facts regarding Len Small's acts and statements there would not be enough votes cast for him worth while counting. It seems incredible that any sane person would accept his explanations as to there being no trickery in any of his acts, yet the false statement he has made about the Grant Park bank is enough to prove he cannot be depended upon to tell the truth about other of his deceptions.

Small answers charges by making silly replies and charging others with seeking to persecute him. He has made his own record, which convicts him of every charge that has been made against him. Every state candidate and those seeking positions in the legislature should be required to state whether they favor Small or not, and this would be the best test of honesty that could be asked of them. An honest man would rather go down to defeat than line up with Small.

COOLIDGE REPUBLICAN.

ANOTHER FARM WOMAN WITH INTERESTING IDEAS.

Earlville, Ill., Feb. 18.—I'm not complaining; just wondering, as I have ever since I came to the farm—a town girl bride. Since reading the letter signed "Tenantless Farms" I've wondered some more. She says, "farm bureaus, etc., will never help the farmer." He must work out his own salvation by business methods and his wife must be his able assistant.

Having been a town girl, I have given much thought to the meaning of the words, "a successful farm wife." It seems to be taken for granted that they imply a woman with strength enough not only to carry on her housework successfully [often with the poorest equipment], including cooking [three meals, not two], sewing, cleaning, washing for her family and any extra man help needed outside, but she must, to qualify, carry on a business sideline of chickens, buttermaking, etc., to help pay the living expenses. And often does most of the garden work. Why? Or in other words why is not the plumber's wife expected to earn part of the living by taking in washings or boarders? Is one any more inconsistent than the other?

As for raising "our own good living" on the farm—most of us would starve if we didn't, and those who don't are in the minority. But a farm garden and shelves in the cellar overflowing with canned vegetables, meat and fruit, represent just as many hours spent working till dark in the garden, after a full day [not eight hours] in the fields, and standing over a stove in the house, as the same results would mean in any other household. This is not a farmer's business (anyway, it isn't this farmer's), and the amount of effort along this line could be optional with us, as it is with others, if our business brought the returns such investment and long hours should justify.

When more farmers learn the slogan, "In union there is strength," and spend less time knocking their own organization and more time boosting it, individual effort and business methods will count for more than they do at present. In that respect plumbers as a whole show more business sagacity than farmers. They work together and work less. We work alone and work more, showing how utterly lacking we are in business methods of success.

I must hurry now with the churning—the plumber's wife expects her butter on time tomorrow.

"ANOTHER FARMER'S WIFE."

FIRST CONSIDERATION FOR PEDESTRIANS.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—It is indeed refreshing, after hearing all of the expert advice about regulating the walking public, to have an expert in the form of Hugh E. Young come forward with some really expert advice about regulating traffic.

The dodging politicians and the experts that expert on the side of least resistance do not seem to take into consideration the walking public, that big majority, upon whom their bread and butter depend. The traffic problem of Chicago is a big problem, but the pedestrian has the first rights and any plan that does not concede him his proper place is doomed to failure. The only reason that the traffic and subway problems have not been solved is because the politicians can use it as political thunder and get away with it. The automobilists, business and trades generally are organized to protect their interests, but the public is unorganized and must necessarily take what is left. EDDY.

EUROPE, TOO, IS SEEKING $25,000 IN NAME CONTEST

French Baron Sends 45 Magazine Titles.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—[Tribune Radio.]—THE TRIBUNE'S magazine name contest, carried by the European edition of THE TRIBUNE to all parts of the continent and the British isles, is resulting in a flood of contributions, with stamps from many nations on the envelopes.

From Hong Kong, China, a consular official volunteers one of the most popular titles, "THE RAINBOW," in unconscious agreement with half a dozen readers in Paris and on the Riviera, who have submitted the same suggestion.

Names That Are Popular.

From Danzig a Canadian official submits "The Ideal," which also received a number of votes today.

Algiers contributed one suggestion, "Tip Top." "Seville" occurs again in today's file of responses from Cadiz. So does the idea of illumination, with such titles as "Electric Magazine," "Lighthouse," "Pharos," and others.

Paris, Riviera Send Most.

The heaviest contributions, as is to be expected, is from Paris and the Riviera, which are filling THE TRIBUNE'S mails with hopeful readers' suggestions. Germany is next, with England and Italy, always full of American travelers, close behind. It is observed that most of the suggestions seem to come from Americans resident abroad, as all have actual living addresses, very few coming from hotels or traveling agencies.

The contributors are not restricted to Americans by any means, however, as a French baron belonging to a well known family in Paris today submitted forty-five titles, each beautifully illustrated.

CAN YOU BETTER THESE?

The following names and slogans are some that have been submitted by folks in the United States in the contest. What do you think of them?

"DISCRIMINATOR—A Distinctive Magazine."

"THE LATCHSTRING—Is Always Out for You."

"THE KEY-NOTE—A Harmonious Magazine That Every One Can Read."

"THE BLOTTER—Of Absorbing Interest."

"PICTURE-STORY—Perfection the Watchword in Both."

"GET ME — An Illustrated High Class Weekly Magazine."

"VIVID VIEWS—America's Newsiest Picture Weekly."

"COMPILATION — A Collection of the Latest and Best in Knowledge, Fun and Fiction."

"COMMENT AND CAMERA — Views and Views."

"THE COLORGUE—For Even as You and I."

"THE FAGOT—It Lights the Mind."

"SCRUTATOR—Instructive Magazine for All Who Think."

"THE UNITED STATES WEEKLY —Dependably the Best."

The rules governing the contest are printed elsewhere in this paper.

CRIPPLED WRITER OF TIPPERARY DIES IN ENGLAND

COVENTRY, England, Feb. 23.—[United Press.]—P. J. Williams, song writer, who a decade ago wrote "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," died here today at the age of 50. Williams never had seen Tipperary. A cripple from birth, he spent most of his life in the obscure English village of Coventry.

Nor had many of the millions of men of the allied armies in the world war seen the Irish town of Williams' melody. But it became the most favored song of the war. Men marched through rain and shell fire, sometimes to certain death, lifting their voices in the lilting refrain.

"It's a long way to Tipperary," sang the British Tommy, and the American doughboy was not long in picking it up once he arrived on this side.

There was no rhyme or reason for the song's popularity, but it swept like wildfire through the allied nations, and has been referred to by psychologists as one of the minor contributing causes of eventual victory of allied arms. Williams never wrote another song that found fame.

Mrs. Carrie Carson, Englewood Pioneer, Dies

The "Last" Word in Elegance—

'A "Hursen" Funeral

The charges made for Hursen funerals are from one-third to one-half the charges which are usually exacted elsewhere. This sounds amazing to those who have been subjected to an enormous outlay of money for funerals not conducted by Hursen.

In spite of this vast reduction in cost to you, the elegance of all Hursen materials and Hursen equipment so generously furnished to you cannot even be equaled anywhere in America.

Supreme elegance and low cost—these are two of the many features which have made "Hursen's" the largest and the most remarkable institution of its kind in America.

Hursen specially-built funeral automobiles excite universal admiration everywhere. For comfort, roominess and elegance they are unsurpassed by many of the highest-priced automobiles of the day. The charges for these Hursen autos are no higher than the usual auto hire. Call Hursen, of course!

SALES

Now that "the sales" are to be in full swing, we want to extend a word of admonition.

"Sales times" are responsible for a tremendous lot of poor goods cheap, as well as good goods cheap.

These "sales" are in most instances excellent opportunities for people who know what they want. Many buyers think, that whether or not they actually need it, any article is a bargain if it does not cost much.

It is wise to consider and decide what is essential to your needs and comforts before you set out. Then if you "stand pat" you will not find yourself, by any chance, loaded with goods which neither suit your person nor your highest and better plans for home life.

BORAH DEMANDS IMPEACHMENT OF DAUGHERTY

Slemp Called for 10 A. M. Tomorrow.

ensue over the selection of the investigating committee.

5. Examination of the brokers' accounts is said to have revealed the name of a cabinet member, as well as other high government officials, who bought stock in the Pure Oil company, but members of the committee do not regard this disclosure as having any important relevancy to the Teapot Dome scandal.

6. Subpoenas went out for Charles B. Lyddane, vice president of the Federal-American National bank of Washington, and J. H. Bader, vice president of the Commercial National bank of Washington, to appear Monday to answer questions designed to throw light on the $100,000 checks which McLean gave to Fall but which Fall never cashed.

Telegraph Wires Kept Busy.

Large numbers of telegrams are said to have passed between Washington and Palm Beach while Fall and McLean were there, and many messages also are said to have gone over the wires to New Orleans while Fall was there conferring with Doheny and Zevely early in January.

The committee is eager to learn whether there has been a "leak" as to its plans and whether some one closely connected with the investigation, or with the administration, has been "tipping off" those involved in the scandal and advising them how to conduct themselves.

Senators Robinson and Borah monopolized the senate debate on the issue today.

"For some months," Mr. Robinson said, "the attorney general and the department of justice have been subjects of criticism. In his open letter to the senator from Pennsylvania, Mr. Pepper, the attorney general asserted that the charges against him in this body were unfounded, prompted by malice, and that they should be fairly and impartially investigated.

"Never Will Quit His Job."

"He declared that notwithstanding the fact that he had been urged to resign from the cabinet by the leaders of his party in the senate, he had no intention of doing so, and that if he were removed from office by the President pending investigation he would carry the issue to the country and in public addresses denounce the action of the administration and of the leaders of his party in the senate as persecution.

"One cannot fail to admire the courage which the attorney general displays in the position he has taken. Fair minded citizens everywhere will accord him the right of an investigation before a fair and just tribunal. This does not mean, however, that in defiance of the opinion of the President and of other members of the party he has the right to insist on remaining in the cabinet while the investigation is in progress.

LAUGHS AT G. O. P. BREACH

"The attitude of the attorney general challenges attention throughout the country. His letter to the senator from Pennsylvania has summoned to his support the organization of his party, and a conflict has apparently arisen between the leaders of his party in the senate and the chairman of the Republican national committee, who has uttered a wild cry of rage.

"In his furious declaration he states that the whole proceeding here is an effort on the part of blackguards and scandalmongers to take political advantage of innocent men occupying office and to terrorize by political influences those whose political duty and obligation is to defend the administration."

Senator Robinson pointed out that Senator Lodge had denounced the efforts of the senate to force Secretary Denby out of the cabinet as "lynch law," and declared that now the Republican leader was himself guilty of attempting to apply "lynch law" to Daugherty.

Question Lodge Doesn't Answer.

Senator Harrison [Dem., Miss.] broke in to ask: "What explanation does the leader of the Republican side make of this inconsistent position that the senator has so graphically described? I see him before us. An explanation is due on this matter."

Senator Lodge made no effort to reply, so Senator Robinson proceeded:

"The senator from Mississippi has asked a question which my subconscious self has already asked, but I think I have answered the question, and I think I have done it without offense to the senator from Massachusetts. His motives were twofold. His motives were to serve his country first, and to serve his party; and, in order to do that, when one finds himself wrong, he may take the responsibility for having been inconsistent, and he is right in doing it.

Senators Called Blackguards.

"The chairman of the Republican national committee has in every possible way made this whole controversy a political issue. He has denounced every one responsible for the investigation as blackguards and scandalmongers.

"Here is a press dispatch which declares that 'Concerned over the effort to enforce the retirement of his friend, Attorney General Daugherty, William J. Burns of Scarborough, head of the department of justice investigation bureau, has left for Washington, it was announced at his home today.'

"The real issue," Senator Robinson continued, "is whether it is necessary to a fair investigation that the attorney general remain at the head of the department of justice and in control of the innumerable agencies of that department, not one of which has been employed to expose or punish the wrongs against this government disclosed by the senate committee.

Investigate the Investigators.

"Manifestly, as long as Mr. Daugherty is the attorney general and has at his command that shrewdest of all investigators, the head of the bureau of investigation, and the thousands of secret service agents who are in the employ of the department of justice, while the attorney general is being investigated the investigators also will be investigated. The investigation will be hampered and restricted and embarrassed by having in opposition to it the investigating department of the government.

"You cannot doubt that statement. The press says that, upon receipt of notice that Republican leaders were trying to oust his chief, the great detective quit his home in New York and hurried post-haste back to Washington. What for? To gather alongside Chairman Adams, the national Republican organization, the Lincoln League of Organized Colored Voters, the solicitor general of the United States, and all the host of secret investigators in the employ of the department of justice, to help vindicate the attorney general.

Coolidge Faces Responsibility.

"He is entitled to a fair investigation before a just and impartial tribunal. Meantime let it be remembered that the executive is responsible for who constitutes his cabinet; that he can change them at will; that when he chooses to keep an adviser in whom he has no confidence he invites the responsibility which the senator from Idaho, Mr. Borah, and the senator from Pennsylvania, Mr. Pepper, and the senator from Massachusetts, Mr. Lodge, sought to avert.

"No resort to billingsgate, no bitter denunciation, no effort to intimidate, no investigation of investigators can be permitted to create a false issue and thus prevent justice—justice to the attorney general, justice to the President, justice to the senate and the house of representatives, justice to all the agencies of this great government, justice to the people of this great union, who want and who are entitled to have a clean, honest administration of public affairs."

"IMPEACH!" CRIES BORAH

Stirred by these remarks, Senator Borah said:

"I do not disagree with the senator from Arkansas to a marked extent, so far as he states the responsibility of the situation. As I stated a few days since in discussing the resolution with reference to the dismissal of Mr. Denby, the responsibility for Mr. Denby's remaining in the cabinet or for any other member of the cabinet remaining there, is upon the President of the United States, unless the congress sees fit to take the means which the constitution has given it to proceed by impeachment.

"Mr. Daugherty cannot remain in the cabinet an hour unless the President desires that he shall remain there. The responsibility is the President's. He must answer to the people for retaining Mr. Daugherty or any one else. I assume, of course, that the President is going to assume that responsibility. At any rate, it is his, and we can only discharge our duty here and elsewhere, if we desire the removal of Mr. Daugherty, by proceeding along constitutional lines and with due regard to constitutional authority.

Key to Whole Situation.

"I look on the department of justice at this time as really the key to the situation as it is now presented to the country. A most extraordinary condition of affairs obtains and it must necessarily be to a marked extent through the instrumentalities of the department that these wrongs be righted and that proper proceedings shall be had, both with reference to the recovery of property and the punishment of individuals who may be guilty of the violation of the law.

"Not only is that true with reference to the particular matter which we have been investigating for the last several weeks, but there are other conditions obtaining throughout the country relative to other matters, particularly with reference to the veterans' bureau, relative to law enforcement, which make the department of justice at this time altogether the most important department of the government.

What Department Needs.

"It calls for a man not only of transcendent ability, a man of health and vigor, but also one who has the unquestioned confidence of the country. It is a mere matter of the performance of a public duty to have at the head of this department at this time a man in whom the country has complete confidence.

"I am not concerned at this time as to the particular derelictions which have been charged to the attorney general, whether he is associated with the oil scandal, with speculation in oil stocks, whether he has been guilty of any pronounced and affirmative violation of law or any pronounced dereliction of duty."

He agreed with Senator Robinson that Daugherty ought to have a fair trial before a fair and impartial tribunal, and said he knew of no way of giving that except the constitutional way of impeachment.

How Senate Must Proceed.

"But aside from all this," he said, "there is the other question which relates alone to the question of the public service, the fitness of public officials, which would be a matter of consideration if he were to be appointed and ought to be a matter of consideration if he remains, and that is a matter for the President of the United States to determine and to settle. We cannot settle it here unless we proceed in the manner which has been pointed out.

"In my opinion it is not only in the interest of the Republican party, which, I trust, may be considered second to the interest of the country, as I hope the interest of any other party may be considered, but it is to the interest of restoring public confidence in the government that there be placed at the head of this department one whose competency, whose ability, whose integrity, and whose environment permit him to discharge his duty without fear or favor of any one.

REAL PERIL TO REPUBLIC

"I thing the great and the most pronounced evil which flows from this situation here in Washington is not the mere fact that some oil in the oil reserves may have been wasted or may be wasted, or that some particular individual may have violated the law and may escape, but it is the fact that from center to circumference, from one side of this country to the other, the people have come to doubt the efficiency, the competency, if not the cleanness of their government at Washington.

"And no Republican, no Democrat, no citizen, ought to hesitate to sacrifice himself, to sacrifice his position, if need be, in order to restore the confidence of the country. Now, while I admire the courage of Mr. Daugherty, as has been said, when he stands up for his individual rights; while the letter which he wrote must necessarily command your respect and mine, from his standpoint; he must bear in mind, nevertheless, that in a situation like this men must make sacrifices for the common good.

Calls on Him for "Sacrifice."

"Daugherty must know that in the present situation the common good and the common interest require that he do that which seldom comes to a man to do for his country—to make a personal sacrifice of his own interest in the common interest.

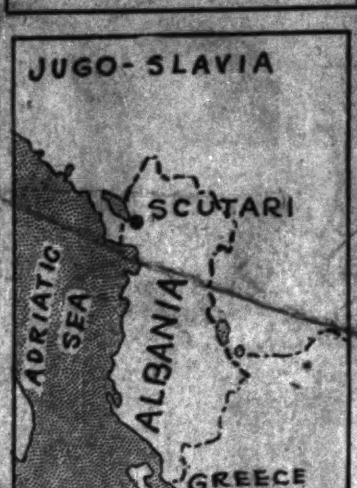
"My name has been mentioned in connection with the proposition that I have given advice, possibly contrary to my position here, and my vote. Not at all. When I have been honored with being consulted, I have advised, and I have not changed my view there or here, and therefore, without discussing what I said, senators may rest assured that my view there and my view here is that the responsibility is upon the President of the United States. He must act."

He closed by saying that if this investigation was to go forward he would prefer that it go forward in the other house and on the foundation be laid for getting rid of Mr. Daugherty by constitutional methods.

Says Fall Failed to Keep Word; Leased Dome in Dark

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 23.—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, made a "definite promise" to Senator J. W. Harreld [Rep., Okla.] not to effect an oil lease without first giving public notice of his intention, Senator Harreld told a meeting of the Republican state committee here today. After this promise, Senator Harreld said, "The deal was pulled off in a dark corner."

FLEE FROM FAMINE



[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 23.—The Albanian famine has become very acute, according to official Jugo-Slav information. Albania's biggest city, Scutari, is being deserted and Jugo-Slavia has been obliged to offer hospitality to thousands at the Albanian frontier. The refugees are demanding the occupation of Albania by Jugo-Slav troops, according to an official announcement, which also stated that the municipality of Scutari is sending an official mission to Belgrade to ask the occupation of the city to protect property and prevent disorder, pillaging, and hunger riots.

ITALY SEVERS OIL RELATIONS WITH SINCLAIR FIRMS

PARIS, Feb. 23.—[Tribune Radio.]—The Italian government has broken off negotiations with the Sinclair interests for oil concessions, according to advices. It is believed that a private Italian company, probably the Perrone brothers, will carry on the Sinclair project in rich oil deposits in Emilie and Abbruzzes provinces. The Italian government is reported here to be rushing negotiations for valuable oil concessions in Russia before the Soviets grant the best oil lands to Great Britain.

Premier Mussolini is also drawing up a commercial treaty with Roumania, wherein the principal clauses give Italy the oil rights in Roumania.

WHEELER NEARLY OUSTED ONCE AS FEDERAL OFFICIAL

Senator, Daugherty Foe, Had Narrow Escape.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.], chief figure in the movement to oust Attorney General Daugherty, was himself a near victim of a resolution demanding that he resign as United States district attorney for Montana, it was learned here today.

Because of accusations that he was not, during the war, sufficiently aggressive as a prosecutor of those accused of sedition and because of charges of his open affiliation with the I. W. W., bolshevik and other elements, Representatives Carl and Kelley introduced a resolution calling for Wheeler's resignation in the lower house of the Montana legislature. On Feb. 25, 1918, this resolution was defeated by a vote of 30 to 29.

Storm Center in Montana.

Investigation of Mr. Wheeler's record shows he has been the storm center of political and other controversies in Montana since early in the war and that he has been assailed continually by the newspapers and public men of his state because of an alleged tendency toward Socialism and because of various actions toward the radicals of Montana, and against which the conservative business elements of the state have been contending.

It is learned that an official investigation of Mr. Wheeler's activities is being conducted because of certain charges that have been made against him.

Failed to Prosecute Reds.

Many interesting things are found in the public record of Senator Wheeler. On June 5, 1918, the Montana council of defense, after a week's investigation on charges that had been made against him for his failure to prosecute the radicals and alleged war law violators of his state, adopted a resolution protesting against the reappointment of Wheeler as district attorney on the ground that it would be inimical and injurious to the best interests of the people of Montana.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the leading figure in the investigation of the Teapot Dome scandals, was the foremost supporter of Wheeler and strongly urged the President and Attorney General Gregory to reappoint him. Wheeler suddenly quit without an adequate explanation when it appeared that conservative influence in the state might be too strong for his friend Walsh.

COOLIDGE WON'T ASK WALLACE TO QUIT CABINET

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—President Coolidge will take steps in a day or two to dispel the impression that he desires Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to leave the cabinet, it was learned today.

Reports that the secretary of agriculture was about to step out surprised the President. Mr. Coolidge is said to regard as relatively trivial the differences between Wallace and himself over the farm relief program and Wallace's difference with Secretary of Commerce Hoover over foreign trade policies as they relate to agriculture. In any event, the President is understood to feel that these differences can be ironed out without causing Wallace to resign.

Wallace, one of his close friends said today, is ready to quit the cabinet if that would be conducive to harmony in the administration.

Question Lumber Company Employes on Short Measure

Following a complaint that the National Lumber company, 5601 Elston avenue, was "short measuring" its customers, nine employés of the company were taken to the state's attorney's office for questioning, and the concern's books and records were seized. The lumber company is accused by the Retail Lumber Dealers' association of giving customers less lumber than they ordered, but charging them the full amount.

Senator Greene Improves Slowly; May Recover

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—Gradual improvement in the condition of Frank L. Greene of Vermont today gave ground for hope of his ultimate recovery from the wound caused by a stray shot in a skirmish between prohibition officers and alleged bootleggers last week. A slight clearing up of the paralysis of the senator's right side was reported.

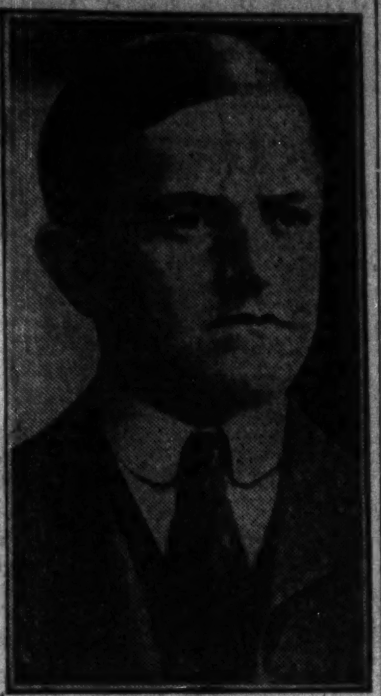
Sues for Bok Prize



FRANK HENDRICK.

New York, Feb. 23.—A complaint in an action for $1,100,000 brought by Frank Hendrick, a lawyer, against Edward W. Bok, donor of the $100,000 American peace award, was on file today for just one hour in the county clerk's office.

Mr. Hendrick, one of the unsuccessful contributors of peace plans in the Bok contest, asked for $100,000, the amount to be paid for the winning plan when approved by a referendum, and $1,000,000, estimated as the value of publicity and prestige attached to winning the prize. He claimed the jury of award failed fairly to consider his plan.

Because of a legal error, Mr. Hendrick later was forced to delay his suit and withdraw the petition.

INSURE SARGENT PAINTINGS FROM ACTS OF VANDALS

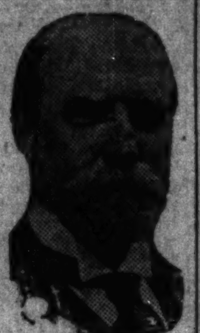
New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—To guard against the sort of vandalism which splattered with ink John Singer Sargent's mural painting, "The Synagogue," in the Boston public library, $1,000,000 worth of insurance was taken out for the Sargent exhibition which opened in Grand Central gallery today.

A special policeman was posted at the door when the galleries were opened at noon.

"That is the most we can do to protect the owners of the pictures," said E. S. Berry, head of the galleries.

"We would have made it $2,000,000 if we had been allowed that amount."

"ENFORCE LAWS ALREADY MADE," HUGHES TO U. S.



CHARLES E. HUGHES.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23. — The need of the hour in the United States "is not to make law but to enforce law," Secretary Hughes said here tonight before the American Law institute.

"We have vindicated the right of self government," he said. "Are we developing the competency to exercise that right?

"We lack nothing in initiative, skill, in resourcefulness in industry and commerce, in ingenuity of adaptations and facilities of communications. We fall down in government, not because we do not have mechanism of efficient government, but because of inexpertness."

Referring to the growing mass of law and legal opinions in the United States, Mr. Hughes said that in one year there were "175,000 pages of decisions," an average of 12,000 or more statutes, and an average of 13,000 recorded decisions of the highest court.

"For generations we have talked of the evil of multiplying laws," he said. "Lawyers decry the multiplication in the meetings of bar associations and then, sitting in legislative halls, do their full share to increase it.

"The main trouble with the volume of litigation is not with the courts, but with the legislatures. The evil resides not merely in the number of laws. It is in badly drawn laws. It is also in the compromises of legislation where the contests of opposing policies are satisfied by ambiguous phrases which transmit the difficulties of legislative bodies to the courts who are left with the burdensome task of discovering the legislative intent when actually there has been no defined legislative intent.

"Perhaps the greatest need of all is improvement in administration of the criminal law by certainty in its definition and celerity in its administration. At this moment when law enforcement is so difficult, an adequate and competent criminal administration is more important than ever."

68 INDICTED BY U. S. GRAND JURY AT INDIANAPOLIS

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 23.—Sixty-eight defendants were named in forty-one indictments returned by the federal grand jury to Judge Anderson today.

As names of the defendants will not be made public until they have been arrested, it is not known whether the name of Gov. McCray was in the list.

Homer Elliott, United States district attorney, refused to make any statement.

TAXPAYERS OF STATE WARNED OF ROAD DECEIT

Holderman Cites Figures on "Real Cost."

State Representative L. S. Holderman, a retired farmer of Morris, Ill., has distributed among the voters of the Twentieth senatorial district a pamphlet charging that Gov. Len Small is attempting to deceive the taxpayers of the state "when he says we pay no tax for hard roads."

Holderman was described in the recent report of the legislative voters' league as "a staunch, independent and hardworking member who was always on the job and made a thoroughly good record." His attack on the Small road propaganda is expected to ruin the governor's campaign stuff in a large section of his own home territory. Holderman's district includes Kankakee, Grundy and Iroquois counties.

What Pamphlet Charges.

"Gov. Small in his biennial message," reads the Holderman pamphlet, "say that at the end of 1924 between 3.600 and 3,800 miles of the original bond issue roads will have been completed leaving from 1,000 to 1,200 still to be built.

"He also says that if the $100,000,000 bond issue—which he is trying to make the campaign issue—is voted, he will build an additional 6,000 miles, making a total of about 10,800 miles. And he says on page 12 of his message that at the end of 1924, all the available funds for road building will have been exhausted.

"In other words, 3,700 miles of roads will have cost a total of $139,444,035, made up as follows:

Federal aid to date	$ 15,517,840
Estimated federal aid for 1924	3,000,000
County aid to date	8,456,737
Bond issue [original]	60,000,000
Auto fees t send of 1923	41,808,458
Estimated auto fees for 1924	11,000,000
	$139,444,035

What Figures Show.

"According to the governor's own figures the 3,700 miles which will have been built up to the end of 1924, therefore, will have cost $37,686 per mile.

"This will leave 1,100 miles of the originally planned 4,800 miles untouched and the original $60,000,000 bond issue exhausted. At present prices it will cost $41,454,600 to complete the 1,100 miles required to complete the total mileage of 4,800 miles originally planned.

"This will have to be paid out of the proposed $100,000,000 bond issue and will leave but $58,545,400 of the $100,000,000 issue to start building the 6,000 miles the governor claims can be built with the $100,000,000. Taking the cost per mile as admitted by the governor, the 6,000 miles will cost $226,116,000.

The Unexplained Difference.

"Where is the difference between this amount and the $58,545,400 to come from? The governor has omitted to state.

"It will be readily seen that in addition to being $67,661,400 short of enough cash to build this amount of roads, every dollar of the $100,000,000 bond issue and the $60,000,000 bond issue will be an outstanding debt against the state and no part of the auto license fees up to that time would or could be used to retire any part of these bond issues."

To Be Guests at U. of C.

Mrs. Thurlow G. Essington.
[Edgewater Beach Photo.]

Mrs. Thurlow G. Essington, former campus sweetheart and later the wife of the only University of Chicago graduate ever to seek nomination as Republican candidate for governor of Illinois, will be a guest at a reception given by her former classmates at Ida Noyes hall, University of Chicago, on March 1.

The Mortar Board club, of which Mrs. Essington was a member, has invited more than 2,000 college women of Chicago to meet her in the first political reception ever permitted at the university.

Mrs. Essington was graduated from the university in 1908. In addition to being a member and president of Mortar Board, she belonged to Pi Sigma, the senior women's honorary society. It was at the university that she met Mr. Essington, who had come there to study after securing his A. B. degree at the University of Illinois.

AURORA WOMEN BACK McCORMICK AND ESSINGTON

The Aurora Women's Republican club yesterday indorsed the following candidates: Senator Medill McCormick for reëlection; Thurlow G. Essington for governor; Louis L. Emmerson for secretary of state; Oscar Nelson for auditor of public accounts; Mrs. F. J. Miller of Monticello and Mrs. George R. Dean of Chicago for delegates at large to national convention.

Explaining the action of the club in endorsing these delegates, Mrs. C. J. Parker, president of the club, said: "We are meeting here to act against the corruption that has existed in state politics for the last four years. Self respect demands that we endorse and work for men who will give us honest and clean government.

Special endorsement of Senator Medill McCormick was made on account of his stand on the child labor and bonus questions.

Johnson Delegates from California Selected

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 23.—A state-wide ticket of candidates for a delegation to be pledged to the support of Senator Hiram W. Johnson for the presidential nomination at the Republican national convention at Cleveland was completed today.

McCORMICK AND ESSINGTON WIN PRAISE IN EGYPT

Indorsed with Brundage by Jackson Co. G. O. P.

Murphysboro, Ill., Feb. 23. — [Special.]—The Jackson county Republican central committee assembled here today to select delegates to the judicial convention, endorsed without a dissenting vote, Thurlow Essington, Senator Medill McCormick, and Attorney General Edward J. Brundage.

The resolution endorsing Senator McCormick commended him for the national budget, recognizing him as its sponsor, and also praised his work for the proposed child labor amendment.

Demand State Clean-up.

Referring to Mr. Essington, the resolution said: "The situation in Illinois demands a clean, courageous and capable candidate whose nomination and election will assure the people that the present disgraceful conditions will be ended and that the state will be redeemed."

The endorsement of Brundage was equally strong, and gave him credit for "honesty and faithful adherence to his trust and for his courage and effective opposition to the present governor of this state."

Delegates for Duncan.

The meeting also endorsed Supreme Justice Warren W. Duncan of Marion for renomination to the supreme bench, and instructed the delegates to the Harrisburg convention March 12 to vote for him. It also endorsed E. E. Dennison for reëlection to congress from the Twenty-fifth district, and the nomination of Col. T. B. F. Smith of Carbondale, avowed anti-Small candidate, for state senator. At a later meeting Senator McCormick delivered an address in the courthouse.

SHIPSTEAD MAY BE THIRD PARTY PRESIDENCY PICK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Senator Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota, first Farmer-Labor senator, is being considered seriously as the third party candidate for President in the event Senator La Follette, leader of the senate radical bloc, declines to be the standard bearer for the discontents when they meet in Cleveland the first week in July.

Word comes from Minnesota that Shipstead's name is being passed around as La Follette's choice to make the fight against the two old parties, both of which have been smeared more or less with oil in the Teapot Dome investigation. La Follette is known to be well pleased with the way the senior Minnesota senator has handled himself since coming to Washington.

Shipstead is said to be in entire sympathy with the conference of progressive political action, to be held in Cleveland, following both Republican and Democratic conventions. The latter has been called by the railroad trade unions, who are described as Shipstead's friends.

JONES AND IGOE TRAIN GUNS ON ILLINOIS G. O. P.

Open War at Luncheon of Democrats.

BY PARKE BROWN.

With no real contest in its own ranks the regular Democratic organization opened its state primary campaign by firing off what ordinarily is considered post-primary ammunition.

At a luncheon at the Hotel Sherman given by the Illinois Women's Democratic club, Norman L. Jones, regular entry for the gubernatorial nomination, and other speakers sailed into the Republicans just as though the primary were all over and the election campaign in progress.

"The whole Republican party," said State Representative Michael L. Igoe, candidate for state's attorney, "is so tainted with corruption and so reeking with rottenness that no self-respecting citizen can afford to be identified with it."

Judge Jones' Pledge.

Judge Jones was not so strenuous in his utterances, but even they were largely of a post-primary nature.

"It is charged," he said, "that those to whom we have entrusted the custody of state funds have failed and have openly refused to make an accounting. The state treasurer, the courts have held, is a constitutional officer, but if he puts state funds into banks or in any other way puts state money out at a profit the profit belongs to the people.

"If I am elected I shall advocate legislation that will give the power not only to the governor but also to the general assembly and to the people to make an inspection all the arrangements and dispositions made for depositing public funds.

"We have been told that the pay rolls have been padded, that positions have been given to favorites and politicians who have rendered little or no service while the unfortunate wards of the state have perished in our institutions because the appropriations made for their care were inadequate.

Remedy Is Publicity.

"Publicity is the best cure for padded pay rolls, and I shall advocate legislation requiring that state pay rolls shall be public property to which any taxpayer may have access."

He spoke of the need for reducing taxes and, passing to the subject of hard roads, which he said one of the Republican candidates (Small) is using as a "smoke screen," he pledged himself to oppose any road program that will involve payment for the roads by taxation of the people's property.

"Everybody is in favor of hard roads," he said, "and they will be built no matter who is governor. If I am elected I shall continue building hard roads as fast as they can be built without levying a direct tax on the people's property."

Others Who Spoke.

Other speakers were Mrs. Mary A. Hart of Benton, Ill., candidate for congressman-at-large; A. A. Sprague II., candidate for United States senator, and Martin J. O'Brien, chairman of the Cook county managing committee. About 1,200 enthusiastic women were present.

The subject of "light wines and beer" was not mentioned during the meeting, but it was announced that the regular organization of the Thirty-fifth ward had adopted resolutions demanding that legislators pledge themselves to work for the repeal of the search and seizure act, that congressional candidates promise to seek the repeal of the Volstead act, and that candidates for delegates to the national convention vote for "beer, wine and common sense."

Republican Women to Meet.

At a luncheon and meeting in the Rose room at the Morrison hotel next Wednesday, the Women's Roosevelt Republican club will take up the questions of indorsements in addition to those of Senator Medill McCormick, Attorney General Brundage, and Thurlow G. Essington, candidate for governor, which already have been made.

Julius Rosenwald yesterday issued the following indorsement of State's Attorney Crowe, candidate for reëlection:

"I pledge my support to Mr. Crowe's candidacy for renomination and reëlection as state's attorney because of his splendid record in that office."

The Chicago League of Women Voters' forum will hold an open meeting in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel next Saturday afternoon. All gubernatorial and senatorial candidates have been invited to address the meeting.

Bandits Seize Taxicab, Return It, True to Word

"We're going to do a little work with this cab," two men told Abraham Derren yesterday as they forced him with revolvers to relinquish his cab and $11. "We will be through with the cab in half an hour, and if you keep your mouth shut you'll find it at California and Ogden avenues." Derren said nothing, but in half an hour went to the place designated and found his cab, he told the police.

TRIES TO END LIFE.

Frank Pelloes, 29 years old, 1436 South Wabash avenue, is in the county hospital in a serious condition following an attempt yesterday to commit suicide by slashing his throat with a knife. "I am tired," he told the police.

PREDICT VICTORY IN CICERO FOR G. O. P. REGULARS

Edward G. Konvalinka, county committeeman for the Cicero district, predicted yesterday that the regular Republican ticket will win easily in the town primary on Tuesday. The ticket is as follows:

President—Joseph Z. Klenha.
Clerk—Frank Houcek.
Collector—Timothy J. Buckley.
Supervisor—Peter F. Gieldzinski.
Assessor—Anton Vendley.
Trustee—I. Kucera.
Library directors—Frank J. Vonesk and Mary Valcunas.

"Cicero's taxes are lower than those in any other town in Illinois," said Konvalinka, "and its streets are in good repair and well lighted. It has excellent police and fire protection and the people are satisfied with the administration of the last four years."

1,700 TO ATTEND VETS' BANQUET FOR McCORMICK

More than 1,700 reservations for the banquet to be given by the Medill McCormick Veterans' league on March 28 in honor of Senator McCormick already have been made, according to Maj. William Q. Setliffe, deputy internal revenue collector, who is chairman of arrangements. The banquet will be held at Hotel La Salle.

In addition to Senator McCormick, State Senator Thurlow G. Essington, G. O. P. candidate for governor; Attorney General Brundage, State's Attorney Crowe, Walter A. Rosenfield, chairman of the Republican state committee, and candidates on the regular Republican county ticket will be speakers.

Learn the Startling New Price

How can we offer the New Paige, with its quality even bettered, at its new price? Three years ago our production was 15,000 cars a year. Now it is increased with the Paige-built Jewett to a capacity of 500 cars a day. Think what that means in economy!

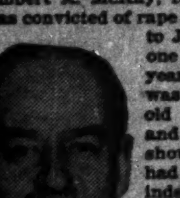
ATTACKED OWN STEPDAUGHTER; FREED BY SMALL

Two Brothers Serve Time for Similar Crimes.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Lambert A. McKay, former preacher, was convicted of rape and sentenced to Joliet for from one to twenty years. His victim was his 15 year old stepdaughter and the evidence showed that he had been taking indecent liberties with her for about two years. He arrived at the penitentiary April 2, 1920, and was paroled April 9, 1921.



GOV. LEN SMALL.

Chicago police and the states attorney claim McKay has a brother in Joliet, William McKay, for a like offense. The official record of William is so horrible it is difficult to believe; but on that record he was convicted of an offense against his 3 year old daughter and sentenced to five years in Joliet. The number of his indictment is 15,633 and his Joliet number was 6,226. He was sentenced for five years.

Brother Freed, Returned.

William arrived at the penitentiary March 6, 1919, and was turned loose March 22, 1922. He was returned to the penitentiary June 25, 1923. The details of his latest offense are not available, but it is said that Golconda, Ill., figured in it in some way.

Williams' wife told the states attorney of Cook county that William made unprintable preparations to attack this same daughter while the family lived in Cincinnati. She there had William arrested but he had not actually made the attack. She further said that William's mother had told her of another case of rape in which William was concerned at Lowell, Ind.

Third Brother in Prison.

The Harvey police and the state's attorney's office have also received information that another brother has been in an Indiana prison for a like social crime. All of this information could have been collected by Gov. Small's board of pardons and paroles before they turned Lambert A. McKay loose. The record of Lambert gives no indication of how his release promoted public welfare.

Lambert's brother-in-law, John Northrup, lived at the McKay cottage in Harvey. He said that he had known Lambert for about fourteen years and that he became converted about six years before his conviction. The brother-in-law, his wife and Lambert's wife said that he was strict with the stepdaughter and forbade her going to the homes of other girls.

The school teacher of the stepdaughter said that she was a good student, truthful, respectful, very bright, and caused no trouble.

She said that her stepfather started taking indecent liberties with her two years previous. Once he took her to town to get a pair of shoes and on the way told her he would get her a high priced pair, if he were permitted certain liberties. She refused. He bought her a cheap pair of shoes. On the way home she said her stepfather threw her down on the prairie and attacked her, warning her if she cried he would choke her.

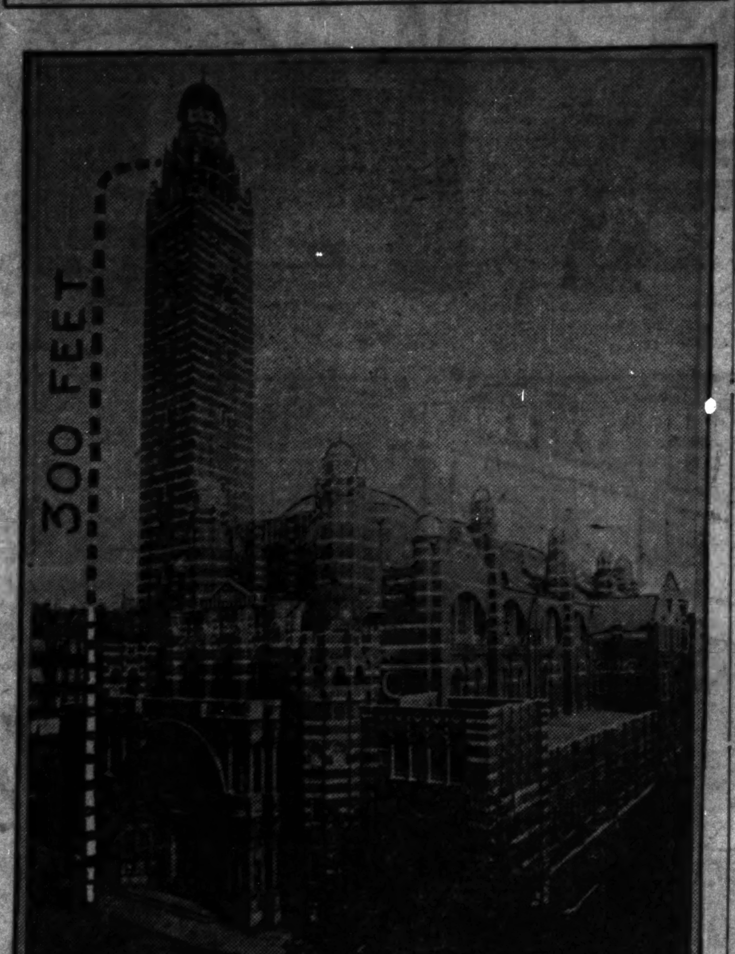
In jail, McKay unwittingly told a representative of the state's atotrney's office that he another time attacked his stepdaughter, but he claimed he told his wife. The stepdaughter claimed she had told her mother.

One day in February, 1920, the stepdaughter appeared with a suitcase at the home of Mrs. Eva Warren in Harvey. The girl said her stepfather had attempted to whip her and her aunt had prevented it. Then when her stepfather went to work he wanted his stepdaughter to kiss him good-by. She refused, and her stepfather hit her in the mouth, cutting her lip. Later she told Mrs. Warren of the attacks of the stepfather—and trouble for him started.

The indictment of Feb. 23, 1920, charged that the step father had previously ravished his step daughter at 15118 1st street of Phoenix, Ill., which is near Harvey.

The crime of William was committed in Chicago Heights, where he was a teamster for a contractor. While his wife was away he attacked the 3 year old girl. The fact that McKay is now back in the penitentiary, after he had been paroled, indicates quite clearly that a serious mistake was made in turning him loose in the first place.

WHERE 3 PLUNGED TO DEATH



Westminster cathedral, in London, from the tower of which a woman hurled her two daughters and herself 300 feet to death yesterday. The cathedral is the seat of the London diocese of the Roman Catholic church. It is in the Victoria district and some distance from the famous Westminster abbey.

MOTHER HURLS 2 GIRLS, JUMPS 300 FEET TO DEATH

Cathedral Tower Scene of Triple Tragedy.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—[By United Press.]—Hurling her two little girls, Margaret and Kathleen, from the campanile of Westminster cathedral, 300 feet to the pavement below, Mrs. Margaret Davey, an Irish woman, leaped to death after them today. All three bodies were smashed almost beyond recognition.

The first intimation of the triple tragedy came to passers-by when a child's body came hurtling down from the high tower of the cathedral and thudded into a heap of broken bones and mangled flesh on the sidewalk. While some ran to the victim and others scattered and several women fainted at the sight, the body of another young girl fell a short distance from the first.

Saw Women Throw Children.

Then those near the scene, gazing aloft to the top of the cathedral tower, saw Mrs. Davey leap off and crash upon a curbing near where the bodies of her children lay.

Eye witnesses later told police that they saw the woman deliberately lift one child after the other to the railing of the campanile and hurl them off.

At a late hour the police had not discovered a motive for the double murder and suicide.

Asked About Entering Tower.

All that was known was that Mrs. Davey, calm enough not to attract attention, inquired at a candy store near the cathedral the way to the edifice and whether she and the children, whom she led by the hand, would be admitted to the campanile.

The Westminister cathedral, where the tragedy occurred, is not to be confused with Westminster abbey. The cathedral is on a side street in the Victoria district, some little distance away from the historic abbey.

Chicago Salesman Robbed of $75,000 in Gems at Peoria

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 23.—Joseph Teitleman, a salesman for Cappel & Co., 31 North State street, Chicago, was kidnaped by two automobile bandits this afternoon and robbed of $75,000 in unset diamonds, according to story he told Peoria police. Teitleman said he was seized as he was coming out of the Jefferson hotel, thrown into an automobile, and taken to Springdale cemetery at the edge of the city limits. After robbing him of the gems, which he carried in a satchel, he said, the robbers threw him out of the automobile.

COOLIDGE AND M'ADOO SEEKING OHIO DELEGATES

Both Prepare for the Buckeye Fight.

Columbus, O., Feb. 23.—Political activity in Ohio, almost dormant during the last several weeks, today underwent a rejuvenation.

Developments of the day, which came rapidly, included:

Official filing with Secretary of State Brown of the declaration of candidacy of President Coolidge.

Announcement that the President had indorsed Attorney General Daugherty as a delegate to the convention.

Announcement that William G. McAdoo would carry his fight for the Democratic Presidential nomination into Ohio.

Must Obtain Consent.

Secretary of State Brown ruled today that candidates for delegates to national convention are required to obtain the written consent of the Presidential candidate whom they wish to support before they may enter the primary. This ruling reverses rulings of two previous state secretaries and closes the delegate lists to those selected by the managers of the various Presidential candidates.

Definite entrance of James A. White, former superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league into the contest for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, on a platform which included law enforcement and tax reduction, also was announced.

McAdoo is expected to file his declaration early next week, Secretary of State Brown advised W. D. Wilkin, Cleveland attorney, and H. G. Deweese of Columbus, at a conference today, that it would be necessary to obtain written consent of the former treasury secretary before delegates could file for him.

Wire to McAdoo.

The two McAdoo supporters immediately wired Mr. McAdoo at Los Angeles requesting him to forward his consent. The declaration, it was indicated, would be filed as soon as the consent arrives.

Mr. Brown said that he would accept a telegraphic consent on condition that it be confirmed in writing later. Wilkin declared that McAdoo would make a determined fight for the Ohio delegation.

Hotel Held Liable for Valuables Left in Its Care

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 23.—A hotel or public resort is responsible for the full amount of any valuables lost or stolen after being intrusted to its care, the District Court of Appeals here held today in granting Carl Muehlebach, wealthy Kansas City hotel owner, and Mrs. Muehlebach, full return on jewelry valued at $23,000, which was stolen from the safe at the Hotel Paso Robles at Paso Robles, Cal., in January, 1921. The jewels were taken while the Muehlebachs were on a honeymoon trip. They sued, alleging the night clerk, to whom they intrusted the gems, had fled with them.

A Body of Rare Beauty!
Performance of Brilliant Character!

Those two buying reasons above are supplemented by a third of powerful appeal—moderate price.

The Nash Four-Door Coupe literally is a car priced way below its real value.

You can prove that statement yourself if you will just take an hour to see the way Nash builds it.

For instance, more than 150 separate pieces of lumber are specially milled for use in the stalwart frame of the smartly fashioned body.

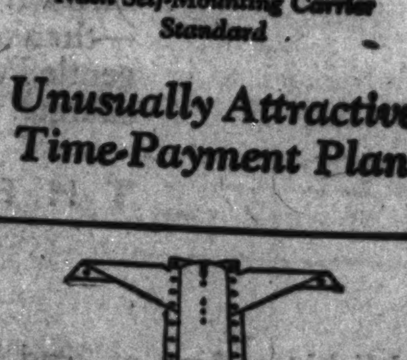
The sill alone in this frame requires 24 distinct mill room operations so that each part that joins it will fit with scientific precision.

Then take the motor. Nash makes particular practice of honing every cylinder wall—thus imparting a mirror-like finish and insuring a correctly fitting piston.

Tests made on Nash engines after more than three years' service show wear less than one one-thousandth of an inch.

So it goes. Every detail of construction and design reveals vividly concrete proof that Nash is a master maker of fine cars.

Come in and test the car today in a trial ride!



The Nash Frame Is Rigid and Protects the Body

Frame distortions with the resulting squeaks and loosening of body joints are prevented in the Nash frame by the use of five large cross-members, two of which are tubular. Above is shown the center tubular cross-member with its rugged gussets.

EDUCATORS HERE FOR NEW SYSTEM OF INSTRUCTION

Thousands Arrive for National Meeting.

The platoon system of school management, long a subject of argument among educators, will probably be one of the major topics for dicussion in the convention of the department of superintendence of the National Education association which opened a six day session at the Auditorium last night.

All yesterday thousands of educators—college presidents, school superintendents, legislators, and teachers—were gathering in the city to attend the convention, and dozens of preliminary meetings were held in preparation for the big meetings which start today.

Explains Platoon System.

Concerning the platoon plan, Miss Alice Barrows, specialist in industrial and economic relations of the United States Bureau of Education, said: "The point of fundamental importance about the work-study-play, or platoon plan, is that it represents an attempt to solve the problem of making a city a fit place for the rearing of children."

The plan did not develop as a means of solving congestion or accommodating more children in school buildings, Miss Barrows declared, but it was designed to give children a better education and to enable the schools to keep children off the streets. The fact that the plan does relieve congestion was only incidental, Miss Barrows said.

Now a Social Problem.

"After all, the aim of education is not to pour a certain amount of information into children," she said, "but to enable them to form habits which will make them healthy, strong, intelligent men and women. The problem of the school today is not merely an educational problem, but a social one."

Another speaker on the platoon plan was William Wirt, superintendent of schools at Gary, Ind., who originated the system. By means of the platoon plan, Mr. Wirt said, the school is enabled to give more time to the child and give him less time to run wild on the streets.

Originator Tells Hope.

"The slogan of the traditional school for some time has been 'A school seat for every child,'" Mr. Wirt said. "The slogan of the platoon plan might be said to be 'A seat for every child when he needs it, and modern educational facilities for work and play, and adequate time to use them.'"

A growing appreciation of the need for more attention to educational and vocational guidance in schools and colleges was pointed out by John M. Brewer, director of vocational guidance at Harvard university, before a meeting of the convention last night.

"The job of being a student is supposed to be the main job in the school or college," he said, "but if college or school is to be successful it must help the student discover his abilities and help him make the choice of a career."

John F. Friese, principal of Technical High school, St. Cloud, Minn., spoke on the importance of vocational guidance in smaller communities.

Beginning tomorrow, numerous luncheons, banquets, and other entertainment features will be held for the 12,000 delegates at hotels. Only one meeting is scheduled for today, at which Henry Neumann of New York City will address a gathering in the Congress hotel.

PLAN NEW EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM

Judge Holds Stove Poker Not a Concealed Weapon

Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 23.—A stove poker wrapped in a newspaper is not a concealed weapon, Justice Harry Hoyt ruled today in the case of Lillian Erington, who struck a neighbor, Fannie Evans, on the head with it. But the defendant was fined $5. Both women live in North Chicago.

Y. W. C. A. SEEKS $250,000 FOR ITS WORK IN JAPAN

The National Young Woman's Christian association has launched a campaign throughout the United states to raise $250,000 by March 7, to rebuild its structures destroyed by the Japanese earthquakes in Tokyo and Yokohoma.

"The $250,000 will go toward the erection of new temporary barracks for both cities and a permanent building for the Tokyo association," Miss Mable Stafford, who arrived in Chicago yesterday, said. "The Laura Spellman Rockefeller foundation has pledged $50,000 toward the amount on the condition that the rest is raised by March 7, when the campaign ends."

Among the Chicago women who are working on the Japanese campaign are Miss Naomi Donnelley, Mrs. Tracy Drake, Mrs. Harold Hanson, and Mrs. William Bush.

Miss Jane Addams will speak in the interests of the campaign at the March 2 services of the Sunday Evening club.

Campaign headquarters will be at the offices of the central region of the Y. W. C. A. at 308 North Michigan.

Landis Favors Bonus in Talk to Fellowship Club

"The word 'bonus' is merely a misnomer for the debt that America owes to the men who fought and won the war for her," former Federal Judge Kenesaw M. Landis yesterday told members of the Irish Fellowship club at the regular weekly meeting in the Morrison hotel. "The bonus is nothing more than adjusted compensation for the men who fought for our country. It is a debt we owe them," he said.

O. C. DAHL WINS HARRISON HERO MEDAL FOR 1922

Saved 2 Lives at Blaze; Others Honored.

In recognition of his heroism, which saved the lives of two persons trapped in a burning building, Otto Dahl, chauffeur for Fire Marshal Edward J. Buckley, will be presented with the 1922 Carter Harrison gold medal at an early meeting of the city council.

Selection of the 1922 hero was overlooked by the previous administration's board of award. Dahl's nomination was announced yesterday by Civil Service Commissioners Nicholas Finn, Edward J. Evans, and John A. Pelka.

Then a member of hook and ladder company No. 2, Dahl answered a call to 1010 West Lake street about 3 o'clock on the morning of April 1, 1922, to find the building "heavily charged with heat and smoke," according to the report of the board of award.

Dahl Proves Self Hero.

Dahl entered the building and rushed to the second floor, where he heard groans and cries for help. There he found a Mrs. Green, weighing nearly 400 pounds, nearly overcome with smoke.

Realizing that he would be unable to carry the woman to safety, Dahl summoned brother firemen to aid the woman and pressed further through smoke and flames in a search for other victims. Six firemen were required to carry Mrs. Green to the street.

In a pantry where he had presumably sought refuge from the dense smoke Dahl found an unconscious man. Hoisting the man on his shoulders, the fireman groped for the stairs, which in the meantime had been burned away.

Fall Into the Basement.

Dahl, carrying the man, was unaware that the stairs had collapsed. He stepped off into the clouds of smoke and fire and fell two stories into the basement of the building. There he landed on a bale of rags.

Neither Dahl nor the man were injured in the fall. Dahl carried the man to the street, placed him in an ambulance, and returned to aid his comrades in fighting the fire.

Another Hero Praised.

Honorable mention was accorded by the board of award to Mathias Bender, fireman, hook and ladder company No. 10 "for rescuing a woman from the second floor of a burning building at 1712 Burling street at 4:53 o'clock a. m. on Oct. 27, 1922."

"Stanley Schuba, fireman, hook and ladder company No. 17, is honorably mentioned for an act performed while on his regular off day, Nov. 2, 1922, at about 2 o'clock p. m., and attending performance at McVicker's theater, through his coolheadedness he stopped what might have been a panic and the loss of many lives.

Saved Life of Captain.

"Thomas Harnois, fireman, engine company No. 104, is honorably mentioned for rescuing Capt. Joseph Graham of engine company No. 104 from the basement of a burning building at 64 East 14th street at about 2:03 o'clock a. m. on Nov. 26, 1922. Capt. Graham had fallen through stairway to basement.

"John J. O'Brien, fireman, engine company No. 56, is honorably mentioned for rescuing a child from the second floor of a burning building at 2513 Logan boulevard on Dec. 23, 1922.

"Patrick J. Smith, fireman, engine company No. 4, is honorably mentioned for rescuing a man from the first floor of a burning building at 736 Ross street at 4:07 a. m. on Dec. 31, 1922."

FIRE HERO

Plan for Herrin Rum Trial.

Danville, Ill., Feb. 23.—[United Press.]—Lawrence T. Allen, assistant United States district attorney, Danville, today was appointed to prosecute the Williamson county liquor law violation cases. The defendants will be arraigned March 3 before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley here.

Allen said the April term of court at Cairo, Ill., would be omitted and the Danville session continued until May. United States deputy marshals were in Williamson county today to serve forty-two temporary federal injunctions on soft drink parlors and saloons.

MILITANT SIKHS MASSED IN INDIA TO SEIZE SHRINE

Serious Uprising Feared as 14 Are Killed.

BY THOMAS RYAN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DELHI, India, Feb. 23.—The concentration of militant sikhs around Jaitu in the semi-independent state of Nabha, threatens the Punjab with the most serious uprising since the shrine riots two years ago.

The latest reports say Jaitu is surrounded by an excited mob, armed with axes, swords and guns.

The danger is great because of the large number of sikhs in the Indian army who are already disgruntled because of the shrine controversy. The Sikhs formerly were the best and most loyal troops recruited in India.

Fourteen Killed in First Clash.

Following a brush between Nabha state troops with more than 6,000 sikhs on Thursday near Jaitu, resulting in fourteen sikhs being killed and thirty-four wounded, the Akali, a sect of the sikhs, throughout the northwest are marching to support their comrades.

One body composed of 500 pilgrims to the Jaitu shrine left Amritsar yesterday. Another contingent started from Delhi last night while sikhs, wearing old military uniforms, armed themselves and preceded by banner bearers paraded through the native quarter today, stopping traffic. A group of noncoöperators following the parade in cabs.

Feared Political Demonstration.

The present trouble started when 500 pilgrims set out on foot from Amritsar, proclaiming their intention of marching on the Jaitu shrine to pray for twenty-four hours. According to the government, the pilgrims planned a political demonstration against the deposition of the Maharajah of Nabha by the authorities and the substitution of his young son under a British administrator.

The pilgrims, who had announced their peaceful intentions, were joined by a crowd of armed Sikhs. The marchers, when ordered to disperse by Nabha troops, opened fire on the soldiers, according to government reports. Nabha cavalry took up positions on a hill dominating the district and fired on the pilgrims.

Trying to Recover Shrines.

The Akalis are Sikh puritans, who are endeavoring to wrest their shrines from the Hindus, who have held them for years. Despite the government's attempt to submit the problem to the courts, the Akalis are continuing to seize shrines. However, the seizures in the main have been carried out without violence, as Gandhi's pacifist teachings have even reached the militant Sikhs.

With the swarajists (nationalists) trying to overthrow the constitution in Delhi and the Sikhs on a rampage the British government appears to be having its hands full, but officials are not expressing any alarm.

CAPT. MARTIN TO FIGHT FOR POST, BEER WAR'S TOLL

Inside Story of Booze Game May Be Told.

CAPT. JOHN MARTIN.

Another police department beer running scandal may be unearthed in a hearing of the charge of inefficiency and neglect of duty filed yesterday against Capt. John Martin, recently deposed commander of the Hudson avenue district.

Martin, who was suspended when he refused to resign after being certified physically unfit by a medical examining board, has indicated that he will not be made "the goat for a clique of beer running policemen" who he hints double-crossed him.

In the charges filed by Secretary William Foehringer of the civil service commission, Martin is held guilty of neglect of duty in a failure to investigate Policeman James Dempsey's complaint that he was ordered away from a post near the North American brewery so that half a dozen loaded beer trucks might slip out of the brewery gate.

No Charges Against Others.

No charges, however, were filed against the lieutenant who ordered Dempsey to "run around the block," nor the sergeant who told him that "five or six loads of beer are going out whether you like it or not."

Martin's failure to suppress the Taxi inn, 2128 Lincoln avenue, and the Blue Star inn, 1500 Clybourn avenue, both notorious dives against which Mayor Dever had urged immediate action, is cited in the charges. Martin, when summoned to the mayor's office several weeks before he was suspended, reported that he could get no evidence of misconduct in the places.

This, notwithstanding the fact, according to the charges that four men who plied 18 year old Martha Jones, 2149 Fremont street, with liquor in the Taxi inn and then attacked her, were indicted and held to the grand jury, largely on the testimony of a Hudson avenue policeman.

Other Causes of Complaint.

In another instance, where a policeman found an intoxicated girl nearly nude in an automobile in front of the place, Martin made no investigation or report for nearly three weeks and not until it was demanded by Chief Collins, the charges assert.

Nor did he investigate, it is charged, what is said to have been a brawl between rival gangs of beer runners in the Blue Star inn, in the course of which Policeman Ernest Hecker's jaw was broken and his revolver taken from him.

FRANCE TURNS AGAINST DAWES' PLANS FOR RUHR

Experts' Work Menaced by New Campaign.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—[Tribune Radio.]—The success of the experts' committee investigating Germany's capacity to pay reparations is gravely menaced. The optimism reflected among the experts and press early this week has suddenly been completely reversed. The strictest secrecy has suddenly been clamped tightly on the members of the committee, who had commenced to speak almost freely on the development of their investigations.

Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes of Chicago, Owen D. Young of New York, and the other members refused today even to receive newspaper correspondents, while from an inspired government newspaper in Paris came a warning that the lines along which the experts' report was developing are unacceptable to France.

The sudden tension of the Franco German relations, beginning with the Pirmasens massacre, was stretched to the snapping point by Premier Poincare's refusal to receive the German government's note protesting against the Palatinate conditions as revealed in Foreign Minister Stresemann's speech.

Insist France Hold Rhine.

All the factions of French politicians and the press which supported the Ruhr occupation now are exerting powerful pressure on Premier Poincare, demanding that he reject any proposals from the experts which may release the French grip on the occupied region or relax the Franco-Belgian control of the railways in these zones.

A leading article in a Paris paper today says "there is danger of war," and stresses the claim that Germany's army is capable of immediate expansion to 1,000,000 war veterans.

German Railways Offer Profits.

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—Sir William Ackworth, expert supervisor of Austrian railroads under league loan provisions, and M. Leverve, a Paris engineer, told the Dawes committee today that all the railroads of Germany, administered as a unit, with an increase of fares to the French level and with a decrease in the number of unnecessary employés, could earn annually a net profit of 800,000,000 gold marks ($200,000,000).

The railroads form the basis of the Dawes committee plan for financing Berlin's payment for deliveries in kind over a two or three years' moratorium, and it is tentatively proposed to mortgage these prospective earnings for the loan of 2,000,000,000 gold marks ($500,000,000). This money would not go direct to the allies, but Berlin would pay for deliveries of goods and materials on reparations account.

Seek to Satisfy France.

Putting into effect today's recommendations would mean the ending of operation of the Ruhr and Rhineland roads by the Franco-Belgian regie. This would be an important concession by the French and Belgians, and in return the experts will try to offer those countries large participation in the financial supervision of the German railroads, which supervision would be maintained until the fruition of reparations payments provided by the experts' plan.

This international supervision, in which allied influence may predominate, would work probably in conjunction with the proposed German bank of issue, and it would see that the profits of the roads went for reparations.

SURVEYING HIS ART

Friends of Paul Duso, a bailiff in the Criminal courts building, have wondered why they see so little of him during lunch hour and after the courts are closed. The reason was revealed when they learned that Duso is an artist and spends every spare moment with his canvas and brush.

Chicagoan Is Senior Class President at the U. of I.

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Class elections were held at the University of Illinois with voting extremely heavy. R. J. Rutherford, 5749 South Michigan avenue, Chicago, was named president of the senior class; L. H. Jones, 1418 Bryn Mawr avenue, Chicago, was unopposed for the junior office, while T. V. McDavitt, Newcomb Ill., and J. A. Solon, Champaign, were named sophomore and freshman class presidents, respectively.

LEGION NOTES

La Grange Post No. 41 will present an overseas soldier show, "A Buck on Leave," with the author, Patrick Henry Barnes, in the title rôle, next Friday and Saturday, in James Kidston Memorial hall, La Grange. A La Grange banker, H. B. Kilgour, will take the part of Gen. Pershing.

Brig. Gen. William J. Nicholson, commandant of the first officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan, later in command of an infantry brigade, 79th division and now president of the American Furniture Mart association, will address Advertising Men's post of the American Legion tomorrow at its weekly luncheon.

'Danny' Goodman Gives Up to Begin Jail Sentence

Daniel "Danny" Goodman, former lightweight pugilist, recently convicted in the federal court of violation of the prohibition act, surrendered yesterday to United States Marshal Robert R. Levy. He will immediately begin serving a sentence of ninety days in Kane county jail. Goodman was convicted of selling liquor to prohibition agents in his saloon at 1600 South Wabash avenue.

FIRE DAMAGES LABOR AGENCY.

The office of C. O. Gorman, labor agency, on the second floor at 627 West Madison street, was damaged by fire last night.

BUILDING PLANS OF COUNTY UP TO CIVIC LEADERS

Meeting of Commission Set for Wednesday.

The dreams of men who visioned new and beautiful buildings for Cook county, at a cost of $63,000,000, yesterday took on reality when a commission was appointed by Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board, to plan for the project.

A meeting of the new commission has been called for next Wednesday afternoon. The names on the list of members include architects, bankers, merchants, manufacturers, newspaper publishers, judges and lawyers, county, city, and state officials, and members of social, civic, and economic organizations.

Scope of Plan.

The objective is to formulate plans for county buildings, particularly a new jail and a criminal courts building, and a twenty story loop skyscraper, the "Temple of Justice," to house the county's courts and business offices.

If the commission agrees on definite steps to be taken, the voters in June will be asked to approve bond issues to carry the project.

Joseph L. Moss, chief juvenile probation officer, yesterday appeared before the finance committee, which has been asked to increase probation officers' salaries, and explained the so-called "propaganda" which board members charged had been employed to force the increases.

Only $35 Raised.

Mr. Moss showed that instead of the officers contributing $10 a month for three months, as was charged, but one subscription, a purely voluntary one, was taken, amounting to 50 cents each, a total of $35.

The sum, a little more than half of which has been used, was to defray expenses of circulating copies of recommendations of a citizens' committee, composed of leading civic and charitable workers. The recommendations urged immediate increases for all juvenile court employés.

The county board's charge that improper influence had been exerted was characterized by some as an attempt to avoid making reasonable and justified increases.

FRATERNITIES TOO FAR FROM UNIVERSITY LIFE, MICHIGAN PREXY SAYS

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 23.—Fraternities of the University of Michigan are going too far afield in their building operations for their own good or for the good of the university, President M. L. Burton told the board of regents today.

"Whatever the cause may be, the fraternities are missing the neighborly life that means so much at college and is so important in forming the spirit of the place," he said. "It is altogether too easy for them to become a law unto themselves when they are so far removed from the campus discipline. Proper attention to class duties cannot be so readily given by the students who live so far away; the temptation to 'cut' classes becomes strong, and it is inconvenient to run over to the library for a half hour's study."

Two Arrested Here in $1,000,000 Bond Theft

Kenneth B. Anderson, president of the Anderson-Hamilton State Deposit company, 11 South La Salle street, and John Graham, who gave his address as the Briggs hotel, were held on charges of conspiracy in connection with the disposal of bonds valued at $1,000,000, stolen from a mail truck in Los Angeles in 1921, yesterday by United States Commissioner James R. Glass. Graham and Anderson were charged with having attempted to sell the stolen securities.

Girl Schools' Officials Protest Compulsory Law

Officials of schools for girls meeting at the Drake hotel yesterday passed resolutions to appoint a committee to investigate the constitutionality of the new Oregon compulsory school law, which they declare will seriously hamper private schools. Such a law, the principals say, interferes with personal liberty by prohibiting parental freedom of choice.

GORMAN TO BE FINED $500 FOR SELLING BOOZE

First punishment for violation of injunctions issued to prevent the sale of booze in dozens of cafés and saloons will be meted out to Joseph Gorman, proprietor of the Entertainers' café, 209 East 35th street, it was indicated yesterday by Circuit Judge Ira D. Ryner.

The café was enjoined early in January when Judge Ryner was told of frequent violations of the prohibition law in the café.

Yesterday John Amo, an investigator for the Better Government association, testified in a contempt proceeding against Gorman that he had gone to the place two weeks ago and purchased a quart of whiskey. Judge Ryner indicated he would fine Gorman $500.

The city will ask that a permanent injunction, closing the Entertainers' doors, be issued, it was announced.

ENFORCEMENT OF LAW SUBJECT OF C. E. SPEAKERS

More than 1,000 members of the Chicago Christian Endeavor union attending the seventeenth annual convention of the organization yesterday were told by five speakers the necessity of law enforcement today and the part public-spirited citizens are able to take in aiding that enforcement.

The speakers, who also dealt with the activities of the organization, were the Rev. Stephen E. Fisher, the Rev. Elmer L. Williams, the Rev. George D. Nielsen, the Rev. P. W. Philpott, and Mrs. William V. Martin.

Departmental conferences in the afternoon, at which plans for the work of the ensuing year were outlined, were followed by a "fellowship supper." The convention was held in the Moody Institute auditorium.

Bandits Kidnap Driver, Escape in Laundry Truck

Flivver squads from all stations last night were ordered to "head off" five automobile bandits who stole a laundry truck and announced they were starting out "to pull a job." The men halted Laddie Rada, driver for the California Laundry company, 2448 South Kedzie avenue, at 47th and Mozart streets and forced him to drive to 49th street and Albany avenue. Then they took the truck.

INTERNATIONAL ICE SKATE TITLE WON BY GORMAN

Allen, Chicago, Second in Senior Events.

TABLE OF POINTS

SENIOR—FINAL STANDING.

Gorman	100	McWhirter	20
Allen	70	Foraman	20
Kaskey	60	Gloster	10
Donovan	50	Hearn	10
Moore	20

(Picture on page two.)

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Coming from behind on the final day of the international speed ice skating championships held on Mirror Lake here today, Charles D. Gorman, the St. John, N. B., flash and winner of the national title at Saranac lake last week, staggered across the finish line in the three mile event, the final race on the program ahead of the pack of twenty-seven skaters and won his second championship in two weeks.

FRANCIS ALLEN.

Gorman's double victory today gave him a total of 100 points, thirty more than is credited to Francis Allen of Austin-Columbia A. A., Chicago, the new star of the skating firmament. Harry Kaskey of Alverno A. A., Chicago, the former national king, rests in third place with sixty points, while Richard Donovan of St. Paul finished fourth with fifty points.

Gorman in Close Victory.

The three mile was a heartbreaking race. Allen and Gorman were tied at this point with seventy each, while Kaskey was ten behind. Robert Reed of the Alverno club of Chicago set out in the lead, followed by Bill Steinmetz, also of Chicago. They set the pace for the balance of the field for fifteen laps, when Les Boyd of New York went to the front. With a lap and a half to go, Gorman, Moore, Donovan, Bialis and Allen moved up to a commanding position, but Allen's chances for a title went glimmering when he fell on the far turn.

Starting the bell lap, Gorman made his bid, closely followed by Moore, Donovan, Bialis and Kaskey. Charley's sprinting powers held up for him and he crossed the finish two yards in the van of Moore, with Donovan a close third. The race over and his second title won, Gorman went down in a heap and had to be carried to the dressing room. His time for the three miles was 8:46 3-5.

Kaskey Is Disqualified.

An unfortunate incident which caused the disqualification of Kaskey cost Joe Moore whatever chance he had of winning the quarter mile race. When Gorman opened his sprint in this event, Kaskey, in endeavoring to force his way into second position, pushed Moore, sending him to the ice. Gorman kept up his sprint and crossed the line a winner in :38. Kaskey finished in second place with Francis Allen third and Eddie Gloster of Toronto fourth. Kaskey's disqualification moved the last two men up a notch.

O'Neil Farrell of the Averno A. A. of Chicago won the international title in junior old class, winning four of the five races contested. Farrell also won the 15-year national crown and has a record of nine races won out of ten titular starts. Farrell won the 440 yard and 1 mile races in the junior championship today. Summaries:

Columbus, O., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Uncanny shooting and close, effective guarding enabled Ohio State to knock Wisconsin out of the Big Ten basketball lead, 27 to 13, the first Ohio basketball victory from Wisconsin in ten years. At no time in the game did the Badgers lead the Buckeyes. At the half the score was 16 to 11.

Capt. Johnny Miner was the high point man for Ohio with three baskets and two free throws. For the Badgers Bert Elsom with four baskets was the star. A record crowd of 8,234 fans attended the game.

When play was resumed Indiana tied the score at 16 all after four minutes of play. The locals then obtained a 7 point lead and held it up until within four minutes of the final gun, when Capt. BIG TEN DELAYS GRID OFFICIALS ANNOUNCEMENT

Officials who will handle western conference football games this fall will not be announced until next Sunday according to announcement made yesterday by Maj. John L. Griffiths, secretary of the committee in charge of the appointments.

It appears that some officials already have been chosen for non-conference struggles, and the committee lacked this information. As a result it will take at least a week of correspondence to secure the information, but Maj. Griffith hopes to have all assignments for conference and non-conference games ready by the end of the week.

JUST BEFORE THE FIRST SALVO IN THE A. B. C.

Twenty-eight teams of the Chicago Rotary clubs faced the pins for the opening of the annual American Bowling congress tournament on as many newly built alleys at the 132d infantry armory, Madison and Rockwell street, last night. More than 10,000 bowlers from all sections of the country will try to gather enough wood to win the many money prizes offered for the five men team, doubles, singles, and all around champion scores, as well as the awards for single game, high average, and other feats.

The tourney will run for thirty-three days. Contestants will start rolling at 9 o'clock each morning, with the last squads on each day taking to the drives around 11 o'clock each night. Rolling will be continuous and the list of contestants includes the best bowlers in the country.

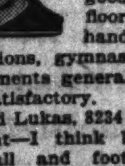
The Question.

Do you think that basketball would rival baseball and football in popularity, providing enough spectators could be accommodated at the games?

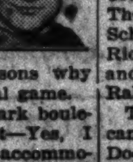
Where Asked.

Auditorium theater lobby.

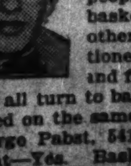
The Answers.



Gordon Dixon, 3011 Constance avenue, student—Yes, I think it would. It is just as interesting to watch as baseball or football. The interest shown by those who attend is good testimony. The floor sport's greatest handicap is the accommodations, gymnasium seats and arrangements generally being anything but satisfactory.

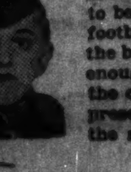


Thad Lukas, 8234 South Shore drive, student—I think both baseball and football are better games all around than basketball. They are out of doors sports; they are harder to play and more interesting to the spectator than basketball games. There are good, sound reasons why baseball is called the national game.



John Raptis, 825 Irving Park boulevard, student—Yes, I think if the accommodations were on an equal basis more people would attend basketball than the other two games mentioned. After baseball and football is over they would all turn to basketball, that is, if handled on the same big scale.

George Pabst, 5415 Giddings street, student—Yes. Basketball is an indoor sport and winter sport, and I believe more people would attend because there would be no chance of being hampered by weather conditions. It is being supported to the present limit of the hall capacity. Basketball is a more interesting game.



Henry Sandberg, 4536 Lawndale avenue, student—I think basketball would prove to be just as popular as football and baseball if the buildings were large enough to accommodate the crowds. But under present arrangements the sport is stinted.

SOX START FOR FLORIDA CAMP NEXT FRIDAY

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

When the White Sox special pulls out of the 12th street station Florida bound next Friday morning only six athletes will be aboard. The main gathering of the Hose will take place in Winter Haven, the first mobilization coming on March 2, when the major detachment of the pitchers and young players is slated to report, and the second March 9, when the infielders and outfielders and a couple of the veteran hurlers are due to arrive.

Secretary Harry Grabiner has made arrangements for all of the athletes who live nearer Winter Haven than Chicago to travel directly to the camp. All of the athletes slated to leave on the second squad will depart singly or in small groups to the training grounds.

Two Cars on Train.

But even with the small list of athletes leaving Chicago there will be two cars on the White Sox train. A battery of war correspondents, Secretary Harry Grabiner, Road Secretary Lou Barbour, Menz Rosenbaum, one of the stanch south side fans, and Trainer Bill Buckner are included. The athletes leaving include Ray Schalk and Clyde Crouse, catchers; Richard Falvey, Douglas McWeeny, and Tony (Buzz) Welzer, pitchers; Joe Rabbitt, outfielder, and Coach Evers.

The athletes who will report at the camp March 2 are John Burns and Dooley Ferguson, catchers; J. Stub Gallagher, first baseman; Urban (Red) Faber, Joubert Davenport, George Connally, Gorham V. Leverett, Leon Cadore, Harry Courtney, Ted Lyons, and Milt Steengrafe, pitchers; J. C. Happenny and Admiral Martin, infielders, and Roy Elsh, Bill Barrett, Maurice Archdeacon, and Red Ostergard, outfielders.

Lou Leaves Tomorrow.

The veterans squad reporting March 9 will consist of Capt. Eddie Collins, Earl Sheely, Ted Blankenship, Charley Robertson, Mike Cvengros, Hollis Thurston, Harvey McClellan, Willie Kamm, Harry Hooper, Bib Falk, Johnny Mostil, Amos Strunk, and Coach Ed Walsh.

All told, the Sox will have thirty-five athletes in training and Coaches Johnny Evers and Ed Walsh face a busy session to prepare the squad in three weeks for the first of the training season games.

Treasurer Lou Comiskey leaves tomorrow for Winter Haven to look over the arrangements made for the hose during their stay. Lou isn't taking any chance of having his high priced athletes pull into Winter Haven and then be forced to lay idle while minor details are cleaned up.

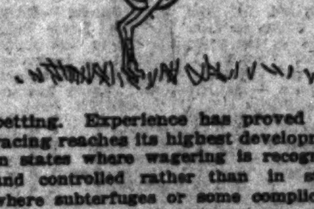
In the Wake of the News

KENTUCKY RACING.

RACING in Kentucky, with its pari-mutuel attachment, is safe for another two years at least, according to a test vote taken in the state senate on Thursday—although the lower house had shown a majority for a repealing resolution.

This action means more than retention of the sport in Kentucky alone. Adverse action in the blue grass state—one of our most important breeding communities where investments in thoroughbred establishments total several millions—undoubtedly would affect sentiment throughout the country where a nationwide revival of racing is in progress.

It might be argued that Kentucky racing would survive without mutuels through some system of oral or credit betting. Experience has proved that racing reaches its highest development in states where wagering is recognized and controlled rather than in states where subterfuges or some complicated system within the law, are necessary.



New York tracks, which have the credit system, complain they cannot compete against Kentucky and Maryland whose jockey clubs receive a direct revenue from mutuels and therefore offer more attractive stakes and purses.

It is for these reasons that The Wake, desirous of seeing racing of the highest class in Illinois, favors a mutuel bill for this state.

Winter Mood.

The trees are standing bare and straight,
All life has ceased to be,
But they are not more desolate
Than is the heart of me.

The wintry winds go crying by,
The branches bend and sway,
Just as the chilly loneliness
Sweeps through my heart today.

And yet, in trees, when comes the spring,
Once more new life will run,
And like the trees, maybe my heart
Will blossom in the sun.

FIELD OF 10,000 ROLLS IN GREAT PIN CLASSIC HERE

Opening Delayed as Mayor Dever Fails to Appear.

For the first time in the history of the American Bowling congress a real team score was bowled on opening night, the Crescent Belmont Rotary club five last night hitting the maples for 2,691.

The international tenpin classic was thus ushered in with great style, though a somewhat belated start was made due to the failure of Mayor Dever to appear as per schedule in the rôle of a "welcomer" of the biggest athletic event in point of numbers participating in the history of any athletic game.

Prize List of $100,000.

Fifty-six teams of the 2,131 five-man drives entered rolled on the two squads of the evening. In addition to the 2,131 five-man drives entered in the tournament, to last thirty-three days, there are 4,700 two-man squads and 9,447 single individuals to fight for the prize money, amounting to more than $100,000. The entry fees amount to $147,510.

Following opening ceremonies in which Elmer Baumgarten, president of the Chicago Tournament association; Judge Howard, past president of the A. B. C.; Charles Newton, president of the Chicago Rotary club; F. L. Pasdeloup, treasurer of the A. B. C.; A. L. Langtry, secretary of the A. B. C., and D. A. Luby, executive committeeman, delivered addresses, the big show was on at the 132d Regiment armory, Madison and Rockwell streets.

Rotary Clubs Active.

Sixteen Rotary club teams were active on the first shift, in addition to miscellaneous quintets. The final squad was taken up entirely by various teams representing councils of the Knights of Columbus.

In hitting off its count of 2,691 for high of the first squad, the Crescent Belmonts showed some real and unusual classy bowling for first nighters by giving the 1,000 mark a close shave in their final fling at the wood, hammering out 954.

The team opened with 879, followed with 858, and then rose to the above mentioned dizzy heights due principally to the great work of Bowen, who took unto himself a count of 254, which is the highest single game ever rolled by an individual on first night rolling in the international classic.

Larsen Totals 609.

Contributing heavily to the good figure established by the Crescents was Larsen, who tallied 609 with games of 211, 200 and 198, probably the most consistent rolling ever evinced by a first nighter. In compiling his 254 game Bowen opened with a spare, struck six straight times, spared twice and struck out.

Next best team to the Crescents was the Pines Rotaries, who knocked out 2,597.

Chick Ryan featured not only the late squad, but the entire evening's rolling by piling up the unusual first night series total of 680. Hhe accomplished this with the Americus K. C. No. 1 team and was the chief cause of this quintet rolling 2,548. Leading scores:

RAIN, COLD HIT FIRPO AND LODGE RING BOUT AGAIN

BY JOHN WHITE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 23.—The fates appear determined that Buenos Aires boxing fans shall not have the Firpo-Lodge farce thrust down their throats as the city's first big prize fight. The beautiful summer weather was interrupted last Friday by a torrential rainfall, which flooded the arena and caused the postponement of the fight. This week again the ideal summer weather prevailed until last night, when there was another heavy downpour. This afternoon there was another rainfall, accompanied by a heavy, cold south wind direct from the Antarctic regions, which turned the summer into midwinter, effectually removing what little interest still remained for the fight.

The Firpo-Lodge bout is now announced for tomorrow night, but unless the weather improves considerably, it will probably be postponed again.

TOURNAMENT TALES

NO getting away from the photographer. Hardly had the curtain gone down on opening ceremonies than—poof! and every one in the house was shot, a battery of cameras, professional and otherwise, getting in their "deadly" work.

Dave Luby, who was the power behind the throne in gathering in the splendid entry of more than 1,000 teams, evidently was so tired from this exertion that all he could say was "Thank you; good-by," when called on for his speech. In other words, as a speechmaker, Mr. Luby is a fine entry getter.

For the first time in his bowling history Billie Lea was a "first nighter." He rolled on No. 1 alley with the Vestas. It was not his fault the team rolled a 2,364, for Billie showed a 155, 140, and closed in a burst of speed with 147.

Opening night attendance was beyond expectations of the tourney promoter, which is indicative of good crowds to follow as soon as the fans get warmed up to the big show.

Roy Davis, secretary of the tournament association, is about the busiest little bee around the armory. If he has to meet up with the same conditions each day it will be nothing but an extended vacation for him beginning March 29.

CLARKE SPRINTS 100 YARDS RACE IN :09 4-5 IN EAST

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 23.—Louis Clarke, Hopkins star sprinter, set what is thought to be a new world's record for the 100 yard dash when he covered the century open tonight in the annual Hopkins-Fifth Regiment games in 9 4-5 seconds. Clarke's feat came in the semifinals of the event.

Verne Booth, Hopkins great distance runner, after running a wonderful race to win the 5,000 meter event, collapsed in the dressing room. Booth, it was learned, suffered an attack of ptomaine poisoning and was not in the best of condition.

MAROON TANKERS DEFEAT ILLINOIS IN 45 TO 23 MEET

Featured by the swimming of little Danny Protheroe, University of Chicago mermen yesterday defeated Illinois, 45 to 23, in a Big Ten meet at the Midway tank. The Maroon water basketball sextet ducked the Illini, 8 to 2, in a match which kept the water boiling and provided the crowd with many thrills.

The Midway relay quartet, composed of Protheroe, Kennedy Gilchrist, Phil VanDeventer, and Austin McCarty, anchored well in advance of the visitors, though the time, 1:21, was slow. Protheroe, besides swimming in the relay, copped the 220 free style event, and was first in the 150 yard backstroke—an event in which he made his initial appearance. Erling Dorf, the Maroon fancy diver, was beaten by a fraction of a point by McFarland.

The water basketball game was featured by the brilliant work of Gilchrist and the strong arm tactics of Capt. Mike Greenebaum of the Maroons. Points were scored for Chicago by Merriam, Greenebaum, Snyder and Petrolovitz, and for Illinois by Quackenbush. Summaries:

AUSTIN-COLUMBIA ICE DERBY SET FOR TODAY

The third annual ice skating Derby of the Austin-Columbia A. A. will be run this afternoon at Columbus park, starting at 1 o'clock. Carded as the first Derby of the season, the races were three times postponed because of soft ice.

The meet is on today, however. Supt. William Barclay of the west parks yesterday declared that the ice will be in top shape. A squad of workers put in a busy afternoon yesterday preparing the top surface of the ice coating on the lagoon.

Ten Races on Program.

Ten races are on the program. Two events are carded for class A skaters, a mile event and a 440 yard dash. Class AA, B, C, and novice class skaters will race one mile, while two boys' races and a woman's event are carded at half miles. A two mile club relay will close the tournament.

Judge Walter P. Steffen will be referee of the tournament, while Frank M. Kalteux is chief judge and Julian T. Fitzgerald starter. Henry Olsen will be chief clerk of the course and Eddie Mahlke chief of the scorers.

400 Skaters Entered.

A field of more than 400 skaters is entered, and the meet should develop some close competition. Harry Winterhoff, Northwest Skat club; Lars Lundgoot, Loyola university, Dave Schultz of the Norwegian-American A. A., and Larry Quirk and George Cadotte of the Austin-Columbus A. A. are among the favorites in the class A races.

FRANKLIN FIVE UNSTOPPABLE IN SIXTEEN GAMES

Franklin, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Franklin college boasts a whirlwind cage turnout, credited with sixteen consecutive victories this season. The team is composed for the most part of men who played together in high school, winning the Indiana state title three years. The men are now under the tutelage of Coach E. B. ("Griz") Wagner, their prep mentor, who has accompanied them to the college floor.

The freshmen last year won nineteen games and lost none to take the state prep championship, and their success this season has left their competitors gasping. The freshmen are bolstered by four sophs who play heady basketball. Among the teams which have fallen before the onslaughts of the Franklinites are De Pauw, Wisconsin, Marquette, Wabash, and Butler.

Their record follows:

Dec. 14—Franklin, 40; Rose Poly, 12.
Dec. 20—Franklin, 41; State Normal, 20.
Dec. 22—Franklin, 35; Butler, 19.

FIGURE SKATING CLUB HAS PLAN TO DEVELOP FANCY SKATE ARTISTS

Failure of American skaters to make a more creditable showing in the fancy and figure skating competition of the Olympic games held recently in France has caused the Figure Skating club of Chicago to start a campaign to interest skaters in this branch of the ice sport.

The Chicago organization is the only local club affiliated with the United States Figure Skating association and makes its headquarters at the Chicago Beach hotel rink. Tests are held each evening from 7 to 8 o'clock and an unusual interest is being taken in the sport since the Olympic competition.

It is the intention of the local club to develop fancy and figure skaters who not only will be sent east to compete in the national championship, but who also will be valuable timber for the next American Olympic team. Carl R. Engel is president of the club, which numbers among its members many well known men and women, including former Judge John E. Scully.

Tests have been held on the Chicago Beach rink whenever the ice has been hard enough to permit figure skating with any degree of certainty. The United States Figure Skating association has appointed as judges for Chicago Charles S. Sumner, Dr. Axel Werelius, Charles A. McCarthy and Mr. Engel. These men will conduct tests in accordance with the rules of the U. S. F. S. A.

These tests are eight in number, in addition to a junior test, and progress slowly from the simple, elementary school figures, consisting of "eights" and "threes" to changes of edge, loops, brackets, and on to the advanced school figures. Beginning with the second test, the skater is permitted and urged to skate a free skating program, thus giving the skater an opportunity to show his originality in arranging a dance program, consisting of the school figures joined together, interspersed with spins, spread eagles, jumps, and special figures, all of which is credited to the skater in passing the tests.

Emblems with distinctive markings have been adopted by the U. S. F. S. A. and are awarded to those who are successful in passing the tests, in which tracings count first, carriage and form second, repetition third, and size of figure fourth. A number of Chicago skaters have passed the first test, several the second, and two have passed the higher tests.

CONDON WINS SKI TITLE.

Ottawa, Canada, Feb. 23.—Covering the difficult 12 mile route in the fast time of 1:24, Edmond C. Condon of the Ottawa Ski club won the Canadian cross country ski running championship today, defeating Ralph Munson of the Brattleboro club, Vermont, by the scant margin of six seconds.

MARSHALL AND HARRISON FIVES WIN PREP TILTS

Marshall and Harrison of the west section put the north side teams, Lake View and Hibbard, out of the running in the northwest section's lightweight semi-final games at the Loyola university gymnasium last night. Marshall nosed out Lake View, 16 to 14, and Harrison vanquished Hibbard, 24 to 20.

Lake View was able to give Marshall a close fight all the way by caging ten free throws. The tight guarding of Marshall held the north siders to two baskets, while S. Smith and Rosenberg each sank a pair of field goals for high point honors.

Harrison and Hibbard both showed a fast offense that made the battle a free scoring affair. The fast team work of the Harrison boys, led by the brilliant Hajek, outclassed Hibbard most of the way. Lineups:

MAROONS EXPECT BROKEN RECORDS AT BASKET MEET

Statistics compiled by University of Chicago athletic authorities give interesting information as to what happens in a big basketball tournament. Though totals made by teams last year were big, Fritz Crisler, head of the national interscholastic basketball tourney which will be held at the Midway April 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, predicts that even larger ones will result from this year's meet.

Forty teams competed last year, traveling an aggregate of 54,000 miles. The teams came to Chicago from all parts of the country, the Walla Walla, Wash., team journeying 5,300 miles. Springville, Utah; Mesa, Ariz.; Hagerman, N. M., and El Paso, Tex., teams coming practically 3,400 miles.

During the forty intersectional games which were played at the meet last season 11,123 attempts were made at the basket. The boys tossed for 689 free throws, 412 being successful, and rang up 920 fields goals for a point total of 2,252. Officials called 631 personal and technical fouls.

Among the individual records made by the competitors was the 65 foot field goal made by Hogan of Osage, Ia. Douglas, a 16 year old lad from Charleston, S. C., was high point scorer of the meet, tallying 109 counters for his team, 24 of which were garnered in one game. The smallest number of points scored by him was 10.

PURPLE UPSETS INDIANA IN MEET

Taking all but one first place and all but three seconds, Northwestern university's track team swept Indiana before them on Patten gym track last night, 62 1-3 to 13 2-3. Save for the mile event, which was won by Bill Martin, high stepping embyro parson, the meet was slow.

Martin, who took the mile and was second in the two-mile event, was tied with Royal Bouscher and Jim Davis for high point honors in the meet.

Indiana's team, coached by Jesse Ferguson, former Northwestern trainer, had to content itself with a first in the shotput, copped by Fisher, who heaved the weight 38 feet 10½ inches. Tad Davis, Purple weight booster, was declared ineligible yesterday morning, when it was discovered that he had enough hours to graduate. Summaries:

40 yard dash—Won by Cockerill [N.]; Smith [N.], second; Hakker [N.], third. Time, :04 3-5.

High jump—Won by Beard [N.]; Wilson [I.], second; Campbell [N.], third. Height, 5 feet 10 inches.

One mile run—Won by Martin [N.]; Davis [N.], second; Ney [I.], third. Time, 4:31 1-5.

Shotput—Won by Fisher [I.]; Bouscher [N.], second; Magnuson [N.], third. Distance, 38 feet 10½ inches.

440 yard run—Won by Cole [N.]; Calhoun [N.], second; Park [I.], third. Time, :53 1-10.

40 yard high hurdles—Won by Kelley [N.]; Pillion [I.], second; Held [I.], third. Time, :05 3-5.

Two mile run—Won by Davis [N.]; Martin [N.], second; Hardin [I.], third. Time, 10:09 4-5.

Pole vault—Won by Bouscher [N.]; Bennett [I.], White [N.], and Thompson [I.] tied for second and third. Height, 11 feet 6 inches.

880 yard run—Won by Kahn [N.]; Calhoun [N.], second; Wallace [I.], third. Time, 2:03 1-5.

WOMEN GOLFERS PICK AUG. 4 TO 9 FOR TITLE MEET

BY JOE DAVIS.

Advancing its usual date by nearly a month, the Women's Western Golf association has picked Aug. 4 to 9 as the time for the western championship, which will be staged at the Onwentsia club. This forward move has been made in order to give the contestants a chance to rest for the women's national championship at the Rhode Island Country club, Sept. 1 to 6.

Other dates announced last night by Mrs. Farlin H. Ball, president of the W. W. G. A., were the three day medal play event at Glen View, June 17 to 19, and the Chicago city championship at Park Ridge, July 7 to 12.

Juniors Pick South Shore.

The western junior event will be held at the South Shore Country club, the date not having been set. No date was fixed for the annual event against par which is played at the home courses of the competing clubs.

Owing to many requests received by the executive committee of the U. S. G. A. for reinstatement by boys who have caddied after reaching the age of 16, Secretary Cornelius S. Lee has asked all clubs to post in their caddie houses the following notice:

Will Become "Pros."

"Caddies who continue to carry clubs for hire after attaining their 16th birthday will be considered professional golfers and will not be allowed to play in any amateur golf competitions held under the rules of the United States Golf association."

3 ST. IGNATIUS BASKET STARS HURT IN RIOT

Coach Edwin J. Daly of St. Ignatius High school five yesterday took stock of his team after the near riot at Joliet Friday night and found that three players were on the injured list, more or less permanently.

John Mahoney received a broken nose and injured knee; James Cassidy received a kick in the side from a spectator, and Hartman Miller is suffering from a side injury.

Fans are blamed for the free for all, which came during the game, which Joliet won, 20 to 13. Police were called to escort the St. Ignatius team from the gymnasium.

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 23.—Navy defeated the Army at basketball today, 34 to 29. The contest was hard fought, Navy leading most of the way, but always by a small margin. Navy's victory gave them the "rubber," as each had two wins apiece until today's contest. Lineup:

CRIMINAL ACTION MAY GROW FROM SCALPING QUIZ

New York, Feb. 23.—[United Press.]—Criminal charges will be filed against Tex Rickard if, during the impending investigation of the charges made by Tom O'Rourke, any evidence to warrant prosecution in connection with the alleged speculation in tickets for the Dempsey-Firpo fight last summer is found.

In telling District Attorney Banton today that the boxing commission would assume responsibility for the investigation, George E. Brower, chairman of the commission and a prominent New York attorney, said that it would make available for the prosecutor's office any evidence that would warrant criminal action.

May Revoke License.

Brower said in the event that the findings would not support a criminal charge the commission would revoke Rickard's license if it was found that he had worked in collusion with scalpers in the distribution of tickets.

While full details of the conference were not available, it was understood that Brower told the district attorney the boxing commission would prefer to conduct the investigation rather than have the district attorney make it a part of the investigation his office is conducting into theater ticket speculation.

The commission, it is understood, will start the investigation at its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon, when Rickard and O'Rourke will be summoned.

Tex Bitter Against O'Rourke.

While he is obviously trying to contain himself through the desire to save his ammunition for the hearing, Rickard has dropped several remarks that show the bitter personal feeling between himself and O'Rourke.

"The only redress I have from this attack," he said today, "rests in the fact that I can be proved innocent by a thorough investigation. That investigation, which I have invited, will throw the guilt in a quarter where it will hurt.

"I have no chance to start action against O'Rourke, because he hasn't a cent and moral verdicts are not of much value in a libel suit. These charges have been made against me out of personal malice, but I am not the one who stands to be hurt."

Personal Affair.

It was understood today that Rickard is prepared to present testimony at the hearing, if necessary, to show that O'Rourke had remarked that he was "out to kill the boxing game" and that he would do it.

Personal malice on the part of O'Rourke against Rickard may be shown to have been the result of the action of the owners of the New York Giants in relieving O'Rourke as the matchmaker of their fight club and appointing Rickard in his place.

May Hurt Game.

If the hearing develops into a personal issue between O'Rourke and the anti-O'Rourke factions, several big scandals, so far unmentioned, may be uncovered and they may smack the whole game to the floor for the count.

The investigation by the boxing commission, it was thought here today, would postpone or perhaps permanently block any effort in Albany to hear the charges made against Rickard and the officials.

TEX MAY BRING ROJAS TO U. S. TO FACE DEMPSEY

New York, Feb. 23.—Quentin Romero Rojas, Chilean heavyweight boxer, may be brought to this country by Tex Rickard as a possible opponent for Jack Dempsey. The promoter has cabled the Chilean an offer of three bouts with the guarantee that if he wins all of them he will get a bout with the world's champion.

Rickard plants to match Romero Rojas against boxers of the type of Fred Fulton, Jack Renault, Bartley Madden, and George Godfrey, to determine his fitness for a match with Dempsey.

JOE M'GINNITY TURNS DOWN BID TO AID M'GRAW

Dubuque, Ia., Feb. 23.—"Iron man" Joe McGinnity, noted pitcher, who managed and helped to pitch the Dubuque Mississippi Valley league club to a championship last year, has definitely decided not to accept an offer by John McGraw to join the New York Giants as pitching coach this year, it was learned here today. McGinnity, now a millwright at Decatur, Ill., recently announced his retirement after thirty-one years in professional baseball.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 23.—Keith Lloyd, former Nebraska track star and brother of Harold Lloyd, film comedian, won the 100 yard open dash at the Los Angeles Coliseum today—9 9-10. The meet in which Lloyd was participating dedicated the new track at the coliseum and was scheduled as the sixth A. A. U. relay carnival.

LEONARD TO BOX IN APRIL OR MAY

New York, Feb. 23.—Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, will return to the ring late in April or early in May, according to plans being made by his manager, Billy Gibson.

Gibson plans to get the champion three or four bouts to tune him up for the summer season.

O'DOWD, KANE FINISH TRAINING FOR BOUT

TRIBUNE DECISIONS

Decisions of Tribune boxing representatives yesterday were:

At New York—Kid Norfolk beat Lee Anderson [12].

Mickey O'Dowd, the Muncie, Ind., featherweight, and Jack Kane of Cicero, Ill., who meet in the windup of the boxing show at East Chicago tomorrow night, finished strenuous training yesterday at the Arcade where they boxed with sparring partners and went through the usual routine of gymnasium work.

Although Kane has been substituted for Sammy Mandell, who had to withdraw because of a severe case of boils, Jack is sure to draw a large delegation of fans from Cicero. He graduated from the amateur ranks recently and has not lost a professional fight in over twenty starts. In his last appearance he won a clean cut decision over Jimmy Mussey of Milwaukee at East Chicago.

O'Dowd has shown his wares before patrons of George Oswego's club before. On last Thanksgiving eve he knocked Ernie Goozeman down for a six count and on other occasions has shown his class. Kane and O'Dowd will scale 128 pounds tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and box ten rounds.

In the ten round semi-windup, Jimmy Anderson, the west side Italian welterweight, will meet Bobby Green of San Antonio, while Warnie Smith of Oklahoma and Tiger Joe Cline of St. Louis will clash in another ten rounder. Boots Hanson of Elgin and Mickey Malloy of the south side, 147 pounders, will open the show in an eight round engagement.

Sammy Mandell of Rockford, who has grown into the lightweight division, will meet Sammy Sieger of New York at Omaha on March 17. It will be a ten round decision contest and the weight will be 133 pounds at 3 o'clock on St. Patrick's day afternoon.

Mickey Kramer, the St. Louis lightweight, under the management of Art Winch, will meet Mack Emmett in Joliet on March 7. It will be a ten round bout and the weight 133 pounds.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Eighteen seasons in the big show and still going strong. Such is the record of Edward Trowbridge Collins and it's a record that covers more than time, for it involves great batting, dazzling baserunning and marvelous fielding. And behind the record is a sterling characteristic that has made him a star among stars—the desire to give all he has to win.

While Collins can be termed great without any one questioning the statement, he also can be termed remarkable by reason of his race against time. The average major leaguer, that is the man looked upon as a regular and not a flash, goes over the hill and vanishes in less than ten years, but here at the start of his nineteenth campaign Collins is holding his own in practically everything that carried him to the top of the heap.

Fans Can't Notice Slipping.

That the peerless White Sox second sacker has slipped a bit is conceded. He may be a fraction slower getting to first and maybe he's not covering the ground as he did of yore but to the average fan these slight changes are not visible. What is visible to the fan is that Collins still ranks with the top notch hitters, leads his league in base burglaries, is one of the best bunters in the game, one of the hardest men to pitch to and probably without a superior in directing defensive play.

Not many Chicago followers of the game know it, but Collins made his big league debut against the Sox in Chicago on Sept. 17, 1906. Just prior to that he had come to Connie Mack with a request that he be given a chance and Connie liked the youngster's actions. At that time the future star was a student at Columbia university where he played baseball and football.

As his big league venture was somewhat of an experiment Collins desired to keep it a secret to the world so when he played his first game he appeared under the name of Sullivan.

Ineligible at College.

Collins' flyer in the big show was discovered so he was ineligible for baseball at Columbia in 1907, but he finished his schooling and reported back to the Athletics where for two seasons he played a utility role, appearing at short, second and third. In 1907 he was in only a few games but in 1908 played two-thirds of the season, during which time two members of the million dollar infield appeared. They were Jack Barry from Holy Cross college and Frank Baker from the Reading, Pa., team. Both have since passed out of the picture, but the fourth member of that inner wall—Stuffy McInnis—is still going.

Collins' real worth didn't become a matter of common knowledge until the world's series of 1910 when his astounding performance helped to whip the Cubs in four games out of five, the lone Cub victory being turned in by "King" Cole, now deceased. That series was the first of six in which Collins has participated.

KILLEFER EYES KID INFIELDERS IN EARLY DRILL

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Avalon, Catalina Island, Cal., Feb. 23.—The business of getting the low down on the kid infielders got under way in the Cubs' camp today for the first time since the training grind started. Manager Killefer turned the aspiring defenders loose on the diamond and Coach Bobby Wallace, who was considerably adept in his day, was assigned the task of polishing off whatever rough work he might detect.

Manager Bill already has a fairly good idea of how his infield problem is going to work out but he has hopes that some gent may come along and surprise him. If the surprise is not forthcoming then it is a fairly safe bet, even at this early date, that Grimes, Grantham, Adams and Friberg will be the occupants of the four infield berths.

Barrett Groomed for Utility.

Bob Barrett, who is said to have improved considerably since last year, is being started at the third sack corner, but as soon as he gets into real fighting trim he'll have to take a fling at second and short. He has a riflelike arm, gets his throws away without any lost motion and at third can field stylishly, so there is a possibility that he might prove good enough to hold down second or short regularly. He is a well built youngster and a hard worker. He socked Texas league pitching for a .308 average last season.

The first Killefer had to do with Gene Turgeon at short was to change his throwing style. The Texas league rookie has been in the habit of making all his throws overhand with a consequent loss of valuable time on fast base running. He was instructed to develop a side arm motion, so that it wouldn't be necessary for him to straighten up every time he had to make a play. His batting style has to be changed, but that will come later.

Tony Snares Devil Fish.

Wallace started this morning to get Grantham's, last year's second sacker, out of the habit of using all the speed possible on every grounder hit to him. During 1923 the lad hurried himself on every play and never took advantage of slow runners. The result was that in his haste he booted many a bounder that would have been an easy out had he taken his time.

Besides the infield practice today's program consisted of two session of "hy-lo" and fly chasing and the usual hike over the mountains. Alexander and Elliott, the leading fat men of the party, have unloaded about ten pounds apiece.

The new clubhouse occupied by the players is built over the water, and during off hours some of the boys throw out hand lines to snare the denizens of the deep. Yesterday Tony Kaufman felt a yank and pulling up found a devil fish occupying his hook. Tony took a good grip on the line and started to run. Trainer Andy Lotshaw finally caught up with him and managed to get the catch into a tub where it remains.

BASEBALL NOTES

MARTY McMANUS, star second sacker of the St. Louis Browns, is still a holdout. He isn't defiant about the contract he asks from the club, but after looking over the papers submitted him by the Browns decided their bid was much too low.

McManus is staying close to his home here and isn't saying much about his holdout rôle. "When the club wants to do business they'll find me ready, but I won't play ball for the terms they offered me in their first contract," is the way Marty puts it.

Matty Fitzpatrick, veteran umpire of Chicago's south side, has signed with President A. R. Tearney to "Call 'em" in the Western league again. It is the sixteenth season as an umpire for Matty. The coast league was dickering for his services but they did not come to Matty's terms.

Bill Guthrie, who umpired in the American league in 1922 and in the Southern association last season still is unsigned. Guthrie obtained his release from President Martin of the Southern association last year. He has three offers from minor leagues, but hasn't made up his mind which one to accept.

TIGERS BALKED IN TRAINING BY COLD AND RAINS

Augusta, Ga., Feb. 23.—Three days of cold, wet weather have greatly hampered the opening practice of the Detroit American league team here. None of the players has been put through enough of a workout to bring out many sore muscles, and the training has been limited to runs around the field and some batting practice. Sam Frew, an outfielder from Washington and Lee university, joined the squad yesterday.

HOSIERS NEAR WRESTLING TITLE

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—By defeating Ohio State at Columbus last night, Coach Jack Reynolds' Indiana university wrestling team, practically clinched the western conference title for 1924. The Crimson grapplers have previously defeated Chicago, Northwestern, Purdue and Michigan Aggies. Michigan alone remains on the schedule to be met here next Saturday night.

Michigan Coach Finds 2 New Hurling Prospects

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 23.—Coach Ray Fisher is becoming more optimistic over his pitching problem on the Michigan baseball team this year. This is because he has found two upper classmen to add to Stryker and Benson as pitching prospects. They are Boyd W. Shoesmith of Guthrie Center, Ia., and Lyle B. Torrey of Dowagiac, Mich., both seniors.

More Teams Sign Up for Industrial Ball League

Jimmy Keown, who is organizing an industrial baseball league among the mercantile companies of Chicago and suburbs, announced the addition of five clubs to the league yesterday. The total entry to date is twenty-one teams. Friday night officials of the clubs entered will meet at the Windsor Clifton hotel at 8 o'clock to elect officers for the season.

ED LEWIS, LIKE GOTCH, TRIED HIS HAND AT BOXING

In one respect Heavyweight Champion Ed "Strangler" Lewis, who will defend his title against Stanislaus Zbyszko, the Polish grappler, in the main event of the wrestling show to be conducted by Ed White and Joe Coffey in Dexter Park pavilion at the stockyards on Tuesday night, resembles the late Frank Gotch, generally considered the greatest wrestler in the history of the catch as catch can style of grappling.

After he had learned a few of the wrestling holds, Lewis, who took up the mat game while a student at the University of Kentucky, tried his hand at boxing. It did not take him long to realize that boxing was not his profession. Not that "Strangler" can't step a bit, but he realized he was not fast enough and did not have the necessary reach to be a top notcher.

Gotch Is Knocked Out.

Frank Gotch tried his hand at the boxing game after he had made quite a reputation as a wrestler. Frank looked good against some setups until he met Frank Slavin, who stopped him inside of three rounds. Gotch immediately discarded the padded mitts and went back to the mat game.

W. J. Munn, one of the greatest forwards in the history of University of Nebraska football, who will appear on Tuesday night's card, also tried to be a fighter. Men interested in the development of heavyweights took hold of the Cornhusker and tried to teach him a few things. Munn had all the natural requirements. He was tall, heavy, and could hit fairly hard. All went well until last fall when Jack Clifford ruined the pugilistic aspirations of the Cornhusker by stopping him in a few rounds in Iowa. Munn will be seen in action in one of the supporting bouts to the Lewis-Zbyszko match.

Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, started out to be a wrestler, but developed into a boxing champion. At that Dempsey knows as much if not more about wrestling than Lewis or Munn does about fighting.

Good Ball Player, Too.

Aside from being a world's champion in wrestling and a fairly good boxer, Lewis was a pretty fair football player when he attended the University of Kentucky. He played in the line and backfield. He was also a little better than the average college baseball player.

When Lewis and Zbyszko take holds at 10 o'clock next Tuesday night it will be their sixth meeting, but the first in Chicago. The champion has been victor over the Pole on three occasions, while Stanley has won two match, meeting Montana Jack McCarmatches. The Pole says he will retire from the game if he loses to Lewis.

In the preliminaries Mike Romano, the Italian, will meet Frank La Mark, the French-Canadian heavyweight, in thy in a one fall match.

HOPPE MAY PLAY 3 CUSHION STARS IN MATCH SERIES

BY JOÉ DAVIS.

The world's record three cushion score of 50 points in twenty-three innings, made at Detroit on Thursday by Bob Cannefax of Detroit against Pierre Maupome of Chicago, is another evidence of the great increase in skill made by the three cushion stars.

Early last year Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia set a world's record of twenty-nine innings playing against Maupome at Mussey's Madison street room, and this stood until Jan. 28, when John Layton reduced the mark to twenty-six innings when playing against Augie Kieckhefer in this city.

Hoppe May Play Caroms.

Cannefax's performance has served to renew interest in the possibility of a match between Willie Hoppe, the balkline king, and one of the leading three cushion stars. Hoppe has yet to meet Edouard Horemans of Belgium for the international balkline title, and has stated he will not play this until April.

When this match is consummated, Hoppe's balkline slate will be clear, and as the proposal to play a three cushion match came from him, it is up to him to satisfy the billiard public by making some definite statement.

Interest in Match.

It is generally agreed that no more attractive match could be arranged. Many of Hoppe's friends believe with a week or two's practice he can defeat any of the angle players, while three cushion fans assert that three or four of the three cushion stars can defeat him.

From a financial viewpoint the match would be a big winner, and Chicago, with its array of three cushion players, is the logical location for such a match. Augie Kieckhefer has time and again expressed a desire to cross cues with the balkline champion.

Miss Katherine Heywood, who will appear at Kieckhefer's room on Wednesday in afternoon and night exhibition matches with Ary Bos of Holland, is the best woman balk line player this country has produced. She is a Philadelphia society girl and appeared here during the war period in matches in aid of the Billiard Ambulance fund.

REID MAKING BID FOR TITLE OF CITY CUEISTS

F. E Reid is racing down the home stretch in the Chicago Billiard league like a throughbred. The young representative of the Kay-Bee-Ess room by winning fourteen of his last sixteen games, has passed a number of the fancied "horses" in the race for the Blake trophy and is now in third place, half a game behind Heine Grauman, who still is in the lead.

The speed of the contestants this year has been remarkable as only five players have failed to average one or better in at least one contest.

MISS MARY C. SMITH.

MISS SMITH entered the bowling game last winter, making her debut as a member of the Oh Henry team in the Chateau Women's Night league. She is now a member of the Republic Rubber team in the Leffingwell Women's Night league.

In the recent seventh annual tournament of the Chicago Woman's Bowling association, Miss Smith shot 210 total in her first game, followed by a 190 game. In the final game, she cut down three difficult spares and finished with 174, thereby winning the individual event with a total of 574 pins.

Seven of the country's leading amateur billiardists will compete in the national three cushion championship amateur tourney to be conducted by the Chicago A. A. in the Cherry Circle rooms, starting on March 5. Play on each day will start at 1 o'clock, with other games at 4 p. m. and 8 p. m.

According to present plans each game will call for a block of 50 points and each player must meet every other contestant in the tourney.

Robert M. Lord of the Illinois A. C., who won the title last year in the tournament held in Brooklyn, will be on hand to defend his honors, while the Hamilton club will be represented by F. L. Fleming, who lives in Champaign, Ill. E. J. Wainwright will represent the Pittsburgh A. C. of the Smoky City, and L. M. Vogler will be the lone contestant from Indianapolis.

The Chicago A. A. will send three experts into the tourney, C. E. Patterson, A. J. Harris, and Adolph O. Spielman.

Eastern Dog Derby Won by Earl Bridges in 18:44:15

Quebec, Feb. 23.—Earl Bridges, driving the Ontario Paper entry, won the eastern international dog derby today, covering the distance of 120 miles in 18:44:15. Henry Skeene, driving the Brown corporation entry, was second, and the Chateau Robervalt team third.

I. A. C. HOLDS ALL BUT THREE A. A. U. SWIMMING TITLES

When the National A. A. U. indoor senior swimming championships are held in Chicago on April 1, 2, 3 and 4 under the auspices of the I. A. C., it will be necessary for only three champions to come to Chicago, as all the other titles are held by members of the tri-color club swimming and water polo teams.

Leo Fracer of the Ambassador Swimming club of Los Angeles is the national champion in low springboard diving, while another coast performer, A. C. White of Leland Stanford university, holds the title in fancy diving. Last year's plunge for distance was won by Edward R. Morine of the University of Pennsylvania.

All other titles were won by I. A. C. swimmers. Johnny Weismuller, the greatest paddler of all time, won the national titles in the 50, 100, 220 and 500 yard free style swims. In addition he won the 150 yard back stroke and pentathion. Robert Skelton of the tri-color club annexed the honors in the 220 yard breast stroke, while the I. A. C. won the 400 yard relay and water polo championships.

According to Charles A. Dean, chairman of the I. A. C. athletic committee, every effort will be made to bring Fracer, White, and Morine to this year's championships. If Dean is successful in this attempt the meet should result in the greatest gathering of star natators ever held in Chicago, if not in the country.

Entry blanks have been mailed to all swimming associations and individuals of prominence in the country.

APPLEBY BEATS COLLINS TO WIN 18.2 CUE CROWN

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 23.—Edgar T. Appleby of New York regained the national amateur billiard championship tonight by defeating Percy N. Collins of Chicago, the titleholder, in the final game of the class A 18.2 balk line billiard championship tournament. Appleby first held the title in 1922.

The final game ended with a score of 300 to 114, in which Appleby set a record for the tournament with an average of 21 6-14 and high runs of 125, 67, and 46. Collins' high runs were 39, 37, and 11, with an average of 8 10-13.

Appleby went through the tournament, which was in progress here throughout the week, with a clean record, winning five games. John A. Clinton Jr., Pittsburgh, was second with four victories and one defeat. Collins finished third, winning three games and losing two.

Stuyvesant Prep Sprinter Again Equals Dash Mark

New York, Feb. 23.—Francis Hussey, Stuyvesant High school sprinting marvel, again equaled the indoor scholastic 100 yard dash record at the Cornell university games today, covering the distance in 10 1-5 seconds.

RULES ALONE WON'T WIN.

CONVENTIONS and rules make up a very poor game. There are so many possible combinations in auction that it is impossible to have enough conventions or rules to fit all of them; and besides the difference in the manners and ability of the opponents must be considered.

In the deal which follows, the game was three table duplicate and the scores at the respective tables were ten, eleven, and twelve tricks. The correct play is shown:

West secured a small slam.

At one table the declarer led the ace of clubs after winning the first trick in diamonds, and lost finally one heart, one spade, and one club. At the second table the queen of clubs was led from dummy, but the declarer subsequently finessed the heart suit and secured only eleven tricks.

One player knew that the correct way to play the heart suit if possible was to force a lead of that suit from the north hand. He therefore led all his trumps and after the ninth trick could easily mark north for the king and one spade and the king and one heart, and had no difficulty in securing the coveted small slam.

North could and should have saved the slam by keeping a card of exit. In other words, he should have kept a small spade instead of the queen and played his king of spades at trick ten. This would have enabled south to get in with the jack of spades and north would have made it with his king of hearts.

U. C. ELEVEN TO DRILL IN APRIL

Spring football practice at the University of Chicago will start the first week in April, it was announced by Athletic Director A. Alonzo Stagg at a dinner Wednesday night, attended by fifty-five grid candidates at the Midway. The drill will continue until the middle of May. Coach Stagg urged all candidates, particularly freshmen, to turn out. The coach stressed the stiffness of next season's schedule, pointing to the two "practice" tilts against Brown and Missouri as indications of the vigorous opposition to be met all autumn.

SOCCER LEAGUE OPENS SPRING SCHEDULE TODAY

Despite the existing frigidity the major soccer league will open its "spring" schedule today. The Bricklayers, whose match in the national cup series against the Detroit Celtics at Detroit was again postponed, will meet the Olympias at 35th street and Wentworth avenue.

It will be the first game the Brickies have had in three weeks and the first the Olympia team has played since fall. John Croll, former trainer of the Parkhead club of Glasgow, is now in charge of the Bricklayers.

Pullman Meets Swedes.

Another major league game is between the Pullman and Swedish American teams at 103d street and Corliss avenue. The car builders, who had little success in the fall season, have added several new players to their string.

The Thistles and Sparta Union teams will meet at Kostner avenue and 27th street in a game for the benefit of Frank Kulik of the Spartans, who incurred a broken leg last fall. Kulik was rated as one of the best center forwards in the Chicago district. Joe MacKay, a former Scottish junior international player, and F. Wallace, a Toledo star, will appear in the Scots' lineup.

The Schedule.

The Chicago and District league will play six games for the benefit of the U. S. F. A. Olympic fund today. Following is the schedule:

MAJOR LEAGUE.

Bricklayers and Olympias, at 35th-st. and Wentworth-av.; Pullman and Swedish-Americans, at 103d-st. and Corliss-av.; Thistles and Sparta-Union, at 27th-st. and Kostner-av. [benefit game].

DISTRICT LEAGUE.

Ulster United at Harvey; British Legion and Y. M. H. A., at 35th and Rockwell-sts.; Indiana Harbor at Gary; Chicago F. C. and Jugo-Slavia, at 79th-st. and Drexel-av.; Ravenswood and McKinley Park, at Winnemac-av. and Robey-st.; North Shores and Western Electric, at Foster field, Evanston.

Raymond Oeschler, business manager of the Victoria Soccer Football club, a German-American organization, announces it has secured a lease on the Riverview Park field, through William Schmidt, owner of the park, who is a soccer fan. The club will share the field with the Swedish-American Athletic association. The ground, which will be put in shape as soon as the weather will permit, has a seating capacity of 3,000 and will give the local soccer teams a fine field for intercity and big cup matches. Mr. Oeschler can be reached care of Wollenberger & Co., 105 South La Salle street.

1500 Horses for Hawthorne; St. James Preakness Favorite

BY FRENCH LANE.

Among the early improvement plans of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association at Hawthorne is one that might be taken as an indication of the desire of thoroughbred horse owners about the country to again race in Chicago.

It has to do with the stable facilities, and if the building program as first outlined is carried out there will be room for 1,500 horses at the Cicero course when the curtain goes up on the early summer meeting in June.

Track Superintendent Keegan reported to the new Hawthorne owners last week that there is room for 660 horses at Hawthorne as the plant now stands. There are additional stables in the vicinity of the track for probably 200 more, but when these figures were submitted to Racing Judge Joseph Murphy, who heads the new turf organization here, instructions came back to make room for at least 1,500 horses within the track inclosure. Indications point to at least that number of applications for stable room, he said.

Few of the metropolitan tracks attract more than 1,500 horses at any one meeting.

St. James in Preakness.

The Philadelphia sportsman, George D. Widener, has announced that he will point his great colt St. James, winner of the last Futurity, for the $50,000 Preakness in Maryland instead of for the Kentucky Derby.

But this does not mean that St. James will not be a Derby contender for any kind of a showing in the Preakness will make him a certain Derby starter, which race probably will be run a week after the Preakness is decided.

St. James should find the Preakness much easier to capture than the Derby, for it is likely that two of his most serious Derby rivals will not start in the Preakness.

Sarazen Not Eligible.

The undefeated Sarazen, a gelding, is not eligible and it is doubtful if the Kentucky owned Wise Counsellor, whose training quarters are at Churchill Downs, will be shipped east for the Preakness.

This should make St. James an early Preakness favorite but he will hardly have things his own way. The Rancocas owned Mad Play, brother of Man 'O War, is going to be dangerous both in the Preakness and Kentucky Derby, and the great 3 year olds from the stables of Harry Payne Whitney, August Belmont, and Mrs. Payne Whitney will be pointed both for the Preakness and Derby and they can never be counted out of a rich stake until the race is run.

Steve After Golden Spurs.

The battle for Tia Juana's golden spurs, which go to the jockey with the best record at the close of the winter season at the Lower California course, has developed one of the most spirited riding contests ever taking place at one of America's winter tracks.

Pete Walls got away to an early lead which threatened to make a runaway race of it; then along came the sensational Steve O'Donunell, who has pulled up on even terms with Walls and who now threatens to win off by himself if he keeps up his present pace.

Barnes, Wood, and Mein are other riders still in the running and the championship may not be decided until the final week of the meeting, although O'Donnell is the favorite, because of the weight advantage he carries with his apprentice allowance.

143-1 SHOT WINS

TIAJUANA, Mexico, Feb. 23.—Seth's Memory, a 3 year old, paid $289.40 on a $2 mutuel ticket as the winner of the sixth race here today. There were ten horses in the race, a five and one-half furlong claiming affair.

KIDS TO PERFORM IN C. A. A. TANK NEXT WEDNESDAY

Junior night in the Chicago A. A. pool will be celebrated on Wednesday night when the youngsters will perform in the presence of proud mothers and fathers. Swimming Instructor Harry Hazelhurst has arranged an interesting program, which will include races, plunging, diving, and relay racing aside from numerous novelty events. The program will open at 8:15 o'clock.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 23.—Nominations for the Kentucky Derby, the most famous western racing classic, close at midnight tonight.

Other sterling performers said to have been entered in the Derby are Dracadale, Mad Play, Bean Butler, Tester, Hourmore, Purchaser, Sheridan, Finn Lag, Honor, and St. James.

By outclassing Hyde Park High school tracksters in the final events of a series of three all-Cook county prep meets at University of Chicago yesterday, Oak Park copped the city and suburban championship with a total of 94 11-12 points. Hyde Park, after leading in the previous two meets of the series, ranked second in the senior class with 89 7-12 tallies.

The title of the junior division went to Lane, which accumulated a total of 36 points through the series, Lake View and Senn taking second and third with 32½ and 30 points, respectively.

Jim Royer Stars.

Throughout yesterday's events it was obviously a battle between Hyde Park and the victorious villagers. The turn of the meet which upset the dope and gave victory to Oak Park was the defeat of Otis Sexton, south side colored flash, by Coffin, who dashed the 50 in :05 4-5.

The star of yesterday's events and of the meet was Jim Royer, Oak Park hurdler, who yesterday captured firsts in both the low and high sticks, and who totaled 23 points to win the individual scoring championship and the cup which went with it. Royer also won two medals for totaling the most points through the three meets in the low and high hurdles.

Williams Gets Medal.

Dick Williams, Hyde Park miler, took first in his event on all three occasions, winning a medal for his prowess. Krogh, also of Hyde Park, who won the 880 in the two previous meets, fell on the last turn in yesterday's run and was beaten out of the championship by Sharabel, Hyde Park, with 11 points.

Friberg of Lane was high point man of the junior division, the 14 year old lad totaling 16 tallies in the shot put and high jump.

GLUTTONS FOR SPEED IN PREP MEET

JIM ROYER (Oak Park).

Royer, Oak Park hurdler, was a big factor in his team's victory over Hyde Park in University of Chicago's interscholastic track and field series, the final events of which were held yesterday. Royer totaled 23 points to win individual scoring honors for the three meets, and yesterday paced the high hurdles in :07, leaping the low sticks in :06 2-5.

OTIS SEXTON (Hyde Park).

Hyde Park's dusky speed merchant, although defeated in the fifty yard dash yesterday, took the individual point scoring championship in the Cook county prep indoor track and field series by virtue of wins in the two previous meets. He tied for first in yesterday's 220 yard race.

Woods and Waters by BOB. BECKER

THAT TEN POUND PLUS BASS.

LAKE ISTOKPOGA, Sebring, Fla.—The red gods smiled on us the other day when we were hankerin' for a sight of and a scrap with a real large mouth bass in this lake. After the smoke of battle cleared away under the warm February sun we found ourselves gazin' at a whopping nice bass measuring slightly more than 26 inches in length and eighteen inches "in circumference." He had put up a good scrap and given us a good scare, but all his fighting tactics had been futile beneath the moss draped cypress trees, as our tackle stood the test.

Lake Istokpoga, with its amber colored water, is nothing less than the proverbial happy hunting grounds for the dyed in the wool bass fisherman. Surrounded by moss covered cypress trees, with logs, stumps, and big trees offering dandy hangouts for the big fellows, this body of water looks like a million dollars to any angler who likes to match his skill against the heavyweight champions in bassland. And they are heavyweights here. Nature has provided plenty of feed for the bass in this lake, which, unaware of the existence of cold winds and freezing weather are active the year 'round. Hence the big fellows grow fast and extremely large.

We had conquered a seven and a half pounder and lost a couple of bigger ones when the twenty-six incher began his joust with us.

Bill, as smart a student of fish and fishing as we have ever met, was sculling the boat for us when we entered the finest looking bit of bass water you can imagine. Along the shore was a dense fringe of water hyacinths. Here and there stood a somber gray cypress tree or old stumps, around which the big fellows like to linger. On a previous trip over this stretch of casting ground we had hooked two large bass (Bill said they would go better than nine pounds each).

Standing in the bow of the boat, placing every shot as carefully as possible into the hyacinths and around the stumps and trees, watching the lure for a sign of a rise, but on coming to the end of the hyacinth beds we were somewhat disappointed. Bill said: "Now let's work those old cypress trees out there. I have taken some good fish from them." These trees, surrounded by "knees," those curious pointed, stumplike growths which Bill calls the lungs of the cypress, stood a short distance out from the hyacinth beds.

Passing an old cypress with six or seven "knees," we half heartedly and carelessly made a short cast in toward it. Wow! The bottom of the lake seemed to rise up as a big fish whammed that lure. Instinctly we set the hook with a powerful swipe and then tried to steer the fish toward a little piece of open water to the right of the big tree.

Already Bill had started the boat for this arena as he said: "It's a big fish. When he wants line give it to him, or something will bust. I'm watching the trees and the pads on the right. Try to keep him out of both if you can. Straight toward this vegetation he went with a powerful surge that carried out the line. We gave him the butt of the bamboo, making him fight for every foot of his rush, and finally stopped him. Just as we felt like patting ourselves on the back Mr. Bass appeared on the surface, opened that big mouth of his, and started the water to flying as he shook his head to get rid of the hook.

That unsuccessful stunt over, the scrapper started for the cypress tree, but by hanging on for dear life we kept him away from that spot, although he fought until he was but four feet from it before we turned him. Quick as a flash the wary old cuss turned again and came straight for the boat. "He's goin' under. Watch out now," cautioned Bill. Straight under the boat the fish went, sure enough, while we tried to take in some line and get set for another attack. About twelve feet from the boat the big fellow jumped again. O what a picture! But this time we fooled him by giving the line a sharp tug which upset Mr. Bass as he tried to stand on his tail. From then on the fish was content to steam around the boat with his circles gradually getting smaller and smaller as we worked him in, although a couple of times he came to the top to thrash around in efforts to dislodge that hook. Finally Bill said "All right; I can handle him now if you want to bring him up to the boat." So we eased the big fellow alongside to let Bill reach down and grab our prize and lift him in.

The first thing Bill did was to haul out his two foot rule to measure the big bass, and when he announced a trifle more than 26 inches we felt like giving three cheers. After looking at northern bass during past seasons of fishing one of these good sized black fellows down here certainly does look like a whale. "Do you remember what I said about it being possible to drop a couple of dry cell batteries into the mouth of one of these big fellows?" remarked Bill. "Well, just take a look at this." And he opened up the mouth of this fish. It looked like the muzzle of a six inch gun.

PURDUE DOWNS PURPLE IN DUAL GYMNASTIC MEET

Purdue gymnasts opened the Northwestern season by trimming the Purple athletes, 545½ to 511, yesterday afternoon at Patten gym. Koster of the Boilermakers and Capt. PURDUE TAKES CLOSE MAT MEET FROM PURPLE

When Lowry of Northwestern and Hawkins of Purdue, heavyweights, took holds in the final bout of the wrestling card at Patten gym yesterday afternoon, the count was tied at nine all, each team having won a fall and two decisions.

Eight minutes and three seconds later the Purple Irishman felt his shoulders pinned to the mat, giving the Boilermakers a 14 to 9 victory. A bone crushiling body scissors and a half Nelson gave the Purdue man the victory.

Larry Horton, Purple 175 pounder, put his team back in the running in the sixth bout by turning the tables on Dave Rasmussen, Boilermaker, who led up to the time of his defeat. He got a bar and crotch hold forty seconds before the end and sprawled the hefty Hoosier. Summaries:

HOOK-UP HOKUM LEADING SOURCE OF INTERFERENCE

Why It Should Prevail Is a Radio Mystery.

BY STEPHEN GILCHRIST.
[Radio Editor.]

Rummaging among permanently and temporarily discarded apparatus, I came across something that took the joy out of radio for one evening.

It was an old wooden variometer, something that hardly would be expected to upset a hard-boiled radio disposition. Yet it did, and the reasons were simple and worth recording.

First, it was a mighty good variometer—before iniquity embraced it—built for the honest service that it rendered: one of the kind that when a station familiar to you was exciting the diaphram of your head phones you knew what the dial indicated without looking to see. The windings, sans dope and sans all the other evils of haste, were ideal, with close coupling and true, free movement. There were good contacts and the wood was well seasoned and intelligently treated.

Brought to Lowly Estate.

This variometer did its bit first in one circuit and then another. Time and again it had been laid away for some "better" instrument of its breed, only to be resurrected to do what the newcomer failed to accomplish.

Came one of those split-thing transmitters hurtling into my consciousness in the guise of a "humdinger of a receiver." It had to be tried, of course, and the old wooden variometer was selected as the goat. That was a woeful decision. This variometer had been made to work as its forbears had labored, stator to rotor, or rotor to stator, and had its own individual preferences as to which order the battery current observed in going through its windings when it was Pooh-bah of the plate highway, and as to which way the high frequency currents were headed when it was regulating the appetite of the grid. Indeed, it was a stickler for form.

Good Variometer Lost.

The rotor was snipped at the spine, and the stator was amputated at the rotor, that this one-tube world-beater might have being. When the singing hawks and the warbling vultures within had revealed themselves—thank Providence, I am no longer in the same neighborhood—a little analysis showed it to be a tickler feed-back without a conscience, one which, with a little patience and a key, might be made into a two-mile squawker of might and endurance.

But the variometer's dignity refused to heal, and its disjointed windings declining to be annealed in anything like efficient form, rebuke me every time I run across it and lead me once more along that path of inquisitive shame that finally ended in reform.

BEWARE THE HOKUM

When you decide to hook up one of these world beaters with the plate circuit in bare wire conspiracy with the antenna binding post, do it behind the screen of a shielded and grounded loop aerial within the secret chambers of a grounded copper vault and spare yourself future pangs of conscience.

Beware the hook-up hokum. To be sure, this is the hook-up era; but why tangle yourself in a maze of wired piffle and paneled bunk when what you are aiming at is a receiver at such a price that will do such a thing? Building a bunk circuit isn't experimentation, or even fun. It's self-deception. There are a few basic circuit possibilities, with a lot of very good variations and a lot more that Barnum, had he been of the radio age, would have classed immediately as "too raw to survive a single whirl around the circuit." Yet a lot of punk material has been foisted because of such.

If you must fall for something that would give a radio experimenter a heartache to look upon, get four binding posts, a crystal, wire, phones, and a cardboard tube. You can wind and hook up to your heart's content and hear over it—but you won't have a radio, although you'll have the heartache, and your neighbors won't, which is better.

INTERFERENCE IS DOOMED

Radio is the property, the pastime, the medium of education and information of all the people, and to that end all the people must be served.

The hokum will be weeded out of radio as a medium of conflict with the interests of the people, but it would be altogether too bad if in fair play America it had to be legislated out by putting legal ban upon interferences that every circuit builder can have a part in eliminating.

TOWN TO FORM CLUB TO FIGHT INTERFERENCE

Laporte, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Interference has grown to such proportions in Laporte and vicinity that owners of radio receivers are taking steps to organize in order to combat untoward conditions.

Steps will be taken tomorrow to form a club, the primary purpose of which will be study of interference causes and the means for eliminating them.

When this has been accomplished it is the aim of those behind the scheme to provide for various educational features by which owners of receivers may be benefitted.

Invitations have been extended to all owners of receiving or transmitting sets in Laporte and vicinity and to radio dealers to attend the meeting, which will be held at the Y. M. C. A.

VOICE CARRIES TO FRANCE ON LOW WAVE TEST

Hastings, Neb., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The practicability of transmission to Europe of radio programs on short waves and light power was demonstrated when a concert broadcast on 115 meters by 9XW (the experimental call of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company station, KFKX, here) was heard by Leon De Loy, France's crack amateur. De Loy communicated at once with 9XW through F. H. Schnell, Hartford, Conn., traffic manager of the American Radio Relay league.

III., THREE ELEMENT AUDION (OR VACUUM) TUBE.

De Forrest was first to sense the great possibilities of the vacuum tube in advancement of wireless science. By insertion of a third element—the grid—in the two element tube of early experimentation, he opened the way for the tremendous popularity of radio.

The three element tube consists of cathode (filament), grid, and anode (plate). When the filament is lighted by means of the A battery a flow of electrons is induced, these, being negative, taking their course to the positive plate, while the B battery current, under the electrical law of likes repelling and unlikes attracting, passes from anode to cathode, and thus on through the circuit to the negative side of the B battery.

Interposed between cathode and anode, the grid acts as a regulator of the electronic flow. When the grid is positive in respect to the cathode, the flow of electrons is accelerated; when negative the flow is impeded.

Echoes of the Head Phones

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

This last week will be remembered because of its generally meritorious programs, punctuated by several events of considerable importance—the address by Anton Lang at Chicago, the Symphony orchestra concert at St. Louis, and the Friday evening's Rotary club address by President Coolidge at the White House.

To have heard any one of these would be sufficient, one would think, to justify the ways of the radio fan.

Every Sunday evening I find myself wishing I had a dual receiving set and a dual receiving mind so that I could tune in KYW for the Chicago Sunday Evening club and WJAZ for their special Sunday evening recitals at the same time. Usually choose the Sunday Evening club, for to me it is always one of the really worth while events. Similarly, the speeches from the Chicago Association of Commerce luncheon on Wednesday afternoons from WMAQ. Both are inspirational; both touch upon the larger aspect of life's affairs.

Late Sunday night after WBAP at Fort Worth signed off, I was roaming aimlessly and about to cross track 536 when KYW's Midnight express thundered by, giving me a terrible wollop in the ears. Why can't they whistle or say look out or something first.

Here's curtailed log or travalogue for last silent night in Chicago:

Zion City at 8:20, fifteen minutes listening to the mellow, organ-toned voice of Mrs. John Thomas. Then to Elgin. The Fox river valley flooded with jazz, so went to Troy, N. Y. The De Molays were in charge, and not being able to give the password, dialed to WOS, Jefferson City, Mo., in time to hear an orchestra selection, full of color and beauty. Then WOC, Davenport, where a saxophone sextet from Muscatine, Ia. ("the pearl button center of the world") was stepping it up in lively fashion. Then to WOO, Philadelphia, for a number on their grand organ—I love that organ, having heard Saint-Saëns play on it at the St. Louis exposition. Going to St. Louis at 9:20 for old time's sake, heard a beautiful orchestral number.

Again Troy, at 9:25, arriving just in time to meet the last Boy Scout relay runner with a message from Mayor Hackett of Albany, the message stating that "Albany is 300 years old——" The seven Boy Scouts relayers made the eight miles in fifty-five minutes. Over to WBAP in time to hear a cow bell signing off until 11 o'clock, when they had a special program for Chicago. Back to Troy to hear their Indian program—Indians out our way accompany their songs with tom toms instead of pianos. Found WSB and WDAF both giving old time programs—great minds insist on running in the same channel!

Finding nothing of special interest at WOAW, Omaha, made a return call on Davenport, where I received the real thrill of the evening—"By the Waters of the Minnetonka," sung by the Girls' Glee club of Rock Island.

Disgusted with the howls, whistles, and code—one of the whistles being a persistent devil on about 418 meters—I went to lunch. Picking up the receivers a few minutes before 1 a. m., found everything as quiet as the stillness of night could be. Turned on more power for the west coast. "Good night, every one; KFI, Los Angeles"—then those chimes!

Sending a card to Morgan L. Eastman for his illuminating talk on "A Few Little Things in Music," and subsequent concert by the Edison Symphony orchestra.

Thanks to WDAP, Chicago, for their rebroadcast of President Coolidge's radio address, even though I only caught a word here and there. Never heard so many howls and whistles. Unfortunately, I used a small experimental set at the office. But that's all right; will read the address in the morning paper.

PALMER PARK TO HOUSE CRYSTAL SET DISPLAYS

Owners of home-made crystal sets resident of Roseland, Pullman, West Pullman, Burnside, Gano, Morgan Park and Beverly Hills, a community of 100,000 persons, will display their handiwork in competition for modest prizes at a radio show to be conducted by the South Park commissioners in the park hall at Palmer park, March 17, 18, 19 and 20.

Other shows are expected to follow later, these to embrace the more pretentious tube receivers.

A. R. Lyden, director of Palmer park, reports that the communities interested boast some very fine radios, with crystal sets that are well worth going a long ways to look upon. Prizes for the crystal set show are to be awarded for greatest distance reception, most original hookup, best construction, most elaborate set, simplest set, youngest constructor, oldest constructor and other classifications.

Reflex, Super-Heterodyne Electric Club Subjects

Discussion of reflex and super-heterodyne circuits will be the outstanding features of the meeting of the radio section of the Electric club Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock in the clubrooms at the Morrison hotel. W. H. Farr of the Electrical Research laboratories will talk on reflex circuits, while super-heterodyne circuits will be discussed by H. J. Marks. John Miller will conduct the question and answer department.

BRITISH HEAR FIRST CONCERT FROM AMERICA

KDKA Rebroadcast by London Station.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Transmission of American concerts as part of the regular program for British radio fans was carried out successfully this evening.

A concert from station KDKA, Pittsburgh, was picked up by Bigginhill, Surrey, and transmitted to London by telephone and then retransmitted over the British isles by 2LO.

Shortly after 11 o'clock a voice was heard announcing the program, which included the "Westinghouse band." The singing and playing of "God Save the King" and "The Marseillaise," then followed, but this was faint, owing to bad atmospheric conditions. The concert lasted forty minutes.

British broadcasters announce they intend to carry on experiments and hope they will be able to transmit American concerts nightly.

"ATTIC BUILDERS" BECOMING LARGE FACTOR IN RADIO

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—One phase of radio as to which there has been much speculation is what proportion of the more than 2,000,000 radio sets in use in the United States today are home made, and what proportion are factory made.

There are, throughout the country, several thousand so-called radio engineers who have actually wished on themselves the job of making sets for their friends.

Radio is the most democratic thing in American life today. Thousands have learned by experience that with the diagrams and practical suggestions provided by reliable manufacturers they can make their own sets, get good results, and have a lot of fun besides.

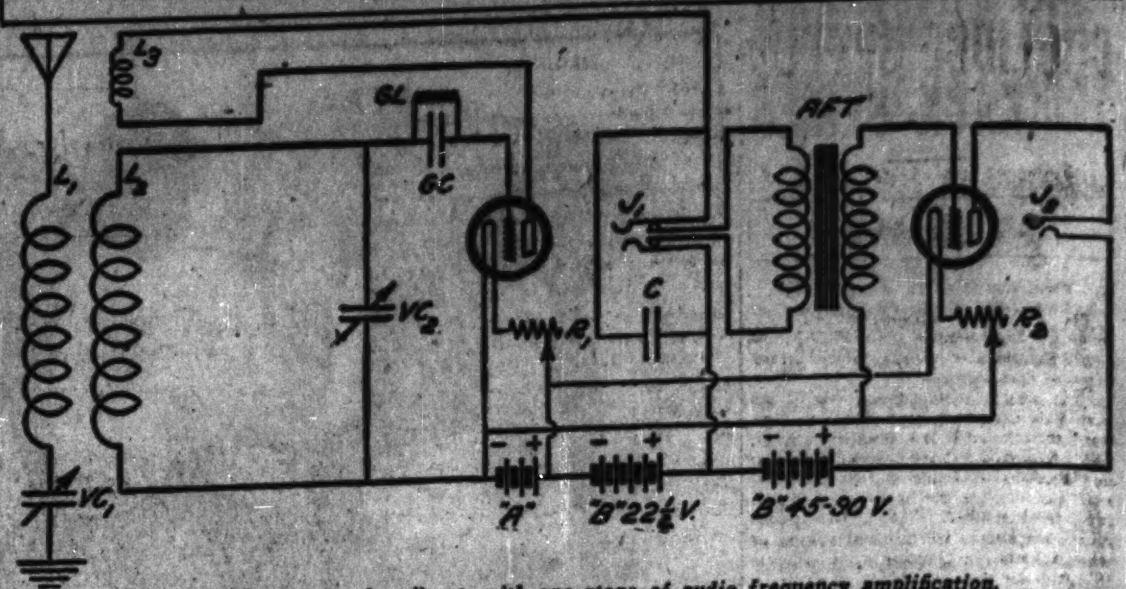
Office Girl Sings at Show; Wins Studio Job

Miss Caroline Ross, office girl for the Davis Dry Goods company, had felt ever since she first heard over the radio that she possessed a voice that would do well over the microphone but never knew exactly how to go about gtting a trial.

The radio carnival which closed at the store yesterday offered her the chance she had longed for, and she asked early in the week for opportunity to sing at one of the concerts given at the show. This was granted and Miss Ross scored to a degree that resulted in acceptance of a place on the studio staff of KYW.

The carnival was declared by the store management to be the most successful of its kind ever conducted in Chicago.

"OLD FAITHFUL" STILL IN GAME



Three circuit honeycomb coil set, with one stage of audio frequency amplification.

L1 is a coil of 35 turns; L2, 50 turns; L3 (tickler), 75 turns. VC1, variable condenser of .001 microfarads capacity; VC2, variable condenser, .0005 mfd. GL, grid leak, preferably variable, of good quality. GC, .00025 mfd. fixed condenser, although under some conditions .0005 gives better results. C, .001 by-pass condenser across the phones, when the audio stage is cut out and across the primary of the transformer when it is in circuit. J1 is a two circuit jack, while J2 is a single circuit, or phone, jack. AFT is a good quality audio frequency transformer. Ratios not higher than 7 to 1 and as low as 3½ to 1 give fine results in this circuit. R1 and R2 are rheostats, resistances of which depends upon type of tube.

HONEYCOMB SET STILL POPULAR IN MANY QUARTERS

The old honeycomb coil set hasn't been run into the discard by the newcomers, nor is it likely to be for some time to come. While it is a trifle harder to handle at first, once it has been mastered it can be relied upon day in and day out to do the same things under the same circumstances.

Construction should not be undertaken with the idea of slapping it together just to see how it will work. It has stood the test of years, but its efficiency depends upon the quality of material employed, especially the coils, coil mounting, and grid leak and condensers. Cheap condensers mean hampering the set at the fountain head, while a poor coil mounting means losses that high class instruments everywhere else cannot overcome.

In wiring this set, or any other, for that matter, it should always be remembered that a couple of hours spent in placing instruments so that leads will be short, and, at the same time, crowding will not mar it, will be repaid in results.

Tuning of the honeycomb set may be made into an exact art. Best results are obtained by never allowing the tickler coil to be less than one inch away from the primary at the widest point, and to keep the secondary coil at as loose coupling as possible. It will be found after practice that the most fruitful method is to loosen the secondary and tickler coupling after a station is brought in to full volume and then retune. Thus much interference that otherwise might mar a good program is eliminated. The looser the coupling the better the results.

After practice, the builder of a honeycomb set will find that wide coupling often will mean that one station may be tuned out and another in with slight movements of the secondary alone. It is best to set the .001 condenser in the ground lead with plates a little more than half enmeshed, and to make final adjustment of this the last in tuning.

When the set is finished and going, don't think the job is over. A radio never does its best until an operator really understands its peculiarities. It takes from two to four weeks' practice to tune half properly.

Never bring your tickler too close to the primary. You may get more noise that way, but not decent tone. Moreover, if you get your tube oscillating very strongly (apparent in mushy signals) you are in fair way to re-radiate to mild degree, but enough possibly to cause annoyance to a near neighbor

U. S. RADIO BILL $350,000,000 IN 1924, BABSON ESTIMATES

"The American people will spend approximately $350,000,000 for radio equipment during the present year," says a survey of the industry issued by Roger W. Babson, economist and business authority. "The radio industry is new, but it has grown so rapidly in the last two years that it compares very favorably with many of the important long established industries.

"A conservative estimate of the business in vacuum tubes alone is about $50,000,000. At least five times as much, or $250,000,000, will be spent for radio sets and parts. Sales of batteries, both dry cell and storage batteries, will very likely amount to over $45,000,000. Miscellaneous equipment, such as battery chargers, loud speakers, and specialties, may easily account for $50,000,000 more."

PASTOR CHARGES LOUD SPEAKER IS A NUISANCE

Is a radio with a loud speaker a nuisance?

This is the question which Dr. H. N. Bundesen, health commissioner, has been called upon to settle as the result of a complaint, believed to be the first in Chicago against radio, by the Rev. T. Y. Williams, 4301 Ellis avenue, pastor of South Congregational church, Drexel boulevard and 40th street.

The Rev. Mr. Williams complained to the health commissioner that he and his family were kept awake nights by a radio loud speaker in the home of a neighbor.

WAAF Broadcasting Talks by Farm Equipment Men

A series of radio talks by leading farm equipment manufacturers has been scheduled by WAAF, the Drovers' Journal station, the first having been given Friday evening. TELLS WHY WJAZ FAILED TO SEND COOLIDGE SPEECH

Listeners-In Told of A. T. & T. Co. Stand.

The following announcement was made Friday evening from WJAZ, the Zenith-Edgewater Beach hotel broadcasting station:

"In January the Chicago daily papers announced that the Zenith-Edgewater Beach hotel broadcasting station had been selected by the Rotary club as the official Chicago station to broadcast the President's speech on Washington's birthday. We have had so many telephone calls tonight asking us why we were not going to broadcast this address that we think an explanation is due to our listening audience.

"In January the Rotary club of Chicago completed arrangements to have President Coolidge on Washington's birthday broadcast a nonpolitical message over the radio stations.

Broadcasters Lined Up.

"On January 26 we received a letter from George L. Treadwell, secretary of the Rotary club, advising us we had been selected as the official Chicago station and asking our coöperation. Eighteen of the powerful stations well scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific were selected as official stations to broadcast the President's message so that the public throughout this great United States might all have an opportunity equal with the east to hear our President actually talking.

"Had the proposed plan of the Rotary club been executed everyone, even down to the little crystal set, in Cincinnati, Seattle, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Schenectady, San Antonio, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Memphis, Omaha, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Fort Worth, Portland, Louisville, St. Louis and Chicago, would have been able to hear our President clearly.

Three Stations Broadcast.

"That the western public had been denied the privilege is not due to any lack of effort on the part of the Rotary club. They did everything humanly possible. The American Telephone and Telegraph company, it is true, contributed the use of their three eastern broadcasting stations located in New York, Providence and Washington. This, however, did not help the westerners.

"The Rotary club said they met with extreme indifference on the part of the American Telephone and Telegraph company when it came to serving western stations with telephone wires with which to connect eastern stations with some of the western stations so that the President's message could be broadcast from the western stations as well as the eastern stations.

Ask $2,500 for Wire.

"This great public service corporation told the Rotary club representatives that the American Telephone and Telegraph company wanted $2,500 for telephone wires to connect just one Chicago station with the east. Yet the regular long distance charges for the use of ordinary calls from Chicago to Washington is only $4.80 for the first three minutes and $1.60 for each additional minute.

"The original plan was for the President to talk ten minutes. At regular rates the cost of these wires would therefore be $14.80. Because of the necessity of having well balanced wires and other possible special care one Chicago station offered the American Telephone and Telegraph company $1,000 for this service from Washington. Service even at that figure was refused to the Chicago station.

"Station WLAG, Minneapolis, was first refused long distance service wires on the grounds that because of the heavy storms the telephone company could not spare wires. Later, however, Mr. Harkness, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, advised the Minneapolis station that the expense of wires to Minneapolis would be between $1,500 and $2,000. Just why the difference in price between Chicago and Washington and Minneapolis, which was farther than Chicago and Washington, we do not know. WLAG felt they could not afford to pay this huge figure.

Defends Rotary Club.

"Our own personal opinion, for which we probably will be made to pay for having expressed, is that this great public service corporation should have contributed its wire service to every broadcasting station in the United States desiring to broadcast the President's address. We want you to know that the Rotary club did everything in its power to give service to the westerner.

GIVES A. T. & T. SIDE

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—William E. Harkness, in charge of the radio division of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, declared today that the price quoted to Chicago for broadcasting President Coolidge's speech was fixed on a cost and not a profit basis.

Mr. Harkness asserted that the American Telephone and Telegraph company's broadcasting station, WEAF, in New York, was asked by the Rotary Club of Chicago to name its price for arranging for Chicago to broadcast the Coolidge talk.

Mr. Harkness explained that the "long lines," by which the layman understand land wires, were never laid out with a view to broadcasting, but for telephone service.

"We have to disrupt all our normal conditions and set up an entirely new service to broadcast," said Mr. Harkness. "That can be done only when the normal service of the company is interrupted. We have to take certain circuits and disrupt them and set new circuits.

"There's where we figure cost. The figure quoted to Chicago might have been more or less, depending on the conditions of installation and the length of the broadcasting service. But at present we are not quoting profit making rates. Our work to date is only in the experimental stage. We are endeavoring to find out what kind of service we can give and at what price; also what the radio public wants and what it should pay for the service."

How Power Companies May End Hum That Throttles a Town's Radio Receivers

From Paducah, Ky., and from several other towns in the middle west have come appeals to The Tribune to help them solve their radio problems. Paducah is in the same unfortunate situation that many other cities and towns throughout the country find themselves. In the evening when the arc lights are turned on radio reception goes glimmering, or settles itself down to a cross between a hum and a program, with the hum always having the better side of the argument.

With a view of eliminating this induction trouble in some cases, and reducing it to a negligible factor in the remainder, experiments have been conducted which have yielded very gratifying results, and the fruits of these are set forth in the ensuing article.

Co-operation of power companies is necessary, of course, but these have always been found more than ready to do their best toward aiding the broadcast listener in his search for better radio days, and little trouble is likely from that source.

Interference can and will be eliminated. It parades in many guises but is curable in all its forms. Until it is got at intelligently, however, radio is face to face with a situation that will hamper its advancement seriously all along the line.

The accompanying article is one of a series dealing with this very important problem.—(Radio editor.)

"Induction"—Its Cause and Its Elimination

BY FRED MARCO.

(Of Experimental Station 9XBA.)

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Interference, that great bugbear of the broadcast listener, is getting to be a more important subject every day. There are five great divisions to this annoyance.

First, interference from commercial stations operating on the wave length of broadcasting stations. The navy department promises speedy coöperation in this trouble and we may soon hope for its entire elimination.

Second and third is the interference caused by local broadcasting stations and amateurs, which is rapidly approaching the zero point with development of better receivers and more intelligent operation, together with a rigid observance of the amateur quiet hours.

Fourth, and this is no little one, is the interference caused by oscillating receiving sets, radiating into neighboring antennae. With more courtesy on the part of the listener, more intelligence on the part of the designer, and radical improvements in "one-way" traps, the last of the "bloopers" will soon be heard.

"Induction" Most Serious.

This leads us to our fifth, and at the present time one of the most important sources of interferences, commonly called "induction."

At present there is practically no way of eliminating this evil unless we trace it to its source and correct it there, for, since it is usually broadly tuned over the whole wave length band, the most selective of receivers will be affected by it. Indoor loops or very short aerials help little, for these necessitate a very sensitive receiving set and a sensitive set is bound to be affected by broadly tuned local interference.

FRED MARCO.

There are really two classes of induction: that obtained from the proximity of the antennae to high tension alternating current power lines and that which comes from power leaks, corona effects of high tension lines, sparking commutators at the power house, etc.

The first class can usually be reduced to a minimum by changing the direction of the aerial or by using a loop or a very short aerial. These cases are rare and with a little care in the design of the receiving installation, little trouble may be expected from them.

The second class, however, is very annoying. It usually consists of long, drawn-out scra-a-a-tches and greatly resembles code transmission in character, so much so that amateurs actually are blamed for this source of trouble in certain cases.

The only way to correct such a condition is to first locate its actual source. This can be done by the familiar direction-finder method. A sensitive receiving set, connected to a rotatable loop aerial is mounted on a small automobile and by taking direction bearings on the source of induction from half a dozen different points in its vicinity, it can usually be traced down to a very small area.

The best way to start such an expedition is to determine which locality is most strongly affected by this difficulty and start from there, as it is bound to be located nearest to this position. Ofttimes upon arriving at the place, the cause of the interference will be immediately seen. A swinging tree branch scraping up against a high tension wire or a grounded or leaking electric street lighting pole will sometimes be found. In these two cases the coöperation of the local power company usually clears up the matter in short order.

Sometimes this interference is prevalent over the whole of a town, as in the case of Paducah, Ky., no place seeming to get it any louder than other places, and usually it will be found that the entire town lighting and power system is at fault.

Since we do not want to be interfered with on our broadcast waves of from 200 to 600 meters, but care little what happens on some higher wave length, it is perfectly feasible, by tuning the power plant, to tune this induction to a high wave length. Of course, this necessitates the coöperation of the power plant, but in most cases the management is quite willing to assist, since such methods entail no appreciable loss and are reasonably inexpensive.

In the diagram is shown a method of eliminating, at the source, a good deal of the weird noises. This system has proven its worth in several experiments, and there is no reason why it cannot be applied to high powered installations.

It is necessary to use three inductances and three condensers, as shown in the figure. These inductances are all of the same value and can conveniently be about sixty turns of wire, heavy enough to carry the required current, wound into a cylinder four or five inches in diameter.

The condensers are of .0005 microfarads capacity, and, of course, their insulation must vary with the different conditions.

Up to Plant Engineer.

Two of these traps are placed, as shown, one in each outgoing leg of the line, while the third inductance with its condenser is connected in series directly across the terminals of the generator. Of course, the whole system necessitates proper insulation from ground and surrounding objects, depending on the line voltage; but these points can be easily taken care of by the power plant engineer.

In the larger cities, such as Chicago, where we have few very high tension lines, and induction mostly from swinging grounds and intermittent sparking, the best method of elimination is undoubtedly to have the power company fix the defective apparatus, which they are always willing to do, since this grounding entails a loss to them.

NEW ZEALANDER GETS U. S. "HAMS" IN 3 DISTRICTS

Easton, Pa., Feb. 23.—F. Bell, a radio amateur of Otago, New Zealand, about 9,000 miles from here, has a list of 178 United States amateur stations and two Canadian stations whose calls he has received during the last few months, according to a letter received by A. W. Parkes, instructor in physics in charge of the Lafayette college radio station, from Frank Reardon, another amateur at Auckland, New Zealand.

Five of the stations heard were in district 2, which includes southeastern New York and eastern New Jersey; four in district 3, including eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, western New Jersey, and the District of Columbia, and sixteen in the district including western Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio, and western New York.

ACTORS DEMAND BROADCASTERS PAY FOR "TURNS"

New York Ruling Fails to Impress Stations.

Demands by the Actors' Equity association, with headquarters in New York, that broadcast stations throughout the country pay for any services given for entertainment of the radio public, failed to create much furor in local broadcast circles when presented last week.

Eighth of Salary Asked.

According to the ruling of the association, forwarded to Frank R. Dare, Chicago manager, from the council in New York, no member of the association, whether chorus girl or prima donna, can appear before the microphone unless one-eighth of a week's salary is paid for each appearance.

The ruling adds that "a great deal of money is being made by radio companies and others in connection with broadcasting," and concludes that this is why service should be paid for.

Demand Turned Down.

"If actors and actresses are displeased with the free publicity they have been receiving at broadcast stations," said E. F. McDonald Jr., president of the National Association of Broadcasters, yesterday, "the radio stations are satisfied to refrain from giving it to them. Perhaps they will want the newspapers to pay for printing their pictures next."

EXPLAINS SUIT BASIS

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Arthur Hammerstein, spokesman of the Producing Managers' association, denied tonight that the move of that body to prevent authors and composers from broadcasting their productions by radio had been actuated by a desire on the part of the managers to collect additional royalties.

Will Ask Injunction.

At the same time Mr. Hammerstein announced that William Kline, attorney for the producers, has been instructed to make application for an injunction restraining the radio broadcasting companies from sending out numbers from musical shows.

The papers, he said, are being prepared against station WEAF and the managers hope to make a test case of this particular station in order to get an opinion and to ascertain whether the sale of the mechanical rights includes radio.

Deems Decision Vital.

"We don't object to radio," Mr. Hammerstein said. "We're all for it and for sending our melodies out by wireless. But they claim that when we sell the mechanical rights to the graphophone companies we also dispose of the rights to the air. There never was a decision on this matter and we want to get one. We want to have the exact status of the radio defined."

5 TUBE COCKADAY

IN MAY, 1923, L. M. Cockaday, R. E., an American Radio Engineer, startled the radio world with his remarkable 4-circuit tuner. This discovery made possible the most selective of all three tube "distance wreckers." Again last month, Mr. Cockaday improved his four-circuit tuner, adding two tubes, push-pull transformers, and other refinements, until it now stands as the last word in Radio Receivers. Mr. Cockaday has written a remarkable pamphlet accurately describing the new receiver so clearly that most any one can construct it at home, and own a real receiver. Send for your copy postpaid (stamps accepted).... 22c

MOTORDOM

State Protects Road Investment by Repair Order

State-Aid Highways First to Benefit in the Campaign.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

GOOD roads forces interested in protecting the state's huge investment in improved highways reported their first big victory of the campaign yesterday. It came in the form of a decision by the Illinois highway department to assume all responsibility for the maintenance and repair of state-aid pavements within the corporate limits of cities and villages.

Engineers believe that the decision will save highway users a fortune annually in pavement depreciation in addition to removing the danger and discomfort from many of the main roads at points where villages have allowed the pavements to break up under heavy traffic.

The departmental maintenance order covers only the highways built by the various counties and later accepted by the state. After approving this county work, the state pays half of the cost and the roads are designated as part of the "state-aid" system.

Roads built jointly by the state and federal government and by state bond issue funds do not come under the new maintenance ruling, but transportation interests hope to bring them into the fold later so that lack of funds and negligence in towns and villages will not continue to be a menace to highway investment in Illinois.

Until the last session of the legislature the road law made it impossible for the Illinois highway organization to take care of its improved roads within corporate limits except through small towns. The repair and patrol forces employed by the state and by the counties saw to it that the expensive pavements were kept in repair in the country districts, but were forced to stop their salvage work at town limits where local authorities were held responsible for the roads.

Scores of villages have neglected their roads, even when the pavements through town are a part of important trunk highways. Many communities could not raise funds for this work. This is the reason why Illinois motorists always dread the approach of a village when driving in the country. Practically all of the failures of Illinois pavements so far reported have been inside of corporate limits. Roosevelt road is cited as a striking example.

The road law was amended by the last general assembly, making the state highway department responsible, and immediate action is promised by Frank T. Sheets, state highway superintendent, in the following order to the department:

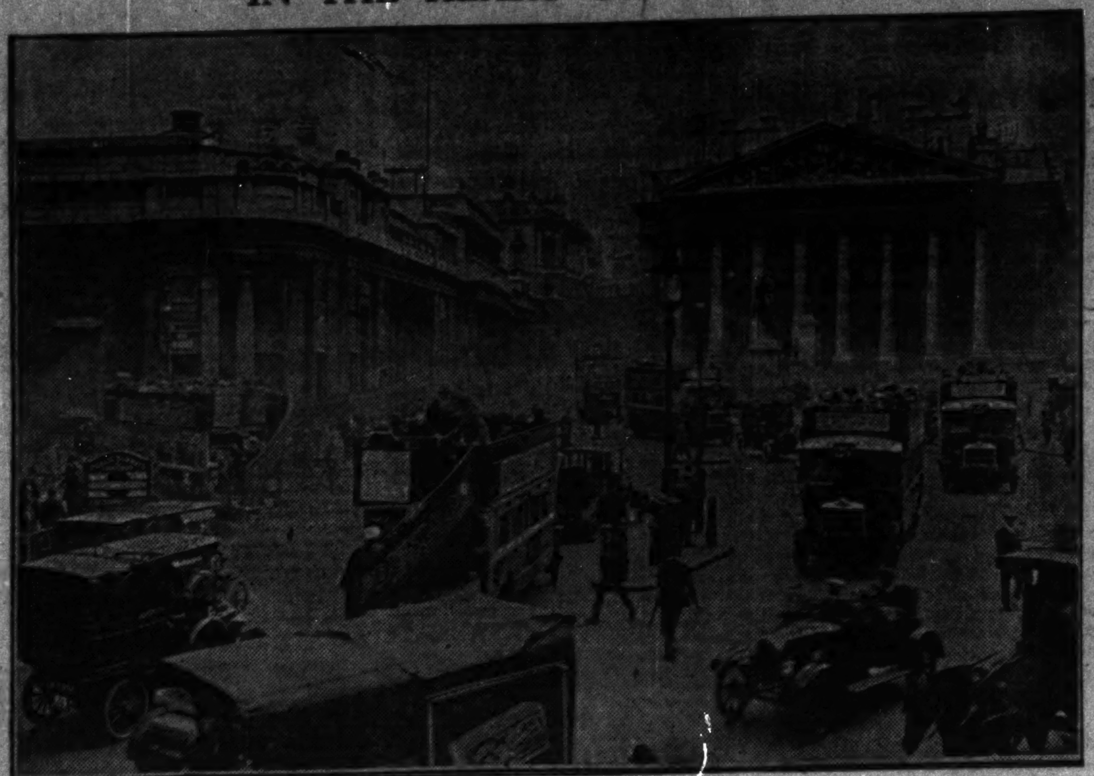
"Under the provisions of the state aid law as amended by the last general assembly, it becomes the duty of this division to maintain all state aid roads which have been built within the limits of incorporated cities and villages in accordance with plans, specifications and contracts approved by the division. Also, our maintenance appropriations are so worded as to permit of our carrying out such work.

"You are hereby instructed to at once undertake the maintenance of all such state aid roads within corporate limits. This order should not be construed to cover the maintenance of federal aid and state bond issue roads lying within corporate limits of cities and villages, inasmuch as we are not permitted to maintain the same under the existing statutes."

More than a score of roads in the Chicago territory will benefit by the ruling. They include some of the worst stretches of Roosevelt road, where traffic has pounded the pavement to pieces in villages and traffic is in constant danger. Western avenue is another important artery to benefit from state repair work. Other roads affected by the ruling include the Homewood-Lansing road, the Des Plaines River road, Higgins road, Rand road, Glen View road, Lake avenue, Dempster street, Lincoln avenue, Touhy avenue, Dundee road, Roselle road, State street, Ridgeland avenue, 143d street, Irving Park boulevard, Grand avenue, 95th street, recently rebuilt; 147th street, 111th street, and Kean avenue.

Towns and villages along such roads as the Lincoln highway, Waukegan-Milwaukee highway, Milwaukee avenue, Halsted street, and the Dixie highway and other bond issues and federal aid pavements will be expected to keep the pavements in repair until such time as the present campaign can achieve a general state maintenance system for all improved roads.

IN THE HEART OF LONDON



[Ewing Galloway Photo.]

Bewildering but seemingly effective traffic control in London guides this mass of busses, horse drawn vehicles and private cars to the left, shunting them through the old, narrow streets and around the squares with a minimum of fuss and delay. The picture, another of the interesting set showing traffic conditions in the various capitals, offers a glimpse of the financial heart of the British empire. At the left is the historic Bank of England and the London stock exchange.

Speed in Europe.

In Italy the international automobile race for the Florio cup will be held April 27. It will be followed May 4 by a speed test of 390 kilometers over the circuit of Trapani, for which 50,000 lire in prizes, as well as cups and medals, will be given. May 11 the Misena cup race is to be run for 25,000 lire in prizes. Several important French cars are expected to participate in the races.

Mackinac Ferry Record Pictures Trend of Travel

CONCLUSIVE evidence of the remarkable increase in the tourist traffic across the Straits of Mackinac during the last year is contained in reports recently submitted. The report of the Michigan state highway department shows that from July 21 to Nov. 19, the period of time the state owned ferry was in operation last year, 10,379 cars were ferried across the straits, including both north and south traffic. The total revenue derived by the state was $28,432. The third week in August showed the heaviest traffic, 1,492 having been carried across during that period.

The report from the railroads shows that from April 1 up until the close of the season early in December a total of 9,432 automobiles were carried across the straits by their transfer steamer Wawatam. Singularly, the railroad report shows that more cars were ferried across during December than were carried during September, a striking illustration that the tourist season is lengthening each year.

Lots of Leverage.

A heavy section of channel iron will serve as a straightening press by fastening it to the bench with lag screws and drilling the center of its upper flange to permit tapping for a three-fourths inch United States standard thread. Into this is inserted a piece of cold rolled steel threaded for about six inches at one end and then bent beyond the threaded section to form a handle. Straightening can be accomplished by supporting the work on V blocks with the bent section placed under the threaded end of the bar, which, when turned, will form the pressure necessary for straightening operations.—Automobile Digest.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," The Tribune, Chicago. For today's question Lee Esch, Dodgeville, Wis., was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you think it best to buy an inexpensive car and get one frequently or buy an expensive car and not have to buy one so often?

Where Asked.

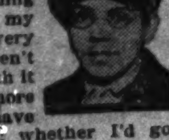
7 South Dearborn street.

The Answers.

Joseph S. Hickey, 7141 South May street, real estate broker—I believe in the inexpensive car. When it begins to show wear, or you get tired of it, trade it in on another one. Moderate priced cars are satisfactory in every sense of the word and one is free from the uncomfortable feeling that accompanies extravagance.

Charles Nichols, 5959 South Paulina street, clerk—I believe the more expensive car is the cheapest in the end. No matter what it is, I have found that the more expensive article gives the better satisfaction, in service and long life. The additional satisfaction one gets out of a good article makes it worth the additional cost.

Jack C. Krohn, 4051 Kenmore avenue, transportation man — An expensive car, and not so often. That would mean buying a new car every five years or so. With a cheap car in the course of five years you spend more money than would have been needed for a more expensive car in the first place—and you are minus the service.



Rudolph Sedlvy, 2407 62d avenue, printer apprentice — I bought a cheap car six months ago, spending every cent I had in my pocket. It was very cheap, but I haven't had any trouble with it yet. If I had had more money I would have spent more money; whether I'd got any better car or not I don't know.

J. J. Zaehnler, 4866 Broadway, real estate—For those who can stand the financial pressure it is best to get a good car, not necessarily expensive, in the first place. If you can't afford a car in that class, do the best you can. For every dollar invested one gets a dollar's worth of value up to the life limit of that particular make, whether it is cheap or expensive.

Jimmy Recovers.

Jimmy Murphy has thoroughly recovered from the bad foot burn brought about by a hot transmission during the Thanksgiving day race. James Anthony neglected this injury and it was infected by a golf stocking. He subsequently took to crutches, but is now able to use bot htootsies to good advantage.

Cost and Demand.

The American people want closed cars, but they cannot see a great price differential between the closed and open jobs. It is not generally realized that it takes at least thirty days to make a single closed body and complete it from start to finish. This great length of time is what increases the cost.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

JOHN H. QUINLAN, Chicago distributor of Moon cars and one of the merchandising leaders of the country, sailed for Naples last week on the steamship Duilio. He will tour Italy, France, and England, and make a first hand study of conditions in the leading automobile plants, investigating both manufacturing and sales methods on the continent.

Detailed reports from the European automobile shows illustrate the growing popularity of overhead valve mechanisms, according to Dayton Keith, Wills Sainte Claire distributor. Delage, Di Dion, Lancaster, Rolls-Royce, and several of the lesser leaders in the foreign quality field, are out with valves in the head and camshafts also carried on top of the motor.

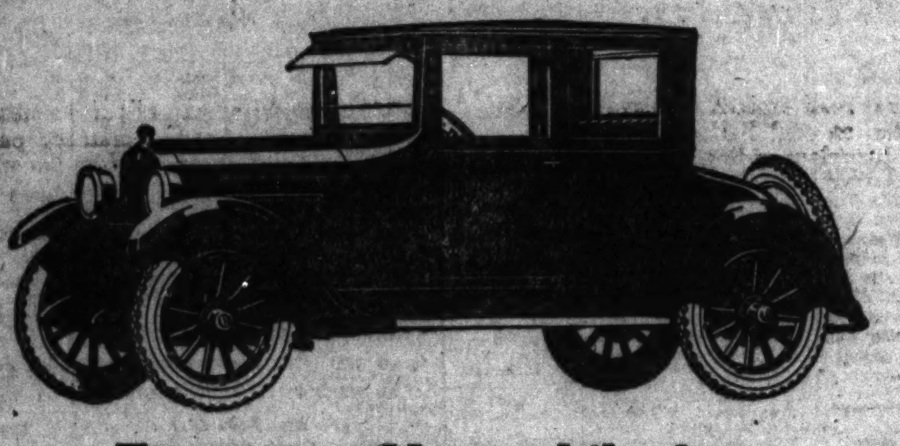
F. E. Moskovics, former vice president of Marmon, has been elected vice president of the Franklin Automobile company, according to announcement made yesterday by the Syracuse organization.

B. B. Cooper, formerly with Maxwell in Chicago, has joined the Rickenbacker Motor company to supervise the local territory, according to announcement made by Jack Banta, sales manager in Detroit.

Lon R. Smith of Indianapolis has been elected president and general manager of the Columbia Motors company of Detroit, succeeding J. G. Bayerline.

Helping Japan.

Used cars by the hundreds are now being shipped from the United States to Japan for use in the devastated areas of Tokio and Yokohama. Every boat passing through Honolulu from the United States ports since the earthquake has had on board 10 o 200 used automobiles for Japan. Since the earthquake there is a big shortage of rickshaw men in the two cities, and many of the used cars now being received are for jitney service.



For years Hupmobile has enjoyed a steadily increasing volume of sales.

It has not merely grown in sales, but what is much more significant of public-approval, has held and enlarged over a long period its share of the whole market.

This means, of course, unvarying value, quality maintained, and proof-positive of value unchallenged by any and all cars in its class.

Are We Extravagant?

Here are some costs on Studebaker cars—
Would you have us cut them down?

WE are lavish on Studebaker cars. For some features we pay three and four times what they need cost.

Here are some of those costs which affect you. Tell us—would you want any one reduced?

Our prices on high-grade Sixes run from $1025 to $2685. They stand at bottom in the fine-car field, despite these extra costs. All because the demand requires 150,000 cars per year.

But they could be lower if we cut these costs. Would you have us do it?

Engineering—$500,000

Our engineering departments cost us $500,000 yearly.

Our Department of Research and Experiment employs 125 skilled men. It spends vast sums in analyses and tests.

Our Bureau of Methods and Standards fixes every formula, every requirement. It makes 500,000 tests per year to maintain our high standards.

We make 30,000 inspections on every Studebaker car during manufacture before it goes out of the factory. We employ 1,200 men to do that.

Those are heavy costs. But remember how they are divided — by 150,000 cars per year. They form but a trifle per car.

$50,000,000 in plants

We have invested $50,000,000 in modern plants and equipment. $8,000,000 in drop forge plants. $10,000,000 in body plants — as the only way to do Studebaker coach work.

These plants are equipped with 12,500 up-to-date machines, many of them very expensive.

But consider the alternative. Profits to other makers. We save up to $300 for you by building Studebaker bodies in our own body-plants.

15% extra on steel

On some steels we pay a bonus of 15% to the maker. Just to get our formulas exact. We could save that extra on "commercial runs."

We are one of the very few builders, either in Europe or America, using crankshafts machined on all surfaces. It costs us $600,000 a year to give you this. But it results in that smoothness of operation, that lack of vibration which characterizes only the most expensive cars.

Every Studebaker car is Timken-equipped. The Special-Six and the Big-Six have more Timken bearings than any car selling under $5,600 in America. The Light-Six more than any competitive car within $1,500 of its price.

Don't Buy a Fine Car
until you see the leaders

Studebakers hold the top place in the fine-car field today.

Last year, 145,167 people chose them against all rivals. They paid $201,000,000 for them.

For 72 years the Studebaker name has stood for the utmost in quality. It will never stand for less.

Today there are assets of $90,000,000 staked on the Studebaker cars.

Don't pay $1,000 or more for a car without knowing what Studebaker offers. You will find here some scores of advantages. Learn what they mean to you.

Other costly extras

Our bodies are finished with 18 operations, including 15 coats of paint and varnish.

We use real leather upholstery. We could cut the price of our open models $25.00 were we willing to use imitation instead of genuine leather.

We upholster our closed models in the finest Chase Mohair. Cotton or ordinary wool, or a combination of both, would enable us to reduce our price from $100 to $150 per car. But we would thus sacrifice Studebaker quality and reputation.

The many extras on our large closed cars would cost much if you bought them. The nickel-plated bumpers, the extra disc wheels and cord tires, the steel trunk, the courtesy light, motometer, etc.

Extras to our men

We pay the highest labor scale. Then we add extras to it.

Men who are with us five years or over get 10% of their year's wages in an anniversary check. Those anniversary checks last year cost us $1,300,000.

After two years all employes get a week of vacation with pay. That cost us last year $225,000.

Old employes who retire get pensions.

All this to keep men with us while they grow more and more efficient. To make them happy, so they do their best.

This is all paid by people who buy Studebaker cars. But we figure that each such dollar saves us five dollars. Don't you agree with us?

The utmost in car value

The object is to give you the utmost in car value. You will find we do that if you make comparisons. In any Studebaker model, you will find scores of ways in which it excels any rival car.

That is why, in the fine-car field, the Studebaker leads. The demand has almost trebled in the past three years. These cars have become the sensation of Motordom. On some of these models we have never yet been able to meet the demand.

We spend money lavishly. We build without regard to cost. But, in our quantity production, we still bring costs to bottom.

You should learn what these things mean to you before you buy a car.

Frankly Answer 20 Questions Motorists Are Asking About

BALLOON

GUM-DIPPED CORDS

Much confusion and misrepresentation has been caused by manufacturers offering oversized cord tires announced as "Balloons" or "Balloon-type" which are in reality semi-balloons.

The true Balloon was pioneered and perfected by Firestone. We, the Firestone Service Dealers of this territory, after talking with hundreds of interested motorists, have prepared the following answers to twenty questions, so that you may be fully acquainted with the situation, and authentically informed about the construction features and advantages of the genuine Balloon tires.

You, no doubt, have either asked these same questions—or, at least, have had them in mind. Now—you have them frankly and truthfully answered.

1 What is a real Balloon Tire?

The true Balloon is a super-size Gum-Dipped Cord that is specially designed and constructed. It has twice the air capacity and operates successfully with only half the pressure of regular tires. We believe it to be the most important contribution to motoring comfort, safety and economy since the invention of the pneumatic tire.

2 How does it differ from the interchangeable, or "Semi-Balloon"?

The so-called "balloons" that are interchangeable with present wheel and rim equipment are merely 10% to 20% oversized cord tires, with fewer plies. They are little better than your present regular cords. The true balloon has double the air capacity of the regular tire it replaces, has its thinner side wall made extra strong and is mounted on a smaller diameter wheel, so that the gear ratio of the car is unchanged, and the proper fender clearance is provided.

3 Can a real Balloon Tire be applied to present wheels?

NO. To provide sufficient tire section to carry the load on low air pressure it is necessary to have a larger tire than can be applied to wheels and rims now on cars using high pressure tires.

4 Why are the smaller wheels necessary?

Firestone Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords do not change the present operation of your car. For instance, a 7.30 balloon gum-dipped cord replaces a 33x5 standard size tire. It is mounted on a wheel 20 inches in diameter. This makes the outside diameter actually no greater than the standard tire it replaces. We have special service wheels built by Firestone, with spokes offset three-quarters of an inch. This readily takes care of fender and body clearances. And it is a fact that you cannot replace a regular 33x5 tire with a semi-balloon without wheel changes.

5 Who was responsible for the real Balloon Tire?

Firestone made the low air pressure idea practical and developed the Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord to its present point of utility.

6 What made the real Balloon Tire practical?

GUM DIPPING. Low pressure tires require thin side walls that flex easily as road shocks are encountered. Firestone found the way to combine extreme flexibility with toughness and strength. The Firestone gum-dipping process impregnates each cord with special rubber compound.

7 Has the real Balloon Tire been Tested?

YES. Before announcing Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords to the public, Firestone submitted them to more than two million miles of test driving, and millions of additional miles of actual service have strongly emphasized their wonderful advantages.

8 Do Automobile Manufacturers offer real Balloons as original equipment?

YES. Sixteen leading car manufacturers today offer Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords as original or optional equipment. They put Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords to their own tests before offering them to the public.

9 Do Automobile Manufacturers offer Semi-Balloons as original equipment?

NO. No automobile manufacturer uses Semi-Balloons, either as original or optional equipment, as they would change gear ratios, interfere with fender and body clearances, and cause other mechanical difficulties.

10 Do real Balloons make riding more comfortable?

YES. They do what tires from the first were intended to do—cushion the car on air. Bumps, holes and irregularities are completely absorbed, making even the worst road smooth to travel. If you have never ridden on real Balloon tires, you cannot conceive the luxurious riding comfort, the wonderful feeling of safety and complete relaxation they make possible.

11 Are True Balloon Cords safer?

YES. Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords virtually eliminate skidding, and give you both wheel and braking control of your car, never before experienced. Their broad, flexible treads have twice the contact area with the road. Multiplied crosses, squares, and deep grooves cling to slippery surfaces and increase the traction.

12 Do they add to the life of your car?

YES. By cushioning jolts and vibration below the hubs. Wear and tear on the motor, gears and bearings, from the pounding of the road, is reduced. Crystallization of chassis parts is slowed down and body squeaks and rattles are minimized.

13 Do Genuine Balloons cut down power or increase fuel consumption?

NO. Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords do not change the gear ratio of your car—do not increase gasoline consumption—do not decrease tire mileage—do not decrease acceleration—do not affect the car's hill climbing ability.

14 What happens when a real Balloon Tire is punctured?

NOTHING. In the first place, they do not puncture as easily as ordinary tires due to the fact that they yield rather than be pierced by the puncturing object. Secondly, when a puncture does occur the air escapes slowly because of the low pressure.

15 Do they make steering harder?

NO. Steering is actually easier when car is in motion and long distance runs are made with much less fatigue to driver, as car holds a steadier course. When maneuvering into a cramped parking space more of an effort is required at the wheel.

16 Do real Balloon tires "shimmy"?

NO. Not when wheels and tires are correctly balanced. Due to Firestone's unusual method of balancing tube and carcass, with proper relation to valve, splice, bead and other parts, vibration in steering mechanism is practically nil.

17 How am I to know a real Balloon Tire?

By its greater size, its thin side wall, its distinctive tread of grooves and crosses and squares, the name Firestone on the side wall and the Mark of Quality.

18 Are real Balloon tires standardized?

Automotive authorities have approved the Balloon Tire as applied to 20- and 21-inch wheels in the sizes offered by Firestone—4.40 and 5.25 on the 21-inch wheel, 6.20 on both and 20- and 21-inch wheels and 7.30 on the 20-inch wheel.

19 Are real Balloon tires made for all cars?

YES. The genuine Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord can be had in sizes for all cars. For instance, a 7.30 Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord replaces a 33x5 standard size Firestone, and a 4.40 Balloon replaces a 30x3½-inch tire, used by light car owners. We have the wheels and rims built by Firestone which make Balloons applicable to all makes and models.

20 Who will make the change-over to real Balloons for me?

We will. And do it so quickly, too, because we are supplied with the Firestone special service wheel for Balloon equipment. We would like to explain this feature to you in detail and answer any other questions you may have in mind regarding this wonderful tire. Drive around, any time, and let us arrange to take you for a demonstration. A ride on Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords—on any street—will amaze you.

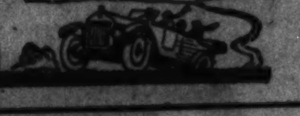
MOTORDOM



Auto Makers Want Police to Seize the Cars of Speeders

"Confiscate the Weapon to Stop Death Rate" They Demand.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—"The car whose driver recklessly or drunkenly put human life in jeopardy has no right on street or highway. Take it away from him. Let the punishment follow the car as well as the driver. The automobile industry recommends this penalty in addition to all others now applicable where the offense has been proved after due process of law. The term during which the car is impounded should vary according to the seriousness of the offense."

This declaration, shot forcefully into the proceedings of the tenth annual conference on highway engineering at the University of Michigan by George M. Graham was a dramatic event of the proceedings.

Graham is chairman of the newly appointed traffic planning and safety committee, representing the automobile manufacturers' association, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Therefore his drastic recommendation carried the full authority of the automobile industry which now takes its place among the leaders in demanding the safeguarding of traffic.

"The automobile is a benefit to civilization," said Mr. Graham. "It must not be converted into a menace by the small minority of owners, less than 5 per cent, who do not drive considerately.

"The man who can not drive carefully has no right on the highway. Neither has his car.

"We believe that fines have but small efficiency as a punishment for reckless driving. The suspension and revocation of licenses are much more effective. Jail sentences are better still. Finally, the use of the highways should be granted only to those who use a car wisely and fairly.

"Our plan calls for the impounding of cars, where after due process of law the offense of reckless driving has been proven. We believe that the minimum should be at least sixty days and that the period of impounding should be extended according to the seriousness of the offense.

"Massachusetts statistic have shown that 30 pre cent of 500 motor car fatalities resulted from 'driving too fast for conditions.' Statistics also show that about 10 per cent of the accidents followed the driving of a car by an intoxicated person.

"The fear of God must be put into the murdering criminals who cause such accidents.

"We believe that our suggestion of impounding is feasible. It will reach many minor offenses for which juries now hesitate to impose jail sentences.

"We have not taken this step without carefully checking the legal side. It is part of police practice to confiscate that which is used to the detriment of the public. We constantly see police taking away, murderous weapons, gambling devices, drugs, alcoholic liquors, and the vehicles in which they are conveyed.

"We believe that even under present law our suggestion is legal. If not, we shall recommend the enactment by all the legislatures of laws which will make our impounding plan possible.

"The industry is having prepared a specimen law, so that all those who desire to know what would be a proper enactment drawn with regard to constitutional limitations and practical effectiveness, may have a copy. The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce will be pleased to supply such copies without charge.

"Our plan does not comprise the establishment of municipal pounds. This would mean expense. It might lead to graft. It might raise questions of liability in respect to the condition in which the impounded car should be returned to its owner.

"Therefore, we suggest one or two things: First, that the car should be impounded in the garage of the owner with police seals attached. Second, that the car should be impounded, at the owner's expense, in a public garage with police seals attached.

"In either case, the car could not be returned to service until the police had removed the seals.

"We believe that many an offender who scorns a fine would be chastened by the temporary loss of his car."

The Reckless Record.

Reckless driving cost the lives of some 1,075 people in California in 1922, and in 1923 the total exceeded 1,200, despite numerous safety drives and the adoption of new safety appliances by the automobile manufacturers.

In 1922 six girls under 16 years of age were fatally injured by motor cars, while in 1923 the total reached twelve, an increase of 100 per cent. And in both years the majority of the accidents were the results of carelessness on the part of the operators.

Against Horns.

According to Judge C. C. Dalton, a strict traffic enforcement jurist in Seattle, Wash., automobile horns are dangerous and should be abolished. Blaring, screeching horns on cars invite disaster and reckless driving, and should be eradicated or changed for some new kind of warning, in his opinion.

Navy officials gave this amphibious tank a thorough examination recently at Brighton Beach, near New York, and seemed satisfied with its performance both in and out of the ocean. It is the latest of many developments of the kind, each aiming at practical operation on land and water.

Highway Planting Gets Support of National Club

THE planting of shade trees on main highways throughout the country has the indorsement of the National Motorists' association, according to a bulletin just issued to the automobile clubs of the country.

Care should be exercised, the bulletin says, by the state forestry and state highway boards in this work so as to preclude any possibility of planting trees or shrubbery at locations that will act as "snow catchers." The problem of preventive measures on arterial highways which will keep the snow drifts from the roadbed should be given consideration by every local and state highway engineer, according to the message. It also calls attention to the fact that trees that are placed too near the road may uproot pavements in time and cause considerable damage.

It is pointed out that highways are constructed primarily for the purpose of facilitating traffic. Practically every motorist is an advocate of countryside preservation, and the movement to beautify highways, but study should be made by every engineer engaged in this work to see that such undertakings do not destroy the roadbed nor be a contributing cause in impeding our important highway transportation.

Simple Repair.

When the spring in the bulb socket of the car lamp has lost its tension so as to cause a loose connection in the socket, a drop of solder can be applied to the contact of the bulb. This can be done with a soldering iron or by melting some solder on the bench.

Better Buy Dirks and Bowling Balls; Motor Cars Still Carry Tax

"FIFTEEN million motor vehicle owners have been ignored in the tentative schedule of the house ways and means committee, which proposes to reduce or do away with the special wartime levies on dirks, circuses, bowling, bowie knives, and other items," said Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, commenting on the excise provisions of the next tax measure.

"An effort to reduce taxes on all these items is commendable, but it is highly inequitable to give relief to many items in the schedule and completely ignore the 5 per cent burden on sales of cars and parts, and the 3 per cent levy on trucks, which comes out of the pockets of 15,000,000 motor vehicle users.

"Despite the presentations made before the committee by representatives of motor, rubber, and accessory manufacturers, car users, taxicab owners, and others, the man who has had an accident to his car must continue to pay the federal government a tax on his misfortune.

"The man who operates a truck or car must continue to pay a tax on transportation.

"The fact that motor car users frequently pay annually as many as fifteen or sixteen separate and distinct federal, state, and municipal taxes per car is forgotten. The user must still pay $144,000,000 or more to the federal government in discriminatory levies on motor vehicles over and above all of the contributions which he must make as a citizen, unless the ways and means committee or the membership of the house reverse their present attitude."

A 30 minute ride will win you to the new Essex. And you will join the legions who know this new Six, that is built by Hudson, in saying it provides ideal transportation.

It continues the well known Essex qualities of economy and reliability. It adds a smoothness of performance which heretofore was exclusively Hudson's. Both cars are alike in all details that count for long satisfactory service at small operating cost.

Steering is like guiding a bicycle. Gears shift easily. Care of the car calls for little more than keeping it lubricated. For the most part that is done with an oil can.

Fuel economy is impressive. Oil consumption is unusually low and tire mileage surprisingly high.

The New Essex is backed by a service policy that keeps maintenance down to the minimum.

Rickenbacker
A CAR WORTHY OF ITS NAME

$2,035

You Can Tell
A Rickenbacker — By The Space Behind It

That was a happy thought—putting on every Rickenbacker car as standard equipment—with all the other things that leave the owner "Nothing Else to Buy"—a drum tire-cover with lettered warning, "4-Wheel Brakes!"

That notice which says, in effect, "the car ahead can stop in Nothing Flat" gives the Rickenbacker owner Right of Way at all times.

If you could look down from an aeroplane upon the moving throng of automobiles during the rush hour—five to six p. m.—you could pick out every Rickenbacker Six easily.

You could do that even if you were so high you could not distinguish its graceful lines.

For, behind each Rickenbacker you would see a generous space.

Driver behind sees the warning—"4-Wheel Brakes"—and he respects it.

It is amusing, by the way, for the Rickenbacker owner to watch thru his Rear Vision Mirror and note the actions of the car behind.

If perchance it comes in from a side street, and as so many foolish drivers do, approaches to within four feet of the car in front of him in dense traffic, before he catches sight of the "4-Wheel Brakes":

You will see him suddenly back off—and stay at a respectful distance.

Often you will see his wife indicating, with lips clearly saying, "Look out, that's a Rickenbacker Six in front—I hope we may have one soon."

Rickenbacker drivers enjoy an immunity from the dread of being bumped from the rear even as they are absolutely safe from front-end collisions.

No other car can stop as quickly as a Rickenbacker Six—that has been proven in the most conclusive tests; no 2-Brake car can stop half as quickly.

It's the front-end accident that you are responsible for. Your Rickenbacker 4-Wheel Brakes take care of that.

And that Warning which every Rickenbacker owner carries on his spare tire always guarantees more space than he needs between him and the next car behind.

Owners of previous Rickenbacker models which had only two brakes—tell many amusing stories about the wide berth other cars give them also. They Own the Road if you believe all they say.

That's because the very name Rickenbacker and the term "4-Wheel Brakes" are synonymous in the minds of motorists.

For all authorities know that Rickenbacker not only pioneered in this greatest improvement since the Self-Starter, but that Rickenbacker still has the best 4-Wheel Brakes—the most perfectly equalized and the simplest to adjust—in the whole world.

"Some Day—You'll Own a Rickenbacker Too."

General Rise in Motor Prices May Mark Spring Rush

Equipment Changes and Big Demand Cause Flurry.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—With the speeding up of most of the best known automobile plants in preparation for an early spring demand, and the placing of orders by consumers for immediate or early spring delivery, the inevitable is taking place—a boost in the price of cars.

Several plants are out with announcements of an increase in the price of production, and more, it is certain, will soon follow. Among those which have revised their prices upward are the Olds and Oakland, two General Motors units; Dodge Bros., and some of the Studebaker models. The Oakland increase was a flat increase of $50 on all models; the Olds raised from $30 to $40, and the Dodge Bros. $15 on all open cars, with the closed car prices remaining the same. Studebaker raises run from $50 to $75 on the lighter models.

It is the unanimous opinion of manufacturers that prices are lower today than they will be for the next six months at least, and that any price changes within that period will be upward. This, it is claimed, is the result of changes that have been made in the building and equipping of new cars, which includes the balloon tires, a novelty in itself, but one that carries with it an added cost; rising labor and material costs, and the steadily and healthy preference for cars of the closed type.

But the motorist is assured of value whatever the cost of his new car. Reductions which were made by manufacturing early last fall left but small margin, and strenuous competition caused builders to hesitate, and finally decide to let the present low price of their product remain where it was, at least until the early months of 1924. They are now said to be considering the advisability of moving prices up to proper levels, being satisfied the demand will be at least equal to, if not greater than, their capacity output.

Several manufacturers are of the firm belief, however, that the upward movement will not be general. Commenting on this, President A. R. Erskine of the Studebaker corporation says: "Automobile prices are not likely to go lower this year. The tendency is upward, but I believe that prices on the whole will remain at the present level."

Dealers in used cars are welcoming the price increase in new cars, for they figure that their stock can justly be increased. A note of warning is being sounded by dealers, however, for the average motorist who is about ready to buy a new car in which his used vehicle will figure as a trade-in, not to overestimate the value of his car.

Every dealer has his own used problem—there seem to be no two alike—and he must solve it in his own way. Any legitimate retail seller of automobiles will give a prospect buyer of a new car the "long end" on any deal in which a used car must figure. The buyer of a used car is the eventual buyer of a new car, and it is to the interest of the dealer to keep him satisfied, as far as possible, in both his used car and the price paid for it.

The oft mooted rumor that André Citroen, the "Henry Ford of France," would establish an automobile plant in America, was set at rest here this week by the announcement of Bernet Hershey, the American representative, that such a plan, if in fact it had ever been contemplated, has been abandoned.

An engineering mission arrived in Detroit this week. It was composed of over a dozen engineers from various French automobile factories, a majority of them being from the Citroen factory. They came to visit the various Detroit plants to observe production methods with a view to their application to the French industries. The mission is headed by none other than M. Georges-Marie Haardt, who led the famous expedition which crossed the Sahara desert two years ago.

The mission is regarded as indicative of the desire of the European manufacturer to copy American methods of mass production. Before the end of the present year the Citroen plants will be turning out 300 cars a day, and such an output is regarded in Europe as something phenomenal which could not have been accomplished except under intensive war conditions.

Doheny Oil May Be Used as Lubricant for Auto Tax Slide

PRELIMINARY plans for the national service meeting and Maintenance Equipment show, to be held in the General Motors building, Detroit, May 19 to 23, inclusive, have been completed at a meeting held at the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in New York.

The May meeting is to be the most comprehensive of its kind, and arrangements are now being made to accommodate the largest attendance that has ever been anticipated for a service meeting.

The event is to be held concurrently with the World Motor Transport congress, and a substantial attendance of the foreign delegations is expected. The meeting and show will be held under the auspices of the N. A. C. C. service committee, with an adequate number of subcommittees to amply take care of the details.

In addition to the service men, representatives of the distributors, dealers, and garages will attend.

SAFETY FENDER.

A new automatic safety fender for automobiles has been designed, which will pick up without injury a twenty pound baby or a 300 pound man. It is released by the slightest touch, and requires no action on the part of the driver.

The Verdict of the Shows

AT the Motor Car Shows throughout the country there is just one predominating subject of conversation and comment—

The marvelous beauty, the distinctiveness and character of the new Wills Sainte Claire.

Never before has any car so dominated public thought and interest.

The new Wills Sainte Claire is the most beautiful expression of motor car design and finish ever produced in America.

The seven new body styles bear the impress of the artist in the graceful sweep of their long, flowing lines—

There is an atmosphere of distinction, of exclusiveness and individuality about them that we are accustomed to associate only with the finest and most expensive custom built cars—

The color combinations—soft and mellow in their pleasing harmony are as unusual as are the body lines and the interior finish—

For the first time the care and thought and artistry of custom building have been successfully applied to factory production.

It is eminently fitting that this advanced step in body design and finish should be accomplished by the Wills Sainte Claire.

For years the mechanical supremacy of this remarkable car has been universally acknowledged.

Now, that inherent quality finds outward expression in these fascinating new body styles.

Hydraulic 4-Wheel Brakes and Balloon Tires are built into the Wills Sainte Claire as part and parcel of the many advanced engineering principles that have made this car a distinguished success.

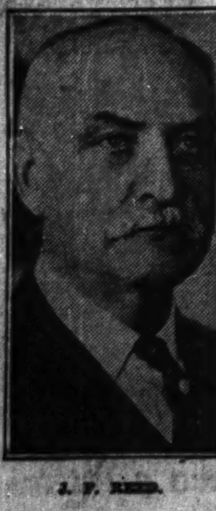
Farmers See Milk Prices Higher if Indemnity Is Cut

Producer Can't Bear All Cost of Testing Herds.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

LIVE stock men who have been attempting recently to decipher the handwriting on the dome at Washington, D. C., fear that before many years federal indemnity funds will be so severely cut that farmers will have to dig down into their own pockets to pay the losses on condemned tubercular cattle. The budget director's recommendation to the house appropriation committee calls for an actual cut of $25,000 or more in operating expenses for the coming year. The increase in indemnity funds requested by the department of agriculture was not recommended by the director of the budget.



J. F. REED.

According to the latest information from Washington, Representative Sidney Anderson, chairman of the house appropriations committee, said he expected the bill to be reported to the house the first of this week. The committee discussions are proceeding on the basis of a $2,020,000 appropriation for indemnification and $845,000 for operating expenses. The proposed total appropriation for both indemnity and operating expenses is approximately $13,000 less than the fund set aside by the federal government for the tuberculosis work last year. This cuts the operating fund $33,000.

Farmers as well as the general public are so strongly in favor of the testing of cattle for tuberculosis that the eradication program will no doubt be carried on until the disease is under control, but the big issue is to determine who is to pay the bill eventually on the slaughtered animals. With the growing demand for healthy cows to produce wholesome milk, live stock men cannot afford to relax in their efforts to clean up their herds. If the bulk of the losses cannot be covered by federal and state appropriations, which is being done under the present system, then dairymen say they must have more for their cows and milk in order to shoulder the burden themselves.

Sharing the Loss.

"Those who dance must pay for the music," is the old saw that was quoted by a dairyman in discussing the situation recently. "The eradication of this disease is being done for the benefit of the public generally, as well as the farmer. By testing and freeing herds of tubercular cattle, we are able to produce dairy products more efficiently and offer to the public a higher grade of product. The producer cannot stand all of the heavy loss that usually comes with testing, and if eradication work is to continue the public will have to share its part. The loss must be paid either out of a coöperative state and federal fund, a state fund, or the consumer must pay more for milk and other dairy products and make it possible for the farmer to pay his losses."

Discuss Premium Price.

For several months dairymen with tested herds in the Chicago territory have discussed among themselves the price differential question. Many of them believe they have grounds for asking distributors to pay a premium price for milk coming from herds under federal supervision. Under the present marketing system the man who has his cattle tested gets no more for his milk than the one who has a herd untested, and yet the farmer who submits his herd for test takes a chance of losing every animal, and often the percentage of reactors, infected cows, is large.

While tuberculosis is not the only factor involved in the production of clean, wholesome milk, it is fundamental, usually leading to a more sanitary dairy plant and herd. It should be the basis for producing a higher quality of milk that would sell for a higher price than milk coming from farms where the health of the cows is unknown.

If a premium price were paid on milk coming from federal accredited herds it would necessitate grading. So far no satisfactory system has been worked out for the Chicago market. A premium price, however, is being paid by dealers on milk coming from tested herds around some of the smaller midwest towns. Distributors in Woodstock, Ill., for example, are paying a premium of 20 cents a hundred on milk from tested herds. But most of those who are boosting for a premium price think it should be at least twice that paid at Woodstock.

At Anderson, Ind., dealers are paying dairymen a premium of 5 cents a pound for butterfat where the milk comes from tested herds. The consumer is also paying a premium price on this milk. All of the milk sold in Muncie and Evansville, Ind., is produced by tested herds, according to C. R. George of the Indiana Farm Bureau federation's dairy department.

1,000,000 on Waiting List.

The proposed cut in federal funds is expected to serve as an even greater incentive to those who are asking for a premium price. A shortage of federal operating funds during the last year or two has handicapped cleanup work in Illinois. Cutting the operating funds is more serious than it might seem to those not familiar with the work. According to Dr. J. J. Lintner, in charge of the federal campaign in Illinois, the indemnity money is of no value unless the workers have operating funds to carry on the work.

Dr. Lintner estimates that in this state there are approximately 1,000,000 cattle on the waiting list ready to be tested as soon as money and men are available to do the work.

"We have already paid out $150,000 of the federal indemnity money to farmers since the beginning of the last fiscal year, July 1, 1923, and we have only $40,000 left," he said. "The state has paid out a similar amount out of the $450,000 available. When our $40,000 federal money is exhausted, the state will take over the paying of all indemnities until another federal appropriation is available."

Dairymen from a dozen states have been to Washington recently to present their case to government officials. Whether the government can continue to pack the load is the question now being debated.

Federation Makes Protest.

When J. F. Reed, vice president of the American Farm Bureau federation, appeared before the subcommittee of the house appropriation committee recently, he said: "We were astounded when we learned that the director of the budget had passed on to the house appropriation committee a recommendation for no larger funds for indemnities next year and an actual cut of $25,000 or more in operating expenses. We regret exceedingly that we did not present this matter fully and strenuously to the director of the budget, for he has failed to appreciate, in our estimation, the true value and the legislative value of this work. We are now appealing to you to increase the funds available for paying indemnities for next year and, of course, this entails a corresponding increase in operating expenses."

POULTRY TIPS

Fifteen eggs per hen is a fair average for birds during March. If birds are not laying at that time of the year, there is probably something wrong with them or the kind and amounts of feeds given the flock.

D. E. Hale of Chicago, poultry raiser and authority on raising baby chicks, says that when he can't put his early chicks out of doors where they may come in contact with the earth, he always throws a six inch layer of fresh, clean dirt into the brooding pen.

"I have been surprised at the amount of dirt baby chicks will eat," he adds. "Judging from the experience so far, I believe mineral salts in the soil have a lot to do with restoring the vitality of weak chicks."

He also cites the experience he has had in attempting to produce strong, healthy chicks on board floors. He has confined chicks to houses where they were unable to come in contact with the soil, and fed them from a board floor until they could not stand up. They suffered with what is commonly known as leg weakness.

An old time duck raiser in writing to this department the other day said he always keeps his ducks in the hen house in cold weather because their feet are tender. The fowl suffer a great deal when forced to walk outdoors on ground covered with a sharp layer of ice or snow that has partly melted and frozen again. This man uses a wooden floor, and prefers it to a dirt one. But he never keeps his ducks in the house any longer than is absolutely necessary. Keep them out in the daytime and give them comfortable quarters at night, is his advice.

Diseased Herds Given No Quarter in Illinois

Illinois has all its forces at work to stamp out tuberculosis in beef and dairy herds from one end of the state to the other. Evidence of the progress is indicated in the brief statement issued by M. H. Peterson, in charge of the tuberculosis eradication campaign now being vigorously carried on by the Illinois Agricultural association. He says seventy-five counties in this state are rapidly driving the disease out of their herds.

According to his figures, 230,479 cattle were tested in Illinois last year, an increase of 189 per cent over the number tested in 1922. Besides this big showing, fourteen counties have now duplicate the reward of $100 offered by the state farm bureau for the arrest and conviction of bootleggers of tubercular cattle.

Another step taken by Illinois farmers in their attempt to keep herds clean after the diseased cattle have been eliminated is the uniform selling contract which has just been made between the Illinois Agricultural association and the Jefferson County Holstein-Friesian Breeders' association in Wisconsin. The contract regulates the sale of grade and pure bred dairy cattle between members of the two organizations. This is considered a vitally important step toward insuring farmers that they will be buying animals free from tuberculosis.

This is the first agreement of its kind in the United States, according to Illinois farm bureau officials.

To Address Dairy Club.

Dr. C. W. Larson, chief of the dairy division, United States department of agriculture, will speak on "The Dairy Situation" at a special meeting of the National Dairy club which will be held at noon on March 6 at the Hamilton club. This talk will be the keynote for all dairy activities of the year, according to W. E. Skinner, secretary of the dairy club.

Pooling Egg Interests.

Illinois farmers have been invited to coöperate with Missouri poultry owners in the establishment of a coöperative egg marketing association at Hannibal, Mo. The principal features of this new organization, which will provide marketing facilities to flock owners on both sides of the Mississippi river, are contracts, grading and standardizing eggs, and the pooling of all shipments, according to J. D. Harper, director of the poultry marketing department of the Illinois Agricultural association.

Foreign Seed O. K'd.

The Toledo produce exchange recently denied, in a telegram sent to Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, the charges and propaganda current in the seed trade and agricultural circles that imported red clover seed will not germinate as satisfactory as domestic seed. According to the telegram, the exchange has instigated exhaustive laboratory investigations, showing that foreign seed germinates better than domestic.

Why The Good Word on BALLOON TIRES IS GOODYEAR

Goodyear makes both kinds of Balloon Tires—

1. For use on new small diameter wheels
2. For use on the wheels now on your car

If you are buying a new car—or if you are equipping your present car with small diameter wheels in order to provide sufficient fender clearance—you can get Goodyear Balloon Tires in the 20- and 21-inch rim sizes.

In most cases, the wheels now on your car provide sufficient fender clearance to permit of using Balloon Tires, and in such cases you can get Goodyear Balloon Tires that fit your present wheels.

If you can use these interchangeable types of Goodyear Balloon Tires, Goodyear saves you the expense of wheel and rim changes.

Remember, both kinds of Goodyear Balloon Tires are of genuine Goodyear quality. The name "Goodyear" on them guarantees that they are of correct design and proper construction to yield maximum economy.

Complete information on Goodyear Balloon Tires is now available in convenient form; simply mail the coupon and an authoritative booklet will be sent you free.

The Right Size for Your Car

This table shows you what size interchangeable Goodyear Balloon Tires can be fitted to your present wheels and rims. In the left hand column are ordinary tire sizes; in the right, the Goodyear Balloon Tire sizes by which your present tires may be replaced.

30 x 3½* inch	31 x 4.40 inch
31 x 4 "	32 x 4.95 "
32 x 4 "	33 x 4.95 "
32 x 4½ "	33 x 5.77 "
33 x 4½ "	34 x 5.77 "

*If present rims are clincher type, new straight-side rim tape (quite inexpensive) will be required. Full information regarding balloon tires in the smaller (20- and 21-inch) wheel and rim sizes is given in the complete booklet offered in coupon below.

FARM AND GARDEN

Legume Failures Traced to Soil's Lack of Bacteria

If the tiny legume bacteria were as big as horses or if the American farmer had eyes that would magnify like a high powered microscope there would be thousands of acres of alfalfa, soy beans, clovers, and similar crops grown in this country where today there is only a fraction of an acre. Because bacteria, used in the inocculation of legumes, are so small that they can be seen only with difficulty by the use of a high powered microscope, amateurs often do not realize that the success of a crop hinges on the presence of these organisms in the soil.

The result is that such crops as alfalfa are frequently planted without proper inoculation there is a skimpy crop or a complete failure, and the farmer becomes discouraged. Among such farmers there is little effort made to check the waning productiveness of the soil, and the yield of the grain crops are cut shorter and shorter each year. Inefficient feeding of live stock with unbalanced rations is frequently found on farms run by such methods.

Tracing the Failures.

Much of the failure in the growing of legumes can, no doubt, be traced to the fact that many fail to appreciate the true significance of the legume bacteria in the growing of crops which aid in building up the fertility of soils and furnish a valuable feed for cattle, horses, hogs, and chickens. A better understanding of the value of these crops as soil builders and as roughages for live stock is, despite the mystery of the bacteria, leading to an increased acreage of legumes.

Throughout the corn belt the legumes are gradually crowding their way into the crop rotation systems of well managed farms, but the acreage is yet relatively small. The majority of farmers in the central west states would be justified in planting more alfalfa, soy beans, and clovers. Agricultural colleges and farm advisers in the middle west are campaigning for more legumes, because they know that if farmers are to make more money they must struggle for more efficient production along with their attempts to eliminate unnecessary marketing and distribution costs.

Gives Fine Returns.

Few farmers realize how much money there is in growing legumes. Last year L. F. Alison, an Adams county farmer in the central part of Illinois, produced so much alfalfa hay on ten acres that already he has sold $600 worth and has fifteen tons left in his barn. Mr. Alison may be an expert in growing alfalfa, but his experience serves to indicate what other farmers can do with this crop. Not many crops are giving such returns, besides the Adams county farmer is improving his soil and his land will increase in value every year.

M. Alison's experience with alfalfa has brought farmers to his place from all over the county. Ray E. Miller, farm adviser, says that dozens of other Adams county farmers are going to try the crop this year. In a series of township meetings held during February Mr. Alison's experience was told over and over again. At each meeting farmers brought soil samples to be tested. Experts told them how much lime they would need and thrashed out their questions on drainage, soil types, and inoculation.

Limestone Sweetens Soil.

Mr. Miller says alfalfa will grow on a sweet soil. There are approximately ninety-two pounds of limestone in each ton of alfalfa hay. Limestone is required to sweeten the soil. A sweet soil permits the development of the bacteria which enable the alfalfa plant to draw upon the supplies of nitrogen found in both the soil and the air. Otherwise the huge amounts of nitrogen required by the alfalfa plant must be taken from the soil alone. This accounts in many cases for the yellow color which so often develops in young alfalfa. This color may be brought on by poor drainage.

"A water logged soil is practically air tight," adds the farm adviser, who is a soil expert. "With the air shut out, the nitrogen fixing bacteria can neither live nor function in contributing this life giving nitrogen to the support of the plant. We associate wet soil with sour soil, and this is often the case."

Matter of Inoculation.

Hand in hand with the liming and draining of the soil goes the matter of inoculation. This can be done, Mr. Miller says, by using soil from an old alfalfa field—at the rate of one quart of dry soil to a bushel of seed—by buying artificial cultures from laboratories, or by growing sweet clover prior to the alfalfa. The bacteria on the alfalfa and sweet clover plants are identical. "Inoculation," he cautions, "while not always necessary, should always be taken care of, since there is no means of knowing for certain whether or not inoculation is necessary until after the crop is tried."

Other requirements given by Mr. Miller are a soil with a fairly rich, open subsoil with a liberal supply of phosphorus, nitrate, and potash, and a well prepared seed bed, well settled, but not packed.

Advice on Seeding.

Seeding may be done either in the spring or fall. The advantage of fall seeding is that the crop gets ahead of the weeds in the spring. Here's Mr. Miller's comment on seeding:

"The idea in fall seeding is to sow alfalfa late enough to avoid hot, dry weather and early enough to precede fall rains. Spring seeded alfalfa frequently suffers severely from competition with weeds, unless sown early on clean ground. If a cover crop is used—for instance, a bushel of oats per acre—and the season is favorable, this method has proved highly successful. In a dry season, however, the cover crop uses too much of the moisture which should go to the support of the alfalfa."

Grimm, Dakota, Kansas, and Nebraska common are the varieties that may be used.

STOP BULL WHEEL SPINNING

FARM BOY INVENTS COMBINATION IMPLEMENT.—The only job the bull wheel has on this binder is to carry the machine over the field. Power to drive the mechanism is supplied directly from the tractor —carried from the tractor through a hollow tongue back to the binder. This simple direct drive power unit, invented by Elmer S. Maine, an Iowa farmer, makes it possible for the farmer to junk the bull chain and get rid of trouble caused by a slipping bull wheel on hot, sultry days in the harvest field. Small grain binders, mowing machines, and corn binders can be run by power coming direct from the tractor where this appliance is used.

The Moon Buyer Pays for No Experiments

These are the plain facts known to every Automobile Builder, Distributor, Dealer and Salesman: After all is said and done the only real test of any change in motor car construction is the day by day use by the public of cars embodying those changes or "improvements."

Countless cars, driven untold miles in road tests by their builders; the sage opinions of engineering staffs and "experts" all make very nice reading but it doesn't mean a thing. The real test and the old test that counts is the test of use.

This is the plain truth, known to those inside the motor car industry and now rapidly becoming known to those outside—the man who pays the bill.

MOON buyers are not asked nor expected to buy or conduct experiments.

MOON was not the first car to adopt 4-wheel brakes. MOON was not the first with Balloon tires. MOON is not first and will not be first with any radical departure from proven usage.

When the troubles have been found out in use by those who are willing to let the public do their experimenting, when an "improvement" becomes a proven reality, then MOON is willing to offer it to the MOON user.

All MOON Models are now equipped, at the buyer's option, with 4-wheel brakes and Balloon tires, because now use has proven their value. But remember this—we say to you, a prospective buyer of a motor car, do not buy a MOON car nor any other car because of any one or two features—buy a MOON, as thousands of other buyers in Chicago have done, because in MOON you buy dependable motor car transportation, the greatest value for your money, plus a world of good looks.

The sane buyer buys on this basis and on no other.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Bullish sentiment was created in the stock market yesterday by Washington reports of a strengthening of Republican forces on the tax bill, the decision of the French chamber of deputies to support the Poincare tax plan, and favorable trade and business news. Atlantic Refining moved up 4¾ points to 128¾ and Tidewater advanced 3 to 141, while net gains of a point or more were recorded by General Asphalt, Pure Oil, and Pierce Oil preferred, most of the others improving fractionally.

Steel shares displayed a strong undertone in further reflection of expanding operations. United States Steel common opened ⅜ higher at 104⅛ and moved within a narrow range, closing at the opening price. Republic and Bethlehem Steels improved fractionally. Otis Steel preferred moved up 1⅛ to 71, a new top, on speculative expectation of an early resumption of dividends.

Passing of the Calumet and Hecla dividend, necessitated by the low price of copper, brought about some selling of copper shares, Utah dropping 1⅛ points and Anaconda a point. Some of the strong spots in the industrial group were Baldwin, Du Pont, General Electric, United States Alcohol, United States Rubber, Bosch Magneto, and Cuyamel Fruit, up 1 to 2 points.

Strength and activity of Southern Railway, which established a record top for all time at 49⅝, up 1¼, was the feature of the trading in railroad shares. Other strong spots in that group were Norfolk and Western, Lackawanna, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, Erie second preferred, Western Maryland second preferred, and Western Pacific, all up 1 to 2 points.

Renewed buying of French governmental and municipal bonds at advancing prices featured the bond market. A sharp jump of almost 6 points in Pierce Oil 8's to above par, in response to financial developments within the company, was another conspicuous development. Convertible sugar and copper issues were eagerly sought at rising prices. Independent steel and oil company bonds also improved in tone. United States government issues were inactive but steady.

The week just ended has been, in many respects, a test week, according to the expressions heard both in brokerage and banking circles. Irregularity was apparent in the market for securities, in the commodity markets, and possibly most pronounced of all in the foreign exchange markets. Bankers, when asked for their interpretation of events, dismissed the problem briefly with the statement that "Business is going on as usual and appears to be expanding."

Despite almost ideal operating conditions in 1923, the railroads are still a long way under the fair operating return figures if the period since federal administration is taken into consideration, officials point out. A recent report of the conditions shows that from the time the railroads were turned back to private hands until the close of 1923 they had earned $2,596,700,000, whereas the "fair income" under the transportation act of 1920 should have been $3,663,300,000. The difference is being made up by the railroads themselves.

Acquisition by the Columbia Gas and Electric company of four additional distributing companies in central and southern Ohio was announced. The companies are the Columbus Gas and Fuel, the Federal Gas and Fuel, the Dayton Gas, and the Springfield Gas companies, all formerly controlled by the Pure Oil company.

The Chesebrough Manufacturing company has called a special meeting for March 20 to act on a proposal to split the common shares four to one and declare a 100 per cent stock dividend. In a letter to the stockholders of the Magnolia Petroleum company notice is given that at the annual meeting on March 11 at Galveston the stockholders will vote on the increase of the capital stock from $180,000,000 to $188,000,000.

The Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper company directors yesterday omitted the declaration of a dividend. Three months ago they declared an initial dividend of 50c a share without designating it as being "regular" or for any particular period.

The Dubilier Condenser and Radio corporation has declared a full year $8 a share dividend on its preferred stock, payable in quarterly installments. The first disbursement is due April 1. The Pennsylvania Water and Power company declared a quarterly dividend of 2 per cent, placing the stock on an 8 per cent annual basis, compared with a previous annual rate of 7 per cent.

The British-American Tobacco company and the P. Lorillard company are reported to have purchased for $7,500,000 a tobacco plant in Mexico in connection with a transaction involving a $25,000,000 loan to Mexico, under negotiation with the Wolvin interests of Duluth.

Closing of the Watertown, N. Y., plant of the International Paper company for an indefinite period was announced, due to "general conditions in the industry."

There were 340 commercial failures in the United States last week, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 420 in the preceding week and 336 during the corresponding week last year.

Only Half of Argentine Bonds Sold to the Public

New York, Feb. 23.—Only one-half of the $40,000,000 Argentine 6 per cent bonds recently offered in this country actually was sold to the public, it was revealed today on the termination of the syndicate which offered the loan. Members of the banking group were called on to shoulder 50 per cent of their participation.

Because of the market situation, the syndicate reduced the offering of long term bonds to $40,000,000, although it had contracted to float a $60,000,000 loan to refund a $55,000,000 note issue falling due on March 1.

The remainder of the loan was provided for by the sale of $20,000,000 six month notes, which were privately placed.

False Price Marks Held Unfair Business Practice

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—Labeling an article with fictitious price marks, bearing a figure at which it was not intended the article should be sold, was held by the federal trade commission today to be an unfair business practice. The decision was handed down in the case of the Morrison Fountain Pen company of New York.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1924: Fairchild News Service.]

LONDON.—Courtauld's, Ltd., artificial silk manufacturers, report a net profit of £2,916,950, as compared with £3,018,431 for 1922. To the reserve $1,000,000 is added and a dividend of 15 per cent is again paid.

COLUMBUS, O.—There is no fear of the ordinary retail field being jeopardized by the mail order houses, Prof. H. H. Maynard of the College of Commerce and Industry, Ohio State university, told the Retail Credit Men in tristate conference here. He said while the mail order houses did 4 per cent of the retail business of the whole country and 20 per cent of the business of the rural communities went to the same source, their increase in ten years has been only on a par with the advance of business in general.

NEW YORK.—For the first time under arbitration proceedings damages were awarded a jobber of dresses at the office of the Association of Dress Manufacturers, before J. W. Block of Kirby, Block & Fischer, resident buyers, on the grounds that a contractor had taken one of his styles, copied it, and sold it at a competitive wholesale price. This is said to be the start of a campaign to stop style piracy.

NEW YORK.—Naming of low prices on fancy worsteds for fall, 1924, was the most important development in the piece goods market this week. While some difference of opinion exists as to the average increase, owing to the fact that some of the lower grade goods are up 7½@10 cents a yard, while the medium are only 5 cents higher, and the better grade goods are the same as a year ago, the average of 100 numbers shows an increase of only 1⅝ per cent. It is generally conceded the new quotations are attractive and calculated to stimulate business.

NEW YORK.—The gray goods market experienced the sharpest drop in any period since the downward movement started. With cotton, despite its bullish statistical position, hammered mercilessly, cloth prices gave way rapidly. Print cloths, sheetings, drills, twills, sateens, ducks—practically the entire range of gray cloths underwent a decline. Curtailment in the south is spreading rapidly and is expected to become drastic in the near future unless the market undergoes a sudden change and mills are able to obtain prices proportionate to the cost of raw cotton.

NEW YORK.—The price situation in silks is considered acute, since it is difficult to get what manufacturers consider an adequate return even on wanted weaves, and in many cases it is impossible to get a profit. Notwithstanding some houses did a good business from the point of view of sales totals, and strong holders are refusing to make price concessions, the downward pressure is causing weak holders to move goods at figures which competitors cannot meet with loss. This situation is attributed to overproduction and slack demand. At present wool filled crepes are classed as "best sellers" by some of the larger manufacturers and distributors. These report a demand for cloths priced at $1.75@2.25 a yard, with the $1.90 numbers particularly popular.

Corn Marketing Big; Largest Since 1922

Marketing of corn last week was the largest so far this season, being almost 11,000,000 bu at primary points, an increase of 675,000 bu for the week and of nearly 5,000,000 bu over last year, being the largest at this time since 1922, when there were 13,735,000 bu. Aggregate receipts of all grains were 20,623,000 bu, or 27 per cent more than the previous week and 35 per cent above last year's, showing 12 per cent more than the five year average. Wheat receipts were the smallest since 1920 and oats a good average.

Chicago received 6,107,000 bu of grain last week, or 30 per cent of the total primary movement, increasing 12 per cent for the week, and 5 per cent over last year. Corn receipts of 4,063,000 bu, increased 875,000 bu for the week, and 241,000 bu over last year. There were small decreases in wheat for the week, and a gain of 54,000 bu in oats over last year.

Canada Puts Hoof Disease Embargo on U. S. Cattle

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 23.—An embargo has been placed on cattle from the United States by the Dominion of Canada department of agriculture. An outbreak of the hoof and mouth disease in Alameda county, Cal., was confirmed from Washington today. The order also prohibits importation of sheep, swine, goats, dogs, and poultry, or of the flesh or hides, horns, hoofs, or other parts of such animals, or of hay, straw, fodder, or manure that have been in California, Nevada, and Oregon within the two months immediately preceding their offer for entry into Canada. The embargo does not affect shipments of cured meats, lard, or tallow.

ARMOUR TRADE REVIEW.

Armour & Co. in their weekly trade review say:

"The beef trade showed improvement during the week, thereby evidencing the fact that accumulations are being cleaned up. "Continued heavy receipts of hogs resulted in an abundance of fresh pork on the market. The demand for it was good and the market held steady, but it adversely affected the market for cured meats. Foreign trade was quiet."

PRODUCE MARKETS

More disposition on the part of holders to sell lowered butter prices in Chicago ¼@½c on Saturday, while eggs declined 2c, live hens 1c and spring chickens ½c. White potatoes were 5c lower. Supplies of all produce were larger, and the demand fair at the decline. Arrivals of potatoes were 90 cars, and there were 189 cars on track.

Moderate hog receipts throughout the week, together with the possibility of a cut in next Monday's supply, owing to storms in some parts of the country, caused brisk competition for offerings available at the week-end session. Prices advanced largely 5@10c, with top and average up 10c at $7.15 and $7.00 respectively. Barring heavy "packers" all classes moved freely at the advance, with light and underweights reflecting the sharpest reactions.

Outside hog buyers absorbed 8,500 head, swelling the week's shipments to 113,000, about the third largest in more than twenty years and about 39 per cent of the week's receipts. After a 10@15c decline on the initial day of the week prices advanced 15@25c, but broke sharply during Thursday and Friday, with closing prices being 5@25c under the week's peak and largely 20@25c below previous week's close.

Last week's total hog receipts at 297,500 were 22,400 larger than the previous week, 60,200 larger than a year ago, [illegible] larger than two years ago and [illegible] above the ten year average. Estimated average weight of hogs at 229 lbs. equaled the previous week, being 6 lbs lighter than a year ago and 4 lbs above the ten year average. The week's average price at $7.10 was 5c above the previous week, 90c under a year ago and $4.20 below the ten year average.

Sheep Sell High.

New high prices for the year were established in practically all branches of the sheep and lamb trade during last week, with closing sales ruling 50@75c over a week ago. Urgent orders for fat mutton proved a feature, resulting in further narrowing of the range of prices. Top handy ewes reached $10, while weighty ewes sold at $9.50. Heavy ewes were practically unsalable at $4.50 or less than four months ago, when fancy light ewes sold at $6.50. Aged wethers last week reached $11, with top yearlings at $13.25.

The lamb market fully regained midweek discounts and closed on an upward trend, with closing top at $15.75, comparing with $15 a week ago and $12.60 less than four months ago. Feeding and shearling lambs shared in the general upturn, with country demand greatly improved. Best shearlings reached a new high mark for the season at $14.50.

Cattle Trade Uneven.

Unevenness featured trade in cattle last week, the better grades closing 10c to 25c higher for both beef steers and butcher stock, while the kinds grading lower in quality and finish closed weak to 25c lower. Feeding steers, however, closed steady to 25c higher, and calves advanced $1.50 to $2.00. Top heavy steers reached $11.70, highest of the year for this class. Good beef steers averaged $9.45, against $9.30 previous week. Week's receipts, at 60,800, were largest in over a month.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 22,000 cattle, 71,000 hogs, and 18,000 sheep, against 23,829 cattle, 87,237 hogs, and 13,671 sheep a year ago, and 19,482 cattle, 62,193 hogs, and 13,278 sheep a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 60,000 cattle, 250,000 hogs, and 70,000 sheep, against 59,127 cattle, 194,663 hogs, and 70,926 sheep a year ago.

1924 STARTING OUT TO JUSTIFY EARLY SENDOFF

BY SCRUTATOR.

Kid 1924 is growing fast. Only the other day, it seems, his picture appeared on the magazine covers, wearing almost as much clothes as a Follies star. Now he's a fair sized lad.

In a business way the new year shows up well enough to justify those who gave it a good sendoff.

The auto business, of course, plays the stellar rôle, with production figures mounting over last year's record, and mutterings of 5,000,000 cars before 1925.

These figures have been accompanied by much shaking of heads in some financial quarters, and renewed interest in installment plan selling, but at the same time plans for more acceptance financing in other lines are afoot.

It is going to be a year of intense activity, strenuous advertising, and in some lines profits may not be large, except as turnover is stimulated.

Pessimists may say this is business fever. They fail to take account of how greater energies and ingenuities in distribution have always reacted later to increase the volume of production and to lessen the cost per unit of output.

An interesting thing to watch this year is whether American business has become as hard and "shockproof" as many have asserted.

It's a political year. This is the opportunity of a great "business" interest that is seldom taken into account in estimating the couse of trade and industry. Muck raking and "exposure" have become an organized industry by which many men live. Back of every genuine army of progress, reform, or cleanup, hover hordes of sutlers and looters.

Teapot Dome has whetted their appetites. Political attacks on business will probably be plentiful this year.

But as was pointed out last year by many high authorities, American business has become rather tough and panic resistant. Not for nothing has this generation lived through years of world disaster and social earthquake. Reports and rumors, that in the '90s would have started bread lines to forming on the right, swept over us last year and got a laugh.

Credit conditions have remained easy and sound since the first of the year. The steel industry has been encouraging.

What the farmers are going to do is now being planned by some 6,000,000 men who have learned much and paid off a great deal since 1920.

We are coming on to March, which was the peak month for building undertakings last year. With the turn of that month, we will know pretty definitely what to expect of the construction industry. The amount of winter building has testified to the continuing demand.

The mine settlement, noted before in this column, is going to cause a notable readjustment, which will be felt in many other lines by summer. As was fearlessly stated by union leaders before the convention which had their jobs in its hands, there is no way to avoid the closing up of high cost mines and the forcing out of the industry of some 150,000 to 200,000 men. This represents a labor force coming into the market, which is greater in number of effectives than all the immigration last year. It is to be hoped, therefore, that we are to be spared the baseless alarms about an industrial collapse because of labor shortage or a run away of wages, that marked the spring of 1923. There is no basis for any such fears.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The local unlisted securities market was reactionary in the early trading last week, but most losses were later regained and the close was steady.

Fairbanks-Morse displayed strength and moved up to high sales at 57. At the close stock was offered at this price, with bids of 56. Goodman Manufacturing at 58¼ bid, offered at 60½, reflected a half point improvement. The quotation on Deleee & Shepard showed further improvement at 40 to 45, with no actual trades taking place. Palmolive common was traded in between 80 and 82, and at the close was wanted at 80, with cheapest offerings at 90. Chicago Railway Equipment preferred was fractionally better at 24⅜ bid, 25½ asked.

Wahl preferred was slightly easier, being offered at 89¼, with bids of 88¼. Another advance to 38 bid asked, took place in McCord Manufacturing preferred. National Grocer common sold down fractionally to 7⅞ bid, 8¼ asked. Albert Pick preferred showed ½ point improvement at 92 to 93. Butler Brothers was comparatively steady, transactions ranging between 33½ and 34. Great Lakes Transit was wanted at 39½, with little stock offered at current quotations.

The motor issues displayed a firm undertone throughout, Paige-Detroit selling up 1¼ points to sales at 18, closing slightly easier at 17¼ bid, offered at 17½. Ford of Canada at 455 to 460 showed a 5 point advance. Motor Products was better at 77 to 78. Timken Axle at 6½ bid, offered at 6¾, showed a fractional advance, while Motor Wheel at 10 to 10¼ was unchanged.

After selling at 120, American Light and Traction common had a 10 point advance to high and last sales at 130. Commonwealth Power corporation new 4 per cent common sold as high as 53½, but closed unchanged at 56½ bid, 57½ asked. Commonwealth Power Railway and Light common was slightly better at 60½ to 62. Tennessee Electric Power eased off from high sales at 26⅜ to sales at 25. Stock was later wanted at this figure, with offerings at 25½. American Power and Light common sold off about 6 points to 212, but later firmed up to 218 bid, 222 asked. Illinois Traction common was strong, showing another 3 point improvement, selling at 73. The close was steady at 72½ to 73½.

Considerable trading took place in the new United Light and Power securities, the class "A" stock being steady around 31½ to 32, while the "B" improved a point at 31½ to 32. American Public Utilities was off 2 points, closing with stock offered at 44, and best bids at 42. Utah Gas and Coke preferred stockholders were notified that the five year arrearage in dividends would be paid in new 7 per cent participating preferred shares at par, and that regular dividends would be declared in the future starting July 1, 1924. Early trading took place around 43, but the close was 4 points higher at 47 bid, no stock offered around current quotations.

A steady demand exists for stock in the downtown banking institutions. Union Bank of Chicago improved some 5 points to 171 bid, 174 asked. Continental and Commercial National was steady at 300 to 306. Central Trust Company of Illinois sold at 225. Illinois Merchants changed hands at 400. First National was in demand at 456 bid, offered at 459. State Bank of Chicago retained its advance and closed at 490 bid, offered at 495. National City was unchanged at 176 to 178, and National Bank of the Republic at 206 bid, offered at 210.

Some Stocks at Half Price

Some who watched stocks break on several occasions recently may jump to the conclusion that the bull market is over.

It may be that some stocks have seen top. Certainly some have advanced 50 to 100 points since we were urging buying in last summer's depression.

That there was plenty of room for a major reaction was patent to any student of the market; and that our subscribers were amply warned may be gleaned from the following from our

DAILY MARKET REVIEW AND OUTLOOK
of Friday, February 8:

"While we may continue very bullish for the long pull so far as our recommendations are concerned, we must recognize the fact that stocks in general have had big advances and that this is a month when generally any overbought positions are rectified.

"Consequently we should for a time be carrying fewer stocks than we were carrying a few weeks ago and we may also, if of a trading disposition, be on the lookout for short selling opportunities."

So our readers were in position to take down their profits and also to essay the bear side, which paid so well later.

However, there are some stocks that have not even started on their real bull moves as yet.

For instance, there is a ——————

How they GET RICH with BONDS

The Smith Children Will Have an Education—and Money!

(Actual Names held in confidence.)

HERE is a picture of real happiness and genuine success of which any man might well be proud to be the cause. And the best of it is that its realization is within the reach of almost every family.

The Smith children are not only well cared for now but have a future. A finished education for each and then a nice round sum to set John up in business and another to make Margaret independent—this is the plan of their farsighted parents.

How are they working it out? By depositing monthly for each child $25 in a partial payment account for the purchase of our First Mortgage Bonds. Starting at age one, each child at twenty-one will have $11,508—$6,000 principal plus $5,508 interest. Even if some of this is spent for a college education, each will still get a substantial sum.

She is Worth a Million Dollars to Us

The Smiths' plans are based on 6%, the figures we supply. Our bonds now pay 7%, but one can't be sure of getting such a high yield in years to come. Call, phone Main 1865 or mail this coupon today.

FIRMER TONE IN GRAIN MARKETS; CORN IN DEMAND

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets showed a distinctively firmer undertone. The strength in Liverpool where wheat was up 1@1½d as compared with Thursday, and the upturn in Winnipeg on Friday, when Chicago was closed, were factors in that grain. Corn, however, was in demand from commission houses and local bulls, and was up ⅛@⅜c at the last. Oats were unchanged to ¼c higher, and rye was ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher.

Wheat, corn, and oats were on the upgrade the greater part of the week, with corn and oats selling within a fraction of the best prices of the season. Price fluctuations were erratic, but on all the dips there was good support and for the week wheat was up ¼ to ⅜c, corn ¼ to ½c, and oats ⅜ to ⅝c. Rye was weak and ½ to ⅝c lower. Lard declined 2½ to 7½c for the week, with ribs of 5c and bellies unchanged to 5c higher.

Wheat Traders More Bullish.

As a whole there was a more friendly feeling toward the buying side of wheat, although aside from the strength abroad there was little in the news to justify extensive operations on the bull side. A moderate export business was put through in Manitobas at the seaboard. A good part of the winter wheat belt is protected by snow and the forecast indicated a further fall over the more northern sections.

Expectations are for world shipments of around 13,500,000 bu for the week, or 4,000,000 bu fewer than the previous week. Indications are for a moderate decrease in the visible supply on Monday. A little better milling demand for cash wheat was reported in the southwest.

Corn Bulls Confident.

Local bulls are decidedly confident of their position in corn and with light receipts and messages from Iowa and Illinois claiming that the movement was practically over an advance was easily attained. Closing trades were at 80¼ to 80⅜c for May and 80⅞ to 81c for July and September.

At the outside figure, the deferred deliveries were within less than 1c of the best price of the season. Longs were the best sellers on the upturn. Cash demand was fair with the basis on spot unchanged as compared with May. Receipts were 483 cars, with expectations of around 600 for Monday.

With prospects of more snow over part of the grain belt, there is some talk now of delayed oats seeding. Field work in the southwest is progressing slowly on account of wet weather. Trade in futures was light, but the undertone firm.

Easy Undertone in Rye.

Despite reports from the seaboard of export business being put through in rye on the quiet, the market showed no rallying power and the close was easy. No. 2 on track brought ⅝c to 1c under May.

Provisions were dull, but slightly firmer, in sympathy with hogs. The close was unchanged to 2½c higher on lard and bellies and unchanged on ribs. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the season to date aggregates 3,624,000, against 3,810,000 last year. Prices follow:

NEW ELEVATOR BEGUN.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 23.—The Washburn-Crosby company of Minneapolis today announced it had begun construction of a $250,000 grain elevator of 750,000 bushels capacity at Kansas City, Mo.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

There was some export business under way at the seaboard in wheat, corn and rye, but no figures were given on the latter two grains, exporters apparently not being disposed to reveal what they were doing. Wheat sales were estimated at 200,000 bu Manitobas, but probably exceeded that figure.

Chicago handlers sold 5,000 bu wheat, 55,000 bu corn, 60,000 bu oats and 3,000 bu barley to the domestic trade.

Texas mills are showing more interest in cash wheat with some worked out of Oklahoma and Kansas. There is no prospect of export business in hard winters, however. Local premiums were unchanged at May price to 1c over for No. 3 red and 1c under to 2c over for No. 2 hard. Receipts 44 cars. St. Louis and Omaha were unchanged to 1c higher and Kansas City unchanged.

There was a fair demand for cash corn here early from shippers, elevator interests and industries, but the undertone was easy at the last as buyers were not disposed to follow an advance in futures. No. 3 mixed brought 3½c under; yellow, 1½@3c and white 2½@2¾c under May, with No. 4 mixed 6¼c; yellow, 5⅛@5⅝c and white 5⅝c under the future. No. 6 grades sold at 9½@10½c under. Receipts 483 cars. Outside markets, ⅛c lower to ½c higher.

Offerings of cash oats were fairly liberal but had little effect on the market. Cash basis was unchanged at ⅛@⅜c over May for No. 2 white and May to ⅝c under for No. 3 white. Receipts 171 cars.

SUGAR MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—SUGAR—Raw firmer. No sales reported, but it was rumored some Cuban had been sold to local refiner at 7.41c, duty paid, an advance of 1-16c over previous sale. Raw futures higher. Final prices were 1@3 points net higher; March 5.62c; May, 5.67c; July, 5.72c; September, 5.71c. Refined, business light and prices unchanged at 8.90@9.00 for fine granulated.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

A number of local professionals are bearish on wheat, basing their operations on the statistical position; that is, the excess in the visible supply over last year and the slowness in the milling and export trade. On the other hand there are indications of a bull market starting in the near future, based on the crop scare.

Big traders with the exception of possibly three or four are friendly to the buying side of corn on the theory that the movement will let up shortly and it is not the time of the year to work on the selling side. Primary receipts of 11,500,000 for the week with shipments of 5,000,000 bu suggest an increase in the visible supply. This, however, did not affect the views of those who have been bullish for some time.

A grain man from Tennessee says they are having a good trade throughout the south in cash corn and there is no disposition to carry stocks in advance of trade requirements owing to uncertainty as to the keeping qualities of the grain.

Although this is the calendar period for buying grains a few of the largest operators who have worked on that principle in the past are disposed to ignore it at present, particularly as it applies to wheat, while in corn they are mixed, owing to uncertainty as to how long the movement will keep up.

There was a little foreign buying of wheat futures here early in the day. Estimates on corn receipts for Monday are around 600 cars. Inspectors on the leading roads are working today.

Watch Your Investments.

Before purchasing a security, one should make a thorough and careful investigation of all the factors pertaining to it. The value of the property in proportion to the amount of the issue, the history and growth of the company over a number of years, its past and present earnings and the prospects of the permanence of these earnings in the future, the character and reputation of the management and its ability to conduct efficiently the particular kind of business in which it is engaged—all these and other pertinent data should be ascertained before investing and the prospective buyer should also get the opinion of some impartial authority who is qualified to pass on the security before he invests.

These things are essential to safe investment, but they are not all. An investor's duties to himself do not end with the purchase of a security. It is not enough to find that the security is sound and then to put it away and pay no further attention to it except to clip coupons or await dividend checks.

The security may appear sound in all respects when bought, but it may not always remain so. Some business disturbance or rate legislation, change in management or value of assets or any one or combination of a number of things may arise which will affect the company in a way to impair the safety and value of the security.

It is advisable, therefore, for the investor to keep himself informed from time to time as to the condition of his company, in particular, and of the industry which it represents, in general. He should watch all conditions likely to affect his securities and should seek reliable information at reasonable intervals on the financial condition of the companies in which he has invested.

Securities which originally appeared sound sometimes become unsound and the investor who neglects to keep in touch with conditions may be caught napping and suddenly wake up to find himself holding securities of little value.

In the case of listed securities, a steadily or suddenly declining market price may indicate a weakening of their investment positions. This is not always the case, however, as market prices frequently fluctuate considerably when there is no real change in the strength of the securities themselves, but when such changes take place it is well to check up on the company and ascertain just what its condition is.

To be a successful investor one should investigate before purchasing, and watch afterwards, all conditions affecting his security.'

The New York Times.

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Interest was divided on Wall street today between the stock market and foreign exchange. All that was shown in the day's stock market was the fact that the emotional fright of a week ago had apparently quite passed away. Such movement as occurred in prices was upward, but it was not emphatic. A few scattered stocks were advanced 1 to 2 points, but most of them moved only fractionally. Comparison of today's closing prices with those of the preceding Saturday shows a singularly confused distribution of the movement, net advances and net declines of a point or more being numerically almost equal.

Recovery Not Yet Completed.

But the actual trend is perhaps best shown by the "averages," which show a net change for the week of less than ½ point in the fifty typical stocks. This would mean that not all of the ground lost since the "oil investigation scare" began has yet been recovered. But today the oil shares were bid up from the start, indicating that speculative uneasiness over the investigation is being allayed.

Whatever the movement of prices is to be in the immediate future, it is not likely to be governed by the senate investigation; spasms of excitement, such as that of a week ago, are not often repeated after a market has reverted to common sense.

Debate Tax Legislation Situation.

What will be the effect of the attempt to cripple the Mellon tax bill depends on several considerations. It is not certain that the enemies of that measure will have a successful inning; the lines have already shown some signs of breaking and an executive with public opinion behind him is a troublesome adversary.

But aside from that, it is not wholly certain just how much of a part the treasury tax proposals actually played in the market's recent advance. If it was not the Mellon bill that put the market up, the market's fall on postponement or emasculation of the measure need not logically drive it down.

French Exchange Rate Rises.

Most of today's rise in the franc from 4.22½ cents to 4.37 had been effected at London and Paris between New York's closing of Thursday and today's opening. The day's higher New York price was almost exactly that at which the franc closed a week ago; which means that only the early and severe break of last Monday and Tuesday has been canceled.

Paris seemed to lean strongly to the belief that the Dawes committee's report will contain a declaration of the feasibility of meeting the French claims on Germany. Today's fractional decline in sterling may have resulted from the failure of the expected settlement of the British "dock strike" to materialize.

Deficit in New York Reserves.

A deficit of $5,603,350 in reserves is shown in today's weekly statement of the New York clearing house banks, in contrast with a surplus of $49,389,100 a week ago. Such changes, however, have little significance, depending upon the volume of rediscounts of member banks with the federal reserve bank. Loans increased $15,674,000, demand deposits decreased $11,760,000, and time deposits increased $13,951,000. Details of the statement, with comparisons, follow:

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—COTTON—A sharp break and a closing rally, with the last sales at declines of 29 to 34 points on the nearby deliveries, and at gains of 5 to 17 points on the new crop months, featured the market. Liverpool was in better shape, with a fair spot demand. The dry goods markets showed an improved tone and there is a feeling that cotton around 29 and 30c for old crop positions has more value. Prices follow:

6½% First Mortgage Gold Bonds on Land, Building and equipment under long term contract of lease to the United States Post Office Dept.

THIS will be the largest building west of Chicago leased by the Post Office Department.

95% of all the mail for San Francisco will be handled through the building.

GOVERNMENT will pay $107,300 a year rent, directly to the New York Trust Company, Trustee, which will set aside money for interest, taxes, insurance and maintenance, and hold the remainder in a sinking fund for the purchase and retirement of the bonds.

BUILDING will be of fireproof construction—concrete, steel and brick, constructed from plans approved by the Post Office Department.

VALUE of the land and building will greatly exceed the amount of the issue of bonds.

SUCH valuable property as security, assured income from "Uncle Sam" as tenant, and the liberal rate of 6½% interest, make these bonds a most attractive investment.

EVERYBODY will be benefited if, and when, the proposed new shore drive is built to relieve traffic congestion in the so-called "Neck of the Bottle," between Lincoln Park and the meeting place of Lake Shore Drive and Michigan Avenue.

That is a civic solution to a traffic problem. Now for the best solution of your personal problem—"Which car at my price will give me the most satisfaction over a longer period of driving?" The answer is, as already discovered by thousands and thousands of Chicago folks—Overland or Willys-Knight.

Because both these fine cars, in addition to their own quality and fitness, are backed up in and around Chicago by 24 capable service organizations. All easily reached no matter where you live or where you drive. There is no "Neck of the Bottle," nor red tape, to contend with when you need good service.

Willys-Knight gives you more mileage and more pleasure than you ever dreamed you could get from a car. The wonderful Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine actually improves with use.

Owners report 50,000 miles and more with never a need for tinkering with the engine! No valve grinding. No bother with carbon. No noisy cams. Just sweet-running, quiet performance that endures and endures.

Overland gives you the bigger power of a bigger new engine—big reliability—big economy—and the big, cushioned comfort of patented Triplex Springs. The very fact that people call it the most automobile in the world for the money bears witness to its all-round excellence.

In all Chicago—yes, in all America—there could not be a happier, more contented group of motorists than the owners of Willys-Knight and Overland.

Visit the nearest Willys-Knight and Overland showroom and pretend you are from Missouri.

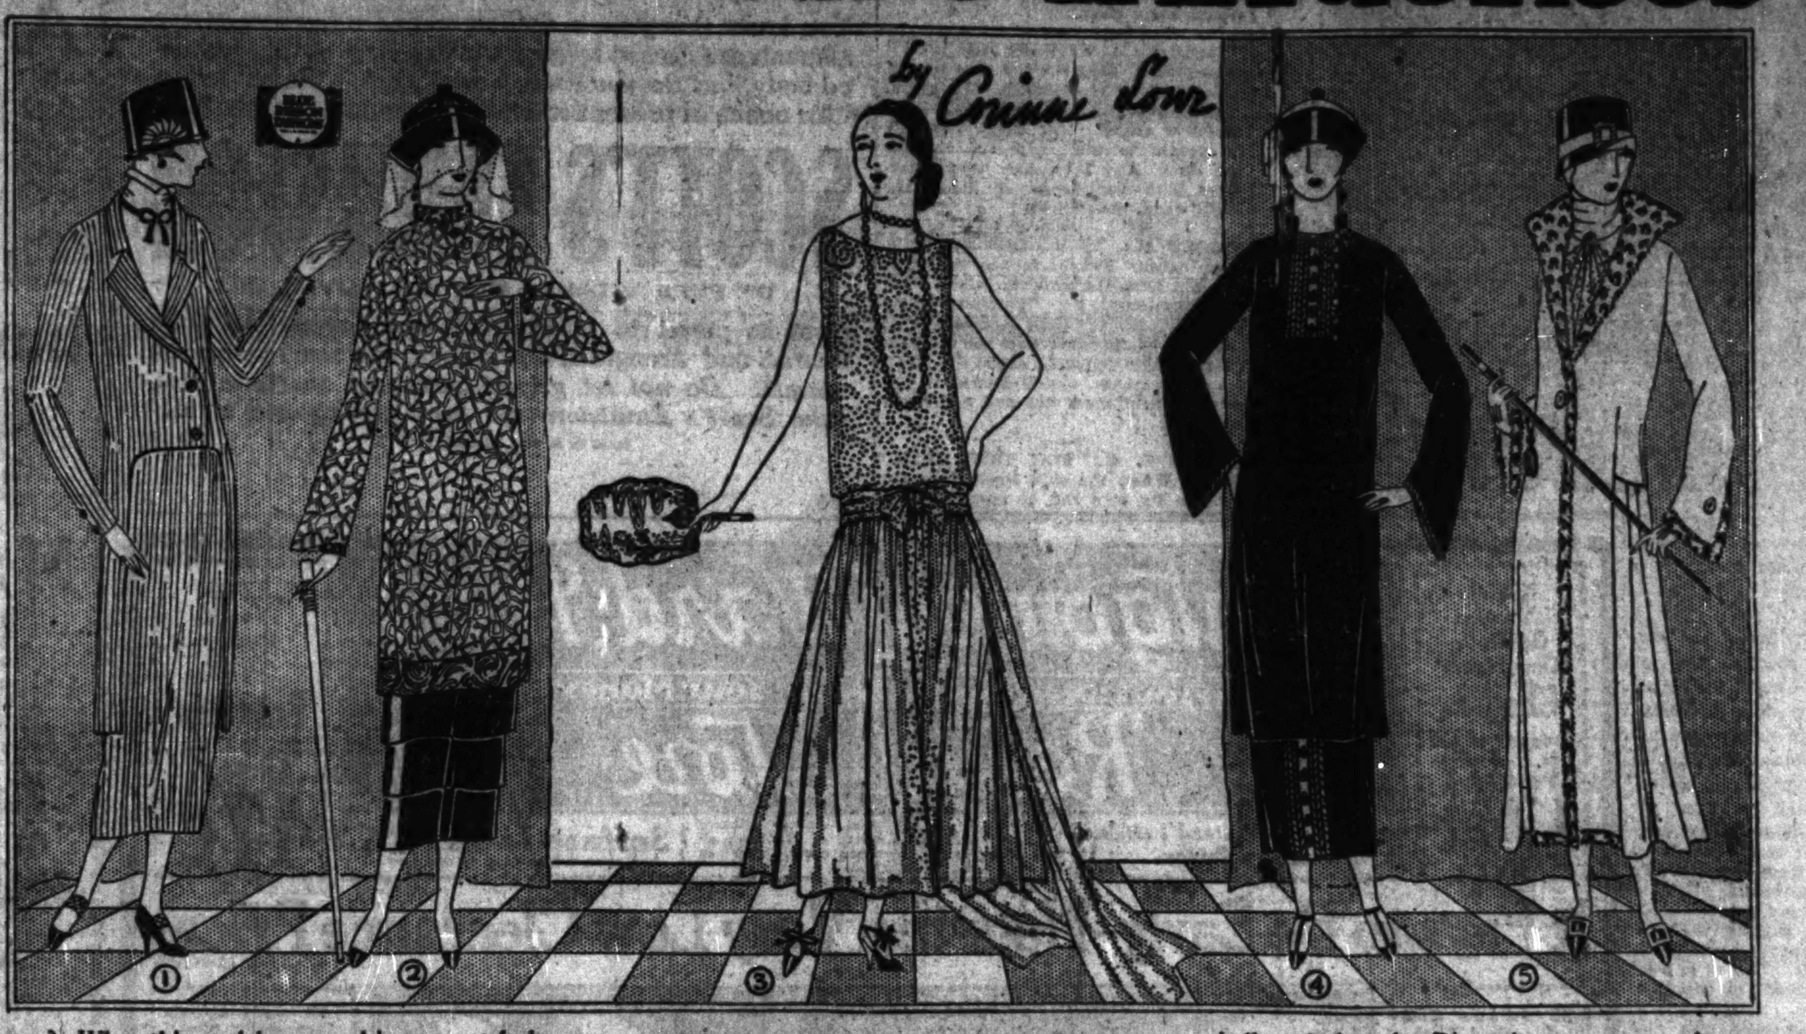
Chinese and Directoire Influences at Work



NEW YORK. — (Special Correspondence.)— The spring modes now being shown in Paris have not yet reached us. A few weeks more and we shall know the worst. In the meantime, the needle hangs poised and the feminine mind is torn by doubt as to just which way the scissors should turn.

Last week I spoke of the influence exerted by the Directoire ball held in Paris last autumn. That this influence is at work is indicated by many millinery models which have reached us from abroad. It is also clearly evident from many of our accessories. The high white stock and the walking stick are, for example, legacies from l'incroyable, that masculine dandy who complemented la merveilleuse, the belle of the Directoire period.

I myself am inclined to believe that the Directoire inspiration will halt at millinery and accessories and perhaps include several trimming details. Yet this is only a surmise, and it is not fully shared by many fashion experts. These point to several of our early spring showings in this country as indicative of a more expansive interest in the Directoire theme.

And certainly these precocious spring showings held by some of our most famous importers have encouraged a belief opposite to my own. For they have included tailleurs and coats that echo faithfully the masculine attire of that picturesque end of the eighteenth century. As an example of this kind of transcript we point to the illustration on the left.

Here is a suit in one of the fashionable hair line fabrics that is conducted on a policy approved one hundred and twenty-five years ago. Behold the revers, the two button fastening of the coat, that cutting away of the same coat in front. Surely there is nothing in this tailleur to make the shade of a Directoire dandy mourn the fickleness of dress. Nor does the wearer betray him by any minor infidelities. No, she has taken the high crowned hat of l'incroyable, affixed to it a ribbon cocarde, and then finished off with a high, white stock.

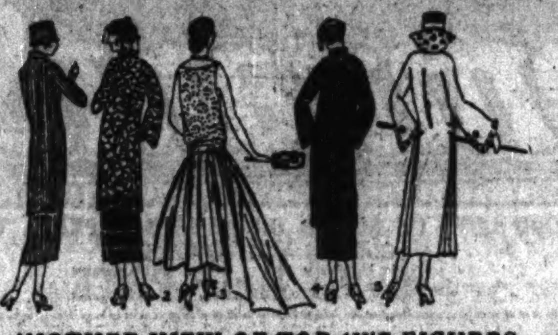
In another suit equally persuasive of its inspiration there is employed a seam to produce the raised waistline of the period. Incidentally, one may remark that there is nothing in the whole realm of women's suits so becoming to the small or medium sized woman as this long coat with the raised waistline. For, as I have often said, the high waist makes the wearer look taller. One hates, however, to doom a style by any such recommendation, for it would often seem that the minute a woman suspects a thing is really becoming she flies like a startled deer to the shelter of the chic, the severe, and the trying.

I admit being a Directoire fan. If it were my exalted lot to create styles instead of merely to write about them, I should cry despotically, "Bring on your Directoire modes. Let an order go forth that each woman shall wear them." For I regard both this and the Empire period as contributing some of the most graceful and picturesque costumes for both men and women that the world has ever known.

Certainly in coats the modified Directoire fashion has much to recommend it. What, for instance, could be more dashing and more distinguished than the coat of green crepe shown at the right of our page? When this model appeared in a recent fashion show, tears of gratitude are said to have coursed down the cheeks of many a haggard fashion writer. "At last," cried they, "here is something that is neither a slip nor a sack. After this era of boyish things, how wonderful to see something that really has a line."

Against the green of this crepe appear effectively collar, cuffs, and bands of leopard. As a matter of fact, however, the detail and line of the Directoire period are in themselves so decorative that many of the coats and suits developed in response to this period are untrimmed. I have in mind particularly a black silk alpaca coat with the triple shoulder cape so identified with this style of costume. The shoulder cape and the big cuffs supplied all that was necessary to the charm of this spring wrap.

It is not alone to masculine attire of the late eighteenth century that the creator of this spring owes his occasional fount of inspiration. After the tight bodices and full skirts with which we all associate Marie Antoinette, there sprang up during the French directorate a new type of feminine apparel. Of course, there was nothing new about it, for it went straight back to the draperies of ancient Greece and from these borrowed the high waistline, the plaits, the tunic, and the narrow skirt. Also it emphasized the Greek key border as a trimming feature.



ANOTHER VIEW OF TODAY'S FIGURES

I was thinking of this several weeks ago when an importer showed me a cable from his representative then in Paris for the openings of the French dressmaking establishments. "Poiret shows," read the cable, "Directoire frock of silver cloth with tunic girdled under the bust. Caret has more typical Directoire of gold tissue—skirt falling in points at sides."

But, although such news made my partial heart beat high with hope, there is no good in being too optimistic, and other reports from the cables quoted indicated that the Directoire note was only one theme in a composition stressing Chinese, Russian, and numerous other influences. It is, indeed, to this cable that I trace my present belief in the limited activities of the Directoire mode. The suit and the coat which I have shown on this page are good style and will, I am sure, represent good style throughout the spring. But as a rule it seems to me that our memories of the Directoire will be enunciated only in hats and accessories, in perhaps a Greek border or the cut of a collar. It will take something serious—such as an actual view of the new spring things from Paris—to upset my gloomy theory.

Perhaps even more insistent than the period of which I have been speaking is the Chinese mode. For some time past now I have been thinking that we were about to mah jongg. It has seemed to me that with shops full of Chinese blue, of Oriental embroideries, of mandarin hats, and of blouses with little fence collars, we were on the eve of completing our hands. This surmise has been justified by recent developments. Already the Chinese suit and the Chinese evening wrap and the equally Chinese frock are displayed in the specialty shops, and when the Paris styles are shown here it is reasonable to suppose that the typhoon of Oriental modes will break upon us in its complete fury.

As an example of this trend of the mode we show second from the left a frock which, save for its tiered skirt, might be worn by Miss Wung Fu quite as plausibly as by Miss Mary Brown. It consists of a long unbelted tunic of yellow crepe de Chine embroidered in gold thread. The smock is completed by a deep border in which the Oriental colors of blue, yellow, and gold triumph over a fleck of Chinese red. This embroidered band is repeated in the narrow upstanding collar and in the tight wristbands of characteristic widened sleeves. The skirt is of satin, and its black is taken up by a hat which has been transported bodily from the Celestial kingdom.

Not quite so frank about its origin is the model second from the right. Nevertheless, it is quite apparent that this frock, too, has taken that popular road from Mandalay. It is black crepe satin, and against this contrasts brilliantly a square vestee composed of narrow ribbons in all the accustomed Oriental colors. A band of Chinese blue embroidery is introduced in the center of the vestee which, by the way, interrupts the course of a Chinese collar. The narrow skirt showing under the long tunic is treated to the same ribbon and embroidery arrangement, and a row of small gold buttons ornaments one side of the vestee. This hat, too, finds its logical finish in a Chinese type of millinery.

Let me say right here that the frock with the long tunic and the narrow skirt is gaining in favor with every passing hour. It is a mode especially adapted to that smart black satin frock which is now noted so constantly at the tea hour in the fashionable hotels and restaurants. Sometimes it is long sleeved and sometimes short. It alternates a tiered skirt with a perfectly plain one. It varies its neckline in many ways, but frequently admits as a feature the long scarf. In any form, the black satin frock is today pre-eminently smart, and in the long tunic form it is especially so. Certainly she who wishes to be clad correctly for either restaurant lunch or tea can take no better advice than that offered by this fourth model from the left, for it incorporates in the long tunic idea the popular Chinese note.

But to go back to a more direct reference to the Chinese influence, let it be said that three piece suits of both silk and cloth are here to convey the Oriental idea. They button at the side, do the coats, and they are usually worked out with the aid of a mandarin toque. The last word of consistency is spoken when such costumes occur in either the lacquer red or Chinese blue now so fashionable.

Even sports wear has not escaped the eastern suggestion. I have seen several knitted costumes embroidered in metal thread into the familiar hieroglyphics. Incidentally, it is interesting to note that quite a few of these knitted frocks now bear a touch of metal embroidery.

The center model on the page is an evening frock adapted from a Lanvin creation made for the French actress, Sorel. It shows a white satin foundation embroidered in gold beads over the skirt of which is draped orange tulle terminating at the sides in two trains. Although created this last season, this frock retains all the style essentials of the present hour.

PROLOGUE.

Pa Potter has done his duty on the jury, as becomes a good hundred percenter. He is now back on the job in the Rankin organization, all pepped up to do right by the company. . . . He will need all the pep he can generate, for his job consists in merely trying to make all the departments work together smoothly and happily. . . . At present the organization is about as quiet as a bird and animal store, and everybody gets along together like the allies.

SCENE I.

RANKIN (to Pa):
I think you might start in this morning by going down and seeing Toohey.

PA: What's the matter with Toohey?

RANKIN:
O, he is all right, but his department is all jammed up. He's not shipping the stuff, and the sales department is complaining that the customers are dissatisfied.

PA: What am I supposed to do?

RANKIN (easily):
O, you go down and investigate, find out what's the matter, and straighten it all out.

PA (brightly):
That sounds easy enough. Is that all?

RANKIN:
Yes, that will be all for this morning.

(Pa gayly goes down to the shipping department and walks into the lion's den with a light step and a happy heart.)

TOOHEY (frigidly):
Good morning, Mr. Potter. What can I do for you?

PA (assuming the dignity of his new position):
Mr. Toohey, I have come down to have a talk with you about your department.

TOOHEY (belligerently):
Well, what about it?

PA (indignantly):
There seems to be something the matter with your shipments. You're not getting them out on time. The sales department is complaining.

TOOHEY:
Are you coming down here stickin' in your oar for the sales department? Go and get the facts and you'll find out they're the ones that are balling everything up. If they'd get their orders down here in the right time and the right shape we could ship 'em out.

PA (eager to agree and save trouble):
Is that right? Maybe you're right.

TOOHEY:
Of course I'm right. Go up there. You'll find plenty of things wrong. This department is all right, believe me.

PA (making dignified retreat):
Glad to hear it, Mr. Toohey; mighty glad to hear it.

(Pa slowly retraces his steps to the office of the sales manager . . . waits patiently while Mr. Graham finishes dictating a letter to a customer.)

GRAHAM (dictating):
But we feel sure we can promise you your complete order by the middle of next week. Our shipping department is overloaded at present, and after we have readjusted it somewhat we feel sure we will be able to fill all orders and reorders promptly. Thanking you for your past favors and hoping for a continuance of the same, we remain, very truly yours . . . Hello, there, Mr. Potter; what's eatin' you?

PA (a bit more carefully):
I was just down to the shipping department to see if we couldn't speed up the shipments. You know, the customers are complaining.

GRAHAM (ominously):
Yes, I know. What about it?

PA (bravely):
Well, I asked 'em what about it, and they said there was nothing the matter with them. They were all right. The trouble was with the sales department.

GRAHAM (hotly):
O, they did, did they? That's just like them, always passing the buck.

PA (a bit helplessly):
Well, whose fault is it? It must be somebody's fault, isn't it?

GRAHAM (shouting):
What's somebody's fault? What are you talking about? Do you know what you are talking about?

PA (bravely):
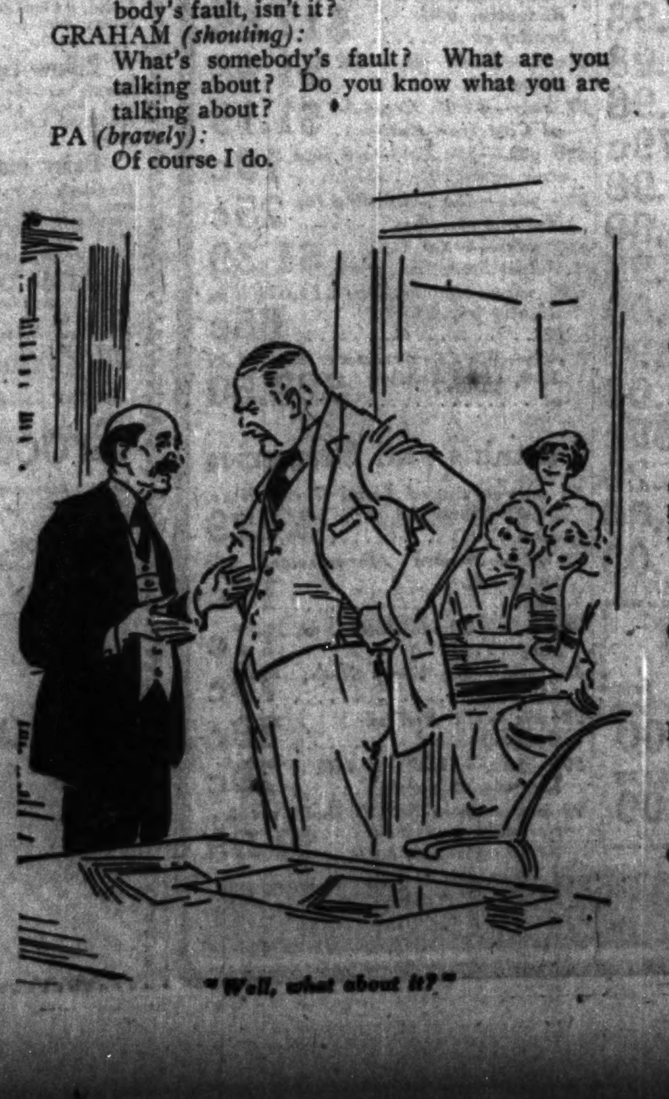
Of course I do.



"Well, what about it?"

GRAHAM:
I doubt it. Here you've been in this organization two or three days and you're going around telling everybody how to run their jobs. What do you know about this business anyway? Are you a salesman? Do you know anything about sales? Did you ever sell anything?

PA (stammering):
N-no.

GRAHAM (triumphant):
Well, then, just what I thought. If you're looking for the weak spot in this organization you're in the wrong place, I can tell you that right now. If you want to know who is slowing everything down I can tell you.

PA (meekly):
Who?

GRAHAM:
It's the editorial department, that's what. They're planning things without notifying the manufacturing department, and then the manufacturing department has to rush it, and then they dump it into the shipping department and clog it all up. The boss is all right, I guess, but he doesn't know what's going on around here. If I was running things, believe me . . .

PA (withdrawing in as good order as possible):
Well, I'm glad I've had this talk with you. Much obliged for all the information. (To himself): Swell head!

GRAHAM (to himself):
Big stiff.

PA (winding his way to the editorial department):
I'm going to find out where the trouble is in this organization. It must be somewhere.

(It usually is, Pa, but try to find it . . . Well, here is the editorial department, and Mr. Crowell does not look particularly friendly this morning.)

PA (shuffling into the editorial sanctum and taking a hard, square chair):
Well, Mr. Crowell, I'd like to have a little chat with you.

CROWELL:
Make it snappy; I'm busy. (As if just recognizing Pa): O, you're that new efficiency expert or something?

PA (with deprecating smile):
O, no, nothing like that. Mr. Rankin has asked me to help make the departments work together more smoothly—co-operate, so to speak. You see?

CROWELL:
Yes, I see, but I don't see how you're going to do it. A fine gang of bull shooters and buck passers we've got in this place. I seem to be the only one who is willing to accept any responsibility for anything.

PA (heartily):
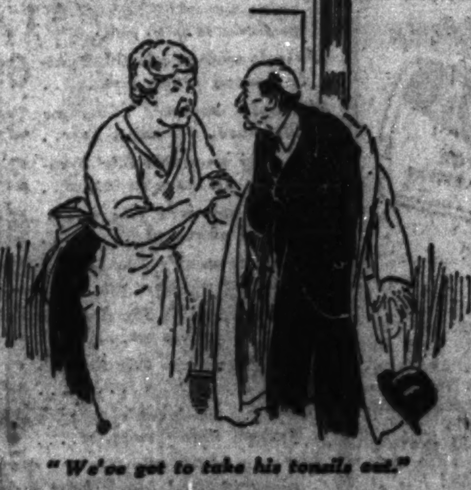
Well, that's fine. You know, I was just over to the sales department, asking them what they thought could be done to improve things, and they said they thought perhaps if the editorial department would take the manufacturing department into its confidence when they are planning things . . .

CROWELL:
O, they did, did they? They got a heluva nerve, they have. That gang of salesmen we have couldn't sell Scotch at a dollar a quart. What they'd like to carry is a line of five dollar gold pieces to retail at ten cents and a suit of clothes thrown in to the dealer with every order he buys. That's one of the soft spots in this organization, the sales department; but that isn't the only one. That isn't even the worst one.



"We've got to take his tonsils out."

PA (wearily):
Well, what is the worst one?

CROWELL (confidentially):
It's the shipping department. That's a mess. Terrible. Why, do you know, they've got back orders down there they'll never ship, and they never send out an order complete, and when they do they send it to the wrong customer. You take my word, Potter, if you are looking for the weak link in this organization that's where it is. The sales is bad enough, and the manufacturing is worse, and the cost department is a farce, and the billing is a joke, while the advertising is—but, then, you may think I'm knocking. I'm not, you know; I'm only telling you the truth.

PA (now absolutely baffled):
Thank you; thank you very much. (Rises unsteadily and staggers out, running into Rankin.)

RANKIN (gayly—a bit too gayly, perhaps):
Well, how goes it? Have you got all the lions and the lambs lying down together?

PA (with assumed cheerfulness):
O, it's coming along. I'm finding out a lot of things.

RANKIN (gravely):
Yes, of course. You would. But are any of them so?

PA (confused):
Well, some of them must be. But, then, of course, you never can tell. Some say one thing and some say another. You have a lot of people passing the buck in this place.

RANKIN:
And every other place. That's one of the great national indoor sports. Well, you want to get busy and get all the departments straightened out and working smooth. That's your job, you know, and (icily) what I want from everybody in my organization are results, and not alibis. I'm hoping you'll make good, Potter.

PA (eagerly):
I know; I will. (To himself): But will I? Gosh, I dunno.

SCENE II.

(Same evening. Living room, the Potter residence. Ma has heard Pa's step on the stairs and is rushing to meet him. . . . it must be bad news; she seldom bothers about greeting him otherwise.)

MA (as Pa wobbles in, wearily):
O, Pa, the doctor was here today,
And waddye suppose he had to say?
PA: How should I know what he had to say?
I've had enough trouble; go on away.
MA: He said that Junior was awfully sick
And we'd have to do something about him quick.
PA: Junior sick? Well, what is it now?
What a family . . . holy cow!
MA: We've got to take his tonsils out;
And adenoids, too . . .
PA (bitterly): Without a doubt,
And anything else that's lying loose.
Those docs have always a good excuse
For carving a guy with a fee in sight;
But nothing doing . . . that kid's all right.
MA: O, no, his tonsils are awfully sore,
And, besides, he'll never have colds no more
If we take them out . . . O, it's all right.
In fact, we're taking him there tonight.
PA (incredulously):
But hold on . . . lissen . . . what's all the rush?
MA: I've settled it all . . . you might as well hush.
You're lucky to have such a competent wife.
PA (helplessly):
Lucky? I guess so . . . migawd, what a life!

(So off Junior goes to the hospital, and tomorrow Dr. Cottle will separate him from his tonsils . . . we'll have to watch that.)

[And that's that—until next Sunday.]

THE PERMANENT AND MARCEL WAVE

by Antoinette Donnelly

When Consulting a Knight of the Curling Iron, Be Sure He Has a Skilled Hand.

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—In New York City alone it is estimated that 100,000 feminine heads are intrusted daily to knights of the curling iron for better or worse in marcel undulations.

In addition to this, between $8,000 and $10,000 a day is spent on permanent waves, guaranteed six months' permanency. In the springtime and a little earlier at the approach of the Palm Beach season the office receipts of the metropolitan city may run as high as $40,000 or $50,000 a day on account of woman's passion for the wave that stays put.

A thriving industry this. You will have to figure out for yourself what the total expenditure over the entire country must be. I am more practiced in the art of reducing figures than compiling them.

Having been asked by correspondents repeatedly about the advisability of having the permanent wave, I have made an investigation and find that the permanent wave is not what it used to be. Or, rather, with the really progressive members of the trade there has been in the last couple of years a great advance in the machinery and method of waving.

What It Costs.

Formerly it was a drying process, with the disadvantages of possible burning and bleaching of the hair, resulting in a mass of frizzes and kinks impossible to subdue into smooth and glossy rolls. Some of the nonprogressives among operators still adhere to this system, and consequently we still see heads that are not a success, that do not justify the money spent on the venture. It is not an inexpensive indulgence in any event. The better class operators charge from a dollar to a dollar and a quarter a curl. The average head demands from thirty to forty curls. A maximum price is set at $40. If one has more than forty curls, those over forty are not charged for. Bobbed heads do not meet with a corresponding bobbing of price. They average from thirty to thirty-five curls.

My informant, a man of excellent standing in the Permanent Wave association of New York, which was formed principally to protect the public from the disappointments of inefficient curl craftsmanship, tells me these are almost standard prices. He explains that where lower prices are offered they are made possible only through schools and organizations which allow students to do the work for experimental purpose.

And he claims that a certain scientific knowledge of hair, its elasticity, length, and strength, is necessary for successful waving, and this is gained only after years of experience. The success of the operation is entirely within the hands and knowledge of the individual operator. In order, therefore, to have the best operators they must pay them good salaries, which explains the high cost of permanent waving.

Hair Is Tested First.

There is a testing machine now, on which a single hair of the patron's head is experimented with for the amount of steam pressure it can carry, and the length of time required for the operation. It is worked on the same principle as testing machines for silk and cotton.

Formerly operators would wet the hair, wind it around the long pin, cover that with paper tubes, insert in the curling machine, and when the paper was burned off by the electricity the head was considered done. It came out of the curlers perfectly dry.

In the improved steaming process the hair comes out of the curlers wet. It is protected from contact with the metal containers, where formerly it was not. The result is a more natural wave.

The size of a wave is not determined by the instrument but by the manner in which the hair is wound around the pin, which is inserted in the curler. And this is another feature which calls for experienced operators. The length of time for the individual head of hair, too, is something to be determined by scientific calculation. It graduates according to length and texture. The time varies from nine to fourteen minutes, with an occasional head requiring seventeen minutes under the steam pressure.

There Is No Oil Wave.

"Can all heads be permanently waved successfully?" I asked.

"All can be waved, but not all successfully. That is why we have the testing machine. If we think it can not be done, we do not do it. It is not good advertising if every job is not well done.

"The coarser hair takes the best wave. Fine hair requires the minutest calculation and the most skilled winding and packing. However with the steaming process there are but few heads that cannot be handled with great satisfaction to our patrons.

"I wish you would enlighten the woman public on the erroneous idea about oil waves. It is impossible to make a permanent wave with oil. To make the wave the water has to steam at 210 degrees. To get steam out of oil it requires 400 degrees of heat. With this tremendous pressure there would be no hair left. The oil is used after the hair comes out of the curlers."

"How about dyed hair and the steaming process?" I asked.

"There are certain dyes that in no way affect the hair under the steaming method. There was a time—in the old drying days—when we would not touch a head that had been dyed. And now dyed and bleached hair is not as successful as the natural hair.

Guaranteed Six Months.

"How long does the permanent wave last?"

"We guarantee six months. But in reality it stays for two or three years. It gradually goes out as the hair grows from the scalp. Usually women who are particular have it renewed every six months. After the hair is taken out of the curling machine and given its oil treatment, it is shampooed and a water wave given. Any woman can give herself this water wave by wetting the hair and working waves with a comb into the position originally outlined. After every shampoo she can set it herself."

"It has come to be a trade, an art, or a profession, whichever you want to call it," confided my informant, who daily handles more than 200 women in his single establishment. "A good operator should never have a complaint. But it is the same as in every other business. If you want good work you must have experienced workers. You must have persons who know something about hair structure and who will use their brains in the handling of each individual head."

The estimate of feminine heads that are submitted to some kind of curl—permanent or marcel—is placed at 75 per cent.

For those whose hair stays in curl a month or so the marcel is the popular thing. And this, too, calls for skilled workmanship. The success of a marcel is not in the iron, but in the working of it and the comb, studying the face to get the most becoming line and being careful not to have the iron hot. A hot iron does not make the curl. It is in the control of the cooler iron that the art of the large, becoming wave lies.

Antoinette Donnelly's Beauty Answers

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

HARRIET: LIFE INSURANCE experts declare that for persons more than 30 years old underweight is a positive advantage so far as prospects for a long life are concerned. Since you are only five pounds under, according to standard charts, your chances for an early release from rent and wrinkle worries are no brighter than you would have them.

MAUDE C.: WHY DO YOU WEAR false puffs? They are not nice things, unless renewed frequently. The smart coiffure now is to have no outstanding muffs or cages. The closer the hair is dressed to the scalp—the smarter the line. Any false hair that interferes with ventilation or keeps the scalp warm does harm.

ROSE M.: THE CONTROVERSY is on again. Twelve inches, fourteen, or eight from the ground—which shall the skirt length be? Whichever it is, it will be shorter than last season or the year before—and now for the raid on my ankle reducing exercises. You may have them, and welcome, if you will only send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

MISS S. G.: FOR DRY, HARD skin? When the skin itself does not furnish its own fat, it must be supplemented by externally applied grease. Fats applied to the skin lubricate it and make it supple and soft. Use any good cold cream. Apply it two or three times a day until you have softened the texture a bit. At night, after your wash, dab on the cream generously and let as much remain on the face as you can. You can protect the pillow case with a towel and encase your hands either in extra large rubber gloves or cotton.

Says RED PEPPER Heat Stops Pain in Few Minutes

Rheumatism, lumbago, neuritis, backache, stiff neck, sore muscles, strains, sprains, aching joints. When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into pain and congestion relief comes at once.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the sore spot is warmed through and through and the torture is gone.

Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, costs little at any drug store. Get a jar at once. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on every package.

Soft, Curly, Wavy Hair Easy to Have

Beautiful, fluffy, natural-looking curls or waves, without the use of the ruinous curling iron, are now possible for every woman. Yes, not only possible but very easily and quickly acquired, and with benefit to the life and health of the hair. It is only necessary to apply a little Liquid Silmerine before doing up the hair, using a clean tooth-brush for the purpose. The hair will have a most delightful curliness and lustre, without the least suggestion of greasiness or stickiness, and will be quite controllable, no matter what the style of coiffure. And it will remain in curl for days and days.

As Liquid Silmerine is procurable at any drug store in 3-ounce bottle costing not more than a dollar, it is quite inexpensive to use, as this quantity will last for months.

Smiley-Wileys

A Smiley-Wiley is a jingle of two lines. Any funny little rhyme that will make folks laugh is a Smiley-Wiley. For instance:

May your path be filled with roses
And your kids have turned up noses.

You can probably write a better one than that. If so, do it and mail it to the Smiley-Wiley Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. The Tribune will pay $10 daily for the best one published, $5 for the next best, $3 for the third, and $1 for each additional one.

FIRST PRIZE—$10.

"Could you marry a man like me?" the eager lover cried.
I could, if not too much like you," the pretty maid replied.

Genevieve Clark, Crossville, Ill.

SECOND PRIZE—$5.

'Twas relatives we talked about, and surely that's no sin,
'Cause when he asked me for a "kith," I simply said, "You kin."

Mrs. E. B. Petts, Eagle River, Wis.

THIRD PRIZE—$3.

High school is a coffee mill, pupils all are grinds,
Grains of wisdom percolate into half boiled minds.

Mrs. G. H. Taylor, 406 S. McDonel street, Lima, O.

FOURTH PRIZE—$2.

"Liquid orbs," the poet sings, and wins himself a prize—
But would he, if he told the truth, and called them "Watery eyes"?

L. Rabb, 718 East Broadway, Logansport, Ind.

FIFTH PRIZE—$1.

A star fell out of the deep, deep blue, and it made all the traffic stop,
As I picked it up and handed it—to the great big crossing cop.

Miss Jessie Fowler, 100 Elm street, Oberlin, O.

She thinks of dropping Latin and all her friends concur,
For, knowing her, they quite agree, one tongue's enough for her.

Miss Florence Horn, 2306 Cullom avenue, Chicago.

"What would you say to a tramp in the woods?" he asked her smilingly.
"I wouldn't speak to him at all—I'm afraid of tramps," said she.

Geraldine Vaughan, 1214 Park avenue, Racine, Wis.

"I seek a loan," a stranger said.
He seeks alone, for the scene I fled.

Les Van Every, 118 West Main street, Kalamazoo, Mich.

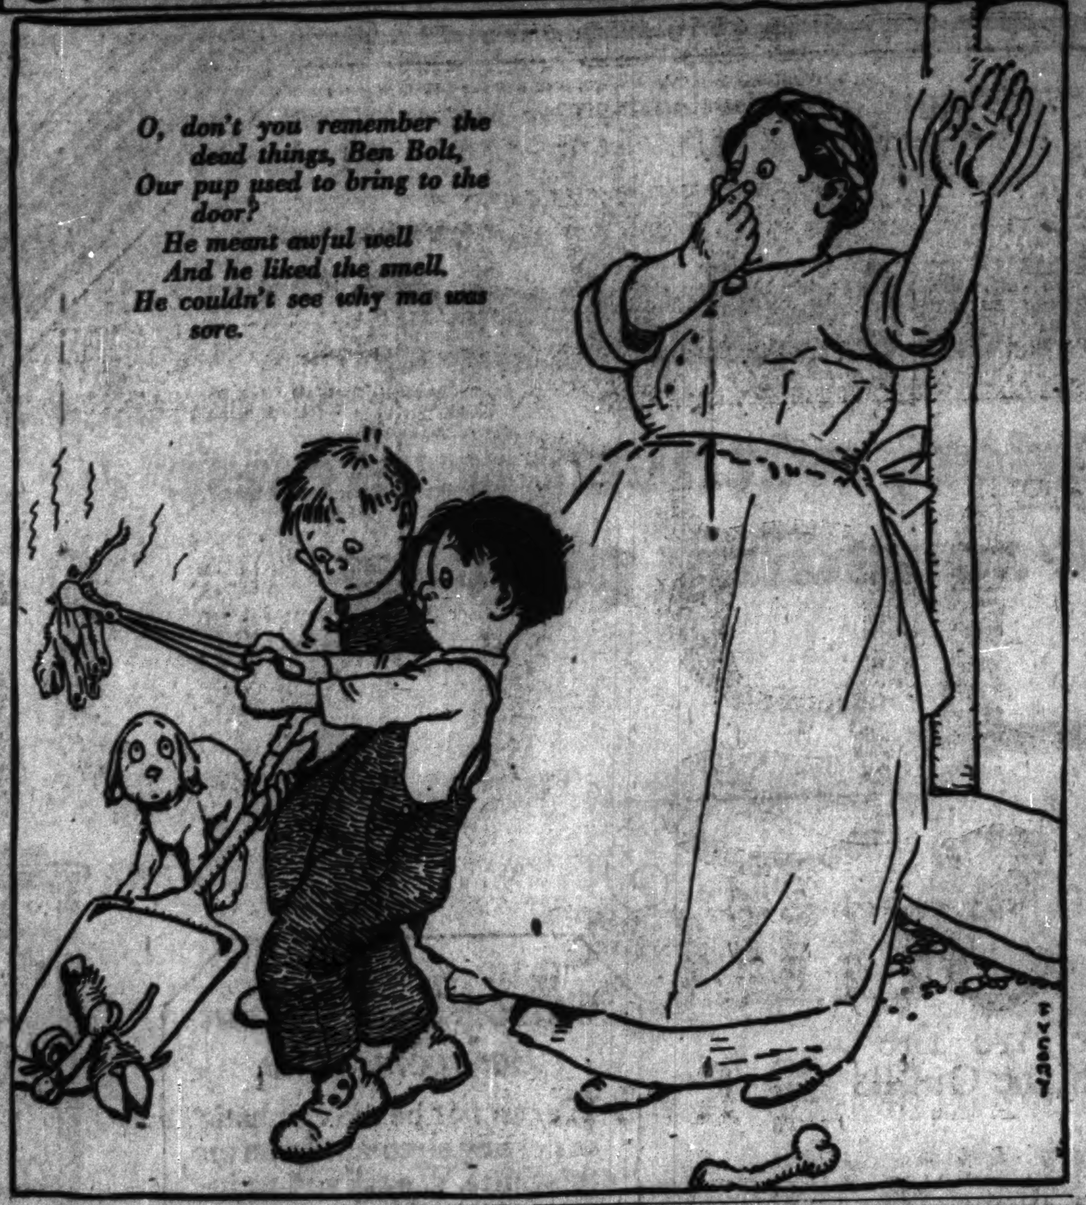
Said the gambler on the sinking ship, "I'm quite safe, I believe!"
"If this deck goes from under me, I've another up my sleeve."

E. Morris Stone, 124 Jefferson street, Waterloo, Ia.

"I love you, dear," he said, and gosh, it thrilled me so.
It thrilled ten thousand others, for 'twas o'er the radio.

Ruth M. Wood, 377 Mon. boulevard, Galesburg, Ill.

O, DON'T YOU REMEMBER—



O, don't you remember the dead things, Ben Bolt,
Our pup used to bring to the door?
He meant awful well
And he liked the smell,
He couldn't see why ma was sore.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possession you would like to enter the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

THE GREAT YEARNING.

DEAREST: The sharp, howling wind of winter sweeps through this lonely hut. As I sit huddled before the flickering fire there is but one thought present in my mind; I see but one vision in the shadowy flames. That vision, dear heart, is of you.

At times I drop into a semi-conscious state and in these delicious moments the past comes back to me, your soft arms entwined about my neck, your fair, white cheek upon my shoulder. The soft glow of the firelight plays through your lovely hair with the radiance of a thousand candles. Gently, sweetheart, I draw your mouth to mine, and as our lips meet the light of an eternal heaven opens before me. I feel the throb of your heart against my breast, and I find solace in the thought that love like ours shall never falter.

Beloved, must this dream be broken? Surely a love like ours is meant to burn together. I cannot live without you. It is terrible that anything ever should have caused us to quarrel. You were tired, dear, and I seemed unreasonable. How can I ever make amends for that one insane moment which destroyed your faith in me?

Dear, if you could know the suffering I have endured since our parting! I was but a youth then, but in this interval a man has been created, a man whose will has overcome all weakness but whose soul lies dormant yearning for the great love only you can bestow.

Life is nothing without you. Won't you forgive, and take me in your arms again?

CARL.

To Bob Or Not To Bob

That is the question. Some of you bobbed your hair long ago. Others are considering the matter. Are you glad or sorry? Who made you do it? Who kept you from it? Did it win or lose you a beau? Were you laughed at or pitied or admired for doing it? Were you surprised at the results when you looked in the mirror after the scissors had done their work? Did you lose your job because you did it? Or have you a better one now?

Write us about it. Tell us just what made you fall for the idea, or kept you from it. THE TRIBUNE will pay a dollar for every letter printed. Address letters to Bobbing Contest Editor, THE TRIBUNE, Chicago. No manuscript returned.

Not One Regret.

We were a group of five girls living together in a large Pacific coast city at the time of our bobbing bee. A moving picture was indirectly responsible. The versatile star was so irresistible with her bobbed locks that we decided there might be something in the psychological effect it had on one. That evening we bobbed the bunch, with much laughter and tears as a result.

We were all tall, past 25, and, I believe, practically the first tall girls in the city to have the courage. Were we sorry? Unanimously, no! There is something peculiar in the psychological effect it has on one, to break the man made traditions of centuries. It gives one courage, independence, and a wee bit of deviltry, especially if the young woman in question is past 25.

At that age we are expected to act in accordance with our years, to have dignity and decorum. At least, so thought my fiancé, who happened to be in a distant city at the time. The letters I received would discourage any girl contemplating the act. However, I am now married to the self-same man, and it is he who urges me not to let it grow again.

It has been my experience that bobbed hair on a whole is an asset rather than a liability in the business world, with few exceptions. It enables an employer to have the combination of experience and brains with a young and attractive appearance. Of course, it is necessary to keep the hair looking nice; that is understood. B. M. H.

It's So Emancipated.

There are six lovely girls in my crowd, ranging from 22 to 28 years of age, and when bobbed hair first became the rage it was a much mooted topic of conversation among us.

I, being the eldest and not wishing to be too strong "fur or agin," always said when pressed for an opinion, "Well, it is not a matter of life or death—take it or leave it as you prefer—and in three months it will be long enough to tie to sufficiently to be put up if it doesn't take."

Result—every one of the six has been bobbed; it has been found universally becoming, a benefit to the hair in every case, and no one is sorry.

I have often wondered why there is so much controversy over this fad when it is so easy to remedy if found to be unbecoming. It so rarely is found to be, however, and I look for the time to come when long hair on a woman will be considered as freakish as long hair is now on a man.

It is piquant, free, sanitary, and so emancipated that I wonder any one ever called a lot of long hair "woman's crown of glory."

It is one of the sure signs of the times, of progress, of change. Gone are the days of long hair, the long, lined skirt, the long corset, and, yea, also, the long beard, and may it be a long, long time before any of these are again permitted to reign in our midst. M. B.

That Undying Desire.

About a year ago I couldn't rest until I had my hair bobbed. The day finally came when I made an appointment and kept it. That day I had it marceled and curled, the result being that it looked becoming and beautiful.

After getting the usual compliments about how well I looked with it bobbed and how much younger it made me look, although I am now only 22, I was ready to call it a day. I went to bed, but my hair wouldn't let me sleep, falling in my eyes and face. Finally I got up and got a look at myself when nobody was around, and then begun to realize what I had done. Then tears and lots of them and regret. After a sleepless night I gave more thought to what I did and not until then did I realize how foolish I was. To think it takes only a few minutes to have your hair cut and probably ten years or more to get it long enough to put up. Of course, that day more tears, and days after that there were tears.

I have two younger sisters who were anxious to have their hair bobbed, but after seeing what I went through they changed their minds and are now two happy girls to know that their hair isn't bobbed. Well, I can truthfully say that I never once was glad I had my hair bobbed and the only thing it did for me was to satisfy that undying desire to have it cut, but 'twould been better to have kept that undying desire than create a feeling of remorse. W. M.

Says She's Sorry.

I am writing in behalf of those girls who have bobbed their hair and are sorry for it. I was. After the deed was done I looked in the mirror and was so horrified that I burst into tears before the eyes of the worried barber. It seemed to me in that awful moment that the short hair made my nose three times larger, my eyes smaller, and put the whole contour of my face out of shape. There at my feet lay the hair that had been my only good feature. Why had I done this thing?

The answer came spontaneously. It was the desire to be a flapper, the wish to be coquettish; but I had not succeeded. It was not my type; I'm the old fashioned kind.

Girls, stick to your type. If you're the home and mother kind, keep your hair; don't try to be a flapper, if you don't feel a flapper.

My friends pitied me and I was quite miserable until one day I met the young man who later became my husband. He liked my hair, though why was more than I could understand. Anyway, I am now waiting for it to grow long enough to be put up. E. P.

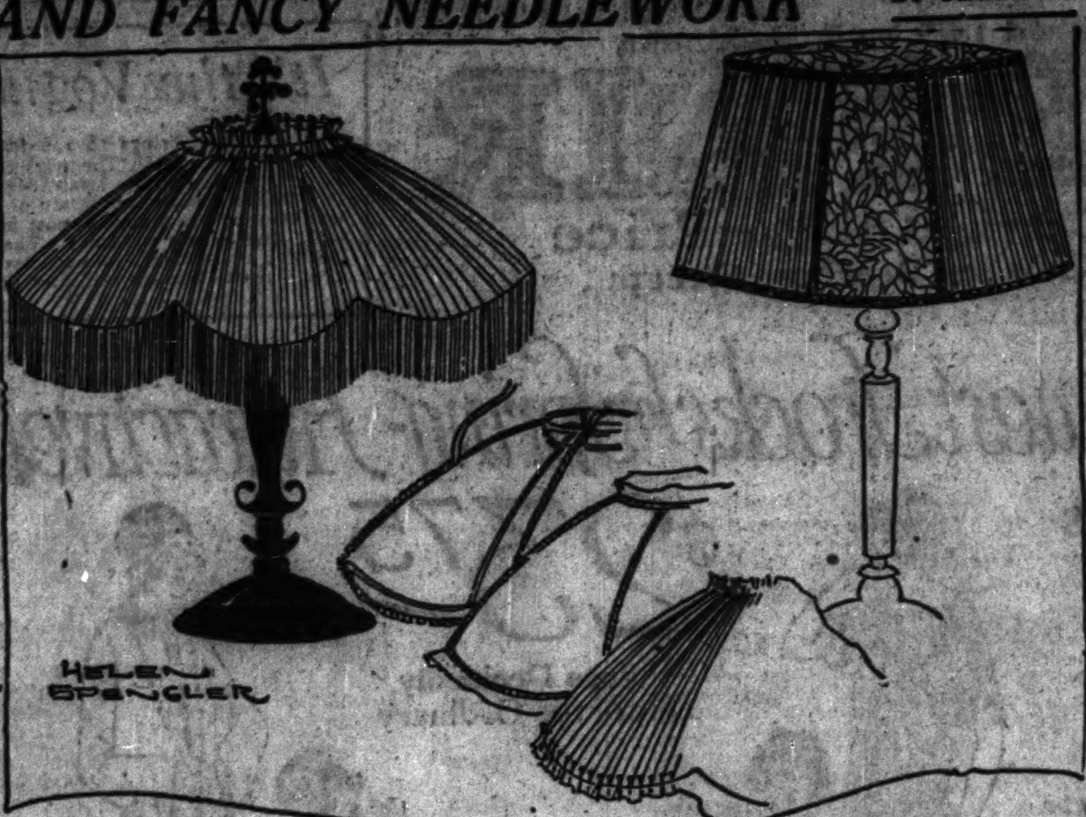
PRACTICAL AND FANCY NEEDLEWORK

BY CLOTILDE

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago.



DECORATIVE LAMP SHADES.

MAKING lamp shades is fascinating work, and after one has made final decision as to materials and colors to be used the actual making goes rapidly and every step of it is interesting.

Plain, changeable, or printed taffetas, brocaded materials, satins, georgettes, and chiffons are among the lovely materials to choose. The best way to get the effect of using several colors is to have them laid over a frame with a lighted bulb underneath. This will always be done, if you wish, when buying materials. The size and shape of the frame are points to be considered.

To begin the work, wind ribbon tightly around both the horizontal and perpendicular wires. This furnishes the foundation to sew the silk to later. Cut a piece of the ribbon three times the length of the wire to be covered—this is easier to handle than the bolt—slip it through at the top where the round and length wires meet, and tie in a hard knot, leaving a short end. Then cover a wire, winding evenly and tightly, and when the end is reached turn the ribbon in and fasten securely or tie in a knot.

The frame must be entirely covered before any other part of the work. Be sure to cover the wires where they meet.

If the outside cover is to be on plain—not plaited—the lining is put in first. Lay a length of the silk on the inside of the frame, holding it in place around the top with pins, clip around and above the top wire and cut away leaving a good half inch margin above the wire to which it is to be sewed. Fasten all around, using an over and over stitch, to the top wire, letting the raw edge go towards the right side. Then stretch the silk on smoothly, sticking pins in at close intervals all around the bottom. The pins, of course, are to go up and down—not across. The same margin of silk is allowed at the bottom, letting it go towards the right side. The outside materials are put on in the same way.

In measuring the materials to be used, find the longest depth and allow a good inch more on the material. Cut it by a thread. Plaited materials should be four times the width to be covered.

Where plaited georgette is used the lining is put in last. For a twenty-six inch shade five widths of georgette are allowed, for smaller sizes, four widths are enough. These must be cut by a thread and seamed together. The upper edge is turned in and gathered—using a long and short stitch. Take these stitches so the long one will stand up on the right side when the thread is pulled up. Do not take too long stitches, and make them as even as possible.

When ready to put on the frame, the distance around is divided into quarters, also the georgette, which is pinned in place and sewed over and over to the top of the frame between each long stitch. Laying the plaits at the bottom is a particular piece of work. Each stitch at the top is accounted for at the bottom, and no sewing is done until every plait has been pinned to the frame.

If the frame has a deep cuff, this is covered before putting on the rest but if it is only one inch deep the top covering is brought down over it—the sewing in place of each plait being done at top and bottom of the cuff.

Gold or silver or other fancy braids are often used for finishing the top and bottom, and the straight frames usually have a deep fringe. Silk ruching is often used in place of braids.

Mrs. Jane Kafka, founder of the Kafka shop for Young Women, in Washington, D. C., rose from a cash girl to owner of the store which she now controls as well as being a director of one of the large banks in the capitol city.

Mrs. Constance L. Heigh, president of the Ladies' Veteran Golf association of Great Britain, is reputed to be the oldest golfer in the world, being past 94 years of age.

A tradition of 1,300 years was broken and a precedent established recently when Lady Barrett was allowed to speak in an English cathedral.

Poland's excellent system of agricultural training is due largely to the efforts of Mme. Dziubinski, who spent many years in founding and directing agricultural schools throughout Russian Poland.

A New Way to Tell Your Fortune

BY NAPOLEON'S BOOK OF FATE

THE great Napoleon is supposed to have consulted constantly his mysterious Book of Fate and to have been guided by it in every crisis.

According to the English translation of Napoleon's Book of Fate, this ancient Egyptian manuscript, known as "The Scroll of Man's Fate," was committed to the care of the Egyptian priests by Osiris, king of all the gods and men, who commanded the priests, in their rôle of oracles, to provide only truthful answers to all questions asked, no matter by whom. And they were to make proper answers as set down in "The Scroll of Man's Fate," without fear or danger of hope of reward.

It is from this ancient and mysterious scroll that the great Napoleon's Book of Fate was evolved. We are publishing it serially, two questions and answers every Sunday. If you haven't yet consulted it, do so today, and see what fascinating entertainment you will derive from asking the questions and receiving the answers that are meant for you individually.

HOW TO GET YOUR OWN ANSWER.

Fix in your mind the question, to the exclusion of all other things. Then, thinking of it alone, with pen or pencil set down five rows of upright or inclined lines in the following manner:

| | | | | | | | | | | | | |

taking care, but not consciously so, that each row contains more than twelve such lines, in respect of the numbers of the signs of the zodiac.

That is, you must not count the lines in each row as you make them, but you must abstractly guide pen or pencil across the paper, so that the number of lines in each of the five rows, while more than twelve, shall be entirely without design as far as you yourself are consciously aware.

Having thus set down the five rows, you then count the lines in each row, to learn whether the number is odd or even.

Perhaps the count will show the first line to be odd, the second and third even, the fourth odd, the fifth even; you then belong to the class of mankind represented by the sign of odd, two evens, odd and even.

But no matter what your five lines show as to odd or even beginning with the first line and going down, there is an answer to the grand question of life that is meant especially for you.

You will find the answer you seek under the sign of your particular combination of lines of odd and even.

Bear in mind that only once you must ask any particular question—only once, in the above manner, must you set down the five rows of lines to learn your class combination of odd and even lines for that question. But with each new grand question of life you must set down the five rows of lines in order to learn your class or sign for that question.

When you have asked all thirty-two grand questions of life in this manner as they are published and have found the answers, you will then know your fate in full as it is set down in the great Napoleon's Book of Fate—the ancient and mysterious Egyptian scroll.

Thirteenth Grand Question of Life:

Will the Marriage About to Take Place Be Prosperous and Happy?

THE ORACLE'S ANSWERS.

If you belong to the sign of:

Five Odd: "Those who observe truly the vows that have been sworn at the altar need not fear unhappiness."

Even, Four Odd: "Mutual love will ensure prosperity and real happiness."

Odd, Even, Three Odd: "Confidence in each other will insure happiness."

Two Odd, Even, Two Odd: "The marriage will prove both prosperous and happy."

Three Odd, Even, Odd: "Let no petty bickerings disturb the felicity of the marriage state."

Four Odd, Even: "Happiness depends solely on the affection and forbearance of both parties."

Two Even, Three Odd: "This union will be productive of real happiness."

Odd, Two Even, Two Odd: "Marriage, when prudently undertaken, is the happiest state into which man can enter."

Two Odd, Two Even, Odd: "Let no one interfere in the domestic feuds of married persons; if left alone, they will soon subside, and the parties be as happy as before."

Three Odd, Two Even: "Let each concede to the other in matters of trifling import, and both will be happy."

Two Odd, Even, Odd, Even: "Mutual forbearance is the strongest bond of matrimonial felicity."

Odd, Even, Odd, Even, Odd: "Misfortunes may becloud the dawn of matrimony, but the evening will be serene and happy."

Even, Odd, Even, Two Odd: "Fear not that misfortune will attend this marriage."

Odd, Even, Two Odd, Even: "A marriage founded on avarice is seldom happy."

Even, Two Odd, Even, Odd: "Care not so much for abundance of gold and silver with thy partner as stores of virtue and prudence, and thy marriage will be a happy one."

Even, Three Odd, Even: "Let not busy and meddling persons who call themselves friends disturb the happiness of the married pair."

Three Even, Two Odd: "If misfortunes occur bear them with fortitude, and happiness will be the certain issue."

Odd, Three Even, Odd: "By this marriage, if thou art prudent, thou wilt gain much happiness."

Two Odd, Three Even: "Delay not this union, as thereby thy happiness would be retarded."

Odd, Even, Odd, Two Even: "Bethink thee whether thou oughtest now to marry."

Odd, Two Even, Odd, Even: "By wedding this person thou insurest happiness for a long season."

Even, Two Odd, Two Even: "Enter not into a state of which thou hast not well considered the end."

Even, Odd, Even, Odd, Even: "It behooves the party to make a light matter of any impediments which may be thrown in the way of his happiness."

Two Even, Two Odd, Even: "Much prosperity will attend the wedded pair."

Two Even, Odd, Even, Odd: "Be discreet in the connection which thou formest for life."

Even, Odd, Two Even, Odd: "Marriages patched up hastily end in sorrow; not so those prudently arranged."

Four Even, Odd: "If avarice or mere lust prompt thy marriage, expect not lasting happiness."

Even, Odd, Three Even: "When thou art wed, insist not too much on prerogative, but let each yield a little."

Two Even, Odd, Two Even: "To bear and forbear is the grand secret of matrimonial happiness."

Three Even, Odd, Even: "It is folly in thee to wed if thou hast nothing but mere beauty for love to feed upon."

Odd, Four Even: "Exert thyself to make thy partner happy, and thou shalt thyself be so likewise."

Five Even: "Examine strictly the disposition of thy intended partner and if it accord with thine own, fear not but happiness will attend you both."

Two Even, Odd, Two Even: "Fear not that another will supplant thee in the affections of the beloved of thy soul."

Three Even, Odd, Even: "Success will attend thy anxious hopes if thou art discreet in this matter."

Odd, Four Even: "A return of affection is at present doubtful, but perseverance and attention will insure thee success."

Five Even: "Thou shalt in time attain to greater happiness in this matter than thou canst at present hope for."

(At least two more grand questions of life, together with the oracle's answers, will be published next Sunday.)

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when properly prepared and taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest quality Willow charcoal powdered to extreme fineness, then compressed in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being sweetened to be smooth and palatable.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

Many physicians advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. They are also believed to greatly benefit the liver. These lozenges cost but thirty cents a box at drug stores. For a free trial send your name and address to F. A. Stuart Co., 10 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich. You get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets.

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is sufficient to cleanse your hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store; it is inexpensive and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Make Delicious Jam from Dried Apricots

Easily made at home from Alice Bradley's New Recipe

Every housewife is always looking for something unusually tasty that will appeal to the palate of every member of the family from the oldest to the youngest. That's what Apricot Jam does. As a spread on hot biscuit it's unsurpassed, and as a cake filler it's in a class all by itself. Some folks even prefer it to Fig Jam.

Here is Miss Alice Bradley's famous recipe, which is praised by everyone who tries it.

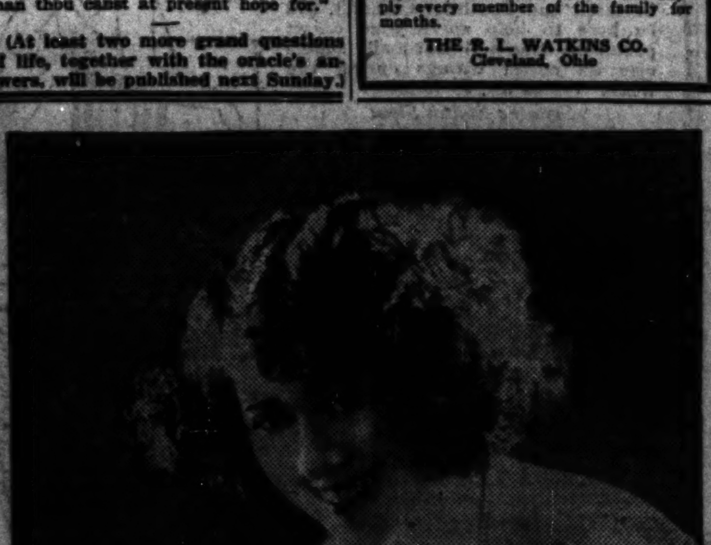
APRICOT JAM
from Dried Apricots

Wash and drain ½ pound dried apricots, add 2 cups water and let stand over night or until softened. Bring to boiling point, cover, and simmer one-half hour. Cut in strips, measure, and if necessary, add water to make 2 cups of apricot pulp and juice. Add 3 cups sugar, stir and bring to boiling point. Boil hard for one minute, stirring constantly. Add ½ cup (½ bottle) CERTO, remove from fire, skim, and pour into sterilized glasses. Measure accurately.

The above is only one of nearly a hundred special recipes found in the book on Jams, Jellies and Marmalades prepared by Alice Bradley, Principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, Boston, Mass. Other recipes in this book which make a special appeal to the housewife at this time of the year are those for making jams from canned and dried fruits, such as dried Fig Jam, which is especially good. Then there are recipes for making jellies from bottled fruit juices, perhaps the most interesting of which is Grape Jelly made from bottled Grape Juice, which is really much finer than that usually made from fresh grapes.

Try this new recipe just to give your family a treat, and if you are interested in making the very finest Jams, Jellies and Marmalades—many of them entirely new—at the lowest cost and with the least labor, write for a free copy of Alice Bradley's 24-page book, illustrated in six colors, "Jam, Jelly and Marmalade Making," to the Douglas-Pectin Corporation, Room 460, Granite Building, Rochester, N. Y. Better write today and get your copy at once so you can try some of the other new recipes for your daily menus.

IMPORTANT—Certo is pure concentrated fruit pectin made entirely from fruit, and supplies the jelly making principle which is lacking in figs and many dried fruits and fruit juices. That is why jams and jellies made by the short boiling Certo process look better, taste better, are more easily made and cost less.



At My Age

My Youth Cream keeps this baby skin

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Thousands upon thousands of women have asked me to tell what cold cream I employ. They see me with a girl's complexion. It is even softer, even rosier than 40 years ago.

Yet my life has been lived in the limelight. And I served France for five years in the rigors of the war.

A French Creation

French experts perfected this cream for me many years ago. It contains both lemon and strawberry. Also all the best that science knows to soften, whiten, smooth and feed the skin.

Neither I nor my friends have ever found a cream to compare with this. The expert makers tell me it is the greatest cream produced. So I have arranged to have them make the identical cream for you. It is called Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream. All druggists and toilet counters now supply it at 60c per jar. It comes in two types—the Cold Cream type and the Vanishing type. Be sure to get the type you want. Both have the same essential constituents. Neither grows hair on the face.

They also supply my Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. Also my White Youth Clay—the last word in facial clay. Also my Hair Youth, to which I owe my heavy, lustrous hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.

Go try my Youth Cream. Learn how it excels all others. Then I think you will want all the beauty helps which have done so much for me. Edna Wallace Hopper, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

Embarrassing Moments

The Tribune will pay $1 for every incident published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, The Tribune, Chicago. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Too Bad She Was Curious.

I am a foreigner, and at the time this happened I couldn't speak plain English, and most of all I had a hard time in memorizing.

I went with a girl and wanted to propose to her, but didn't know how to go about it, so I asked one of my friends to write me a proposal note which I studied hard.

After I thought I knew it well I pinned the note to the lining of my hat for the night I wanted to propose, and when we were alone I got down on my knees with the hat in one hand and started to propose, glancing back in my hat to be sure I was getting it right.

You can imagine my most embarrassing moment when my girl got up and looked in my hat. And the worst of it all is I haven't seen her since. E. S.

Removing the Evidence.

While buying handkerchiefs for Christmas presents I found just what I was looking for in pretty boxes, and without thinking began to remove the price marks from the boxes. All at once the steady gaze of the clerk made me aware of my error, and amid apologies and confusion I duplicated my selections to be sure of th eprice. C. S.

Hurried and Flurried.

It was closing time at the office. A friend was waiting for me, and I was in a hurry. Just as I was putting on my hat, my employer signaled me by means of a buzzer and at the same moment the telephone rang. Being in a hurry made me excited, and I was confused, not knowing which to answer first. I found myself at the door of my employer's private office, yelling "Hello," thinking I was at the telephone. They were holding a meeting and a number of men were present. I felt extremely embarrassed. E. D.

That's Gratitude.

My husband and I went out for the evening, leaving a table full of dirty dishes. When we returned we found them all washed. Without any hesitation I gave the credit to two boys who were rooming with us.

Confidentially, I whispered to a woman who also roomed with us, "I know they washed them, because they are dirty yet."

She looked surprised and said, "O, didn't I get them clean?" S. A. R.

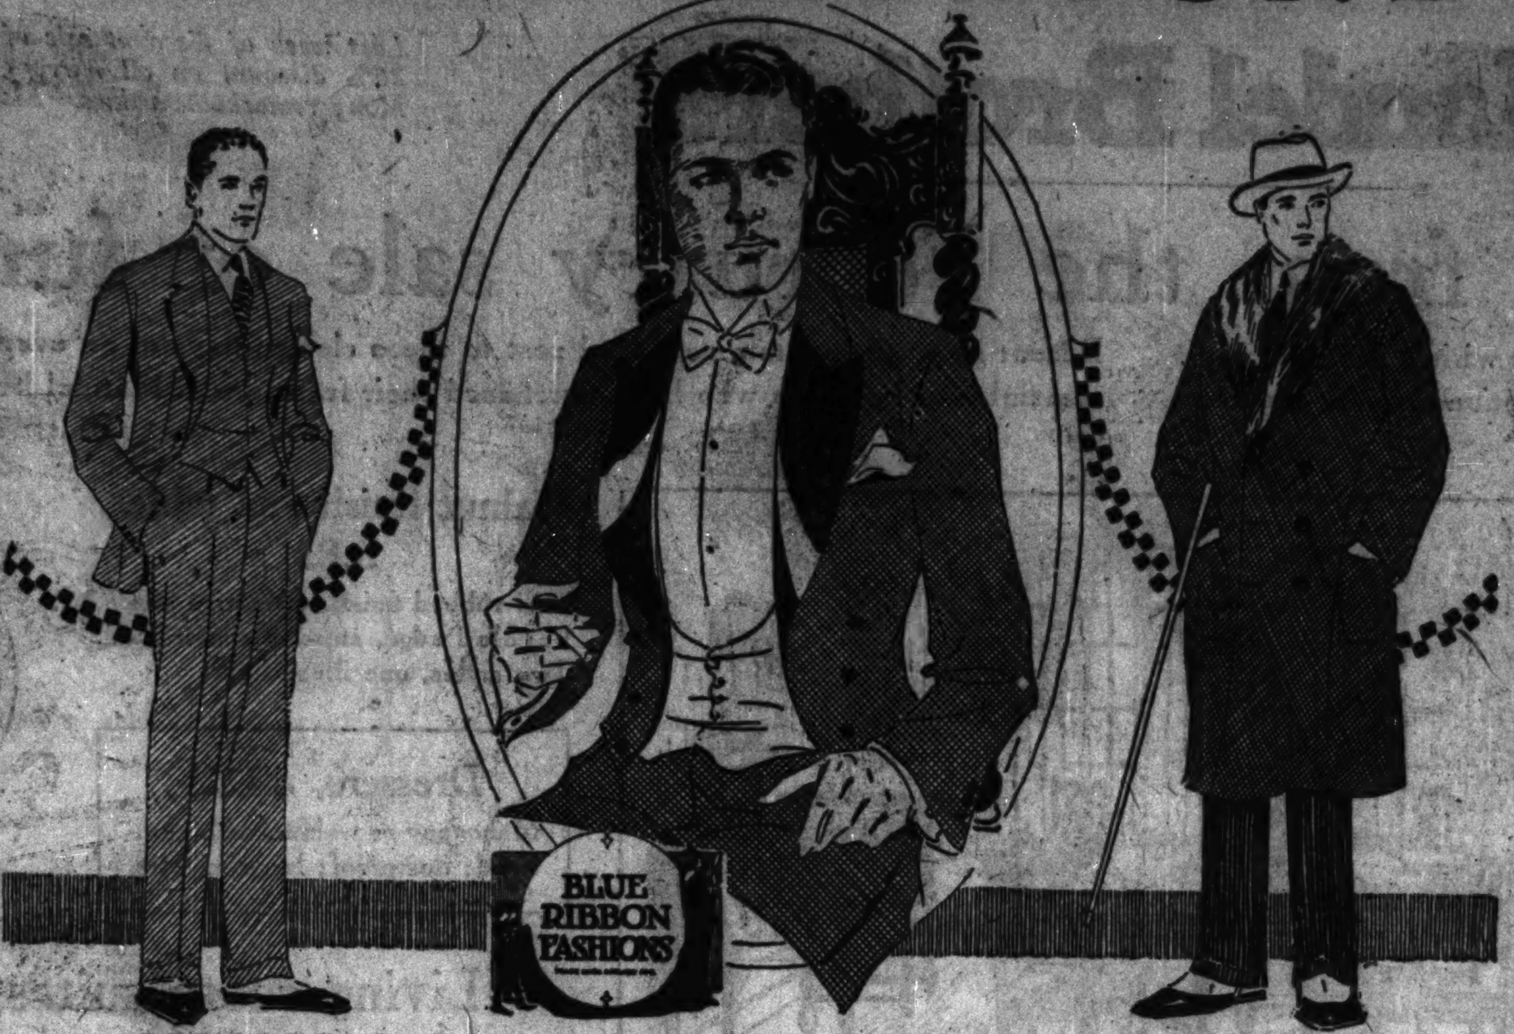
Never Shall Forget.

I am a student in an 8 o'clock morning class in a university. It is a large classroom and well filled with pupils. The other morning I wore a knee length string of heavy beads.

I came to class ten minutes late, embarrassment enough in that; but as I reached my seat at the far end of the room the beads caught and broke, scattering in every direction.

And, worst of all, instead of overlooking the incident, the professor stopped the whole recitation until each and every bead was recovered. My moment lasted for fully fifteen minutes. R. D.

MEN'S FASHIONS



CORRECT CLOTHES AND THE MEN OF THE THEATER

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

BY A. T. GALLICO.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—There are a number of reasons why we like to interview actors on their clothing, two of them being that they all dress interestingly and they are all what is known as good copy.

Clothes, to the average citizen, are garments worn primarily to keep warm and within the law. Of course, he likes to appear neat and respectable, but he does not give much active thought to his selection, primarily because he hasn't time.

On the other hand, correct clothes are vital to the actor when he appears on the stage. A thespian cast, to portray the rôle of a well to do young man about town, or wealthy business man, or young hero, would soon run afoul of the critics were his choice of clothing incorrect or at odds with the character portrayed. Much of his time is spent with his tailor. This does not mean that he is effeminate or a dude. It is his business to look well.

Naturally, he will also display good taste in clothes off the stage. In fact, many of the young juveniles of today, who have straight arts to play, walk on to the stage, if they wish to, in the same suit they wore down to the theater. One of these is Henry Hull, who, with Bobby Watson of "The Rise of Rosie O'Grady" fame, furnished the material for today's story.

In fact, Henry Hull told us that he would never wear a suit on the stage—that is, for a straight part—that he had not previously worn off the stage for a few weeks or so, and had sort of worn himself into. He claimed that a man in a new suit looked like, well, a man in a new suit. But after he wore it for some time it became a part of him.

Henry Hull and Bobby Watson are two cantrasting types, and yet both are conservative dressers. Mr. Hull is an example of the finest American tailoring and taste in dress, while Mr. Watson illustrates the present day leaning toward the style of dress of our English cousins. His plaited trousers, double breasted straight across vest, and English coat that he wore the day we interviewed him in his dressing room, contrasted with the strictly conservative American tailoring of Mr. Hull's sack suit, which was no less good looking. Mr. Hull told us that as long as his clothes fit him well and are becoming in color and line that is all he asks.

But, then, he has a valet who worries for him. We wanted to get a line on what Mr. Hull's method of attack is when he dresses for an ordinary day, and so we suggested that he tell us how he decided upon the various garments that he would choose to wear any average morning. Whereupon his valet, who was busy laying out his clothes for the first act of "The Other Rose," spoke up to the effect that Mr. Hull wore whatever he put out for him. Wherein we see that some of our best instinctive dressers are the powers behind the clothes closets.

Unless he is playing a gay young man or other character part on the stage Mr. Hull wears the quietest of clothes. His sack suits, of which he has in his wardrobe some dozen or more, are dark blue, or simple dark mixtures, or black. The one he wore when we talked to him was black, with faint line stripes. His shirts that he wears with the sack suits never vary from the plain white oxford with collar attached. He admitted to having this style of shirt in countless numbers in his bureau drawers. Mr. Hull's neckties, exemplified by the black one he wore when we were with him, are always dark, black being varied by dark blue or dark green.

When we asked if his taste ever ran to fancy handkerchiefs for the breast pocket he pulled open a drawer and showed us dozens of handkerchiefs, but every one of them plain white linen. "Five dollars a piece," explained the valet. Socks are the one article of dress in which Mr. Hull's fancy runs riot. He confesses to owning dozens of pairs of fancy Scotch woolen hose, of various checked and diamond patterns.

In evening clothes Mr. Hull is extremely careful to wear full dress when the affair is the slightest degree more formal than a quiet dinner with intimate friends or something equally informal. He never wears anything but a stiff bosomed shirt with the dinner coat—in fact, uses the same shirts for both dinner coat and full dress.

For formal day wear Mr. Hull uses either black cutaway with striped trouser or short black braided jacket with shepherd plaid trousers.

Mr. Watson told us that gray is his favorite color, that he likes fancy woolen socks and never wears silk ones, that he is extremely partial to polka dot ties, that he likes ties that match his suit, and that he wears solid colored shirts with self collars a great deal. The day we talked to him in his dressing room he was wearing with a brown suit a deep blue plaited bosom shirt with stiffened self-collar attached. A brown necktie and brown handkerchief in breast pocket completed an attractive outfit.

A FRIEND IN NEED
by Sally Joy Brown

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper. When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

CUTTING MISERY IN TWO.

"I ONLY wish I had written to you before my health failed. All my illness at first was worry, because half the time we were without anything to eat and there were no clothes for the little ones."

That's a hint for cutting the misery in half, at least, if only everybody would act upon it. At first there's just a little tipping of the balance against a struggling family. It tortures the parents to see their little ones in want. They worry, get desperate, spend their nervous energy. Then sickness comes. downright collapse—and we have another case calling for heroic measures.

But we can help without expense to ourselves, when the balance first tips, and end these troubles before they start—just by giving articles we don't need. I have any number of letters from people who are just at the point where a little help now will save great misery later on. And the troubles which are breaking their courage, putting them on the downgrade to sickness, and destitution, are so easily remedied in many cases.

Clothing your children have outgrown, old articles of furniture that are really in the way and that you are keeping as a matter of habit—haven't you something that would fit just one of these cases, and prove the veritable stitch in time?

Use for Old Blankets.

"I wonder if any of the readers would send me old wool or cotton blankets. I was operated on, and have been in the hospital ever since. I have a drain which must be changed every hour, and I use wool or cotton blanket pieces. My husband has been out of work for a year and a half, and I cannot afford to buy cotton. I will gladly pay parcel post. MRS. J. M."

Short of Furniture.

"I am coming to you a second time. Your help was surely appreciated the last time I was confined. I try to keep the children's clothes in good order, and when I am through with them I pass them to some mother who needs them. I am trying to furnish a little four room flat for my four children, as they are so confined in two housekeeping rooms. I saw an offer recently of furniture, and I wonder if there aren't some others who are changing their housekeeping plans and will have extra pieces of furniture to give. MRS. F. P."

Patient Who Knits.

"I am a patient in a tuberculosis sanitarium and do considerable knitting. If any one has any yarn not in use, even small remnants or discarded yarn garments that can be raveled, I would be glad to have them. I have a wife and three children. C. C."

Cannot Buy Clothes.

"I wonder if among your readers there is some man, 5 feet 8, weighing about 145 pounds, who has a discarded suit of clothes to give a man who is anxious to get to work and who has been laid up so long that he cannot buy any? I would be thankful to hear of some one. J. T. C."

Child an Invalid.

"I want to ask you to help a friend of mine who has an invalid child and who cannot keep supplied with clothes and diapers, as she has another baby about a year old. Would some kind persons send her a few clean old rags please? The invalid is 5 years old. "MRS. C. R."

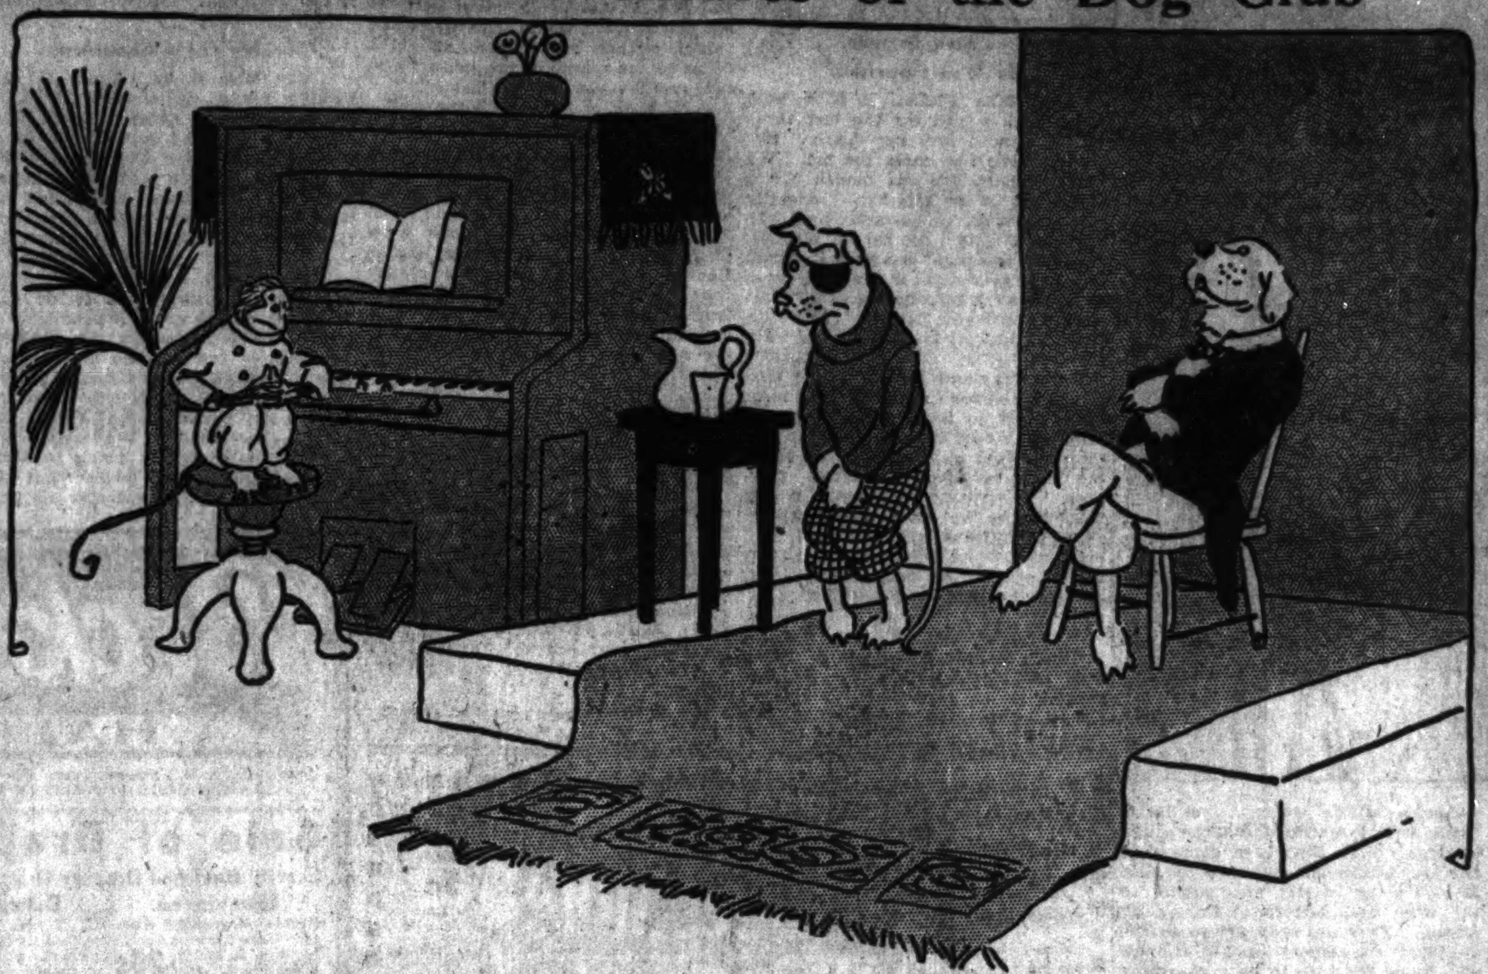
Wonderful Adventures of the Dog Club



THE GRAVEL-PITTERS GET A PIANO.

By Raymond Kelly.

Upon a silken cushion lay
A pale and pallid pup,
A-watching porpoises at play,
At pitch, at seven-up.
For no matter what's the matter,
Any mutt's a moke to mutter,
Though you can't build better batter,
When you're biting bitter butter.

So sang Toodles, the lop eared poodle poet of the Gravel-Pit club, and sat down amidst wild and delighted barking. It was a great night for the Gravel-Pitters, for their cave had just been made more happy and homelike by the purchase of a beautiful player piano. So it was perfectly natural that Carlo, the Saint Bernard, should talk to them on the subject of modesty, because there's something about a piano that makes you always think about modesty. Who ever heard of a piano boasting about how upright it was, or how grand, or how square? And just being around pianos makes a fellow the same way.

"I have," said Carlo, "an important announcement to make. The Gravel-Pit club is going to reward the modesty of its members. If there's anything that's worth boasting about, it's modesty, and nobody has more of it than we have. The first prize will be a plush pie percolator, and goes to the dog who has been the hero of the most wonderful adventure. He must never have told of it before, and only does so now because he wants to see modesty properly rewarded, even if he has to take the reward himself.

"Now," Carlo went on, "I want one of you dogs to tell his most wonderful experience. I know that you hate to talk about yourselves, but it's necessary sometimes. Who'll be the first?"

Then every Gravel-Pitter got up at once and began barking for Carlo's attention; every one, that is, except a visiting dog, who sat off in a corner and kept quiet, as visitors sometimes do. He was a rather dignified looking dog, although nobody could tell just what sort of dog he was. He was a great deal like that dog that followed you home; the one you'd have kept if the grown-ups hadn't said no. The visiting dog was much that sort of a dog, but he wasn't quite all there. There was a black patch where one eye ought to be, a bald spot on his back where some hair ought to be, and where he ought to have been wearing an ear, there was nothing; no, nothing at all except a knot hole which, as everybody knows, is nothing, not even a knot. Nobody ever saw a knot hole. You can see the wood all around it, and you can see through it, but you can't see the knot hole at all. All you can see is where the wood isn't.

Well, my dears, this visiting dog was so anxious not to talk at all that, of course, everybody wanted to hear him first, and so he limped out in front where the Gravel-Pitters could see and hear him better.

"I don't know much about modesty," said the visiting dog, "because I haven't any any more. I used to have, after that time I saved the child from that burning house and got the gold name plate for my collar. But everybody praised my modesty so much that I finally got stuck-up about it, and when that happened I became unpopular with the dogs in our street. That's how I came to look like I do now. So I've come to the conclusion that modesty is all right, but that it's better not to have it than to be offensive about it."

Here the visiting dog sat down, and all the Gravel-Pitters were as quiet as he was, which was quiet, indeed.

Bobby was playing with Billy in Billy's yard, and a serious altercation had arisen about their rights. "I'm goin' home," said Bobby, "and I won't never, never come into your old yard again, and what's more, I won't ever speak to you again. I'm through."

Before Billy had a chance to reply, his mother came to the back door and said, "Here, Billy, is a plate of cookies for you and Bobby. Eat them while they are nice and hot."

"Aw, I don't keep a mad long," said Bobby, assuming an entirely different tone. "Why, I is all unmadded now." B. R.

My sister, her husband, and two children had gone to the city on a short trip, leaving Milton with me.

For a short time the child played with his toys. Then, feeling something amiss, he climbed on my lap and said: "Well, auntie, I guess you and I will have to lonesome this together." D. L.

I and my two sons recently visited friends. The apartment was lovely, but there did not seem to be much space for two boisterous boys.

When we arrived at home Jim gave a sigh of relief and said, "Gee, I'm glad to get out of that noise where everything is don't." F. W.

During a recent illness my nurse answered the door bell.

A small neighbor came to inquire for me, and said: "I would like to come in but they tell me I am too noisy." E. U. G.

James had been quarreling with a playmate, who got the best of him, and still was in an ugly mood when he stopped in to play with Davy. Before long he was trying to pick a fight with the youngster, but Davy, knowing of the previous trouble and being of a peaceable disposition, refused to get angry, saying, "Go on home; there's no use of your parking your mad on me." Johnnie's mother was going downtown to do some shopping and so she told Johnnie to go over to his aunt's, who lived next door, and ask if he could spend the afternoon there.

Johnnie hurried over and upon finding his aunt called out gaily, "Aunt Mae, mother wants to know if you wouldn't like to borrow me this afternoon?" E. R.

Teddy had a fight with a boy considerably taller than he is.

His mother felt bad about it and reproached him solemnly.

"Well, anyhow, mother," Teddy finished, smiling through his tears, "I can lick him even if I ain't higher up." E. C. B.

THE CASE OF THE ERRING HUSBAND

By DORIS BLAKE

To Forgive or Not to Forgive Is the Question for the Injured Wife to Decide.

THE story of a man contented with his wife during their early struggle and dissatisfied with her during newly gained prosperity is a story heard almost every day in divorce courts.

Before me is a letter from a wife who asks whether she should take back the man who deserted her for a young woman, leaving her with two youngsters to support. Now that he has been completely disillusioned with the younger woman and is broken in spirit and finance, he writes his first love to ask if she will remarry him.

He has divorced No. 2, whom, he confides, he grew to despise.

The first wife writes that she has had a twelve year struggle to support her two boys, who now are earning money and resent the idea of their father's return. They threaten to leave home if he comes back.

She Must Decide.

What would you advise her to do? She does not tell me whether or not the erring father still has a claim on her heart. He may have. Her boys may leave her one of these days to set up homes of their own, and then, what of her? Might she not be happier with the chastened and humbled mate than by going on alone? Is it not something which she alone may decide? It is a problem, I fear, which rests with her conscience and her capacity for forgiveness.

But it brings up the question of man's right to expect forgiveness. It brings up the question of man's blindness to the character of the woman who steals him from his duty and responsibility toward his wife and family.

One marvels so frequently at the type of woman who attracts a man, at the amazing contrast in virtues between her and the woman he is willing to desert.

A young woman who will deliberately set out to entice a man away from his wife and family is selfish, grasping, and incapable of bestowing a grain of human affection upon him.

Success Often the Cause.

Arthur McCold, an attorney with long experience in the courts, tells of a man who came from a small town to the city, where through energy and effort he rose in his business and became a strong factor in politics. His wife was devoted to him, and apparently they were congenial. But success had a demoralizing influence on him with respect to his family and home. Through his policy of manipulating all circumstances to his personal advantage, with absolute selfishness, he gradually lost all sense of duty and responsibility.

His business kept him from home most of the time, and presently he met a widow with whom he was constantly associated. She, designing and thoroughly selfish, laid her plans to better her station in life. Realizing his prominence, she exerted all her powers to win his admiration and affection. She was sufficiently clever to accomplish her end, so that he soon became entirely subservient to her.

He determined to secure release from his wife by making their home life unpleasant, and at last he induced her to move from the apartment where they lived.

He promised to join her, but took up his residence in another part of the city, planning a divorce. The necessary two years elapsed, when he induced his wife to obtain a divorce on the grounds of desertion. He arranged for sufficient alimony to support her, and soon afterward married the designing widow.

The marriage continued for a short interval only. She soon displayed her true character. He quickly discovered her cold hearted selfishness and lack of affection. The disappointment in finding that their relationship was entirely different from the dreams and anticipations he had entertained brought him to his senses. Regretfully he realized how unfairly he had treated his wife and how their son had suffered from the humiliation.

His awakening came too late, however. When he made an effort toward a reconciliation he found he had lost his former wife's love and confidence. There was nothing to do but to separate from his second wife as quickly as possible. She used her position to great advantage in forcing him to a liberal settlement, and was thoroughly happy to be rid of him as well.

Lose All Sense of Values.

There is a young woman of 23 with a heart so stony one is amazed that twenty-three years could accomplish such complete sublimation of every fair and decent impulse. She has made the boast that she is going to marry a man of considerable means, although at the present time he is living with his wife and three small children. And there are signs that she may accomplish her ambition. He is slowly but surely succumbing to the wiles and flattery of the young person. They are seen about, to the complete amazement of his friends, who know his wife to be a charming wife and mother.

Is it the vanity which causes men to lose their usual fine sense of values when it comes to estimating the women for whom they overthrow their wives? Are they blinded by their irresistible power over women? Do they ever stop to ask if this young person would give them a second look if they did not represent money and luxuries? It is not in the nature of loving women—affectionate, idealistic women—to attempt to attain happiness at the cost of a great unhappiness to another woman.

But I don't suppose the easy victims to blonde curls and baby stares ever look beyond the ringlets and the twinkling eyes. They never visualize themselves in the light of marriage as it was lived with number one, the hours that are bound to be a trifle dull, evenings when they are in each other's company away from the rose shaded lights. Yet, there will be repetition of the irritations and disillusions, the demands and the disappointments that two adults thrown continuously together must meet, the faults which, when true love is present, are minimized into easily forgiven trifles.

All Deliberately Staged.

Temptations come into the lives of all of us. And I suppose only a man may know the temptation of a pretty woman who tells him he is not appreciated by the woman to whom he married, tells it in studied tones of tender sympathy in an atmosphere of soft lights and delicate perfumes, comfortably upholstered chairs, and subdued quiet—stage settings, deliberately planned and executed!

Why cannot he see the actress in the woman who is leading him on! Why not mentally try her out in the rôle his wife has had to play these ten or fifteen years, and then make his decision as to which is capable of affection.

ANSWERS TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

He Was Surprised.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a girl for the last three months, and I love her dearly. She has told me she cares for me. We kept company for one month before she would let me kiss her. Generally I called for her on Saturday and Sunday, but of late I see her on Wednesday also. One night last week I wanted to bid her good night in the usual manner, but to my surprise she said: "This is not Saturday or Sunday." And with that I had to say good night and walk off.
"TROUBLED CHICK."

If Saturday and Sunday are her kissing nights—then I see where you have to go back to them for calling evenings. That is, if that is all the girl means to you! A girl is wise not to let the habit become too habitual, however. A surprise now and then is relished by the most osculatory of young men, think you not? And, as I have pointed out before, if a girl must kiss to please, her safety lies only in sending the man away unsurfeited.

You Must Be Firm.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man of 23; the girl is 20. We arranged to be married next month, but—the girls in her office, who are the silly kind, tell her she is too young to think of marriage and also tell her crazy things that make her feel blue. Now she tells me she doesn't know what she wants, and she fears rushing into it. I will admit, and so will she, that I am good to her. If she loved me, would she let those things disturb her? What should I do as to the marriage proposition and how can I make her feel better?
"JUST WORRIED."

Some one should take the girl in hand and give her a talking to about the necessity of making her own judgments and sticking to them. A girl who is easily influenced by the opinion of others makes a difficult wife. If I were you I would talk to her like an uncle, and make her realize that you fear the prospect of life with one subject to such easy and disconcerting influence. If she loves you she will take this from you now when she stands most in need of it.

Think It Over.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 20 and keep company with a fellow two years my senior. I love him dearly, and he has always told me he loved me. I kid him by telling him he is a homely looking fellow and that my girl friends said he was such a funny looking fellow for me to go with. I am sure I hurt his feelings. Now he doesn't speak to me the way he used to. He is getting fresh. Do you think I will lose his love by saying these things?
WORRIED."

You have a strange way of showing your love for the young man, and I think he must be exceedingly good natured to stand for such remarks. Naturally you hurt him every time you talk like that. How would you like him to say nasty things to you? Think it over, my dear, before it is too late.

Looking for a Sweetheart.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 25 and looking for a sweetheart. I go to dances with my sister. I get introduced to girls and I do not know what to talk about after the introduction. I am not a good conversationalist, which is a handicap. Please tell me what to do. I never get an invitation to call on them like the other men do.
"WONDERING."

If I were you, I would make myself interesting to girls, but to do this you must devote some of your time to study. Keep posted on the news of the day by reading the newspapers, current magazines, and books. Show interest in what girls like—theaters, movies, and dances. Don't forget you must do your share of the inviting and entertaining—suggest going to some place of amusement. After that the young women will, no doubt, ask you to their homes.

Put Your Complexion Powder to This Simple Test!

Take a cup of water. Drop into it a small quantity of the face powder you are using, stir it in. Will the powder—or any part of it—mix with the water, becoming pasty?

Obviously, if it does, it will mix in the same way with the normal perspiration from your skin. Here is a very common source of clogged pores—enlarged, discolored!

If it is LUXOR COMPLEXION POWDER you use, not the slightest particle will be absorbed. LUXOR cannot clog pores! Using only the purest of ingredients—no lead or bismuth, no starchy or greasy substance—it safely protects the most sensitive skin.

To a generation of lovely women, LUXOR COMPLEXION POWDER has been an indispensable aid to beauty. Supremely fine, smooth, and even of texture, exceptionally adherent, it gives that velvety tone that is the mark of the perfect natural complexion.

HOW TO ORDER YOUR CLOTILDE PATTERNS.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of each pattern you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Clotilde, CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Chicago.

How to Use the Patterns

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

THE lines of this small girl's frock pattern, No. 1896, are particularly good. The middle front and back are each one in one piece, and there are side front and back pieces, the underarm seam of each goring out towards the bottom. In order to have the dress keep a straight line effect, ribbon may be sewed underneath front and back at the waist line and tied together on each side, the bows coming on the underarm seams. Such an arrangement seems prettier than the usual sash.

The dress closes on the left side front—and if small snaps are used and well put on no sign of a fastening will be visible.

The sleeves may be long or short, and the design of the dress would be suitable for wash dresses; made of taffeta or challis or one of the fine woolens, it would make a dressy frock, suitable for many occasions.

Printed batiste or one of the English prints would make up charmingly for general wear.

The shirt pattern, No. 1297, is one that every wife and mother will be glad to have. If one has time and can do the work properly, many a dollar will be saved by making these garments.

There are beautiful madras cloths, percales, ginghams, and English broadcloth—cotton and silk broadcloth from which to choose; but it is by no means necessary to buy the most expensive to get something durable and good looking.

Thoroughly shrink and set the colors in the materials before cutting. The chart on the pattern envelope shows the most economical way to lay the pattern pieces on thirty-six inch material. It is always wise to lay every piece on the material before cutting any out.

The back yoke and cuffs may be cut across the material instead of on the length—this being particularly effective if there are stripes.

Lay the back yoke in place on the back of the blouse, and baste together in a seam that will come on the right side. Stitch this seam, remove the bastings, and lay the seam edges up towards the yoke. Then take the outside yoke piece and lay in place, pinning in a few places to hold; then turn in the lower edge, baste, and stitch twice across the bottom—once on the edge and the second time three-eighths of an inch above.

Stitch the shoulder seams on the right side, stitching the under side of the yoke and the fronts together. Turn the seams up towards neck and then baste the outside yoke over the seams and stitch twice—matching the stitching across the bottom of the yoke.

The sleeve openings should be attended to next—the directions on the pattern are clear on this. Then trace a line across the top of each sleeve about three-quarters of an inch below the edge and after clipping the edge of the armholes all around at close intervals turn the edge in and baste over the edge of the sleeve, letting the folded edge come on the traced line. Then turn to the wrong side, clip the sleeve edges where necessary, turn in, baste, and stitch close to the edge. Stitch close to the other turned in edge also. The bottom of the shirt and the under arm and sleeve seams are next to be taken care of. A narrow hem is basted and stitched around the bottom of the shirt pieces and then the sleeve and under arm seams are basted and stitched together—making a ⅜ inch wide felled seam.

A gusset should be sewed at the end of each underarm seam. Neck bands can be bought ready made and they save much time and trouble. The cuffs should not need any special directions for making or stitching on the shirt.

Pattern No. 1862 is for bloomers that are worn by the majority of women. Silk jersey is one of the best materials for these, and if made with double shirring at the bottom there are many clever ways of making this part decorative. Both seat and leg should be reinforced with shaped pieces of the material—which will add to the length of service. Crêpe de chine, wash satin, or light weight sateen are also good materials to use.

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

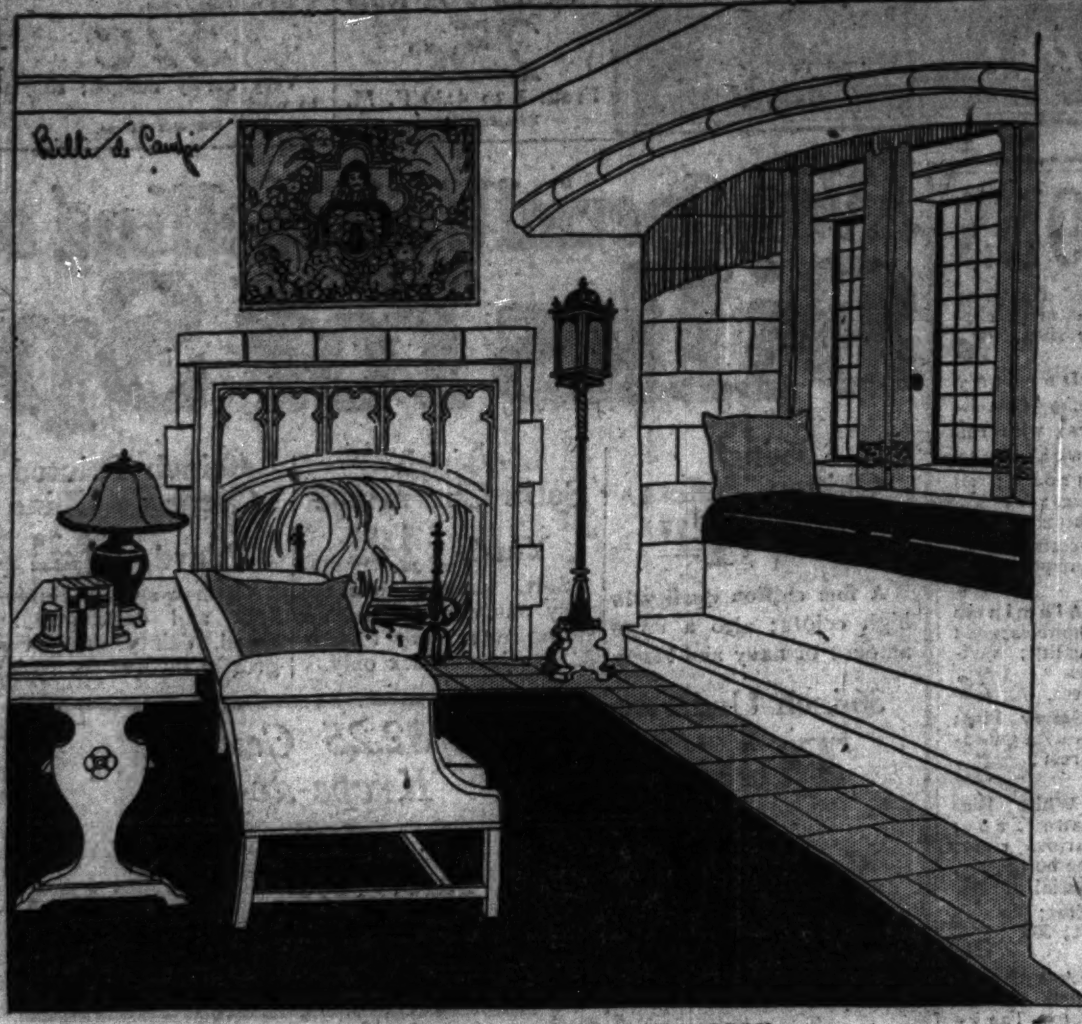
PERIOD FURNITURE.



SECTION OF A SPANISH LIVING ROOM.

Modern manufacturing efficiencies have enabled furniture producers to make pieces of enduring worth, within reach of the average home owner. Furniture emphasizing the qualities of sound wood, exact workmanship, and good lines, in [illegible] of old, expensive pieces, is being turned out at factory prices. Well made single pieces for living rooms, dining rooms, halls, and bedrooms are plentiful.

There is a perceptible trend toward Spanish art. This influence is especially noticeable in the recent work of some of our finest decorators. Illustrated today is a section of a Spanish living room. In keeping with the sand colored stone work is a walnut table, its accompanying davenport upholstered in taupe velour. Cushions for this and in the alcove are of heavy, crimson damask. A boxed cushion on the window seat is covered with lustrous black velvet. This note is repeated in the black chenille rug and in the black and antique gold torchere with its lantern top. For the peacock blue luster ware lamp base on the table there is an old gold silk shade, trimmed with black. Above the fireplace hangs a hand woven tapestry, in rich, warm colors. Window curtains are of heavy ecru linen, with crewel work done in crimson, blue, dull green, and black.

For apartments and moderate sized living rooms furniture along the lines of early American pieces is greatly favored. This style is unusually adaptable to space limitations in modern apartments. In a small living room which was recently furnished all the pieces are comfortable and useful. There is a delicately proportioned daybed with a boxed cushion covered with dark blue mohair instead of a more cumbersome davenport. A secretary-desk requiring but little space when not in use is placed between two windows. One of the two small sized Windsor chairs in the room is used at this desk.

There is a luxurious arm chair with an accompanying pouf, so that it may be converted into a chaise longue. Beside this a dropleaf table is placed. This accommodates an intense turquoise pottery lamp, with an old gold silk shade, trimmed with mauve. In addition there are smoking accessories and a few books. [illegible] book shelves, built in at right angles, in one corner of the room. At the end of the daybed there is a junior floor lamp, with a shade matching that on the table lamp. Accessory cushions are of taffeta in dark blue, piped with turquoise, old gold and mauve. At the window there are glass curtains of ecru silk gauze with overdraperies of striped casement silk, in old gold, turquoise and mauve, with hairlines of black. Woodwork is painted old ivory, and the rug is dark blue chenille.

Without loss of unity between the whole, a single room exhibit showed two distinct groups. At one side was the living room, with writing desk, sofa, easy chair and table. At the other side was the dining room, with sideboard, dining table and chairs. All of the furniture was brown mahogany. On a fireside table was a striking combination in coffee sets—large cups and saucers in glazed jade green, and black coffee pot, creamer and sugar bowl in unglazed Wedgwood.

Chinese design is again definitely in the popular market. Mahogany suites, extensively paneled with lacquer in black, gold, silver and red, are being offered. Used in conjunction with these are Chinese patterned rugs, in blues, tans, mulberry, and black. Embroidery in the Chinese manner, upon a black satin ground, is being used extensively.

Furnished in keeping with each other, in a modern New York apartment, are a bedroom and dressing room. They are carried out in the style of Louis Seize. The bow end twin beds have silk brocade taffeta. At the windows and French doors connecting the rooms there are glass curtains of ivory silk gauze, with brocade and taffeta overdraperies matching the bed covers.

A graceful settee and pair of side chairs are upholstered in the same brocade. There is a delightful arm chair, covered with ash rose velour, with pipings of sage green. A floor cushion, used in conjunction, is embroidered in soft colors.

The paneled walls are ivory color, with deeper ivory woodwork. In the panels a French wall paper in shades of rose and sage green, with occasional touches of dull blue, is used. Taupe carpeting covers the floor. Bureau, dressing table, and chiffoniers match the beds, and little lamp shades, used at intervals throughout the room, are of shirred rose colored silk, trimmed with sage green ruching.

Pleasingly combined with good period furniture in a moderate sized living room is a modern overstuffed suite. There are a Sheraton desk and chair, table, chest of drawers, and console, over which a decorative mirror is hung. Used with these are a davenport, armchair, and rocker, upholstered in hand blocked, mohair velvet, in soft colors on a taupe ground. Accessory cushions are of jade green and straw colored damask. At one end of the davenport there is a useful little end table, light enough to be easily lifted from place to place. At the other end is a slender polychromed floor lamp, with a sand and rose colored shade. An Elizabethan portrait hangs in the center of the wall space over the davenport. There is a large taupe rug, figured in dull blue, greens, and mulberries, with touches of black. Paneled walls are calcimined old ivory, and old gold silk gauze is used at the windows.

For the entrance hall in a colonial home there is a dignified settee, with a blue-green covering. This color note is repeated in the flowered wall paper. At one end of the settee a tiny tiptop table accommodates an old silver card tray. In the wall space directly opposite is a brown mahogany console table, on which a pair of colonial glass lamps is placed. Just above hangs a mirror in a plain mahogany frame, high lighted with dull gold.

Answers to Inquiries.

I. T.: Use light, ash green voile, exceedingly fine, for glass curtains at your windows and French doors.

F. K.: Couldn't you let the cover for the chest match the bandings of your window curtains? Have ivory candlesticks, with ivory silk shades, trimmed with blue lace, on the dresser. Your plans sound attractive.

E. O. Y.: Paint the bedroom set French gray, with trims of old blue or ecru and mauve.

H. M. R.: Two toned gold colored velvet, lined with ecru sateen, hung as you suggested, would be attractive for draperies in your living room. Your home sounds interesting, and I am sure it will be lovely when you have completed it.

M. M. D.: Paint the walls of your bedroom French gray (light) and use ecru silk gauze for glass curtains. Will you continue to use the same draperies? In the smaller bedroom have ecru walls, and glass curtains of ecru silk gauze. Let the draperies be of striped casement silk, in green, matching the rug, dull blue and ecru, with fine lines of mauve or mulberry.

[illegible]. C. H.: Use ecru silk gauze at all of the windows in the living and dining rooms without over draperies. Ecru georgette, over rose colored silk, would blend well with your table lamp shade.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

By Jane Eddington.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington, with current market materials, and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

TONING UP THE TABLE.

A real cook might reasonably be jealous of the great amount of exploiting that table glass, table linen, table china, and table toys are receiving today. But let her be cheerful! There is really great hope in all this—great hope for better food, in time, in this extraordinary interest in table settings. Who will continue to be satisfied in eating dull, muddy stuff from a table covered with lace, decorated with table toys of the finest and brightest of tinted enamel, and with every appointment exquisite?

As I look at some of these things and see them demonstrated in use I say to myself: "They have got to come to it! They have got to come to it!"

By which I mean we have got to have finer cooks and finer cooking to match all this. A common sense of consistency will help to this end. Indeed, the seeds of a great and new movement in cooking are now well planted. There is much to be done to bring them to maturity, but there are many eager persons to do the work.

Skill the Requirement.

In the new cooking the expense will be in the cook, not necessarily in the raw materials she uses, just as the expense of the fine china is not in the clay but in the skill and training and tools that wrought the marvel. There will be exceptional things in the new cooking, but the raw material will be simple.

To illustrate how a simple preparation may be toned up to fit even a table with a $500 cloth, the newest and most expensive candelabras, gold incrusted china, and all else to match, let us take hash, a despicable, grayish grub, when it is poor, even though it be molded into dainty croquettes or served off a gold platter. It is easy by good cooking to raise just hash 500 per cent in both character and estimation. Of course, in many cases where its fineness is secured it is not called a hash, although that is what it basically is.

Cream Chicken Hash.

The word "cream" is here used to distinguish this preparation from Creole chicken hash, often a rather sloppy preparation, although the border line between it and chicken à la king may be but a vanishing one. To make cream chicken hash, chop remnants of finely roasted chicken fine, in a chopping bowl and with a chopping knife—never in food grinder; season it with salt if necessary and a few grinds of white pepper, put it into a buttered earthen baking dish, barely cover it with cream, sprinkle with dry bread crumbs, and bake in the oven until the cream boils. Garnish with cress.

If the bread crumbs are of highly palatable flavor and the chicken of the best, there are ways of fitting this preparation into the finest of menus, as well as making it an acceptable part of a simple family meal. It is an excellent little thing for the home cook who would entertain her friends in elegant little ways, though she has to do all the work herself. It can be prepared some time in advance, and in the baking dish or dishes ready for the bread crumbs and the baking. It can be made quite dainty and ornate enough for a wedding supper or luncheon and can be served with many variations.

Chicken Ramekins.

Prepare a chicken as for chicken hash, fill the little buttered dishes—plain little brown and white ones, glass ones, or those of the finest china—with the chicken, add cream and buttered crumbs, and bake. If a cook had no oven, she could fill this preparation into buttered molds well sprinkled with crumbs and steam these twenty minutes or so in the lower part of a chafing dish, then turn them out before they were served. In this case the cream should be thickened a bit, or thickened milk could be used, but it is easiest to get a successful thing by baking the hash.

Three tablespoons of chopped chicken are enough for the small ramekins and glass dishes. Always use a bit of green garnish, preferably cress. These little dishes are sometimes served on small plates of their own to match or, when they are quite small, on a large service plate with other viands. Side dishes are not much in vogue today, but a ramekin in its plate is no more a side dish than is a salad.

Plain Family Chicken Hash.

For plain family use a little cold roast chicken may be extended so as to give a great deal of satisfaction by preparing it as cream chicken hash, baking it, and then serving it on a thick layer of mashed potato. Both of these stay hot till almost the last mouthful has been eaten, and are thus a good winter dish for Sunday supper and the whole good enough in this sort of thistle fashion to serve to the friends who have dropped in. The cream may be replaced by milk and butter.

Combinations with Chicken Hash.

Potato cooked in almost any nice way, hot rolls or fine toast and, if you can have something of the sort, have a fine mold of hot greens, or curly endive well cooked, chopped, and heated up with seasoning. In a tiny bit of cream it is excellent. The French endive clubs, blanched in hot water five minutes, drained, rinsed with cold water, and then cooked about fifteen minutes in a little water with nice seasonings add "class" to a meal and, of course, fresh asparagus does. The seasonings for the endive should include a bit of fat and a bit of sugar. Best of all, is to cook it in a little highly seasoned meat stock, but a little plain water with roast chicken drippings is good. Things of this sort do tone up a meal.

Other Simple Adaptations Toned Up.

Even a plain salt cod fish hash, well seasoned and baked in scallop shells, may add distinction to a meal, and many a dainty ramekin of fish can be prepared. By the way, cold fried chicken may have even more of character in a hash than roast chicken, and fried lamb chops and even cold beefsteak, may be manipulated in cunning ways, to say nothing of the left-over of pot roasts.

We expect a roasted fillet of beef to be high class, and many simpler and less expensive bits can be given almost as much distinction. Fresh pork shoulder and even a bit of boiled bacon may be made fairly gay with garnishes, and be so cooked as to have colorful flavors. The whole idea in this cooking, after certain fundamental facts about the nourishing values of the foods have been considered, needs to be today, that these foods shall have some fair chance of competing in interest with some of the other things on the gay tables so many young housekeepers are setting. Apropos of this some one said the other day that men did not like candles on the table, and I was pleased, but I found a different reason presently to be given from mine, for disliking them. This was that the light was often on a level with the eyes. The advice was, therefore, given that only tall candles be used.

My objection to candles is that the odor of the burning wick competes with the odors of the foods, which are or often should be so delicate as not to be noticed or appreciated unless conditions are highly favorable. An appreciation of these has digestive as well as aesthetic value.

The Various Tables.

A young married woman of privilege was recently telling about the different tables the bride set in her early housekeeping, and in a most pleasant way said that the table for the husband was the most important of all. But there was the tea table and its equipment to be considered, the table when the "in-laws" were entertained, and, grandest of all, the bridal party dinner table.

Soon after her return from the wedding journey this party dinner was a thing to have, and presumably part of the reason for it was to show off the gifts she had received from them, just as the "in-law" table did something of the same thing. Yes, there is today a greater effort to give gifts of fine linens, and table settings other than silver, than there has been for some decades.

One of the things this young woman said was that the linens and china of today have a youthful look that they did not have formerly, and this is undoubtedly true.

Table China and Ornaments.

Five or six years ago a large number of persons used imitation fruits on their tables and sideboards—nice dust collectors. In only rare cases were these highly attractive, and they were not expensive as compared with some of what we may call table toys today. And, worse, they were so easily imitated that an enormous amount of this useless and unwashable stuff at about 10 cents an item has been manufactured.

If we choose, we can get all the charm which ornament and color may give from just the necessary dishes. The plates, like those of old, can have color or pictures or even reading matter on them as those of old often had.

Consider what peasant ware has been! These gay plates have always been recommended for invalids, but are now in good standing with well and serious persons. In a late French novel there are two mentions of Arabian Nights plates, and the French have plates of strawberry color and labeled with the word for strawberries, for the service of that fruit, raspberry for raspberries, and many other such gaieties.

Do you look Too old to succeed?

Gray hair denotes advancing age. Age is a handicap, and we all know the advantage of a youthful appearance.

Don't stay gray! Look young, vigorous! When your hair turns gray, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur will darken it.

Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store, a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the additions of other ingredients. Thousands of men and women recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair perfectly, and, besides, no one can tell because it darkens so naturally and evenly.

You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking a few strands at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears. After another application or two its natural color is restored, and you appear years younger.

Fiery, Itchy Skin Quickly Soothed With Sulphur

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

Service

Gas service is the oldest form of public service and therefore a "familiar" service.

Because its conveniences are so ever-present they are enjoyed without any special consideration. They are an essential part of every day life.

If You Have the Time, Read This Sheik Rhyme

"THE SHADOW OF THE EAST."

Produced by Fox. Directed by George Archainbaud. Presented at the Monroe theater.

THE CAST.

Barry Craven	Frank Mayo
Gillian Locke	Mildred Harris
Said	Norman Kerry
Kunwar	Bertram Grassby
Lolare	Evelyn Brent
Aunt Caroline	Edythe Chapman
John Locke	Joseph Swickard
Peter Peters	Lorimer Johnson

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!
"Give us more sheik stuff," was shouted
To the auth'ress, E. M. Hull;
"Without passions of the desert
Our read—ers are growing dull!"
So—another dark skinned lover
(Who at Oxford has been taught)
Meets a blonde—she is from England.
And with love THIS sheik is fraught.
But the girl adores another—
English like herself—but HE
Is the husband of a native—
Sweet Lolare of Araby.
His marriage he has kept secret,
Of it Gillian does not know;
So she fosters fond love of him—
Like a bay tree it doth grow. (Bay trees grow vurr' fast.)
Lolare fearing she'll lose Barry
Kills herself! A faithful slave
Swears to keep her HUSBAND faithful
E'en though she's in her grave.
So a mystic veil he casts 'twixt
Gillian and young Craven, till
Death destroys his power and renders
His Arabian magic nil.
Suddenly the veil is lifted
And the mists begin to clear.
Gillian finds it true that Barry
Really holds herself most dear
And the sheik, proving he's a good sport,
Gives the pair his desert tent
That in the wilds of Sahara
They at last may find content.
With a smile bland, philosophic,
In his blazing, Arab eyes
Retreats he unto his harem
For a consolation prize.
Those who liked "The Sheik"—may I say
"Shadow of the East" will please.
Those who didn't will quite likely
Buzz like swarms of angry bees.
But it's pretty well directed, acted,
Photographed—and so——
Judge it, when yourselves you see it
On the screen at the Monroe.

(Counsel for the defense of the above and what wrote it offers none, agreeing with the prosecution—which is unanimous—that the defendant is guilty and that anybody who COULD perpetrate such a horrible offense should be shown absolutely NO MERCY!)

See you (at sunrise) tomorrow!

Alma Rubens in Limelight as Hostess in Hollywood

By Mildred Spain.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Monday Alma Rubens came to town. Tuesday she gave a dinner party at the Biltmore hotel, where she is staying. Wednesday Constance Talmadge and Alma held an informal reception at the United studios. Thursday Miss Rubens was given an introduction to the latest addition to the Keaton family, who stubbornly refuses to be a girl. And after Norma and Constance had insisted on naming a girl. Friday night Miss Rubens and Charlie Chaplin were judges of the dancing contest at the Cocoanut Grove. They awarded the silver cup to Dudley Field Malone, who is visiting from New York.

ALMA RUBENS.
She is making a call on the film colony.

And that's the way it goes.

Constance is going to give a tea for her friend as soon as the christening of Buster's baby is over. That important event is waiting for the arrival of Aunt Norma next Thursday.

Constance was at Miss Rubens' dinner on Tuesday in a marvelous gown of gold lamé lined with emerald crêpe chiffon. The lining was in evidence in the overskirt pulled tightly across the back and falling over the jeweled girdle in front. With this she wore emeralds and diamonds and a single feather fan with a jeweled handle. Miss Rubens was beautiful in a plain black satin gown with a wide girdle of rhinestones. Mildred Harris was in a gown of green velvet and chiffon, the bodice of rhinestones. Irene Rich wore white satin studded with rhinestones and white slippers with heels of rhinestones. Constance Bennett, the daughter of Richard Bennett; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Borzage, George Fitzmaurice, and A. C. Blumenthal were included in the party.

Mr. Blumenthal, Charlie Chaplin, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Quinn of San Francisco were guests of Miss Rubens at the Ambassador on Friday night.

Constance Talmadge went for a few days up in the mountains—away from everything and everybody. There wasn't even mail service at her cabin.

Willie Collier Jr. has the latest Constance crush. But that wasn't the reason Constance yearned for solitude. No, no; just tired from too much dancing.

Constance's nephew, although he hasn't a front name, has been auspiciously launched in the world. He has had telegrams from Irving Berlin, Harry Houdini, Jackie Coogan, Will Hayes, State Senator Archibald MacNeil Jr. of Connecticut, and all the folks in Muskegon, Mich., Buster Keaton's home town.

Jean Havez, the scenario writer, sent him an automobile tire with "teeth ring" marked on it.

Chicagoan Makes a Gift of Rare Music

By Edward Moore.

MRS. FREDERICK SHURTLEFF COOLIDGE, once of Chicago, has, it would seem, made a notable addition to the musical possessions of the library of congress by the gift of chamber music scores mentioned here the other day. Details of the donation indicate that since she organized the first chamber music festivals at her home in Pittsfield, Mass., early in the autumn of 1918, she has acquired no less than sixteen holograph scores, all of which, first played at the festivals, have been turned over to the permanent keeping of the library.

CLAIRE DUX,
soloist, Chicago Symphony orchestra this week.
[Daguerre Photo.]

Three recitals accompanied the gift. At these there was a performance of Ernest Bloch's Suite for viola and piano; Henry Eichheim's "Oriental Impressions," apparently the same that, scored for full orchestra, was conducted by the composer at a Chicago Symphony orchestra concert two years ago; Eugène Goossens' "Fantasy" Sextet for Strings; G. Francesco Malipiero's String Quartet, "Rispetti e strambotti"; Julius Röntgen's String Quartet; H. Waldo Warner's Suite for violin, cello, and piano, and Leo Weiner's String Quartet.

Other works, unperformed on this occasion, were these: Renzo Bossi's Trio for violin, cello, and piano, Domenico Brescia's Second Suite for wind instruments; a Sonata for violin and piano, a Trio for violin, cello, and piano, and a Rhapsody for cello and piano, all by Rebecca Clarke; Henry Holden Huss' String Quartet; another work in the same form by Tadeusz Iarecki, and Leo Sowerby's Serenade for string quartet.

It is perhaps not as well known as it should be that the library of congress contains one of the largest collections of musical material in the world. In certain groups, such as operatic scores and libretti, it is unequaled. There have been several cases as late as the present season where musicians, desirous of presenting rare works and unable to secure scores through the ordinary course of commerce, have gone to Washington for the purpose of copying or photographing the scores at the library.

Possibly Mrs. Coolidge's gift will be considered more valuable in future years, when historians, students of composition, and critical investigators begin to hunt through the archives. At present the library has about 1,400 manuscripts from about 360 composers. Edward MacDowell, invited by the then chief of the music division, Oscar G. Sonneck, was the first to contribute from his own work. Mrs. Coolidge's donation takes its place with other examples in the personal handwriting of such composers as Johann Sebastian Bach and three of his sons, Leonardo Leo, Henry Purcell, Hasse, Pergolesi, Handel, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin, Rossini, Meyerbeer, Mendelssohn, Wagner, Liszt, Brahms, Grieg, Rubinstein, and many others, past and present.

Mr. Truex Is Active Again in Comedy of Married Life

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The bantam husband who is frequently Ernest Truex in the modern domestic comedies is active again in a piece called "New Toys." A nice little rabbit heart, this defender of sentiment in the home, and always amusing. But the play fails him this time because its authors were more anxious that it should be funny than that it should be true.

ERNEST TRUEX.
His forte is the rôle of the bantam husband.

It is easy to fool the neighbors with romance in the theater. It is easy to trick them with melodrama, and to impress them with the heavy spectacle. But the author who writes of the life they know and live has to be pretty watchful of what he says and does, or they will have none of him.

This "New Toys" story tries to get as much fun out of the restless second year of married life as Frank Craven got out of the trying first year. But the only convincing situations in it are crowded into the first act with a 4 month old baby.

Here Ruth, the wife, suddenly and inexplicably develops a desire for a career. She wants to go on the stage, while Will, the husband, insists defiantly that if she does he will deliberately even matters by running around with wimmin.

So Ruth tries to act, and fails. And Will tries to flirt, and fails. And the baby tries to cry, and makes a bad job of that. After which everybody is reconciled.

Oscar Hammerstein's busy grandson, Oscar II., and Milton Gropper wrote "New Toys." Helping Truex play it are Vivienne Osborne as the restless wife and Mary Duncan as a bold but attractive sweetheart linked arbitrarily with the timid husband's past. Louise Closser Hale, Robert McWade, and Robert O'Conner have the other jobs.

One Dream Play After Another.

You probably do not remember back as far as "Lorelei, or the Artist's Dream." Neither do I. Not, at least, to the season it was first produced. But I remember a revival of it made by a side street stock company in Denver in the old days. It happened to be the first dream play I had ever seen.

For years after that I used to watch for dream plays, considering the form perfect, until one day an old time theater manager told me it was a form much discredited by intelligent producers because it was so cheaply obvious. I probably would never see another dream play, said he. No sane manager would dare to produce one.

For many years his prophecy, so far as I was concerned, held true. Then along came "A Messenger from Mars" and made a fortune. And later there was "Romance," and that, too, proved a huge success. And "Mary Rose." And "Secrets." And "The Miracle." And last week we had not one dream play but three, counting a revival of Hauptmann's "Hannele."

Which goes to prove nothing except that it is silly for any one to try to make rules for the theater. Any play, on any subject, following any form, will go at any time if it furnishes sufficiently good entertainment to attract a public. Not the public, but a public interested in its particular subject, or treament, or persons.

The most important of last week's dream plays is one

Some Notes and Good Words on 'Peer Gynt'

By Frederick Donaghey.

WHETHER or not you have recollection of Mansfield's production, the performance of "Peer Gynt" in the Great Northern is among the most stimulating entertainments of the season. The play belongs in any authentic list of great drama—and well up in the list; and it is Ibsen's best contribution to the theater. Of all his plays, this possesses lasting vitality, permanent life as a stagepiece, and durable appeal. It has the "topical" quality that accounts for the survival of any masterpiece in art.

MISS ERIN O'BRIEN-MOORE.
She is in the Theater Guild's three plays with Basil Sydney.

"Peer Gynt" is exacting and difficult, and asks for a great deal of playing: for far more than it gets from the ensemble in the Great Northern, or than it got from Mr. Mansfield's venture, or than it has had in any other land so far as the records show. To put on and perform the play faultlessly is beyond the easy resources of the manager who seeks a return on his investment. And that is true of many other plays, including most of Shakspere's. . . . The thing next-best to mounting such a play perfectly is to mount it practicably, as Mansfield did, in the way of his day, and as the Theater Guild has done with simpler, less costly materials. The Guild's settings, while not made for long service nor the abuses of travel, still serve, and are expedient and workmanlike devices for the making of quick changes. Scenes omitted by Mansfield are retained in this version without running the performance later than 11:00 o'clock.

The play neither asks for nor requires the "reading-up" that is prescribed as preparation by the lecturers and the commentators on Ibsen. The mood to go in is the mood you would take to something by George M. Cohan or to "Kiki" or to "The Best People." The play is there—the plain tale of a willful, selfish boy who goes out to realize his dreams, his longings, and his desires. Every boy who is not Fauntleroyed into a prig is a potential Peer Gynt. Ibsen's boy has his way because he successfully fights off the sense of responsibility.

Good Acting and Grieg's Music.

Mr. Sydney comes fairly through the rôle. He has no gift for expressing high rapture, so that some of his scenes go flat, as in the death of Peer's mother—an episode wherein Mansfield was at his best, although he was a weary and used-up man when, in the year before his death, he staged Ibsen's rich and lovely fantasy. Mr. Sydney is better in the incidents of Peer's maturity, and plays them with ease and fine effect. . . . His associates spread themselves competently through the forty-odd parts, some doubling and some tripling, and make a creditable ensemble. Miss Griffen as Peer's mother, Miss Kass as Anitra, Miss Auer as the daughter of the Troll's king, and Mr. Croker-King as that exigent monarch are bully; and the last-named makes a second hit as Hussein in the scene of the Cairo madhouse.

And Grieg's frosty but exquisite music is played for what it is—an accompaniment to the comedy, and not a detached stunt. . . . Friday night's audience was larger than any I saw in the Great Northern for Sothern and Marlowe, and larger, it is safe to guess, than any which responded to Martin

THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

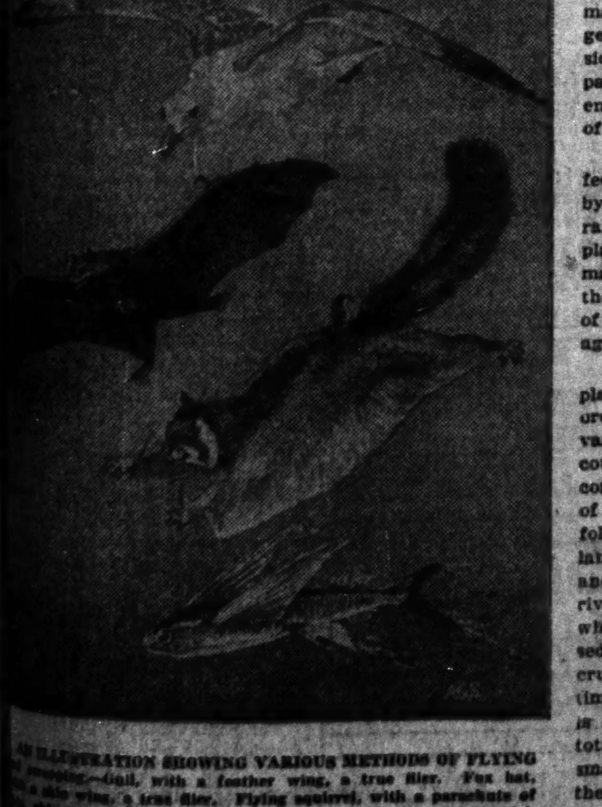
EDITED BY Professor J. ARTHUR THOMSON

A PLAIN STORY SIMPLY TOLD . . . . . . X.—THE PROCESSION OF LIFE THROUGH THE AGES

A GREAT restriction attendant on the invasion of the dry land is that locomotion becomes limited to one plane—namely: the surface of the earth. This is in great contrast to what is true in the water, where the animal can move up or down, to right or to left, at any angle and in three dimensions. It surely follows from this that the movements of land animals must be rapid and precise, unless, indeed, safety is secured in some other way. Hence it is easy to understand why most land animals have finaly developed striped muscles, and why a beetle running on the ground has far more numerous muscles than a lobster swimming in the sea.

Land animals were also handicapped by the risks of drought and of frost, but these were met by defenses of the most diverse description, from the hairs of woolly caterpillars to the fur of mammals, from the carapace of tortoises to the armor of armadillos. In other cases, it is hardly necessary to say, the difficulties may be met in other ways, as frogs meet the winter by falling into a lethargic state in some secluded retreat.

Another consequence of getting on to dry land is that the eggs or young can no longer be set free anyhow, as is possible when the animal is surrounded by water, which is in itself more or less of a cradle. If the eggs were laid or the young liberated on dry ground the chances are many that they would be dried up or devoured. So there are numerous ways in which land animals secure the safety of their young—e. g.: by burying them in the ground, or by hiding them in nests, or by carrying them about for a prolonged period either before or after birth. This may mean great safety for the young, this may make it possible to have only a small family, and this may tend to the evolution of parental care and the kindly emotions. Thus it may be understood that from the conquest of the land many far reaching consequences have followed.



AN ILLUSTRATION SHOWING VARIOUS METHODS OF FLYING and swooping.—Gull, with a feather wing, a true flier. Fox bat, with a skin wing, a true flier. Flying squirrel, with a parachute of skin, able to swoop from tree to tree, but not to fly. Flying fish with pectoral fins used as volplanes in a great leap due to the tail. [illegible] some extent able to sail in albatross fashion.

Finally, it is worth dwelling on the risks of terrestrial life, because they enable us better to understand why so many land animals have become burrowers and others climbers of trees, why some have returned to the water and others have taken to the air. It may be asked, perhaps, why the land should have been colonized at all when the risks and difficulties are so great. The answer must be that necessity and curiosity are the mother and father of invention. Animals left the water because the pools dried up, or because they were overcrowded, or because of inveterate enemies, but also because of that curiosity and spirit of adventure which, from first to last, has been one of the spurs of progress.

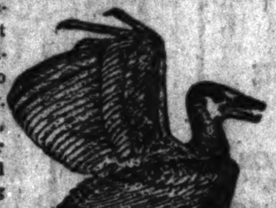
Conquering the Air.

The last great haunt of life is the air, a mastery of which must be placed to the credit of insects, pterodactyls, birds, and bats. These have been the successes, but it should be noted that there have been many brilliant failures, which have not attained to much more than parachuting. These include the flying fishes, which take leaps from the water and are carried for many yards and to considerable heights, holding their enlarged pectoral fins taut or with little more than a slight fluttering. There is a so-called flying frog (Rhacophorus) that skims from branch to branch, and the much more effective flying dragon (Draco volans) of the far east, which has been mentioned already. Among mammals there are flying phalangers, flying lemurs, and more besides, all attaining to great skill as parachutists, and illustrating the endeavor to master the air which man has realized in a way of his own.



THE ARCHAEOPTERYX.—A good restoration of the oldest known bird, archaeopteryx (Jurassic era). It was about the size of a crow; it had teeth on both jaws; it had claws on the thumb and two fingers; and it had a long, lizardlike tail. But it had feathers, proving itself a true bird.
[After William Leche of Stockholm.]

The power of flight brings obvious advantages. A bird feeding on the ground is able to evade the stalking carnivore by suddenly rising into the air; food and water can be followed rapidly and to great distances; the eggs or the young can be placed in safe situations; and birds in their migrations have made a brilliant conquest both of time and space. Many of them know no winter in their year, and the migratory flight of the Pacific golden plover from Hawaii to Alaska and back again does not stand alone.

How do we know when the various classes of animals and plants were established on the earth? How do we know the order of their appearance and the succession of their advances? The answer is: by reading the rock record. In the course of time the crust of the earth has been elevated into continents and depressed into ocean troughs, and the surface of the land has been buckled up into mountain ranges and folded in gentler hills and valleys. The high places of the land have been weathered by air and water in many forms, and the results of the weathering have been borne away by rivers and seas, to be laid down again elsewhere as deposits which eventually formed sandstones, mudstones, and similar sedimentary rocks. Much of the material of the original crust has thus been broken down and worked up again many times over, and if the total thickness of the sedimentary rocks is added up it amounts, according to some geologists, to a total of sixty-seven miles. In most cases, however, only a small part of this thickness is to be seen in one place, for the deposits were usually formed in limited areas at any one time.

When the sediments were accumulating age after age it naturally came about that remains of the plants and animal living at the time were buried, and these formed the fossils by the aid of which it is possible to read the story of the past. By careful piecing together of evidence the geologist is able to determine the order in which the different sedimentary rocks were laid down, and thus to say, for instance, that the Devonian period was the time of the origin of amphibians. In other cases the geologist utilizes the fossils in his attempt to work out the order of the strata when these have been much disarranged. For the simpler fossil forms of any type must be older than those that are more complex. There is no vicious circle here, for the general succession of strata is clear, and it is quite certain that there were fishes before there were amphibians, and amphibians before there were reptiles, and reptiles before there were birds and mammals. In certain cases—e. g.: of fossil horses and elephants—the actual historical succession has been clearly worked out.

If the successive strata contained good samples of all the plants and animals living at the time when the beds were formed, then it would be easy to read the record of the rocks, but many animals were too soft to become satisfactory fossils, many were eaten or dissolved away, many were destroyed by heat and pressure, so that the rock record is like a library much damaged by fire and looting and decay.

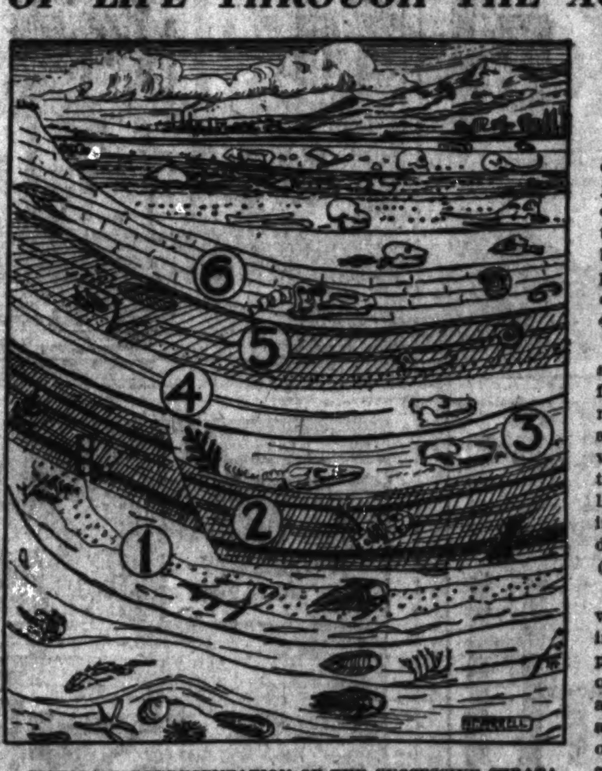
The Geological Time Table.

The long history of the earth and its inhabitants is conveniently divided into eras. Thus, just as we speak of the ancient, medieval, and modern history of mankind, so we may speak of Palæozoic, Mesozoic, and Cenozoic eras in the history of the earth as a whole.

Geologists cannot tell us except in an approximate way how long the process of evolution has taken. One of the methods is to estimate how long has been required for the accumulation of the salts of the sea, for all these have been dissolved out of the rocks since rain began to fall on the earth. Dividing the total amount of saline matter by what is contributed every year in modern times, we get about a hundred million years as the age of the sea. But as the present rate of salt accumulation is probably much greater than it was during many of the geological periods, the prodigious age just mentioned is in all likelihood far below the mark. Another method is to calculate how long it would take to form the sedimentary rocks, like sandstones and mudstones, which have a total thickness of over fifty miles, though the local thickness is rarely over a mile. As most of the materials have come from the weathering of the earth's crust, and, as the annual amount of weathering now going on can be estimated, the time required for the formation of the sedimentary rocks of the world can be approximately calculated. There are some other ways of trying to tell the earth's age and the length of the successive periods, but no certainty has been reached.

RECENT TIMES		Human civilization.
CENOZOIC ERA	Pleistocene or Glacial Time	Last great Ice Age.
	Miocene and Pliocene Times	Emergence of Man.
	Eocene and Oligocene Times	Rise of higher mammals.
MESOZOIC ERA	Cretaceous Period	Rise of primitive mammals, flowering plants, and higher insects.
	Jurassic Period	Rise of birds and flying reptiles.
	Triassic Period	Rise of dinosaur reptiles.
PALÆOZOIC ERA	Permian Period	Rise of reptiles.
	Carboniferous Period	Rise of insects.
	Devonian Period	First amphibians.
	Silurian Period	Land animals began.
	Ordovician Period	First fishes.
	Cambrian Period	Peopling of the sea.
ARCHÆOZOIC AGES		Living creatures began to be upon the earth.
PROTEROZOIC AGES		Many of the Backboneless stocks began.
FORMATIVE TIMES		Making of continents and ocean-basins. Beginnings of atmosphere and hydrosphere. Cooling of the earth. Establishment of the solar system.



PICTORIAL REPRESENTATION OF THE SUCCESSIVE STRATA of the earth's crust, with suggestions of characteristic fossils—e. g.: Fish and trilobite in the Devonian (1), a large amphibian in the carboniferous (2), reptiles in permian (3), the first mammal in the triassic (4), the first bird in the jurassic (5), giant reptiles in the cretaceous (6); then follow the tertiary strata with progressive mammals, and quaternary at the top with man and mammoth.

The eras marked on the table as before the Cambrian correspond to about thirty-two miles of thickness of strata; and all the subsequent eras with fossil bearing rocks to a thickness of about twenty-one miles—in itself an astounding fact. Perhaps thirty million years must be allotted to the pre-Cambrian eras, eighteen to the Palæozoic, nine to the Mesozoic, three to the Cenozoic, making a grand total of sixty millions.

It is an astounding fact that at least half of geological time (Archæozoic and Proterozoic eras) passed before there were living creatures with parts sufficiently hard to form fossils. In the latter part of the Proterozoic era there are traces of one celled marine animals—Radiolarians—with shells of flint, and of worms that wallowed in the primal mud. It is plain that as regards the most primitive creatures the rock record tells us little.

The rarity of direct traces of life in the oldest rocks is partly due to the fact that the primitive animals would be of delicate build, but it must also be remembered that the ancient rocks have been profoundly and repeatedly changed by pressure and heat, so that the traces which did exist would be liable to obliteration. And if it be asked what right we have to suppose the presence of living creatures in the absence or extreme rarity of fossils, we must point to great accumulations of limestone which indicate the existence of calcareous algæ, and to deposits of iron which probably indicate the activity of iron forming bacteria. Ancient beds of graphite similarly suggest that green plants flourished in these ancient days.

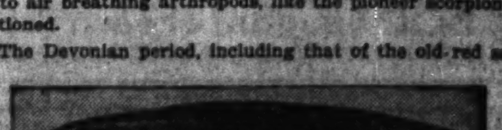
The Era of Ancient Life—Palaeozoic.

The Cambrian period was the time of the establishment of the chief stocks of backboneless animals such as sponges, jelly fishes, worms, sea cucumbers, lamp shells, trilobites, crustaceans, and molluscs. There is something eloquent in the broad fact that the peopling of the seas had definitely begun some thirty million years ago, for Prof. H. F. Osborn points out that in the Cambrian period there was already a colonization of the shore of the sea, the open sea, and the deep waters.

The Ordovician period was marked by abundant representation of the once successful class of Trilobites—jointed footed, antenna bearing, segmented marine animals, with numerous appendages and a covering of chitin. They died away entirely with the end of the Palæozoic era. Also notable was the abundance of predatory cuttlefishes, the bullies of the ancient seas. But it was in this period that the first backboned animals made their appearance—an epoch making step in evolution. In other words, true fishes were evolved—destined in the course of ages to replace the cuttlefishes (which are mere molluscs) in dominating the seas.

In the Silurian period in which the peopling of the seas went on apace there was the first known attempt at colonizing the dry land. For in Silurian rocks there are fossil scorpions, and that implies ability to breathe dry air—by means of internal surfaces, in this case known as lungbooks. It was also towards the end of the Silurian, when a period of great aridity set in, that fishes appeared related to our mud fishes or double breathers (Dipnoi), which have lungs as well as gills. This, again, meant utilizing dry air, just as the present day mud fishes do when the water disappears from the pools in hot weather. The lung fishes or mud fishes of today are but three in number, one in Queensland, one in South America, and one in Africa, but they are extremely interesting "living fossils," binding the class of fishes to that of amphibians. It is highly probable that the first invasion of the dry land should be put to the credit of some adventurous worms, but the second great invasion was certainly due to air breathing arthropods, like the pioneer scorpion we mentioned.

The Devonian period, including that of the old red sandstone, was one of the most significant periods in the earth's history. For it was the time of the establishment of flowering plants upon the earth and of terrestrial backboned animals. One would like to have been the discoverer of the Devonian foot print of Thinopus, the first known amphibian footprint—an eloquent vestige of the third great invasion of the dry land. It was probably from a stock of Devonian lung fishes that the first amphibians sprang, but it was not till the next period that they came to their own. While they were still feeling their way there was a remarkable exuberance of sharklike and heavily armored fishes in the Devonian seas.



THE GAMBIAN MUDFISH, PROTOPTERUS.—It can breathe oxygen dissolved in water by its gills; it can also breath dry air by means of its swim bladder, which has become a lung. It is a double breather, showing evolution in process. For seven months of the year, the dry season, it can remain inert in the mud, getting air through an open pipe to the surface. When water fills the pools it can use its gills again. Mud nests or mud encasements with the lung fish inside have often been brought to Britain and the fish when liberated were quite lively.

Harvey in his neglected visit; and it was having a good time, by all the accepted signs. If you're seeking a profitable night in the theater, I urge "Peer Gynt" on your attention.

An Impresario Listens.

Mr. Shubert talked to me with feeling on the vicissitudes of a producer who is guided by the advice and the views of the first-night sophisticates. "The complaint about Mistinguett in Chicago," he said, "is that she has not enough to do—and of few stars in revue or musical comedy is that ever said! When I gave the première of 'Innocent Eyes' in Atlantic City, some weeks since, the audience was thick with the sagacious fellows who believe that to miss a Broadway 'opening' would be to declass themselves forever. Mistinguett had plenty to do: she had scenes to play, and she had songs to sing, and was an active and a busy performer. When the curtain fell, one by one the wise men sought me out and told me that I should send her home,—that she was an error and an expense, and that she imperilled what otherwise would be an enterprise of great prosperity. . . .

"Like you, I had seen Mistinguett hold and delight her audiences in Paris; but my nerve weakened under the barrage of admonition from playwrights, novelists, rival producers with good hearts, wealthy actors, racehorse-owners, importers of fine laces, ex-distillers, and Broadway invalids who had stopped over out of good-fellowship on their way to Palm Beach. My nerve weakened, although I knew they were wrong; and now the task is to adjust her all over again."

THIS-AND-THAT

When Miss Anglin stages "The Great Lady Dedlock" next week in the Blackstone, she will add to the players now with her in "A Woman of No Importance" Elwyn Eaton, for William, the butler; John Ivan, for Tulkinghorn; Al Roberts, for Skimpole; and Leonard Mudie, for Jarndyce. . . . Mr. Ivan, it seems, was the actor of Tulkinghorn when she tried out the play in California, and was so good that she says she can think of nobody else who would be nearly so good.

Miss Flora Finch, long of the films, goes into musical comedy via "Poppy," one of the successes among the season's New-York hits. She succeeds Miss Emma Janvier, a veteran specialist in the termagant rôles.

Lowell Sherman, who is mentioned for ever so many plays since he failed as the star of "Casanova," is now mentioned for "The Jury of Fate," by the late C. M. S. McLellan, author of "The Belle of New-York" and "Leah Kleschna." . . . "The Jury of Fate" was acted in London nearly twenty years ago, but has never been staged in this country.

"Sitting Pretty," a piece by the reassembled Bolton-Wodehouse-Kern collaboration, is announced for an early hearing. . . . Another by them, "Pat," was taken out of rehearsal because of difficulty in casting.

"Little Miss Brown," a farce which had Miss Madge Kennedy as its star more than a decade ago, is soon to be a musical comedy, with tunes by Louis Hirsch.

De Wolf Hopper, recently compelled to disband his company because of trouble among the members, is eager to resume in the Gilbert-Sullivan pieces, in which he has found a grateful refuge late in a long career. He is the last of the old line comic opera men of consequence.

Eugene Walter's "Thieves in Clover" has been withdrawn for rewriting and a better cast. Tom Moore, out of the films, has had the principal rôle. . . . A Chicago theater for the piece was sought in vain.

Keyes for the Follies.

Nelson Keyes, announced by the Shuberts for a new revue, is to appear in the Ziegfeld Follies—the one running in New York. . . . Keyes in London is the most popular of the actors in revue, and the cleverest!

De Feraudy, the Paris actor, is to try two weeks of French drama in French in New-York. One of his plays is Mirabeau's famous "Les Affaires Sont les Affaires," which William H. Crane acted some years ago in a version called "Business Is Business."

"Tyrants," by Thaddeus Rittner, is something new out of Europe via a translation by Benjamin Glazer.

Miss Claire Eames is to be the Lady Macbeth when James K. Hackett acts the Thane in New-York.

"Leap-Year" is the good title of a new London revue. . . . And London is to have Welsh plays by Welsh players; some of the titles are "The Man Who Was Born to Be Hanged," "The Poacher," and "The Cloud-Breaker."

"More Than Queen," in which Miss Julia Arthur acted for a season in this country, has been revived in Paris, where Napoleon is ever a welcome figure on the stage.

Miss Tessa Kosta is to sing in a piece called "The Kiss-Charm," by Samuel Shipman, the diligent writer of melodrama, with music by Lee David, which seems to be a new name.

The son of Otto H. Kahn, backer of Morris Gest in some of the latter's costly ventures and the executive director of the Metropolitan Opera, is in the two-a-day as conductor of a jazz-band.

Eugene O'Neill's "The Emperor Jones," is a failure in Paris. . . . His "The Hairy Ape" is to be tried here.

"The Eternal Spring," recently staged in London, is credited to Peter Garland, but is the work of Miss Norma Munro, heiress to one of the fortunes piled up in this country by the publishing of cheap editions of uncopyrighted novels.

Miss Kitty Gordon, whose back took precedence of her talents in the estimation of American audiences, is now operating a beauty-shop in New-York. . . . Her husband, Captain Henry Beresford, is dead in London: he was a younger brother of Lord Decies, and, so, gave to Miss Gordon her appeal as a member of the English nobility.

"Chu Chin Chow," whose five-year run in London is the world's record to-date for any play in continuous performance, is to be tried in Paris. . . . Congreve's "The Way of the World," one of the raw English classics, has been revived in London, with Robert Loraine in the principal part.

Miss Marie Löhr, who failed to interest New-York two years ago, is to put on "Madame Sans-Gene" in London, where she is a favorite. . . . The Grand Guignol players, a wash-out in New-York early in the season, are back in Paris, where they tell the newspapers that they are to return to this country in the Autumn.

"Bunty Pulls the Strings" hasn't revived well in London; and the author, Graham Moffat, is to try another, "Susie Knots the Strings." . . . A. E. Anson is eager to produce "White Cargo" in London; the play, dealing with the moral disintegration of white men in the tropics, is among the season's successes in New-York.

To Something Higher.

A large frame in the lobby of the Olympic contains the photographs of twenty-seven performers who have gone from so-called "burlesque" into other branches. Sam Bernard, Barney Bernard, Al Jolson, Will Rogers, Leon Erroll, Miss Fanny Brice, Miss Grace La Rue, George Sidney, and Mack Sennett are among them.

Miss Mary Ellis, once of the Metropolitan Opera, is to adventure as a star in musical comedy. . . . Miss Helen Gahagan, who acted here in "Peter and Paula" and "Chains," is named for the title-part of "Leah Kleschna" in William A. Brady's revival.

Miss Evelyn Herbert, who sang for a while with the Chicago Opera, is prima-donna in Fred Stone's current show. . . . "Havoc," a current London success, has been taken for the United States: it is by Harry Wall, a newcomer among the playwrights. . . . It is recalled that Henry Miller some years ago acted in a piece called "The Havoc."

Walter Hampden, who appears to have a popular success in his revival of "Cyrano de Bergerac," says he will act Mephistopheles in a new stage-arrangement of "Faust." . . . Although engaged to write the Ziegfeld Follies for the next five years, William Anthony McGuire continues to write plays: he has a new one, "The Lion's Share."

George Abbott and James Gleason, well-known actors, have written a play called "Hot Snow." . . . The New York Stage Society thinks it will be doing something fine in reviving Shelley's "The Cenci."

"It Pays to Advertise," which was excellent fun here in 1915, is said to be a success in London, where it has just been made known in a version which takes account of the British idiom in trade.

Arnold Korff, annoyed because a woman snickered at his acting in "The Living Mask" in New York, stopped long enough to rebuke her, and then explained that the management was to blame for having billed the play as a satirical comedy, although that is just what the author, Luigi Pirandello, says it is.

Miss Irene Franklin says she is going to Australia to perform. . . . Miss Elizabeth Hines, who was doing well in "The O'Brien Girl" until she forgot that the piece belonged to George M. Cohan, is mentioned for "The Dream-Girl," which is the musical comedy title of the piece we knew as "The Road to Yesterday."

THEY'LL REAPPEAR TONIGHT

MISS JUNE WALKER
[White Photo]

MISS WINNIE LIGHTNER

MISS WALKER goes into the rôle of untruthful Sally Morgan in "The Nervous Wreck," replacing Miss Vivian Tobin, who is on her way to New-York to replace Miss Walker with the cast performing the farce there. The exchange is for one week only, it seems, and is made mainly for the purpose of persuading The Tribune to print Miss Walker's photograph, although a powerful secondary motive lies in the hope of the management that the New-York Daily News will print Miss Tobin's. . . . Miss Walker may be recalled as the ingénue in last season's run here of "Six-Cylinder Love."

Miss Lightner returns in George White's Scandals. She was in last season's format thereof, revealing herself as among the least reticent of the lady roughnecks so highly regarded in the revues and extravaganzas. She is more comely than the run of them so far encountered. She learned how in the two-a-day, whence Mr. White translated her to his serial.

Mr. Truex Is Active Again in Comedy of Married Life

called "Beggar on Horseback," a fantastic satire by those irrepressible satirists, George Kaufman and Marc Connelly, who wrote "Dulcy" and "To the Ladies!" and dramatized "Merton."

It is a queer thing, but amusing. The first act is straight and simple comedy. Neil McRae (Roland Young) is eking out a somewhat precarious existence in New York making orchestrations of cheap music. This irks Neil, because he is a young and gifted composer and is eager to provide the world with the kind of music that thrills a Carnegie hall crowd. Particularly in Carnegie hall.

To indulge this passion, however, as each of his friends, including his poor but generous sweetheart, points out to him, he must marry money. And Gladys Cady, from the old home town of Livingston, represents money.

Neil objects. He does not love Gladys and he loathes her obtrusively middle class family. With all their money, what do they know of art? Or the higher ambitions. Life with them might serve to rest and fatten his body, but what would it do to his poor old soul?

That night his friend the young doctor gives him a pill or two to make him sleep. Pretty strong pills, I suspect, seeing that he flops down in an arm chair and is off before he knows it. The dream follows.

Sees Himself Married.

It is a gorgeous travesty, this dream. Neil sees himself marrying Gladys in a sort of jazz cathedral, with the ushers veiled and a cabaret orchestra marching down the aisle with them.

A blinking of the lights and the newlyweds are in the Cady home, a gorgeous palace of veined marble and red plush hangings, with a butler concealed back of every pillar. Gladys is an awful wife, but a great little dancer, and she one-steps him from place to place, whirling about with hat boys and waiters and any one she can grab.

Father Cady uses the living room as a putting green. Mother knits, and sings hymns through her nose. Homer, a son, plays the radio. And finally Neil murders the lot of them with a paper knife and goes joyously to his trial.

This ends the first act, and as the curtain falls a half dozen newsboys rush down the aisles with copies of "The Morning-Evening," burlesquing the old fashioned standard sized New York newspapers with a florid account of the murder and poking sharp fun at their editorial ponderosity, their vague and uncertain cable service, their proneness to overplay scandal stories and their curious efforts to strike a popular sense of humor with such cheerful idiocies as their naturally humorless editors would consider comic.

Orgy of Suffering.

In the second half of the sleeper's nightmare he sees himself being tried by a jury of music critics who all look and act and talk alike. The judge is his father-in-law and the prosecuting attorney his brother-in-law. He offers in evidence a pantomime for which he has written the score and his real sweetheart the book, and for a moment the piece swings back to normal and scenes of exquisite beauty are revealed in the interlude. Finally the jury renders a verdict of guilty and Neil is sentenced to slave for a lifetime in the Cady art factory.

In the factory he walks miles and has innumerable requisitions signed before he can get possession of a lead pencil. And finds himself being exhibited with the other creative units of the factory in a cell wherein he is forced to compose popular songs about broken hearts twelve hours a day. Next to him the world's most famous novelist dictates endlessly his long list of best sellers, alternately titled "Eternal Love" and "Love Eternal."

In a third cell the world's greatest artist turns out hundreds of magazine covers, stocking advertisements, etc., and lastly, the world's greatest poet writes "Dear Old Pal" verses from living models posed in various attitudes expressing undying loyalty.

Then He Awakens.

Finally, just as they are about to execute him by chopping off his head with an enlarged copy of the paper cutter, Neil awakens and finds his true love, who lives across the hall, become anxious about him. They agree now that life in two rooms, with or without kitchenette, will be better for them than a compromise with the Cady millions, and the play is finished.

Winthrop Ames has given "Beggar on Horseback" an excellent cast and a beautiful scenic backing. Roland Young perfectly realizes the diffident and sensitive genius the composer is presumed to be. He cannot, however, play even a dummy piano with anything like a convincing imitation of an artist. Kay Johnson and Anne Carpenger play the girls.

Boasts Notable Authors.

The second dream play of the week is "The Wonderful Visit," and boasts no less distinguished a pair of authors than St. John Ervine and H. G. Wells. They made it from the story of the same title written some years back by Mr. Wells.

This one is a bit discursive and apparently did not appeal to the regular producers, since it has fallen into the hands of the Players' company, a semi-commercial, semi-artistic organization financed partly, I understand, by Alice Kauser, the play broker.

In "The Wonderful Visit" the Rev. Richard Benham, a gentle vicar of the established church in rural England, falls adozing in his garden, and a moment later welcomes an angel who has been brought to earth by a too eager peasant with a shotgun.

The angel has fallen at the rector's feet, as it were, trailing clouds of orange chiffon, if none of glory. Its scant attire and striking inquisitiveness both irritate and arouse the suspicions of every one except the rector himself, and scandal spreads.

Soon the angel finds himself acquiring earthly qualities and despising them. All our human meannesses appall him. And a world in which wars are hatched and where the people live largely by striving against each other is no place to boast of.

He gets into considerable trouble compromising with their standards. He cannot treat ladies' maids any differently than he treats maids' ladies, and when a war baby illegitimately born, but legitimately loved, becomes a community scandal, he insists on protecting it.

In the end the vicarage burns and the angel and baby with it. But the angel comes back briefly to advise the rector that he has returned home and taken the baby's soul with him and that all is well.

The authors wrote "The Wonderful Visit," hoping John Barrymore would play it. That actor did consider it, but evidently thought the rôle too light for him. Margaret Mower is doing it now, with some competence but no inspiration.

Tired of "The Swan."

The revival of "Hannele" came about largely through Eva Le Gallienne's desire to vary the monotony of playing the romantic princess in "The Swan" eight times a week, week in and week out. She took the suggestion to John D. Williams and he helped her with the production of the play, though not much, I hear. She did most of it herself.

"Hannele" has not been played for fourteen years in this neighborhood. That long ago it was in Mrs. Fiske's répertoire briefly. It is, you will recall, the dream vision of a young girl who, beaten and bruised by a cruel stepfather, tries to drown herself, and dies later in an almshouse to which she is carried.

In her vision she recognizes the Lord Jesus in the features of her schoolmaster, one of the few humans who had been kind to her, and sees herself grandly laid out in white satin and a crystal coffin, which are a reproach to those of her playmates who have always spoken slightingly of her as a princess in tatters.

Miss Le Gallienne has the advantage of being able to suggest Hannele's youth, and her interpretation is spiritually fine. Basil Rathbone plays the schoolmaster and the numerous character parts are taken by actors drafted from current plays. They speak a cockney that is strange to Herr Hauptmann's Black Forest, but no one cares much, seeing they are pretty good actors.

COMING BACK

MISS PHOEBE FOSTER
[Hall Photo.]

She is now the principal player in "Silence," due a week from tonight in Cohan's Grand. Out-of-town report is that she is good as the task, which involves her in the respective rôles of a mother and her daughter. . . . Miss Foster is recalled as the ingénue of "Captain Applejack" when that farce was acted last season in Chicago by a company headed by Miss Mary Nash and Wallace Eddinger.

Stage-News

Miss Luella Gear is to withdraw from "Poppy," it is said, because the author objects to her speaking lines not written by him. . . . Miss Gear may be identified in Chicago as a good dancer with a sense of fun who took part a year ago in the brief run of "Elsie" in the Illinois.

A new bulletin from her manager says that Miss Ina Claire, after the try-out of "Grounds for Divorce," "will proceed immediately to either Chicago or New-York." . . . Mrs. Fiske is reported to be in rehearsal of a new comedy; and nobody tells who wrote it or what it's called or anything.

"Fool-Woman" is reported among the casualties. . . . So also is "Myrtle," known in Chicago as "A Bit of Dust." . . . A third new play, "Relations," is to be recast for another hearing.

New Playbills

Bulletins of Impending Entertainment in Chicago Theaters as Far Ahead as the Managers Tell About.

OPENING TONIGHT:

George White's Scandals [Colonial]: The fifth or 1923 version of this annual, which now classifies among the staples. Credits in authorship are divided among William K. Wells and Mr. White himself for the dialogue; Bud de Sylva, E. Ray Goetz, and Ballard MacDonald for the verses, and George Gershwin for the music. Lester Allen, Miss Winnie Lightner, Tom Patricola, Richard Bold, Miss Olive Vaughn, Miss Thea Lightner, and Newton Alexander are the more familiar names in the roster, which includes a set of Tiller dancers, and Charles Dornberg's orchestra.

Walker Whiteside in "The Hindu" [The Playhouse]: Revival of the play in which he had a long engagement in the Central theater. He wrote it. Miss Sidney Shields will again be in it. Final week of Mr. Whiteside's engagement.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON:

Tony Sarg's Marionettes [The Playhouse]: First time here of "The Chinese Willow-Plate Story," a shadowgraph-pantomime by Mr. Sarg, with music by Victor Herbert. Repetitions will be on March 1 and (in the Studebaker,) 4.

MARCH 2:

"Silence" [Cohan's Grand]: A melodrama by Max Marcin, with Miss Phoebe Foster, John Halliday, Carl Anthony, Miss Lillian Kingsbury, and John Wray in the cast.

"Patches" [The Playhouse]: A play which has had performances in Washington and Baltimore, with Miss Judith Anderson, Alphonse Ethier, and Miss Aileen Pronson in the cast.

"Little Jessie James" [Garrick]: A musical comedy by Harlan Thompson and Harry Archer. It has been running since mid-August in New-York City. A company put together for Chicago includes Miss Olga Steck, Gregory Kelly, Miss Madeline Fairbanks, and James B. Carson.

MARCH 3:

Miss Margaret Anglin in "The Great Lady Dedlock" [Blackstone]: A new dramatization by Paul Kester of incidents in Dickens' "Bleak House," with the star as Lady Dedlock and Hortense. The play was tried out by Miss Anglin last summer in San Francisco.

MARCH 10:

Otis Skinner in "Sancho Panza" [Powers']: A dramatization by Melchoir Lengyel of incidents in "Don Quixote" wherein Mr. Skinner took warm praise from the New-York newspapers.

Idle Moments Find No Place on Alma Rubens' Calendar

when the film colony learned that a man named Shakespeare had written a few dramas there was a rush for his works. Everybody was going to do the romance of "Romeo and Juliet." Then word got around—in whispers, of course—that Shakespeare knew little or nothing about the drama. He didn't know how to keep suspense, and, as for the final fadeout—well, any scenario writer could do better.

So now everybody is again reading the weeklies, looking for movie material, and the melancholy Dane will be shelved for a while. Sidney is the only one carrying the banner to make Bill Shakespeare famous in Hollywood.

"Wherefore art thou, Romeo?"

"Right here," answers Sidney, and grins, while Charlie weeps.

Charlie was feeling great at the Valentine party at the Montmartre. Viola Dana said that when Benny Leonard was called upon for a speech Charlie got up and showed what he would do if he were in the ring. Then when Charlie was called Benny Leonard got up and did Charlie's stuff across the floor.

Viola Dana was at the party with Frankie Grandetta, a prize fighter from Seattle. Shirley Mason was escorted by Bobby Agnew, and their other sister, Edna, came with her husband, Harold Shaw. Viola has been going to all the fights with Grandetta, and knows more about a right feint than most girls know about georgette crêpe.

I don't know how to tell you about Corinne Griffith and Walter Morosco. There isn't any precedent. Corinne hasn't been in Texarkana at all, but honeymooning in Hawaii. She came back to Los Angeles and announced that she was going to give up her career and bring up babies. Not adopted ones, she added, but her own. Then Walter Morosco said he didn't care how Babbittized he became—he was going to let the stage get along without him and start an agency for a home heating apparatus.

When next you see Corinne and Walter together it will be surrounded by their home grown children and Corinne saying, "What company in the cellar?"

And Walter will say, "Of course. With this ideal home heating apparatus, especially designed by myself."

It is true that Corinne will make but three more pictures, and you may imagine how startling that is when she is listed as one of the biggest box office attractions. She is also beautiful and wise, but I needn't add that.

Frisco, Utah, an abandoned town left over from the gold rush, will be the scene of the wedding of Betty Compson and James Cruze, the director. Betty was born in Frisco. Her father, a miner, later moved the family to Salt Lake City. When Cruze was making "The Covered Wagon" he passed through Frisco and said he wanted to return some day to walk through the deserted streets and in the husks of houses.

A special car will carry the bridal party to the nearest railroad point to Frisco. Automobiles will take them the rest of the way. The ceremony will be performed in the middle of the main street with an old justice of the peace officiating. Miss Compson is now in Florida, but is expected in Hollywood in a few weeks.

Mary MacLaren has arrived in Hollywood to gladden the producers and directors. Since Miss MacLaren was discovered by Lois Weber she has never been idle. Just now she is resting in her home in Commonwealth avenue.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Just Doesn't Understand.

Dear Miss Tinée: First I must tell you how much I like your column and that I think you know a good picture when you see it. I have always followed your advice, and have never been sorry.

A man who calls himself Carolus recently wrote to you to say that he has not read "If Winter Comes," but that if it isn't better than the picture, it must be trash. I doubt whether he has ever read a book at all; and if he did it wouldn't do him much good, as he has no imagination.

He is a bachelor, because he is not able to understand a picture like "If Winter Comes," therefore, not able to understand women—or men like Mark Sabre. Percy Marmont was made for that part. He lived it—and we all adored him in it.

Carolus says Mark was a weakling, an angleworm, a spineless being. Mark Sabre went to war, was wounded, and returned to the battlefield. He never reprieved for himself or his own troubles. He was not weak but unselfish. He sacrificed for others. How could any man or woman watch him in the court scene, or trying to hobble up and down stairs, without wiping away a tear?

In boosting "If Winter Comes," Mae Tinée, you boosted one of the best pictures ever produced. E. C. D.

Poems by Pfans.

[The "P" is silent in the last word as is the "F" in the first.]

A DOUBLE EXPOSURE.

I am a little movie queen,
  Most charming, I am told.
All the critics call me lovely,
  But the reformers say I'm bold.
College students send me letters
  That radiate their ardor,
But the directors call me "dumbbell"
  And tell me to work harder.

I've won fifteen beauty contests
  (And most in a bathing suit),
I've been offered leads in revues
  Because bankers say I'm cute.
My press agent tells you also
  How real domestic I am,
But behind scenes you will hear
Directors calling me "Ham."

For publicity it's rumored
  Gay dukes show me attention,
And that I own a summer home
  Is some P. A.'s invention.
But I help to fill the columns
  With scandal people invent;
It ruins my reputation,
  But keeps the public content.

L'envoi.

It's great to be a movie queen
  In this land of make-believe,
Where ashes all are thrown away,
  And none go through a sieve.
P. H. M.

The $5 Nemo Diafram Reducing Corset for a Limited Time Only at $3-Because

—Third Floor—Dearborn Street—

The Nemo Diafram Reducing corset is to be discontinued by the makers, or rather, we should say, merged with the Nemo Diaphragm Controlling corset, which, in most respects, acts in the same efficient manner with the exception that it has been designed to fit practically every type of figure, which has not been the exact case with the Nemo Diafram Reducing corset the fortunate woman who has been wearing the Nemo Diafram Reducing Corset with absolute comfort can now save $2.00 on every pair she purchases here—while they last. We will fit them just as carefully and with the same attention to hygienic and scientific fitting details as we have always done, seeing that you get only the size best suited to your figure. For this fitting service, conceded to be the best in all Chicago, no extra charge is made. Our fitters are all graduates of the N. H. F. I. of New York and understand corset fitting perfectly.

—but—

The makers sent us every pair of Diafram Reducing Corsets they had in stock when they decided to discontinue making this model and so there is this good fortune for you. All sizes 24 to 34, but we cannot say for how long; made as illustrated here. The Nemo Diafram Reducing Corset, style No. 525 is especially adapted to the woman who has been wearing the low topped corset and has allowed an ugly bulge of flesh to develop over the diaphragm, an outstanding physical defect of many figures today.

You will note this model sets very low on the figure; positively does not ride up under the bust; with self reducing strap that takes care of and reduces the abdomen, in fact it goes a long ways toward keeping women in proportions pleasing to the eye. The corset that has always sold for $5.00, now, fitted as carefully as ever, at..................... $3

Mrs. Coolidge Makes a Gift of Rare Music

open a country home upon, is indicated by two prize lists that have recently come to this desk. The Friends of American Music of Kansas City issue one; the National Federation of Music Clubs the other. The Friends of American Music require membership in their organization and a nominal fee therefor; the federation offer would seem to be unhampered.

Mrs. Eben White Sloan, 500 Lillis building, Kansas City, has charge of the Friends of American Music campaign. The prize is $1,000 for an orchestral work in large form, a symphony, symphonic poem, or concerto for piano or violin; $400 for an orchestral work in short form, not over fifteen minutes in length of performance; $400 for a chamber music work; $200 each for a song with piano or orchestral accompaniment and a piano solo.

Mrs. Edwin B. Garrigues, 1527 Spruce street, Philadelphia, is chairman on the federation contest. It includes $500 for a symphonic poem, $350 for a cantata for women's voices, $200 for a trio for violin, cello, and piano; the same amount for a chorus for children's voices; $100 each for a song, federation ode, church anthem, harp solo, and cello solo, and $200 for a composition for juniors, details unknown here.

Claire Dux to Be Soloist.

Claire Dux will probably add a bit to her reputation for intelligence and art when she appears as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week. She will lend a charming soprano voice no less than four times in the course of the program, and two of these demonstrations will be new to the orchestral répertoire. One is a concert aria by Mozart, "Bei diesen schönen Augen," apparently quite unknown in this country, though Miss Dux has sung it with much success in Europe. It calls for the highly unusual aid of an obbligato for string bass, which will be played by Vaclav Jiskra, the principal of his section in the orchestra.

Another new piece will be a solo from Schreker's "Der Schatzgräber." Still others, not utter novelties, but by no means frequent, will be the soprano solo part in Mahler's Fourth Symphony, and "Me Voila Seule" from Bizet's "The Pearl Fishers."

Mr. Stock has another novelty in mind for the orchestra. It is the Satie-Debussy "Gymnopedies." Also included on the list are the Mozart "Idomeneo" Overture and "The Harvest Festival" from Schilling's "Moloch," in all an interesting looking program.

ADDIO, AMELITA

MME. GALLI-CURCI.
[Lumiere Photo.]

She has burned her bridges against any possibility of return here next season by announcing that she will go to Europe for a protracted stay as soon as the present season is over. When she comes back, it will be for further concert appearances. Her recital at the Auditorium tonight will be the last opportunity Chicago will have to hear her for the next two years.

BOOKS and BOOKMEN

By GENE MARKEY

THE vast cult of Theodore Dreiser worshipers are throwing their hats in the air over "The Colors of a Great City" (Boni & Liveright), hailing this book of pungent sketches as a veritable tour de force. Almost any Dreiser acolyte will tell you that the influence of this master lent Russian literature its peculiarly Russian touch, that he is the original high priest of realism; and such able and unbiased judges as H. L. Mencken and Sherwood Anderson genuflect each time his name is mentioned. Nevertheless, it seems to us the colors of a great city glow more brightly in Ben Hecht's "Thousand and One Afternoons."

Sherwood Anderson's "Horses and Men" (Huebsch) contains some of the most superb stories this artist has written; it is Anderson at his best. Opinion concerning his work will always remain divided; half the world will continue to lift its hat to him—and the other half to lift its eyebrows. There is a strange simplicity to his style that one must accept solemnly or it lends itself too easily to burlesque. W. E. Hill, the satiric creator of "Among Us Mortals" once wrote a screamingly funny imitation of a typical Anderson theme, and not long ago we heard that versatile comedian, Sinclair Lewis, render ex tempore such an amazing burlesque on the Anderson style that the author, himself present, howled with glee. But, then, Mr. Lewis can imitate anybody, from Horace to Gertrude Stein. The fact remains that, regardless of what he may have absorbed from Dreiser, Zola, or the Russians, Sherwood Anderson has struck a new and vibrant note in American literature, and this latest book, "Horses and Men," is well worthy a place beside "Winesburg, Ohio."

The adjective "Incomparable," as applied to Max Beerbohm, is quite as old fashioned as the Prince Albert coats in which this personage was wont to array himself when he was the literary dandy of London in the flamboyant '90s. Notwithstanding, Max remains, if anything, more incomparable than ever. His newest volume of caricatures, "Things New and Old" (Doubleday, Page), is enormously entertaining. Each year of his pleasant exile in Rapallo, Italy, Max's draftsmanship improves, and there is in this book a wicked caricature of Arnold Bennett that alone is worth the price of admission. These are the drawings that were shown last season at the Leicester galleries in London and caused such a row because of fancied lèse majesté, with the royal family as victims.

One of the most grotesque caricatures among the new Beerbohm collection is that of Aldous Huxley, oldest of the younger generation in London and author of a tempting array of satirical hors d'œuvres, of which "Antic Hay," a novel, is the most recent. It is not difficult to believe that Aldous Huxley is the grandson of the great Thomas—their writing is so different. He is one of those clever, sophisticated young Londoners, not long down from Oxford; and no one, since Beerbohm wrote "Zuleika Dobson," has served up such delectable caviar and champagne. "Antic Hay" is a highly amusing novel; bon mots and bum mots pop frequently, and the whole effect is one of satirical, fanciful nonsense.

That venerable old magazine, The Bookman, appears to have been rejuvenated, after wabbling about unsteadily for the last year or two. The current number contains, among other features, an excellent article on "The American Tradition," by John Farrar, the editor, which sets forth the situation of literary criticism existing today, and deals both factions, puritans and revoltés, a fillip on the wrist. There is an anonymous "Spotlight" on Henry Blake Fuller, Chicago's renowned novelist emeritus; and Dr. Llewellyn Jones proceeds to stick a pin into Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter." Perhaps it is the approach of spring, but whatever the cause, The Bookman is coming to life again.

* * *

Dr. Ferdinand Ossendowski has crashed through with another one. Those who derived a thrill from "Men, Beasts, and Gods" will doubtless enjoy "Man and Mystery in Asia" (Dutton), likewise done in collaboration with Lewis Stanton Palen. This new one may lack the dramatic power of "Men, Beasts, and Gods," but it is a fascinating chronicle of Dr. Ossendowski's adventures in such far corner of the mysterious east as Siberia, Turkestan, outer Mongolia, Manchuria, the plains of Ussuri, and of his experiences with the savage tribes there. What a quiet life the doctor has led!

There is nobody who writes of the circus so creditably as Courtney Riley Cooper, author of "Under the Big Top" (Dutton). Until recently Mr. Cooper traveled as a press agent for one of the large circuses, and he knows the world of canvas and sawdust, from the menagerie to the hot dog stand. To be sure, he is no Ossendowski, but he tells circus stories in a manner that touches the imagination.

* * *

This has been a big week for literature in the theater, with Basil Sydney and the Theater guild presenting Ibsen's "Peer Gynt," Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple," and Andreyev's "He Who Got Slapped." A great many people approach the theater so intelligently that they wish to know something about what they are going to see, and in consequence the book shops sell many copies of these worth while plays. We shall always consider "Peer Gynt" Ibsen's masterpiece, though it acts better than it reads, as they say around 42d street. Of all the Ibsen dramas "Peer Gynt" stands the test of time and creaks less as it is played.

Boni & Liveright appear to be publishing a number of plays this month. They have recently brought out Sutton Vane's "Outward Bound," which has won such tremendous acclaim on the London and New York stages, and Molnar's "The Swan," as well as another Molnar volume, bearing the typical Viennese title, "Husbands and Lovers." This last is a book of sophisticated dialogues interpreting Viennese life; the most sparkling, audacious dialogues since Schnitzler's "Anatol." In spite of what those enthusiasts over the decayed '90s may babble, the best of Oscar Wilde's dialogue does not compare with Schnitzler's; and Franz Molnar seems the logical successor to Schnitzler. "Husbands and Lovers" may be at times mildly shocking, but the dialogues are enormously entertaining.

Interest in Thomas Beer's excellent biography, "Stephen Crane: A Study in American Letters" (Knopf), seems to be increasing hereabouts. We did not read the book until Miss Amy Leslie and Karl Edwin Harriman, editor of the Red Book, both intimate friends of the late and great Stephen Crane, told us what a really fine piece of biography it was.

A dull week it is that brings no visiting English novelist to lecture here. Since they discovered this fertile lecture field there has been an endless procession of them crowding the platforms of our women's clubs, exchanging shopworn literary opinions for bags of gold, and sailing home—many of them to enjoy a hoarse chuckle at our gullibility. Miss Rebecca West and Frank Swinnerton, we are told, gave the customers their money's worth, and proved to be social and artistic successes both here and in New York.

It was Dr. Samuel Johnson who observed: "Sir, the biographical part of literature is what I love most." And when books by such superb biographers as Philip Guedalla and Lytton Strachey come along, we can agree with the doctor; the next best thing is a book of memoirs, if it be well done. Miss Elisabeth Marbury, who has perhaps led the most sprightly existence of any American woman—an existence crowded with achievements in the theatrical and fashionable worlds of two continents—has told a brisk story in "My Crystal Ball" (Boni & Liveright). Miss Marbury writes easily and with not a little wit; and her memoirs make excellent reading.

The noble grandfather of all travel books is beyond question Charles Montagu Doughty's "Travels in Arabia Deserta" (Boni & Liveright). It came out originally in 1888 and knocked the top hats off all the stuffy English critics of the day because of its remarkable originality. This new two volume edition, though expensive, is a valuable asset to any one's library, and should increase in value when the edition becomes exhausted.

The third volume of "The Outline of Literature" (Putnam) has been issued to its eager, thirsting public. Mr. Drinkwater's cultural quick lunch has gained a wide popularity, and deserves it—let the highbrows sniff as they will. There is nothing this side of an intricate university course that gives one the complete sweep of the world's literary history as this Drinkwater opus.

There is one point which the all seeing critics who ply their trade in and about New York seem unwilling to recognize, and that is the utter absence of any Chicago literary group. Scarcely a week passes that one of them does not take a crack at what they love to fancy is an earnest little group struggling here to put out Chicago literature, whatever that may be. The truth is, there is no more literary school in Chicago than there is in Bloomington or Peoria. It is true that a number of writers make their home in this city, but they exercise no group consciousness, and the ones who do the most work almost never meet. Times have changed since the Little Review crowd took Mr. Mencken seriously. Carl Sandburg, Ben Hecht, Henry Kitchell Webster, Edgar Lee Masters, Edwin Balmer, Henry Justin Smith, and the others who are writing books are so busy, each with his own work, and have so little in common, that they might as well be scattered over the states of Nebraska, Rhode Island, and Texas.

Any one with a taste for Hazlitt (and no essayist in the early nineteenth century wrote with more gusto and charm) will be pleased with the selections his recent biographer, P. P. Howe, has collected into a little volume, "The Best of Hazlitt" (Doran).

* * *

Postmen these days are bowed under tremendous packs of incoming novels, hot off the presses—though some of them, it must be admitted, are not so hot. Among the most enjoyable ones are Compton Mackenzie's latest, "The Parson's Progress" (Doran); "So Big," Edna Ferber's great Chicago novel, published by Doubleday, Page; a new one called "Good Hunting," by Norman Davey (Doran), who wrote "The Pilgrim of a Smile"; "Summertime," by Denis Mackail (Houghton-Mifflin); "Children of the Age," by Knut Hamsun (Knopf); Eden Phillpott's Devonshire story, "Cheat-the-Boys" (Macmillan); "The Snob," by Helen R. Martin (Dodd-Mead), and the long looked for "Heirs Apparent," by Sir Philip Gibbs (Doran).

NEWS OF THE MUSIC WORLD

For once there was reason a few days ago for a Chicagoan to become envious of New York on a matter of music. Paul Whiteman and his orchestra went to one of the concert halls of this eastern port and gave a program called "An Experiment in Modern Music." In reality it was a jazz concert, and it would seem to have occasioned considerable wagging of heads and construction of philosophical formulas.

Not entirely unexpectedly there was considerable difference of critical opinion on the outcome. The Whiteman organization began with an elder specimen of jazz, something to be regarded as a horrible example, the "Livery Stable Blues," and critical paths began to diverge at once. W. J. Henderson, in the Herald, admitted that it was screamingly funny, but regarded it as mere vulgarity, noise, and discord. Olin Downes, in the Times, recorded a critical right angle from that opinion. He wrote: "This is a gorgeous piece of impudence, much better in its unbuttoned jocosity and Rabelaisian laughter than other and more polite compositions that came later."

Apparently the latter day trend in jazz is toward the subtle and mannerly, gentler variants in rhythm and tone color. Other parts of the program contained variously a symphonic rhapsody upon three airs by Irving Berlin, four serenades by Victor Herbert, a demonstration of the Handelian origin of the banana anthem, an irreverent transcription of MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose," and George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," for piano and jazz orchestra, which would seem to be an effort to treat the jazz instrumental and thematic idiom in an extended manner.

INCOMPARABLE

ANNA PAVLOWA.
[Mishkin Photo.]

She is a week in the future, but she and her lovely Ballet Russe are coming to the Auditorium for a two weeks' visit, beginning March 3. It is cheering news for those who regard the ballet as a fine art.

Some of the critics found all this at least half alive. They admit gorgeous vitality of rhythm and instrumental color, but are somewhat appalled at maudlin melodic sentimentality and vapid harmonization. Lawrence Gilman philosophizes thus in the Tribune: "For have we not here a psychologically truthful expression of the strange dualism of the American temperament, with its paradoxical blend of independence and docility, carefree energy, and unventuresome conformity?"

At that, it must have been an interesting and rather entertaining experiment. Whether you like it or not, jazz is to date the one original American contribution to music, and it is bound to have its effect upon future music. It is already having its effect. Traces, tentative but unmistakable, are in the scores of such composers as John Alden Carpenter and Leo Sowerby, and for the last three or fours years Eric DeLamarter has been putting together a jazz symphony. Perhaps in three or four years more he will have it finished.

Here and There in Music.

Not heard since the spring of 1915, Bach's "St. Matthew's Passion" music will be sung by the Apollo Musical club at Orchestra hall tomorrow evening. The performance will begin at 6:30, with an intermission of an hour between the first and second parts. Harrison M. Wild will conduct; Else Arendt, Mary Welch, Richard Crooks, John Barclay, and Burton Thatcher will be the soloists; Edgar Nelson will be at the organ, and the Chicago Symphony orchestra will play the score.

Evidently when Galli-Curci went away from the opera company this winter saying she was through, she meant it. She has made her word good by making European engagements to begin at the end of the present season and when she finishes her song recital at the Auditorium tonight it will be her last for the next two years. She begun on that stage; she is preparing to say farewell from the same spot. Details of her program have not been received, but it is said she will have some new numbers and also a large collection of old favorites.

Classifying among the out of the ordinary musical events is a lecture recital by Henry Cowell, composer and pianist, at Fine Arts Recital hall next Thursday evening. He has been creating interest in other communities to some extent as a performer of his own works, but rather more by his "tone clusters," which Dr. Korngold, the Vienna critic, calls "the highest point of atonal thinking," and which New York newspapers report as being produced by smiting the keyboard with fists and forearms.

Mr. Cowell will play some fifteen works of his own and talk about them. From this distance it would seem to be an occasion calling for the inspired discrimination of the learned and expert music critic who signs himself R. H. L.

A greatly cheering item of musical news is the information that a week from tomorrow night Anna Pavlowa and her lovely Russians will be in Chicago for a two weeks' visit, and this at the Auditorium where for a certain period of the year the fine art of ballet is not regarded particularly highly. In addition to a long list of formerly performed ballets and divertissements, she brings with her several notable novelties.

One is "Oriental Impressions," three scenes of Japan and India. The Japanese section consists of three dances, "Dodoji," "Kappore," and "Takesu Bayashi," translations not guaranteed. They are arranged by two Japanese dancers, and the music is constructed from Japanese themes by Henry Gheel. Of the Hindu sections, one represents a royal wedding, the other the folk dances of the Hindus. Again dances and music are of Hindu origin.

Another novelty is "Old Russian Folklore," arranged by Laurent Novikoff, with music by Tscherepnin, and scenery and costumes by Ivan Bilibin. It is based upon the Russian legend, "The Enchanted Bird Princess," and this rôle is taken by the star.

Another lecture will be given by Dr. L. Harrison Mettler at the Musical Guild house, 716 Rush street, Wednesday evening. The subject is "The Meaning of Music from a Psychological Standpoint." Agnes H. Pillsbury and Katharine Gorin, pianists, will provide illustrations.

Grand opera in concert form and sung in English is announced again for this noon's performance at the Chicago theater. Nathaniel Finston will extend his baton over a performance of "Il Trovatore," which will have the symphony orchestra and chorus of that house, Marjory Montello as Leonora, Gladys Swarthout as Azucena, Arthur Boardman as Manrico, Louis Kreidler as Count di Luna, and Rebecca Scheibel, Fred Goodwin, and Charles Bennett Gash in the rôles of less length.

The organ recital announced for next Sunday will be different to the point of being duplex. A second console has been built and installed, and the program will be a duet recital by Jesse Crawford at the first and his wife at the second. The plan offers interesting possibilities.

Artur Bodanzky has been reshaping the music of Weber's "Der Freischuetz," as he did for the same composer's "Oberon" a few years ago, and it will be presented by the Metropolitan Opera company next month.

* * *

Dame Ethel Smyth has been making some remarks in the London Daily Telegraph that apply almost in their entirety to America. She holds that the English musical genius lies in the direction of comic opera. The race has an inexhaustible spring of humor. Opéra comique is unknown in England. The question is whether there is a public in London for light opera. There is apparently nothing between musical comedy and grand opera. On the continent in the big opera houses can be heard in one season "The Ring," "The Barber of Seville," "Fidelio," and "The Mikado." You may laugh heartily one night and weep the next. Art in England is taken with provincial solemnity. If London, Manchester, and Glasgow would vote a subsidy for local opera, it would help to establish centers of culture and education.

The BRUNSWICK METHOD of Reproduction

....the point of difference that transports phonographic music into the realms of higher musical expression

All the world is turning to Brunswick.

Internationally acclaimed artists of the New Hall of Fame—Onegin, Danise, Lauri-Volpi, Bohnen, Chamlee, Easton, Dux, Hofmann, Huberman, Rethberg; these and other stars of today's concert and operatic stages record exclusively for Brunswick.

Famous critics, musicians and authorities, both in Europe and America, all subscribe to surround Brunswick with the priceless prestige of authoritative approval.

Widespread improvements

That is because, by means of exclusive methods of Reproduction and of Recording, Brunswick has attained true reproductions of music.

These methods mark widespread improvements both in phonographs and in records. They prove that phonographic music need never be "mechanical"—that reproductions can be made as true and real as if the artist or orchestra rendering them were brought personally into the home.

Hear and compare

Before purchasing any phonograph, hear The Brunswick.

And next time you purchase records, ask to hear Brunswick records.

Then you will know why Brunswick is, internationally, the instrument of today.

There is a Brunswick dealer, of recognized prestige as a musical authority, near you. He will be glad to demonstrate.

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction

The remarkable tonal quality of The Brunswick is due to an exclusive Method of Reproduction, obtainable on no other make of instrument.

At the right is the Oval Tone Amplifier of moulded wood, with the supreme quality of a fine old violin. At the left is the balanced tone arm which cushions the path of the needle and reduces surface noises to a minimum, and the famed Ultona Reproducer which effects thoroughly unmechanical reproductions.

These are the essential points of difference which have gained world-wide musical acceptance for Brunswick.

KICK KORNER FOR MOVIE FANS

ITS OBJECT—OBJECTION

Frills Make Her Unhappy.

Dear Miss Tinée: I love to go into a nice theater and see a good picture, but that's as far as I'm interested. I merely tolerate (yes'm) this so-called "De Luxe program." I beat it when I can, but not everybody being even as you and I, it is more often that I have to sit through it with my companion. And I simply squirm! I want to leave the theater with a distinct remembrance of those particularly fine bits. I want to be in that mood which the picture produced—providing I've liked its effect. And—if I don't—I surely am resourceful enough to hunt up an antidote.

O, how I hate to be jerked up and told to "listen to this" while reading that. Do go after these people, Mae, and tell 'em for a few of us (and, maybe there are more of us than we imagine) that we don't want everything all at once. That if we want a few jokes, we'll go to the theater and hear 'em all in a string—and we'll take our opera from experts.

I'll sit through the feature—surely, that's what I go to see. I'll no doubt enjoy subconsciously the accompanying music, and if they must give us pictures of the recent events, I'll not kick, but why show us these awful comedies, "hodge podge" stuff and nonsense, with no end of so-called educational and travel films thrown in—all in the same evening. I can't go to Japan to superintend the buying of my punk sticks, but I can't get up any enthusiasm when I know from experience that the few scenes being shown will soon be clipped off the screen and "Fancy Fisheries" or some other delicacy of the de luxe program will be shown. A little bit of this and a little bit of that—and, Mae, it is a wonder to me how you can preserve your impression of the main feature to inform us afterwards. I don't believe I'm rattle brained, but it is often that I have to think twice, thrice, of the feaure title when I'm outside.

Jack Tar Knows.

Dear Miss Tinée: Went to see "When Knighthood Was in Flower" this evening. The picture, as a whole, pleased me, but, being a sailor, I could not help but notice that the ship on which Pat came over to America was too modern to have been built prior to A. D. 1807. If you think it worth while, please send this letter to the producer of said picture.

A SAILOR.

That's Your Privilege.

Dear Miss Tinée: Although it pains me exceedingly to differ with you, I am strongly impelled to do so regarding your writeup of "Zaza." Why, Mae, your review of the picture makes me so mad I regret I have nothing but mere words to hurl at you.

"Zaza" was a great picture—entertaining, picturesque, and different. Gloria's portrayal was a work of art. Who but Miss Swanson would have had the courage to toss restraint to the winds and give such a fiery, tempestuous performance. She made the character childishly petulant, and played it with a sincere and sympathetic appeal and with a delicacy of touch that could not offend even the most sensitive.

The scenes were laid in beautiful surroundings, and although the play is really a single character affair, the supporting cast, which was good, was given a fair showing.

Although the film differs from the stage and the operatic version, you must concede it is better suited for screen purposes and more in line with present day censorship than any that has gone before.

Any adverse criticism I have heard against this picture seemed due to the face that Zaza had a temper, was ill bred, and a little too rough. But such was Zaza. I am afraid it is a little too late to change her character.

By this performance the talented and vivacious Gloria fittingly takes her place among the noted actresses who have played the eternal Zaza.

Full of Flaws.

Dear Miss Tinée: The settings of the pictures of the north give me a pain—some are awful. Renee Adore in her latest wore a knee length dress and thin stockings and covered the distance from Churchill through Chesterfield Inlet to Herschel island. In the last fifty years only two or three explorers have done that and they wrote books about it.

The Canadian mounted police—not the Royal Northwest mounted any more; they changed the name—explored about half of that trail, and it took them four years and the government printed a special report about it.

The mounted went after an Eskimo murderer and did not get him. You know "they always get their man," but in this case, because they did not get their man, they had to print a long government report about it. Yes, I have the report in my library. Rare work.

And in Tom Mix's latest, "North of Hudson Bay"—McMillan and Steffanson and Peary write books about that region—the rivers are not frozen and the men go around in sweaters with coats unbuttoned and bare headed. Yes, they do! And in the interiors they have open fireplaces. I never heard of or saw such a thing even on the south shore of Hudson bay. They have stoves large enough to burn a whole log length without splitting. And no one ever sees dressed furs hanging on the walls of the posts. They come in in packs looking like damp leather with the fur turned in, and are rushed to civilization to realize on their value and not kept for sale or exhibition in the posts.

To give the right color location the director shows the British flag in front of the post. Correct, but all the post flags I ever saw had large white letters on the field when used in the north—H. B. Co. or R. F.—just to let the Indians know that the government there is the Hurson Bay company or the Revillon Freres.

And a Canadian coniferous forest is well sprinkled with birches and their white trunks add a wonderful contrast to the evergreen. This is absent in the California setting.

Alice Brady went to Timascaming to get a real winter setting for "The Snow Bride." They succeeded in that, but they allowed the heroine to wear immaculately tailored fur garments from 5th avenue. The fur comes from the north, but no one up there has mastered the fur tailor's art. Up there they wear furs for warmth and not for style.

Alma Rubens was featured in the Canadian Rockies in impossible footwear and the same immaculate tailor made clothing—and she taking the part of a poor but beautiful native.

Let us hope that when the perfect picture is made there will be no geography to it so we poor devils who imagine we are well informed can find no flaw.

via Southampton

First Sailing . . . April 17
Later Sailings . . May 29, July 5

The Hamburg-American Line, when planning this magnificent vessel, drew upon their long experience as the builders of the world's greatest ocean liners, in order to achieve the highest in beauty, comfort and efficiency. Among other important mechanical features is a new anti-rolling device which is an advance on anything yet applied to merchant ships.

The Deutschland is an oilburner of 21,000 tons, and carries first, second and third class passengers. Her facilities for the traveler's convenience and pleasure include spacious social parlors, smoking room, grill room, children's room, verandah cafe, gymnasium, elevators, suites and staterooms designed and equipped in the most modern manner. The Hamburg-American service and cuisine are world-famous.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

How Fast Doth the Spotless Snowflake Acquire an Ebon Hue, and Lose Its Pristine Whiteness Upon the Avenue!

By Mme. X.

Some of our side streets look, these days, as did our highways and byways in the famous winter of 1917-'18, when snow fell incessantly from November to March and lay piled so high along the side streets that the foot passenger could see only the roofs of passing automobiles. Besides accumulating in sizable drifts where snow shovelers have heaped it in front of dwellings, the once pure gift from heaven is fast acquiring an ebon hue which reminds the writer of the comment of a visitor from Washington who arrived in the middle of that snowy winter of six years ago to visit Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Lathrop in Bellevue place.

On alighting from the motor she inquired of the chauffeur: "Ole, why does every one keep his coal in front of his house?"

Nevertheless, in spite of the ever deepening tint on our snow piles, it is the opinion of this pillar of polite life that there is a perceptible diminution of the smoke nuisance under the present municipal régime. Our eyes may deceive us, or our memory may be at fault, but life's grime seems of a milder quality than in the days of yore. Not that we are an even decently clean city yet. Hands and garments, household equipment and snow piles testify daily to that fact. But we are amazingly clean when you consider the inefficient forces of the anti-smoke department of the city government.

I really think that if women were given a chance to become instructed in the practical housekeeping required to run a city, they might be of great use in certain departments, especially in those which have to do with keeping it tidy. If the air deposits continually a sticky, black substance over everything, if streets and alleys are unswept, if ash and garbage cans are permitted to remain unemptied until their contents riot over the surrounding territory, it is the women who have to clean up after these sources of filth have done their worst.

To the Front.

Realizing their potential power, women are more and more coming to the front in active work in politics. This fact is becoming increasingly significant as the present important campaigns proceed from day to day. Among the latest manifestations are the selection of two well known and prominent social leaders by the local political bosses of the two principal parties to run for the office of delegate to the big conventions whereat the two big parties will select their presidential candidates for the national election next November.

Mrs. Arthur Meeker will be the regular candidate as delegate from the Ninth congressional district to the Republican convention, to be held in Cleveland early in June, while Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank will be run as an uninstructed delegate to the Democratic convention, which will meet a week or so later in New York. These two women are good friends, and it is interesting to think that they are pursuing the same road, though under different banners.

Mrs. Fairbank has been much longer a factor in politics than Mrs. Meeker, who only recently entered the field. The latter, however, is proving herself a valuable addition to the ranks of those who are working for state and national elections under the ægis of the G. O. P. At a recent dinner that she gave at her house, 3030 Lake Shore drive, to which she invited fifty of the most prominent business men of the city, she raised a sizable sum with which to carry on the women's part in the campaign. She presided at the banquet, and did so with so much gay poise and assurance that she quite won her rather formidable company. Each guest knew perfectly why he had been invited, and, as the purist in English would say, every one "coughed up" cheerfully and generously.

Of all the unattractive jobs in this exceedingly intricate world of ours, there is none so unpleasant as that of collecting money, for any cause, however worthy. Those who consent to undertake this task, especially if they be women, should be furnished with golden halos by the rest of us shirkers. They are doing work that has to be done, as things are now managed, whether the object be politics or charity or something esthetic, but it is never agreeable, though it would be less loathsome if the mortal approached by these gallant martyrs to a sense of duty would only for an instant put him or herself into the place of the importuner.

Plenty of Leisure.

Walking downtown on a Monday morning recently, the writer was twice struck with proofs of a generally denied fact—to wit: that Chicago is, after all, a place where leisure is a possibility made use of by certain classes of its citizens. Passing one of the big movie theaters at about ten minutes to 11 o'clock, according to the big timepiece overhanging the nearby corner, was a long double line of people waiting at the ticket office, men and women who, when counted, rounded up sixty-four, and the counting erred on the side of moderation, because even as the lines were enumerated, others sauntered up to join the procession.

The majority of these movie fans were men, young men between, one would say, 18 and 30 years of age. They did not look like loafers or like men furnished with enough money to take a Monday morning off. Yet Monday morning is of all the six working mornings in the week, the most exacting and ordinarily full of responsibilities, both for wage earners and housekeepers.

What offices, banks, shops, business establishments, and homes were waiting for this band of brave men and women who could so far overcome the claims of daily life as to pause on a Monday morning for amusement? Across the street were other waiting lines before the box offices of other cinema palaces.

The second reminder of the leisurely possibilities of certain classes of our fellow citizens was emphasized that same day on the way home to my north side roost, when the traffic of which I was an infinitesimal unit, was held up at the south approach of the Boulevard Link bridge by a passing dredge, which was being towed up the river in deliberate fashion by a ferociously smoky tug. Slowly the two big blades of the bridge were lowered into place. It seemed as if those two overlapping lids of iron would never decide which should go over and which should go under.

And then came a pause before lifting the final frail barriers, which never fails to get this member of the X. family wondering, for it happens every time the bridge opens. What does the bridgetender do for that perceptible space of time? Foot passengers slip under the slim jackknife rails before the latter are lifted, and are half way across the bridge before there is any sign of the elevation of the barriers to the vehicular traffic. Does the bridgetender lost himself in a trance, musing on the beauties of the river, or does he give himself up to prayer for the safety of those who use our streets?

Whatever it is, there is an enormous amount of time lost between the time that the two halves of the bridge are in place and the moment that that huge tide of street travel gets in motion again, if you count the minutes spent by each of the persons waiting at that point. At the crowded moments of the day such an interruption of traffic might collect at each side of the river, in the thick throngs that stretch back on both banks for blocks, perhaps as many as 500 persons on either hand. Calculating on this basis, a minute's delay means a little over sixteen hours of lost time to that multitude. The bridge tender's moment of meditation or prayer, therefore, costs that portion of Chicago's public which happens to be desirous of crossing the river sixteen hours' time. Meditation and prayer are to be commended at their proper times and seasons, but these are not to be found at the opening and shutting of that crowded bridge.

Change and Rest.

Speaking of meditation and prayer, one of Chicago's best known and most popular social leaders recently did an original and sensible thing. She had had a strenuous winter, one filled with a variety of activities. The moment had come when she needed a change and rest. Did she do as so many of her fellow sisters have done—go to a sanitarium for baths, massage, and dieting, or seek the seclusion and freedom of a big New York caravansary? She did not. She merely announced that she was going east for ten days or so, and then slipped over to one of the pleasant and well kept hostelries that have sprouted along our own lake shore in recent years.

There she spent those ten days in a comfortable room, where her meals were served and where she did exactly as she wanted to for that time, getting up as late as she desired and going to bed at her own sweet will, or even staying in bed all day if she felt like it. She took with her a large stock of books and had some handwork in case she felt energetic, which wasn't often. Her room faced the lake, and from it she watched the skies by day and night; the sun in its uprising and the moon in some of its many phases; the stars staring dimly through the city's smoke. Most of all, she watched the lake with its bleak, stark fields of ice moving silently shoreward at the behest of the east wind, or moving as silently out again when pushed by the west winds. It was deliciously restful. Her husband, the only one in her secret, came daily to see her, often taking a meal with her. She emerged at last, looking refreshed and renewed, with glowing cheeks, shining eyes, and having shed ten years in those ten days.

She smiles when any one asks what plays she saw in New York and what is the latest fad there or the most recent celebrity. It is a good idea, and I pass it along to those to whom it may appeal.

We Americans have not yet learned the necessity of meditation as a part of our daily life. A silent communion with our own inner thoughts and selves should be as much a part of our diurnal ritual as brushing the teeth or other inevitables. The fathers of the church realized it when they instituted the custom of retreat, that health giving period of fasting, prayer and meditation. Old Oom Paul, as the Boers affectionately dubbed President Krueger, knew the power of such solitude. When working out some problem he used to retire to a lonely African mountain top where he wrestled with the Lord, praying and fast-

Bryn Mawr Summer School Enrollment Closes March 15

By Kate Webber.

APPLICATIONS to attend the fourth annual sessions of the summer school for women workers in industry must be sent in before March 15, according to the announcement made by Bryn Mawr graduates living in Chicago, many of whom are members of the committee for the summer school.

The classes of this school, held for eight weeks during the summer on the campus at Bryn Mawr, have been arranged to offer young women in industry opportunities to study liberal subjects and to train themselves in clear thinking. The school is not committed to any theory or dogma. It was through the inspiration of Miss M. Carey Thomas, president emeritus of Bryn Mawr college, that it was organized in 1921, in the hope that the students attending might thus secure a truer insight into the problems of the industrial order, increase their influence, and add to the happiness of their own lives.

The curriculum of work during the two months of study in the vine covered halls and under the great elms beloved by many classes of alumnae, includes an interesting program of study of industrial problems, history, English, and a series of talks on national and international questions. The lecture hours are filled with tennis, swimming, or folk dancing, nature study trips, or the reading of poetry and plays. A series of concerts, showing the development of music, has been a feature of each year's program, and has been much enjoyed by the students. This year's term will be from June 13 to Aug. 9.

An applicant must be between the ages of 21 and 35, must have had a common school education or its equivalent, be able to read and write English, and be in good health. Only women working with the tools of their trade, not including saleswomen, clerical workers, and teachers, are admitted.

Registration is limited to 100 students. Application may be made to Mrs. Herman M. Adler, 119 East Huron street, who is a member of the admission committee of the summer school. Other members of the committee who are Bryn Mawr graduates and interested in the summer school are Mrs. James A. Field, Mrs. William B. Hale, Miss Leila Houghteling, Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, Mrs. Robert De Golyer, Mrs. Philip Post, Miss Gladys Spry, Miss Marion Holt, Miss Lillian Herstein, Miss Leah Taylor, Miss Helen Hill, Miss Monica Healea, and Mrs. Paul Douglas. Miss Agnes Nestor, president of the Chicago Women's Trade Union league, is assistant director of the summer school.

The tuition, including board, room on the campus, and laundry, is small. Additional information regarding this and scholarships is available, through application to the committee, in care of Mrs. Adler. The proceeds of a lecture and concert, to be given this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the central branch Y. W. C. A., 59 East Monroe street, will go toward the scholarship fund.

MRS. H. L. HARTENSTEIN.

The Edgemere Woman's club, which has made rapid growth since its early days as a Red Cross unit during the war, will give its annual philanthropy card party on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Marigold gardens. Mrs. Herman L. Hartenstein, president, will assist Mrs. Frederick O. Justice, the chairman, in arrangements.

MRS. WILLIAM D. BOST.

Mrs. William D. Bost is a member of the committee in charge of arrangements for the annual dinner dance of the Illinois Woman's Athletic club, to be held on March 22 at the Sovereign hotel. Mrs. Charles S. Peterson, Mrs. E. R. Fifield, and Mrs. William Westerlund are social chairmen.

MRS. HERMAN M. ADLER.

[Matzene photo.]

Mrs. Herman Adler is chairman of the committee of Bryn Mawr graduates of Chicago who are helping with the registration for the Bryn Mawr summer school for women workers in industry, to be held from June 13 to Aug. 9. Registration must be made before March 15.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans

"I DO wish clubwomen would get into the habit of answering letters promptly," voiced the historian. "I wrote to fifty of our members, over three weeks ago, asking for certain information I must have in order to complete my files. So far, I have received answers from just three. It's surely discouraging."

"You should have named a time limit," commented her confident.

"I did. I was polite about it, too. Asked them please to answer within ten days. Much difference it made! After I had accepted the job of historian, Mrs. Ripley sweetly informed me that no one else would take it. I see why, now."

"How do you propose to drag the necessary data from the negligent ones?"

"I'll have to keep pumping for it, I suppose. I will see some of them at the club; some I will have to call up on the phone, perhaps once and perhaps several times, before I get them, and the others I'll just have to keep writing to until I make an impression. My, but it takes time! A few minutes' attention on their part would save me hours, but they never think of that."

"By what I hear you aren't the only one who has trouble with the 'never answer until you have to' members. The corresponding secretary was complaining to me yesterday about a member who hadn't answered a letter asking if she would serve on an important committee. Meantime the board couldn't ask any one else, and the committee was appointed for immediate action. The only way to get some women to answer a letter is to send them one of the self-addressed, self-stamped, self-answered variety with a place left for them to sign their names."

"Let's start a letter answering league, with 'do it promptly' for a slogan. I'm sure every club official and member who has to get information by writing will boost it."

"In the present political crisis of our state," said Mrs. Dobyns, "we need the help of each member in deciding these important questions." For this reason the club is urging all members to attend the meeting which follows the luncheon, if it is not convenient for them to be present at 1:30 o'clock, which is the luncheon hour.

ing until he came to a conclusion with himself as to what course was the right one to pursue. The ultimate and not highly successful outcome of these meditations in his case does not disqualify the theory which has been proven by many of the world's famous people. We Americans would all be the better for some such habit of solitude devoted to thinking things out.

On the Des Plaines River.

It was a dazzling, blue roofed winter day two Sundays ago when a numerous delegation of what is left of Chicago's gay and fashionable set motored out to luncheon with Miss Mary Waller at River Forest. The Waller house is one of the landmarks of that part of the city. It is a rambling, roomy old mansion set on a tree shaded little peninsular held tight in an elbow of the sluggish Des Plaines river. It is a delightful setting in which to give a good sized party, as it has any number of rooms, all with fireplaces and equipped with the comfortable, unself-conscious furniture in which our immediate ancestors delighted.

The chief feature of the place is a delightful bowling alley and billiard room combined which is housed in a pavilion reached from the house itself by a winding, glassed-in passageway. A big chimney place gives opportunity for one of those traditional open fires such as one seldom sees nowadays. That day its five foot logs crackled and shed a perfumed warmth over the large recess in which from fifteen to twenty people can easily find room to sit down and watch the bowling or billiards or even the less strenuous ping pong near at hand.

In other seasons of the year when Miss Waller's friends gather at this hospitable dwelling they often wander in the grove and on the lawns which surround the house, or even go down to the river's sedgy brim to watch the wriggly tadpoles in their mysterious little lives or some of the other forms of land or water life. That particular Sunday Miss Waller had as well as local notabilities several distinguished out of town guests, among whom were Gen. Sir Percy Sykes, the authority on matters Persian, who was at that time in our midst, and Sir John and Lady Martin-Harvey, whose dramatic achievements have attracted considerable attention here lately.

Hands Across the Sea.

Tonight at the Casino still another of our friends from across the sea, Maj. Vivian Gilbert, the actor-soldier, who was an officer of the troops that entered Jerusalem with Gen. Allenby, is going to speak to the members after a buffet supper, his subject being "The Romance of the Last Crusade." Maj. Gilbert was one of eight brothers, all of whom held commissions in the world war. He was born at Chadwick Manor, Warwickshire, England. He is of the same stock as Admiral Lord Nelson and also Sir John Suckling, post laureate in the days of the Stuarts. He was educated at the Royal Naval academy at Portsmouth. Later he went on the stage, appearing in London in leading parts under the management of Sir Charles Wyndham, Cyril Maude, and Weedon Grossmith.

In the four years he served during the late war he rose from being second lieutenant to the rank of major on the divisional staff. He was in the first Somme offensive, later going to Macedonia, where he spent five months fighting in the hills of Serbia, Bulgaria, and Greece. From there he was transferred to Egypt, and thence to the Holy Land, where, under Gen. Allenby, he took part in the campaigns which included the capture of Beersheba, Jericho, and Jerusalem.

It is a curious fact that the English used the Bible not only as a guide book to the British troops in Palestine, but also as a book of military tactics. A British general defeated the Turks on the same battlefield and with the same strategy that Saul used to defeat the Philistines.

Maj. Gilbert is a well set up, cheerful looking young Britisher of the best type of his countrymen. He has a pleasant voice, a fine talent for speaking, and an attractive personality. He has been among the most popular of the wandering Englishmen who have since the war visited this country on one mission or another. Those Britishers are, after all is said and done, our next of kin, and what concerns them is not alien to us. If they occasionally look on us a little askance or with a not too friendly mien, imagine to yourself how much you, perhaps an elderly and aristocratic mortal, would really like a perky, young upstart cousin who was of the get rich quick kind, possibly making his wealth out of your misfortunes or because of them. Isn't it probable you would notice any crass and uncouth qualities of such an one?

Maj. Gilbert will also speak at the dinner the English Speaking union is giving next Thursday at the Hotel La Salle. His subject there will be "Both sides of the Footlights," which is said to be one of his most entertaining lectures.

Paints Mrs. Upham.

I have had occasion to write before this of the attractive young English woman, Miss Dorothy Vicaji, who has been spending some weeks here with a collection of the portraits she has painted of persons more or less famous. They are a fine showing, and secured her some commissions here. One of these was from Frederick Upham, who gave Miss Vicaji a commission for a portrait of Mrs. Upham. She has completed it now, and this afternoon Mrs. Upham is giving a tea at 670 North Michigan avenue to show Miss Vicaji's latest work to her friends.

Apropos of painting, have you seen the exhibit of Marie Laurencin's work brought here by the Arts club and now to be seen in its room at the Art Institute? It is attracting a great deal of varied comment. Some see little or nothing in those diaphanous and unreal floating globes of color. These are the matter of fact folk; those who support and encourage the school of realists in art and literature. Others go into ecstasies over them, waxing eloquent about the ethereal and original qualities of the pictures, their exquisite colors and lines. These are the romanticists among us, those whom the fragrance of a rose can intoxicate or the fading light of a sunset sky can transport to fairyland.

I confess I would rather belong to the latter category than to the matter-of-facters. The romanticists get more fun out of life. It is perhaps a tendency to belong to these ecstatics that makes the X family enjoy a stroll through the room that shelters for the time these canvases. The unsubstantiality of Mlle. Laurencin's pictures, with the iridescent bubbles and the fiction of design, makes us want to pause and linger before passing on to more conventional and easily described paintings. Go to see the Laurencin collection when you are passing by the Art Institute if you have time. Also stop a moment in a gallery which you will probably pass through on your way to the Arts club room and look at a brilliantly decorative piece of work which Abram Poole has sent to this exhibit of modern American painters. It is one of the best this young Chicago artist has yet produced. He has had many fine commissions of late years for the kind of mural work which is coming more and more into vogue among those who build the American equivalent for a palace.

None of these palaces is being erected in Chicago. Except for the house which John P. Wilson, the younger, is building in North State parkway, there isn't another good sized house going up in the fashionable part of the north side. Hotels and apartments in plenty are sprouting up on every side, but the old fashioned, stately mansion, once the height of the ambitions of every oncoming and successful man or woman, is far to seek. Not that every one is going to live in the splendid tenements where the more basic troubles and expenses of everyday life are taken care of by the management. Far from it, but many who yearn for the greater privacy and more serious responsibilities of a house are securing these by buying dwellings already built by others.

Mrs. Ward Vilas, for instance, has bought and is soon moving into what was for many years the home of the late Mrs. Malcolm Caruthers in Banks street, next door to the Edward L. Ryerson house. Mrs. Vilas is going to renovate and change it a little and expects to occupy it in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Ogle of Chicago have announced the engagement of their daughter, Lucile, to Roland Lawrence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Lawrence of 2136 North Hamlin avenue.

Alexander Smiths Move.

About the same time Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Smith will transfer their lares and penates from their apartment at 999 Lake Shore drive to what was formerly the house of James M. Hopkins at 1421 Astor street, and which the Smiths bought lately. This has what few city dwellings have, a charming garden at the rear of the house. Chicago was formerly known as the Garden city because of the large and well laid out grounds and the lovely gardens in which many of the residences were set. But this was before industry's smoke had settled like a black pall over the city, stifling many forms of vegetation and making the rest puny and anaemic. Perhaps some day the perfect smoke consumer will be evolved, after which Chicago can regain her ancient fame as a city of gardens and flowers.

In this connection it is not out of place to comment on a new field of activities which the Municipal Art league is considering. The idea comes from Philadelphia. It is a scheme by which "flowers are brought to the flowerless." Our suburbs are at certain seasons running over with blossoms. It is the suggestion of Mr. Fleisher of Philadelphia that our big railway stations shall be equipped with receiving booths, with buckets of water in which those coming to town from the nearby countryside can deposit their flowers, to be called for by hospitals and other institutions and distributed among the sick and poor. The plan has been tried out successfully in Philadelphia. It seems practicable, and should appeal to all who love flowers and who can picture to themselves the flowerless state of thousands of our fellow citizens, especially those cut off by illness from their daily lives. It should be tried out.

Back from Paris.

Three or four years ago a group of enthusiasts, amateurs and professionals, used to gather in Mrs. Arthur Aldis' studio in an aged and grimy building overhanging the river, a little west of where the Boulevard Link bridge now is, and there, with Will Hollingsworth as guide and chief inspirer, they painted what their fancies longed to express. Mrs. Aldis, I remember, accomplished, among other things, some lovely furniture and screens.

Mr. Hollingsworth, however, turned his eyes outward and saw beauty in the many aspects of our little admired river. What he noted of its many lovely effects he stored up in his mind and it inspired some of his subsequently successful work in wood cuts which the Century Magazine published. He left Chicago for Paris, that goal of so many young artists, and now he returns with a fine gathering of his work in recent years. His old friends, especially fellow members of the Arts club, are working to give him a successful time here, and are officiating at a tea on March 1 which will open his show of paintings and wood cuts for its fortnight's stay here at a local gallery. Among those whose names appear as his sponsors are the Mesdames Potter Palmer, Kellogg Fairbank, John A. Carpenter, John Borden, Chauncey B. Blair, A. A. Carpenter, and John Root.

Next Thursday afternoon the members and friends of the Chicago branch of the Southern Women's Episcopal alliance are giving a tea at the Casino to meet Miss O. Latham Hatcher, president of the alliance. Miss Helen Fraser of England will speak on "American and British Women; Comparisons and Contrasts." It sounds as if it might make a piquant topic. Miss Fraser is considered one of the best public speakers in England today.

The hostesses of the occasion will be the Mesdames Cecil Barnes, John Borden, J. Dorr Bradley, William M. Burton, A. F. Callahan, George A. Carpenter, Calvin Fentress, Charles F. Fitts, Joseph B. Long, A. J. Ochsner, Potter Palmer, George S. Payson, William A. Pusey, Charles N. Strotz, Carroll Sudler, Russell Walcott, Willoughby Walling, J. Gordon Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Tyson, and Judge Jacob M. Dickinson.

KERMANS

A new trend of style for mature figures

(Sizes 38 to 44)

Admirers of KERMANS modes for slender figures have often asked us to fashion apparel of equal originality for women of more generous proportions. And so, after four years of detailed study as to lines, draping and materials, we present these unusual frocks.

In these charming modes, skillful designing and deft use of colors has made possible for larger women the allurements of youthful touches heretofore regarded possible only for slender folks.

"Tiers" are firmly entrenched in the fancies of every feminine heart. They, too, give a slenderizing effect if properly employed—as in the brown satin model—left.

Even the femininely enticing "folds" and "frills"—so long tabooed for larger women—can be used, if used properly, as in the frock in the small panel. The frills are so employed that not a line is shortened, while a row of buttons emphasizes the straight line.

Side drapes for stout figures? Yes, indeed—if the lines produce the slenderizing effect of the softly flowing folds of crepe satin in the models at the extreme right.

At the extreme left is shown a trig frock of tan Poplin, an air of youthfulness being given by the dainty collar and cuffs, embroidered pockets and long ribbon tie. While the new Pom Pon is used to fashion the frock at the left—$85. In the panel, at the right, the French Blouse mode is portrayed in a beaded dinner dress of turquoise Crepe Elizabeth.

These are but a few of many distinctive models for street, dinner, afternoon and evening wear, which the larger woman will find at KERMANS. And following the policy so well established with our Modes for slender and average sized women—the pricings are low.

Stuart's Portrait of Washington on View at Institute

By Eleanor Jewett.

FEBRUARY, probably, is the most patriotic month in the American calendar. It is the birth month of the two men who, in all likelihood, will never be forgotten as long as the Stars and Stripes carry any meaning within their shimmering folds. Lincoln and Washington—we salute you.

The Art institute has at present, in the Bryan Lafiin Smith room, a portrait of Washington new to Chicago. It is considered one of the best of the early authentic portraits. It was painted by Gilbert Stuart, and is one of four of the Lansdowne type he painted. The peculiar appellation "Lansdowne type" is given the canvas from the fact that the original first of the four portraits was done on a country estate called Lansdowne. From the place where they were painted the portraits took their name.

On an adjoining wall in this same gallery is another portrait of Washington. This portrait the Art institute owns; the other it merely wishes to own—and subscriptions are now being received for the express purpose of purchasing it from its present owners, a firm of art dealers, I believe, in Boston.

The portrait owned by the institute was painted by Edward Savage in 1793. The Savage portrait is painted on a panel of a coach of George III. and was retained by the artist. At his death it was inherited by his grandson, Charles Henry Savage, who died in Chicago in 1916. Miss Catherine Colvin inherited it from Mr. Savage, and on Feb. 22, 1921, gave it to the Art institute. It is the third of Edward Savage's four portraits of George Washington.

The time grows short in which to enjoy the diversity of beauty brought together in the Chicago Artists' exhibition at the Art institute. Four more paintings from the exhibit have been sold. They are "Jonathan" and "Indian Trail Marker" by Joseph Birren, "The Tea Table" by Ingeborg Christensen, and "A Portrait," by Helga Haugan Dean.

The "Indian Trail Marker" by Mr. Birren is a beautiful little painting. It was painted on land owned by the artist's grandfather a half century ago and now part of the forest preserves. A clear spring bubbles up just beyond the bend of the stream bed, over which droops an exquisitely colored bough.

Mr. Birren is having a one man show in New York from Feb. 18 to March 1. There are twenty-three canvases in his exhibit; five of these have been seen at the Art institute; others have never been shown here. Among the best of the pictures are "Dell Mirror," "Mill Pond of Ipswich," "Gold and Turquoise," "The Sea Wall" and, what he considers his best painting, "The Land of Priscilla and John."

Dean Cornwell, who lived at one time in Chicago and was with THE TRIBUNE for a while, spoke before the students of the American Academy of Art recently. His lecture was immensely inspiring. Some of his hints, coming as they did from a young artist who is making a name for himself in the world of illustrators, were illuminating. An illustrator's success he remarked is "25 per cent work and 75 per cent idea."

That, however, was the lone example of success without good, rousing, exhaustive work. Every other axiom was based on work. "Work—use your head." "Aim low, but overshoot your mark." "Do the little job well and it will become a stepping stone to success—through work." "The big men work every day and also they work on Thanksgiving day, Christmas New Year's, and Fourth of July! "Look for the good points in art work. And work, work, work all the time." That is his message to young artists.

A gift of $50,000 has been made to the Art institute by Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Worcester, the income from which is to be applied to the installation and maintenance of the children's room. This room, a museum in little, for children, is now being installed in gallery 1 on the first floor, and will soon be opened. There will be cases showing progressive stages in several arts, this to answer the why and how questions of the little visitors. Pictures and statues of special interest to children are also being installed.

In Hutchinson wing there is an exhibition under the auspices of the Antiquarian society, which includes many valuable silver pieces, English, dating from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Be sure not to miss the two quaint gold plated honey jars from the reign of George III., nor the bowl made during the Cromwellian era in 1657, nor the large bowl dated 1698 and bearing the signature of William Faudery.

An exhibit of art work from the elementary grades of the Chicago public schools opened on Friday in Blackstone hall, and will continue for two weeks.

Other paintings which have been sold from the Chicago Artists' exhibit and whose sale has not been announced, are "Decorative Landscape," by Irving K. Manoir; "Bond's Alley," by Lucie Hartrath; "Happy Valley," by Karl A. Buehr; "Decoration," by Carl Wuermer; "Lost Creek," by Ellsworth Young, and "Interieur des Cloitres," by Mary H. Wicker.

Two different arts met last Tuesday in the galleries of the Art institute when the Passion Players from Oberammergau were chaperoned through the various exhibits by an eager Art institute department of instruction cicerone.

The exhibition of paintings by Mikles Gaspar closes tomorrow at the Palette and Chisel club. M. Gaspar has three water colors in the Chicago Artists' show at the institute, but they give only a sign of the power that is his. The Palette and Chisel club exhibition is immensely kinder to him in that there he has the floor to himself and shows to excellent advantage his talent for composition and color.

Fullerton hall lectures, as announced for the week, are Lionel Robertson, Monday afternoon at 2:30, "Interior Decoration—the Ensemble;" Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, William McC. McKee will speak on "Some Modern Print Makers."

"George Washington," by Gilbert Stuart, on view at the Art institute in the Byron Laflin Smith room. This portrait the institute is anxious to acquire for its permanent collection.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Bishop Griffin's Consecration Will Occur Tomorrow

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THE consecration tomorrow morning at 10:30 in the Cathedral of the Holy Name, North State and East Superior streets, of the Rt. Rev. James A. Griffin, D. D., as the Catholic bishop of Springfield, Ill., will be an event of wide interest. The ceremony of consecration will be performed by the Most Rev. G. W. Mundelein, D. D., archbishop of Chicago, assisted by the Rt. Rev. E. F. Hoban, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, and the Rt. Rev. Samuel A. Stricht, bishop of Toledo, O., as co-consecrators. The sermon will be preached by the Rt. Rev. Bernard Mahoney, Sioux Falls, S. D.

Bishop Griffin expects to celebrate his first pontifical mass at his former parish, St. Mary's, Joliet, next Sunday, following his installation at the Immaculate Conception church, now the Springfield cathedral, on next Friday. The diocese over which Bishop Griffin will preside was formerly the Alton diocese, but has been changed to the Springfield diocese.

Bishop Griffin was born in Chicago, in St. Gabriel's parish, sometimes spoken of as "back of the yards." He was educated in the high school of his parish, at St. Ignatius college, and in Rome, Italy, where he studied theology. Before going to Joliet Bishop Griffin was assistant at St. James' and St. Brendan's churches in Chicago.

Dr. W. H. P. Faunce, president of Brown university, Providence, R. I., will speak tomorrow morning at 10:30 at the union ministers' meeting at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street, under the auspices of the Chicago Church federation. President Faunce is author of "The Educational Ideal in the Ministry" and other books. He was formerly pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, New York. A two reel movie illustrating the work of the Young Women's Christian association also will be shown.

Announcements for the Lenten services under the auspices of the Church Club of the Episcopal Church and of the Chicago Church federation, representing fifteen denominations and 650 churches, are now ready. The Episcopal services will be held in the Garrick theater. They will begin on March 5, Ash Wednesday, and continue every noon for twenty minutes, 12:10 to 12:30, except Saturday, until Good Friday, April 18. The speakers will be as follows: March 5-7, Bishop James Wise of Kansas; March 10-14, Canon Bertal Heeny, Winnipeg, Canada; March 17-21, Bishop G. G. Bennett, Duluth, Minn.; March 24-28, Canon A. P. Shatford, Montreal, Canada; March 31-April 4, Bishop W. H. Overs, Liberia, Africa; April 7-11, the Rev. P. E. Osgood, Minneapolis, Minn.; Holy week, April 14-18, Bishop C. P. Anderson, Chicago.

The services under the auspices of the Chicago Church federation will be held in Powers' theater, 12 to 1, as follows: March 24-28, the Rev. Don Poling, New York City; March 31-April 4, Bishop Thomas Nicholson, Methodist Episcopal; the Rev. M. P. Boynton, Baptist; the Rev. S. P. Long, Lutheran; the Rev. Gilbert Wilson, Congregationalist, all of Chicago; the Rev. Howard Agnew Johnston, Milwaukee; April 7-11, the Rev. J. S. Wardle Stafford, Toronto, Canada; April 14-18, the Rev. John McNeill, New York City.

A concert will be given by Miss Catherine Wade and William Beller at Christ Lutheran church, Wilson and Spaulding avenue, next Tuesday evening.

The twentieth anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. Fred V. Hawley at Unity church will be celebrated with a dinner at the City club, 315 Plymouth court, the evening of March 3. The Rev. Curtis W. Reese, secretary of the Western Unitarian conference, will be toastmaster.

Miss Vera L. Noyes has become the supervisor of religious education of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago with headquarters at 180 North Wabash avenue.

The Rev. James L. Gardiner, D. D., pastor of the Austin Methodist Episcopal church, Race street and Central avenue, will give a monologue on "Jean Valjean" on Friday evening, March 5, at the Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Locust and North La Salle streets, under the auspices of the Deaconess Aid society of Chicago.

The Deaconess Aid society has more than 800 members representing the various Methodist churches of the city and suburbs. One of their principal charities is helping to sustain a deaconess working in connection with the Goodwill industries at Centenary church, Morgan and Monroe streets. Dr. Gardiner's monologue is given to provide means for this special good will work.

Dr. Gardiner was for nine years pastor in South Bend, Ind., before coming to the Austin church, which is one of the largest churches of the denomination in Chicago. He is a graduate of Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, and received his college training at De Pauw university, Greencastle, Ind. Dr. Gardiner presents in his monologue eight dramatic scenes taken from Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables."

The social union of the Disciples of Christ churches in Chicago will meet for dinner tomorrow evening at 6 at the Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. Charles T. Paul of Indianapolis will speak on "Christ in the Orient."

Today will be observed as Cathedral Sunday in Episcopal churches. The need and purposes of a new cathedral will be explained.

Raymond B. Fosdick of New York will speak at 7, and President W. H. P. Faunce of Brown university will speak at 8 o'clock this evening at the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall. Mr. Fosdick is a brother of the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick. He was under secretary general of the league of nations, 1919-20, and is a trustee of the Rockefeller foundation. His subject will be "Our New International Relations." Dr. Faunce will speak on "What Is America?"

Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, formerly of London, Eng., will conduct evangelistic services at the Second Presbyterian church, 20th street and South Michigan avenue, the Rev. Josiah Sibley, pastor, beginning next Thursday evening and continuing daily except on Saturday until March 6. He will preach morning and evening next Sunday.

The seventieth anniversary of the Free Sons of Israel will be observed today at 3 o'clock in room 601 Capitol building.

The choir of Unity Evangelical Lutheran church, Magnolia and Balmoral avenues, will give Gaul's cantata, "Joan of Arc," next Friday evening.

The council of cities of the Methodist Episcopal church will meet in Pittsburgh, Pa., next Wednesday to Friday. Among the ministers attending from Chicago and Evanston will be the Rev. Warren N. Clark, Community church; the Rev. Paul P. Rugg, church training board; the Rev. John Thompson, First church, and the following from Evanston: The Rev. Eric P. Swan, the Rev. Harris F. Rall, and the Rev. Ernest Fremont Tittle.

The American Baptist Publication society will observe today in the churches of the Baptist Northern convention the 100th anniversary of its establishment. There will be a pageant in Philadelphia showing the evolution of the work of the society during the century. The story will be broadcast from twenty cities today. Dr. C. W. Gilkey broadcast the story from Chicago yesterday evening. A translation of the four gospels, bound in a separate volume, by Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery, has been issued in commemoration of the event and 100,000 readers are being enrolled in a Scripture Readers' league, using Mrs. Montgomery's translation as the text.

"Wine for a Wineless World" will be the subject of the sermon today at 10:45 at Powers' theater by the Rev. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Chicago.

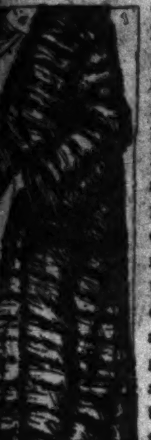
FADS AND FANCIES

Varnished Rodent Looks Like Mink

A Chinese rat ran up a wall,
We saw its tail, and that was all,
But coming down the other side
A furrier stripped it of its hide,
Worked upon it night and day,
Then added it to his display.
It looked like mink, its price was low,
Its air was chic; he saw 'twould go.

And that is the tale of the evolution of murmel, the new French fur.



The rat's nationality was vouchsafed by an American woman who has come home from Paris with a long, full coat of murmel. She said she fell in love with it because it was lovely to look at, as well as being practical and inexpensive. It really has much the air of a soft, dark brown mink, and even to the gloss that is such an important detail of the finer fur.

That, she says, is the secret. After the fur has been treated and dyed, it is covered with a kind of thin varnish which gives it the essential shine. And this varnish must be put on anew each year to keep the fur looking well. Without it, the fur would be ordinary. With it, it is fascinating.

Each Guest Asked to Bring His Own

The kitchenette apartment is blamed—and praised—for a lot of things these days. Men declare they fill the restaurants; women of the old school substitute doctors' offices for restaurants; but the modern housewife, used to and tired of the servant problem, has taken the idea to her heart. There seems no doubt that they have simplified city living for innumerable people, and have made of entertaining a thing of delight.

One of the smartest parties given recently by a woman who has taken a kitchenette apartment for the winter, to save the endless trouble that invariably accompanies keeping up a large menage, marked an era in dinner entertaining. Each guest was invited to come and bring his dinner specialty. The preparation could be begun at home, but the final touches and the serving were to be done at the apartment.

One masculine member of the party brought a cream of mushroom soup; another, a chicken cut up and ready to fry as he had learned in the south; two women brought vegetables and a salad, delicious and unusual; and a man and his wife donated a mousse they had actually prepared themselves, learned in the days when they were starting out in the world, and laughed and cried over and remembered, all these years.

The hostess contributed the necessary extras—hot rolls, olives, coffee, bonbons, and the like, and, with the help of an efficient little house boy, managed things so that it was unanimously voted the best party ever.

ANSWER TO WHAT'S WRONG HERE

Do not attempt trick dancing on a crowded floor. Even though you and your partner are clever, reserve your best performance for a larger space and audience.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned. Address Best Jokes Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Why He Frowned.

Biggs, an inventor, had a puzzled frown when he greeted his friend.

"What's the problem today?" asked his friend.

"Not much, only that I am inventing a parking space that can be folded up and delivered with every new car, but I don't know how to furnish the place where it can be used," he answered.
R. Z.

The Go-Getter.

A red headed boy applied for a position in a messenger office. The manager, after hiring him, sent him on an errand in one of the most fashionable districts. Half an hour later the manager was called to the phone and the following conversation took place:

"Have you a red headed boy working for you?"

"Yes."

"Well, this is the janitor at the Oakland apartments, where your boy came to deliver a message. He insisted on coming in the front way, and was so persistent I was forced to draw a gun."

"Good heavens.. Yo didn't shoot him, did you?"

"No; but I want my gun back."

A young man was wandering up and down the platform of the railway station intent on finding an empty carriage in the train. But in vain.

Assuming an official air, he stalked up to the last carriage and cried, in a stentorian voice: "All change here; this car isn't going."

There were exclamations, low but deep, from the occupants of the crowded car, but they hurried out and packed themselves in other parts of the train. The smile on the face of the young man was childlike as he settled himself comfortably. "Ah," he murmured, "it's a grand thing for me that I was born clever! I wish they would hurry up and start."

By and by the station agent appeared at the door and said: "I suppose you're the smart young man who said this car wasn't going?"

"Yes," said the clever one, and he smiled.

"Well," said the stationmaster, with a grin, "it isn't. The porter heard what you said, and so he uncoupled it. He thought you were a director."
G. P.

Taking Its Time.

"I have been on this train seven years," said the conductor of a slowly moving southern train, proudly.

"Is that so?" said a passenger. "Where did you get on?"

"Passengers."

"Why does a fireman wear red suspenders?"

"To hold his pants up, of course."

"No, it's to keep them from coming down."

"I wonder what is good for big feet."

"Big shoes."

"I have an odd voice. What would you call it?"

"I wouldn't call it. I would let it sleep, if I were you."

"You know I love you. Will you marry me?"

"But, my dear boy, I refused you only a week ago."

"O, was that you?"

"Did you ever get homesick?"

"Yes, that is why I left home."

"Are you fond of animals?"

"Are you looking for a compliment?"

"Why didn't you send your man to repair my electric door bell, as you promised? That bell hasn't rang in over a month."

"The repair man did go, but as he rang the bell three times and got no answer, he concluded that there was no one at home."

"People are saying that you married me for my money alone."

"They are mistaken. You had quite a lot of real estate."

"Why do you wear that dress? It looks like half mourning."

"Well, you're always complaining that you're half dead."

Adler & Dunbar.

"O, I feel so musical this evening."

"Were you making all the noise I just heard out there?"

"Yes, I was singing."

"Singing?"

"Yes, I've got a wonderful voice and it's all my own."

"You can have it. Nobody wants it."

"And the most wonderful part of my singing is, I sing entirely by ear."

"You sing entirely by ear? You don't know absolutely any notes at all?"

"I do not know one note from another, I sing entirely by ear."

"Well, being that I am your friend I think I owe it to you to advise you that I think you should let an expert examine you."

"O, I intend to get the services of an instructor shortly."

"I didn't mean an instructor, I was referring to an ear specialist."

"I love singing. No matter what it is that sings, I love to hear it. I love to hear the birds sing."

"So do I. They never attempt a piece beyond their ability."

"Huh. I should worry if I can't sing. I know a man—"

"So do I."

A COMFORTABLE BED BY NIGHT · A COUCH BY DAY · LOOK FOR THE HERZ NAME NEAR THE HANDLE

Grasp the handle—Flip up—and it's open!

One flip and there's your bedding with this Double Day Bed— and it's just as easy to put away!

A FEATURE of the Herz Double Day Bed which commends itself to all housewives is the instant and easy accessibility of the bedding. The same "flip" which opens the 27-inch day bed into a full 54-inch double bed discloses the bedding all ready for use. It reposes in an ample, sanitary, well-ventilated storage space. The extension open, the bedding is immediately available.

To store away again, simply fold and "flip" back the extension—it is out of sight immediately. Plenty of room for plenty of bedding was the idea of the Herz Bed Company in introducing this appealing feature. No uncomfortable positions to assume, no complicated attachments—it is as easy to get at and put away as is the "one flip" process in opening the bed itself. And that is the feature which made day bed history.

Herz Double Day Beds are built in a large number of beautiful period and modern designs and finishes, in metal, wood and reed, at a wide range of prices. In selecting, you have your choice between the Coil Type or Link Type of springs. The 100% pure layer felt mattress comes in a great variety of handsome coverings. The dealers listed carry a representative showing of these double day beds.

HERZ BED COMPANY, 2320 S. WESTERN AVE., CHICAGO

No Hard Center Ridge or hard iron bar where the springs join in this double day bed. The springs join perfectly in the center. Both sides being of equal height, one side is just as comfortable as the other and the mattress always lies absolutely level.

The Adjustable Head Rest is an exceptional feature of this double day bed. It is raised in a jiffy and puts your head and shoulders in the most natural, comfortable position for genuine relaxation.

Soft Edges Front and Back are made possible by the use of heavy coiled springs which give the maximum of buoyancy—and yet, the edge can't sag. The HERZ DOUBLE DAY BED makes a comfortable seat for living room, sun parlor or wherever it may be used.

CAN YOU MEET PEOPLE?

We are in a position to take on several new salesmen. Previous sales experience either in investment or insurance lines would be an asset, but is not necessary. We present in an entirely new manner—to men in business as well as to the average wage earner—a savings program which allows him to save for himself in the future through weekly or monthly deposits in the Illinois Merchants Trust Company, and at the same time by his first deposit in the bank to provide for the future welfare of his business or his family if he should die—because the first deposit in the bank places in force a life insurance policy which will pay, in case of his death, more money than he would save in a period of 25 years. The supply of prospects is unlimited, for there is no one who cannot save at least a few dollars a month under our plan.

This is a dignified, profitable, permanent connection for the right men. In Chicago it is identified with one of the largest financial institutions in America, and you need not be afraid to call back again to see your clients. The fact that we already have quite a large number of depositors in Chicago alone shows its appeal. We will work with you and give you the daily personal instructions necessary to present the proposal effectively. Let us explain our plan to you and show you what some of our men are doing with it each week and you can judge for yourself the opportunity it holds for you.

FOR LIVE WIRE SALESMEN.

Experienced traveling salesmen, now calling on hardware, variety or general stores in Illinois and neighboring states, to sell new, patented, steel, self-setting mouse and rat traps as a side line. La Salle-st., Chicago.

HERE'S AN A1 SALES OFFER FOR 3 LIVE WIRES.

If you are the salesman who has had big commission checks a few years ago, why aren't you getting them now? Is the fault yours or your line or both? We have taken a number of men who had sold one line for years or until they had grown weary of the grind and would like to show you what they have earned.

There is one thing dead sure—you won't better yourself by growling. A change of lines is what you need. The same effort with us would make you twice what you are now earning. It has done this for men just like you.

In the first place our business faces the rosiest year of our experience. We have men enough earning a thousand dollars a month so that they have ceased to be curiosities. That means that our line pulls like a [illegible] when the proposition is put to the merchant.

If you are a positive type, can talk convincingly, can work with your eye on the calendar and not on the minute hand of the clock, if you have a clean record and are from 28 to 55, we want you. Our line has appeals others lines never have had. Our sales plan is in a class by itself. Our products are nationally advertised and our men are getting orders where other salesmen get the cold shoulder or the cold air. See Mr. Pearson about this, Hotel Brevort, Monday and Tuesday 9 to 12 and 2 to 4. Close in territories assigned on guaranteed basis. If not able to call write fully.

IS THIS THE SALES LINE YOU ARE WAITING FOR?

We have a sales proposition that is a fast mover, and if you are tuned up to fight for big earnings in the selling game, here's your golden opportunity. We are the largest concern of the kind on earth. We spend enormous sums advertising our products. We have about 725 salesmen and by enlarging our line want more men.

This should prove exceptionally interesting to men who have sold registers, scales, adding machines, meat slicers or who have been calling on the drug and confectionery or movie trade. Or we will make it interesting to any honest, full-of-fight man who never sold anything, if he will follow our instructions.

Plenty of our men are averaging better than $140 a week. Many sales on inquiries which we furnish. Territory assigned on a guaranteed basis. Our men swear by us and not at us. We co-operate 100 per cent. And best of all, we have the thing the merchant opens his door to get every morning in the year—a chance to make more profits.

By enlarging our line we need 3 men at once. Put this to the acid test. See Mr. Nelson, Room 323 Marine Bldg., 136 West Lake-st., Monday, 2 to 5; Tuesday, 9 to 12 and 2 to 4. Out of town applicants write.

Avoid Paying High Rents.

We offer for sale on the Co-operative Ownership Plan individual 4, 5 and 8 room apartments in Crandon Arms, with heated garages if desired; located in the heart of the South Shore Country club district. These new, modern apartment homes may be acquired by the purchase of an equity in the entire ground and building, ranging from $3,700 to $6,000. Convenient terms if desired. A small safe investment in this new, modern, well located building and ground enables you to occupy the apartment you select at operating cost instead of rental. The monthly operating cost is enough less than the rental value to save your investment about each seventy-two months you own the apartment. Adequate provision is made for owners to sell their interest in the property or to sublease their apartments. The building is under construction; will be ready for occupancy April 15. The apartments have been especially designed for homes. The unusual size of the rooms, closet space, light and air will attract you. Apartments may be selected in the order applications are received. Well worth your while to investigate. Come to the building. Owners on premises every day including Sunday.

AM I RIGHT?

$4,500 will pay 3 years' rent with nothing to show for it. It will buy a good car which will be worth less than $1,000 after 3 years, or it will pay for the equity of a 5 rm. sun parlor apt. 1 blk. from Sheridan-rd., which will increase in value in 3 years. You can occupy the apt. just the same as the rented one and you can stay there. The upkeep is less on the apt. than on the car. You can buy any one of these three items on terms. "OWN A HOME first." If you WILL pay rent and you MUST have a car, buy the one you need, a MOVING VAN.

5 LARGE ROOMS AND 2 BATHS FOR $80 A MONTH AT THE LOCK-LER, 3638-50 SHERIDAN-RD.

Across from the Yacht Harbor in a new fireproof, soundproof building; oak floors, tile partitions, suspended metal lath, built-in tubs, tile to wainscoting in bathrooms, inserted towel rack and soap holders, ample electric outlets, 1 column suspended radiators. A home just as you would have planned it in a beautiful building. Here is a genuine value.

For example, pay $7,000 and you own your home in the 1st floor of the 3d tier, together with a proportionate share in 24 income producing apartments.

Your share per month of the expense of operating the building would be $46. In addition you would pay each month to apply on the mortgage [which is in effect an owner's savings account] the sum of $34. "This sum is equal to interest on your invested capital." Your total monthly payment is therefore $80. If you are not a tenant owner this particular apartment would cost you per month $165. Therefore you save $85 or half of your rent, and receive interest on your invested capital.

SEE OUR REPRESENTATIVE AT THE BUILDING. We should like to mail you our Co-operative Apartment Primer explaining our plan in simple language.

Reduce Your Rent—Save ½. NEW BUILDING.

Most attractive 4 room apts., living rm. 12x18, built-in baths. Why pay high rent when you can live under our plan in the exclusive Edgewater district in a high grade building? Our co-operative plan will enable you to live in this building for $52 a month; our buildings are located where values are climbing rapidly, when you pay rent of $100 per month for 5 years you have paid out $6,000 with nothing to show for it; pay it to yourself and own your own apartment. 6501 Winthrop-av., corner Catalpa. BEFORE YOU SIGN YOUR LEASE investigate The Andridge Co-operative Plan. By purchasing an apartment under this plan others have found welcome relief from the pressure of present high rents. They are saving from 30 to 50 per cent. They are building up their capital and borrowing power instead of accumulating rent receipts and cancelled checks. At the same time they are enjoying both the satisfactions of home ownership and the conveniences of apartment life.

SAVINGS OF ANDRIDGE PLAN.

Six items of expense which tend to push apartment rents up are saved completely by those who purchase Andridge homes: [1] losses from vacant apartments; [2] losses from uncollectable rents; [3] fees for building management; [4] the cost of excessive decorating and repairing due to the carelessness and frequent shifting of tenants; [5] the landlord's profit; [6] costs resulting from speculative buying of apartment buildings.

SEE OUR BUILDINGS.

THE MARQUETTE, at the northwest corner of Washington-blvd. and North Pine-av. Four and five room apartments.

All Andridge buildings are new, all well constructed, all planned and equipped for daily comfort, all conveniently near transportation, schools, shops and recreation centers.

Descriptive booklets on any of our buildings will be mailed promptly on request without obligation. Find out exactly what The Andridge Co-operative Plan offers you before you sign another tenant's lease.

$350,000 Pulp & Cordwood.

Dominion of Canada Crown Timber Cruiser spent 60 days inspecting land and cruising timber. His report in our files indicates 8,000,000 ft. saw timber—158,000 cords of wood—58,000 cords of which is first grade pulp saleable at $5.50 per cord on sidetrack on land. Neighboring farmers would cut wood and place on cars for less than $2.50 per cord. Remaining 100,000 cords could be disposed of on same plan to net owners $2.00 per cord. 8,000,000 ft. saw timber, excellent for buildings.

Prosperous Farming Community.

Most prosperous farms in Manitoba are adjacent to this body of land. Improved farms bringing $50 to $75 an acre. Diversified farming generally followed. Excellent water. Rainfall averages 30 inches for over 20 years. Purchased in 1907 for $8.50 an acre cash. This tract of land has remained in same ownership, an Eastern Canada Bond House, for over sixteen years, at which time it was purchased for $8.50 an acre spot cash.

Fortune for Some One.

Land will stand thorough investigation and inspection. We have complete maps, reports, surveys, etc., etc., at our office. As Canada has no immigration restriction, a huge fortune could be made by colonizing. Proceeds from wood alone will more than pay purchase price, leaving land for profit. Land is 80% arable.

Sell or Trade.

Owners will sell for $10 an acre on liberal terms, or will trade for improved property. Willing to divide in smaller blocks. Co-operation of bankers, brokers, and colonizers invited. Liberal commission allowance.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

There Is Money in the Variety Business

The Variety Store field offers unusual possibilities for profit, minus the hazards which stand in the way of so many new enterprises.

They operate on a small overhead and with proper handling will pay a bigger net return on a comparatively small investment than any other kind of store.

Men from almost every walk of life are now successful owners of retail Variety Stores and are making greater profits than they thought possible when we first helped them to get established.

The amount of capital necessary will vary between $1,500 and $10,000, depending on the size of the town and other local conditions.

We will show you how to pick a choice location, help you select your fixtures, your stock, how to mark your goods to make a profit, how to trim your windows, how to advertise, how to get the people coming to your store.

We know of many excellent locations in different parts of the country where Variety Stores can be started without conflicting with existing stores.

Or if you prefer taking over an established store we know of one Variety Store in Centerville, Iowa, which can be bought for about $3,500. Another in Oelwein, Iowa, for $8,000.

You incur no obligation whatever in requesting details. Simply come in and see us or write us a letter in strictest confidence, telling us fully and frankly about yourself, how much capital you have to invest, and where you would prefer to locate.

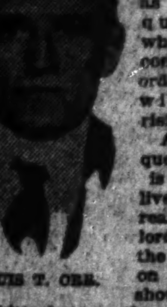
REAL ESTATE NEWS

REALTOR TELLS WHERE PART OF THE RENT GOES

Says Apartment Czar Gets 7 Per Cent.

BY AL CHASE.



LOUIS T. ORR.

Where the rent goes after the landlord has been handed his monthly check probably doesn't intrigue the average flat dweller a fraction as much as the question of where's the rent coming from in order to keep pace with continually rising rates.

And yet the question of rents is probably the livest one in the realty field. Landlords are most of the time leaning on each other's shoulders and sobbing bitterly over the ever increasing taxes and janitors' wages, etc., etc. But even while they're wiping moist eyes with their left hand, they're signing letters to their renting agents to "shove 'er up again."

His Majesty Gets 7 Per Cent.

It may be of interest to the average flat dweller, most of whom have suffered from the "shove 'er up again" movement by landlords, to hear what these same gentlemen do with some of the rent. Louis T. Orr, of Howard, Orr & Co., one of the largest firms of renting agents in the city, in a lecture before the class in real estate practice, conducted by the Chicago real estate board at the Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce, told how some of the cash is spent.

"The czar of the apartment house world, His Majesty, the Janitor, gets 7 per cent of the tenants' rent money," said Mr. Orr. "That means if your rent is $100 a month, you're really paying $7 of it to the janitor.

15 Per Cent to the Coal Man.

"Fifteen of every hundred dollars rent is turned over by the landlord to the coal man, which means the average tenant pays 15 per cent of his rental to keep warm.

"Fourteen per cent of the rent goes for general taxes—to the city, county and state. Three per cent is used to pay special assessments. Insurance eats up 2 per cent of the monthly rent. And one of the largest items is decorating. That averages 10 per cent of the rent roll."

"Wipe Away Those Tears."

Mr. Orr stated that three-tenths of 1 per cent of the rent went for hall lighting, 2 per cent for boiler and stove repairs, etc.

If by this time the reader (we mean, of course, the ones who live in apartments they don't own) is sobbing gently and sympathetically for the poor landlord who has to disburse so much of his hard earned rents, maybe he'll wipe away the tears and grin a little when he hears the plea the lecturer makes to the tenant.

"If the tenant of Chicago understood that he is paying for these various items he'd be more interested first in seeing that taxes and assessments are reasonable, and secondly that waste of all kinds is eliminated," said Mr. Orr, "as his monthly rent bill naturally includes all these items which have to be paid by the owner of the property.

Tells How to Get Relief.

"Relief from this waste and high taxes will come only when tenants take an active interest in public affairs, go to the polls, and exercise the right of franchise and do their part in eliminating waste and extravagance."

Mark Levy of Mark Levy & Brother will tell the class of future realtors what he knows about "Commercial Renting" at the next realty lecture at the Central Y. M. C. A. next Tuesday evening.

UNDERTAKER TO USE FIRST FLOOR OF FLAT BUILDING

Work is now under way on a $150,000 three story building at the northwest corner of Avers and Irving Park boulevard, designed by Architect Paul F. Olsen, the entire first floor and part of the basement of which will be occupied by the owner, William E. Schmidt, with his undertaking establishment. A chapel to seat 200 is planned. Mr. Schmidt will live in one of the eight apartments above. Completion date is set for May 1.

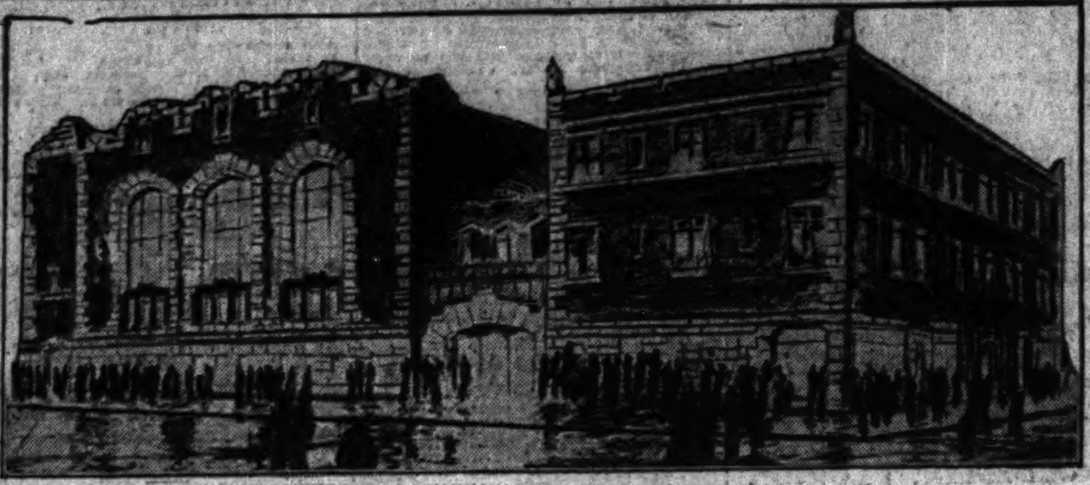
Mr. Olsen is also architect, as well as owner, of two other flat buildings, work on which will start at once. Both will be completed about Sept. 1. A $150,000 thirty apartment structure is to be erected at 915-17 George street, with two, three, four, and five rooms. The other is a twenty-four flat building on the east side of Paulina, half a block south of Ridge, and will cost $120,000. It'll have three and four room apartments.

Subdivision News

In 1847 Price Jones, one of Cook county's earliest settlers, bought forty acres at the present intersection of Northwest highway and Oakton avenue, Park Ridge, for $60. He took title in the name of his son, Tom Jones, then 7 years old, and told him to hold it against old age. Tom Jones, now 84, but hale and hearty, has just sold it through Fred I. Gillick, Park Ridge realtor, to the H. Roy Berry company for $80,000, or at $2,000 an acre. It will soon be subdivided.

A. W. Weil has bought part of the Oak Glen subdivision, 2,500 feet of frontage, along both sides of Grove street, just west of the Glen View station, from Sara Conners for a reported $34,500, through L. C. Ayres.

Metropolitan Community Center for South Side



Above is the new $250,000 home of the Metropolitan center and People's church, a colored organization which now has headquarters at 3118 Giles avenue. The new building will be erected at the northeast corner of Pershing road and Vernon avenue on a 115x160 site bought three years ago for $12,000. Charles D. Faulkner, a white architect, and Charles S. Duke, a colored engineer, have designed a three story commercial building for the corner. On the Vernon avenue side will be the community building and church, with a 1,600 seat auditorium. The latter will have entrances on both Pershing road and Vernon avenue.

The community center will have a gymnasium, lecture room, and Sunday school rooms. It will be of brown brick, with stone trim. Work will start the coming summer, to be ready by fall. The center has a colored membership of 3,000. The pastor is W. D. Cook, D.D. Religious services are now held in the Wendell Phillips High school. The evening meetings are similar in character and scope to the Sunday Evening club services in Orchestra hall. H. A. Watkins is treasurer of the Sunday Evening club. Mr. Duke, engineer of the project, is said to be the only licensed colored structural engineer in Illinois. When the new building is completed the present quarters on Giles avenue will be retained for social activities. The Metropolitan Community center is only three and a half years old.

Philip W. Kniskern, until recently wit hthe city loan division of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, is now associated with the real estate loan department of the Chicago Trust company, managed by Arthur B. and Hiram S. Cody, and will have charge of the business property loans and valuations, especially central properties. Mr. Kniskern, a graduate of the University of Michigan, is chairman of the appraisal committee, mortgage and finance division, of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Thomas J. McNulty has bought the residence at the southwest corner of Clarendon and Kenesaw terrace, lot 126x150, from C. Winfield Brown, for $75,000, subject to a $40,000 mortgage. Mr. Brown has moved to the Belden hotel. Mr. McNulty will live in the house just bought.

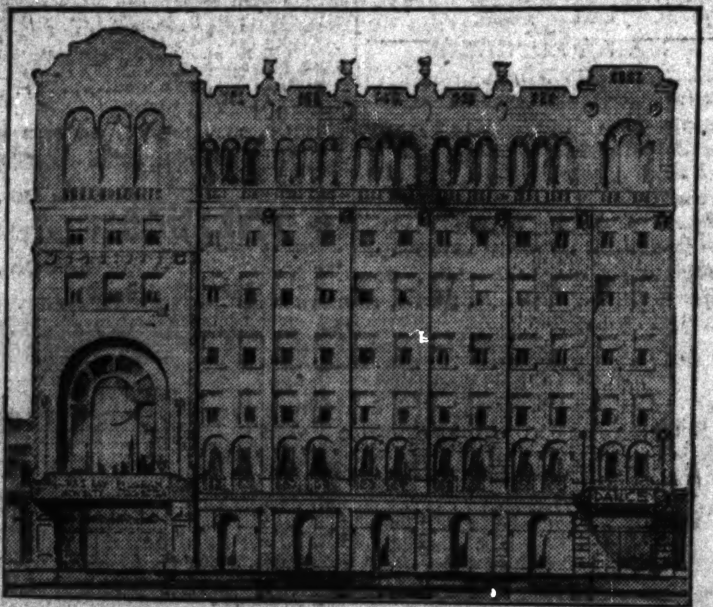
$1,350,000 Theater for Hammond



Above is a new theater, dance hall, store, shop, and office building to be erected on the school property on Holman street, Hammond, Ind. The lot is 127x187. The theater will seat 3,500 (it is claimed). Allowing for the usual habit of movie managers to be generous with their seating capacity (on paper), we'll guess it'll probably seat in the neighborhood of 3,000. The dance hall will accommodate 1,500 couples (also claimed). The S. J. Gregory Theatrical company, largest operators in Lake county, Ind., are the owners. R. Levine and E. P. Rupert and Sam Klein are architects and engineers.

CHURCHILL'S TO OPEN OLD ENGLISH 'BACCY SHOP IN WRIGLEY

What Winston & Co. claim will be the most attractive and unusual shop in the two sections of the Wrigley building, is the space just rented to "Churchill's company," smokers' supplies, which is to be remodeled into an old English tobacconist's establishment.

On April 1, Churchill's, now on the south side of the river, at 336 North Michigan, will move into a shop off the lobby of the north section of the Wrigley twins, which has been leased for several years. It'll be as old fashioned and British as American architects and interior decorators can make it. A "clark" in a linen duster will be at a table where he'll fix you up your favorite London mixture of pipe 'baccy, according to Gilbert Scribner of Winston & Co. There'll be other details that'll almost make you think you're buying your smokes in Britain.

Clark and Maple Corner Leased 25 Years: $462,500

George S. Schmitz, Racine manufacturer, has leased from Henry Ives Cobb and others, the southeast corner of Clark and Maple, 125x150, for twenty-five years at a term rental of $462,500, according to the county records. For the first five years he'll pay $17,500; for the next five, $18,000, and $19,000 annually for the balance. Fred Briggs was broker.

CHAIN DRUG STORE LEASE.

The Woolf-Grossman Drug company has leased the store at the southeast corner of Jackson and Cicero for ten years at $3,000 annually, according to Leon S. Sax & Co., brokers.

CHICAGO ARCHITECT PLANS YANKEE FLATS FOR THE BAHAMAS

Architect J. E. O. Pridmore of Chicago has been called from Miami, Fla., where he was in consultation relative to some large building projects for that fast growing winter suburb of Chicago, to Nassau, in the Bahamas, where a colony of Americans have in view the building of a community theater.

They also intend to erect a group of duplex apartments to be built on the southern plan with large porches and enclosed patio, with all the modern luxuries and conveniences Americans are used to at home, but which are hard to find in the British West Indies. Mr. Pridmore expects to return to Chicago about March 1.

Apartments at Greenview and Fargo Sold: $185,000

Ten years ago William C. Paul, manager of H. O. Stone & Co.'s uptown offices, sold the vacant southeast corner of Fargo and Greenview to Meyering & Klein for $18,500. An eighteen flat building has since been erected, and the property was sold yesterday to Bernice Rothenberg for a reported $185,000. The land is valued at $60,000. H. C. Michael of Stone & Co. made the latter sale.

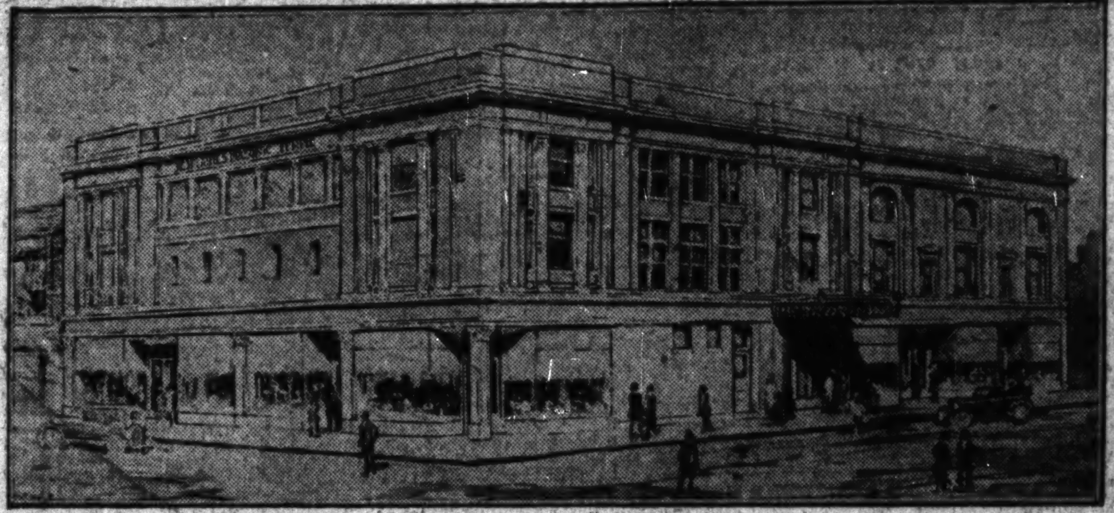
Start Work on Des Plaines Masonic Temple



Contracts have been awarded and ground was broken on Feb. 21 for the above shown Masonic temple, at the northwest corner of Miner and Lee streets, Des Plaines, to represent an investment in land and building of $175,000. The new temple will contain a large lodge hall, with necessary connecting rooms; an auditorium; a banquet hall, to seat 800 or more; a small lodge hall, six stores, a billiard hall, and a bowling alley. The building is being sponsored by the Des Plaines Masonic Temple association, of which A. L. Webster is president; H. H. Talcott is secretary and B. L. Frazen is treasurer. It is planned to lay the corner stone within thirty days from date. Clarence Hatzfeld is architect.

West Tells of Platting Outside of Towns.

Supplementary to the comments by Myron H. West, president of the American Park Builders, landscape architects and city planenrs, in this department recently, on the new state law which permits municipalities to control street platting for a mile and a half outside of their corporate limits, he tells how millions have been saved by this zoning of "no man's land."

"Perhaps one of the most striking examples of modern city planning is to be found in Springfield," said Mr. West, "where the street extension program calls for a saving of over $23,000,000, as compared with the arrangement of streets now to be found in the city."

Decatur First to Use Law.

Decatur is one of the first Illinois cities to take advantage of the new law permitting the zoning of "no man's land." As told last week, the city and regional plan provides for the platting of 160,000 acres in addition to the 4,000 acres contained in the city limits.

"Provision is made for a definite and scientific layout for future streets in Decatur," said Mr. West, "including main thoroughfares, diagonals, circumferential streets, boulevards, curved street sections for high class residences, and special block arrangement for the future industrial district.

Saves $16,864,000.

"In comparison with the existing city, the plan for Greater Decatur facilitates traffic flow, utilizes less land for street areas, and adds much to the attractiveness of the community. By the decrease in the proportion of land used for streets, a saving of $16,864,000 is demonstrated over a period of forty years' normal growth.

"Similar comprehensive plans have been prepared for Rockford, where an estimated saving of $17,000,000 is brought about in street arrangement; for De Kalb, Danville, South Beloit, La Salle, Peru, and Springfield. South Beloit was planned in connection with Beloit, across on the Wisconside side of the state line, and over 5,000 acres outside the corporate limits of the two cities was platted for future development."

START IN MARCH ON MEMORIAL TO E. A. CUMMINGS

Concrete Band Shell to Be in Forest Preserve.

Work is to start early next month on the $25,000 memorial to E. A. Cummings, who was one of Chicago's oldest and best known realtors at the time of his death. The memorial will be erected at the west side of the square block bounded by Harlem avenue, Lake street, John street, and Quick avenue, in River Forest, which is owned by the forest preserve.

White & Weber, Chicago architects, have designed the memorial in the form of a concrete band shell, large enough to be used as a stage for various pageants and open air performances.

To Be Ready in May.

It is hoped to have the memorial ready for use in May, so that summer band concerts may be held there.

Mr. Cummings, in his will, left $25,000 for a memorial. Original sketches by White & Weber called for a park shelter or community center, the idea being to raise the additional money needed by subscription. Later it was thought wiser to change the plans and, after a year's careful study and investigation by a committee of Oak Park and River Forest citizens, headed by John Russell, it was decided to erect a band shell. The one proposed will have rest rooms below the stage.

Commissioners O. K. Memorial.

A bronze tablet will be placed on the memorial telling of Mr. Cummings' gift to Cook county. The forest preserve commissioners yesterday approved the design.

Where Water Cannot Penetrate Deterioration Cannot Occur–

Homes Built with Elastica Are Thoroughly Immune to Water Therefore Permanently Substantial and Attractive

Water is the great enemy of permanence in exterior building materials. Construction engineers will tell you that when you build to withstand water you build to endure. That when you disregard the destructive influences of water you risk the loss of your investment in rapid deterioration.

Elastica, THE Waterproofed Stucco

Water cannot penetrate Elastica. The material is thoroughly and permanently waterproofed. Not with a thin paint-like veneer, but with an integral waterproofing substance that goes clear through the material, reaching every atom in its composition.

As a consequence, an Elastica exterior is permanent. It will not crack, check or crumble. It is stainproof because it sheds water like an oiled surface—throws off the dust, dirt and grime that ordinary stuccoes absorb.

A Test You Yourself Can Make

To demonstrate the thoroughness of Elastica's waterproofing, we invite you to test it by applying water to it. (See illustration to right.) You can do this easily because Elastica homes are being built throughout the country by the thousands—many in your territory.

Elastica Homes Are Fireproof

An exterior of Elastica is absolutely fireproof. Made so by magnesite (used everywhere as a fire brick in steel furnaces), asbestos fiber and silica glass sand. As a consequence insurance rates are always lower for owners of Elastica homes.

Economy of the Material

Elastica is economical not only in first cost but also in upkeep costs. It eliminates the expense of painting and repainting and strikingly preserves the original beauty of its finishes and color schemes throughout the years. It is fully guaranteed by the manufacturers.

Here is a simple test you can very easily make. We do not even ask that you make the test with samples we supply. We suggest, rather, that you take a sample from any Elastica job under construction. The New Morrison, when completed, will be the largest hotel in the world, containing 3,400 rooms.

THE MORRISON HOTEL

Greater Convenience—at Lower Cost

GUESTS at the Morrison pay less, instead of more, for the convenience of a location at the pivot of Chicago's activities. Offices, theatres, stores, and railroad depots are grouped closer to it than to any other hotel. Yet $3 to $4 are charged for rooms similar to those that rent for $5 to $6 elsewhere.

The reason is logical. Owing to the Morrison's location in the busiest part of Chicago's loop, the store subleases pay all the rent; the benefit is passed on to the guests.

The Morrison is in supreme favor with habitual travelers throughout America. It is sumptuously appointed, and the service and homelike atmosphere are internationally famous. It has 1,054 outside rooms, each with bath; but the new Morrison, soon to be completed, will contain 3,400 rooms, and be the largest hotel in the world.

The Morrison is the home of the Terrace Garden, "Chicago's Wonder Restaurant," which is renowned for its faultlessly served meals, delightful entertainments and superb dance music.

S. W. STRAUS & COMPANY

One of America's Largest Investment Houses

THE new Straus Building, now nearing completion, will be the largest and one of the tallest structures on Michigan Avenue. The total investment is $18,000,000. The building will be in the Florentine style, 32 stories high, and will contain the main offices of S. W. Straus & Co., which will include the largest banking room in Chicago. S. W. Straus & Co. was founded in 1882 by Frederick W. Straus, whose eldest son, the present president, joined him in 1886, and succeeded him on his death in 1898.

The company now has offices in over 30 cities. Its rapid expansion is largely due to the foresight and genius of its president, Mr. S. W. Straus, and to the valuable co-operation of his brother, Mr. S. J. T. Straus, and Mr. L. F. Stern, both vice-presidents of the company. The enterprise and initiative of men such as these have contributed more than any other factor to Chicago's spectacular growth.

Pompeian Bloom—a rouge

"She should have roses in her cheeks"

By MME. JEANNETTE

SOMETIMES the roses should be faint pink, sometimes warmly red, and sometimes they should have the tone of tea roses—depending on the type of woman and her natural coloring.

And, do you know that a touch of color in the cheeks adds a sparkle and new beauty to the eyes?

Pompeian Bloom is made in all the shades for three different types—Light, Medium and Dark in the rose tones, and Orange tint. This tint blends particularly well with the Naturelle and Rachel shades of powder.

Pompeian Bloom goes on easily, and is imperceptible if you select the correct shade for your skin. It is made in a cake that does not crack or crumble—yet comes off easily on your puff. Pompeian Beauty Powder comes in Rachel, Naturelle, Flesh, and White—shades that will be correct for every type of woman from brilliant brunettes to fairest blondes. Over your powder you should apply Pompeian Bloom—and then the final touch of Pompeian Lip Stick to bring the color of the mouth to harmonize with the healthy rosiness of the cheeks.

The Blanket Stiff by Albert Payson Terhune

A Mysterious Stranger, a Movie Star, a Gorgeous Fight, and a Spark of Romance—You'll Find Them All in This Breathless Tale of What the Cameras Faced During One Day's Adventure in Filmland.

BECAUSE the Blanket Stiff was big of shoulder and was shaggy and of much rugged bulk, the assistant director hailed him.

Back under one of the parked cars slumbered the Human Punching Bag, chosen for victim in this morning's spectacular Struggle on the Cliff.

The star was fuming. Grue, the director, was all but weeping. The company was clumped sympathetically around two men who, by dint of hartshorn and superorbital nerve pressure and other simple but terrific means of restoration were seeking to lure life back to the slumberer.

It was no use. The Human Punching Bag had brought it along with him, and had been taking surreptitious swigs at it, in the rear seat of the flivver, as the procession of cars had wound its tortuous way over the lofty miles of the ridge road that links Los Angeles with Bakersfield.

From gossip among the extras it appeared the Human Punching Bag had been wary of purchasable bootleg liquor, and that he had concocted this bottleful, himself, the night before. Whether it were palatable or not, there could be no argument as to its potency. For, a single pint of it had wafted its drinker too far into spirit realms for anything short of hospital treatment to bring him back to life.

Meantime a day's work and a day's multiple pay were likely to be lost. The Occident Film company was going through one of its spasmodic periods of retrenchment, too. This loss would cause wails and curses from the office. But what was to be done?

The day was lightning bright; even for that region of rarefied air—a day made to order for ideal camera work. Five cars and twenty-one people had traveled a little more than one hundred miles, since dawn, to reach this location. Among the twenty-one were Moreton Brooke, the star; his woman lead, three other principals, a stunt double; Grue, the director; Rucker, his assistant; two camera men, a property man, and a bunch of ten extras. The extras' pay alone averaged $8 a day each.

Moreover, this location had been registered in earlier scenes of the nearly complete picture—before a spell of rain had forced the delay of the remainder. Three hours or so of fast and all important work, today, would finish up the final shots needful in this location. Time was pressing, all along the line. Tomorrow might be stormy, at this fickle March season. So might the next day. Crystal weather often heralded a wet spell. The work must be done today. But it could not be done without the Human Punching Bag. And the Human Punching Bag was unrevivably drunk. The director fumed. Rucker fumed, dutifully, in sympathy.

Then it was that Rucker saw the Blanket Stiff swinging down the Malecon trail, toward the state road, a furlong or so above. And, smitten by an impulse, he trotted up the hill to meet him.

The man who travels the Sierras or the California valleys alone and on foot, packing his scant luggage and his bedding on his back, is known universally as a Blanket Stiff. Usually he is an itinerant day laborer, wandering from ranch to ranch and from county to county in quest of a temporary job at anywhere from $3 to $3.75 a day. Sometimes he is a strolling member of the I. W. W.—of which guild a California town not long ago rounded up several hundred in the local bullpen and turned the fire hose on them; as evidence of their popularity. Occasionally he is a tramp. His strapped blanket proclaims him a casual and impoverished wanderer; and a sleeper under the stars.

This particular Blanket Stiff differed not at all in garb and luggage from a thousand of his fellows. But his walk was an easy mile eating swing. His body was stocky and powerful. He gave evidence of thorough acquaintance with every one of his compact muscles.

"Friend," accosted the assistant director. loftily, as he came within speaking distance, "want to pick up a ten spot for a couple of hours' easy work?"

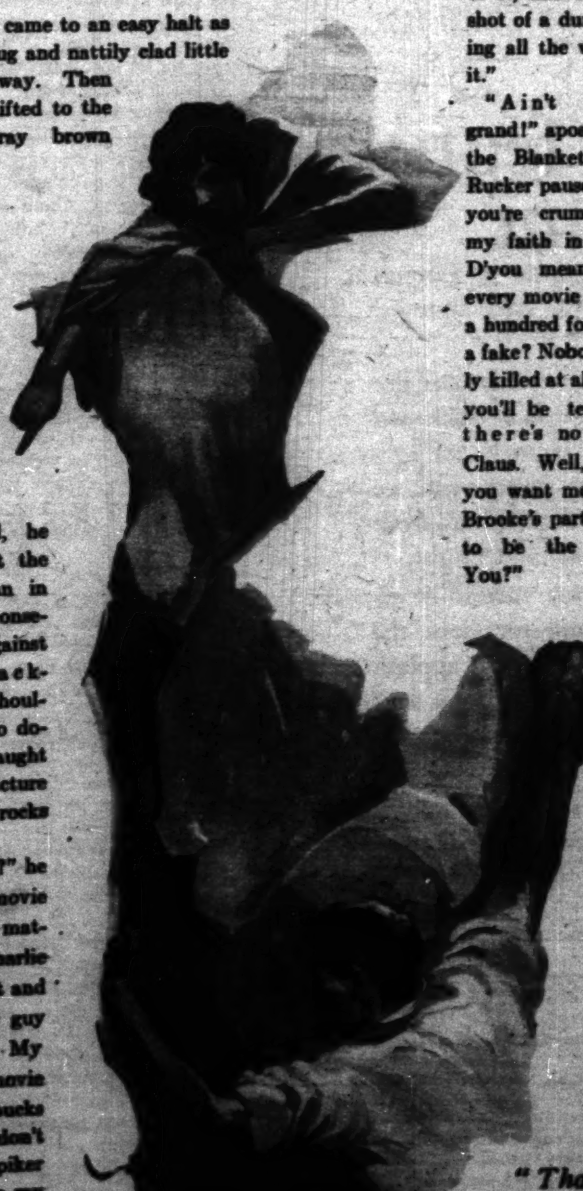
In the midst of his query it occurred to Rucker that this tanned tramp might be a foreigner. Wherefore, he spoke louder and yet more loudly; after the world old habit of addressing a man who does not speak one's language.

The Blanket Stiff came to an easy halt as he surveyed the smug and nattily clad little figure barring his way. Then his careless gaze shifted to the foothills ahead—gray brown canvases for gigantic smears of orange and of vivid blue which seemed to have been splashed there in three acre strokes by an unbelievable paint brush. From the glow of poppy and lupin and the sword straight Bakersfield road in the valley beyond, he looked amusedly at the garishly attired man in front of him—an inconsequential speck against that awesome background of elephant shouldered Sierras. In so doing, his gaze was caught by the motion picture camp in the cup of rocks to side of the road.

"A ten spot, hey?" he asked. "To be a movie star? What's the matter? Canning Charlie Chaplin or Bill Hart and looking for a likely guy to take their jobs? My union wages as a movie star are a thousand bucks a day, Little Man. I don't even pack such a piker sum as ten dollars in my change pocket."

To prove it, he turned out the pocket. It was empty; as were all his other pockets.

"Must have left my roll at home, on the new grand piano, this morning," he explained, airily.



"That sapling is beginning to give. Be careful when you get there. Don't put any more weight on it!"

THE assistant director sought to freeze the hobo's flippant familiarity with an austere glance. Then, remembering his own dire need, he forced a smile of appreciation at the other's poor wit, and went on:

"We're out here on location; finishing up a feature film. The action calls for Mr. Brooke. our star, to be attacked by a ruffian. A good, hot, rough and tumble fight follows; on the rim of a ledge. It ends with Brooke hurling the ruffian over the cliff. Of course," Rucker added, soothingly, "the cliff is only about seven feet high; and there's a mattress at the bottom. The film will show the tumble. The closeups are taken of that ledge. The rest of the fight is on a ledge that looks just like it—only it's over a hundred foot precipice. Then when the fall comes, the audience will think it is over the high cliff. There'll be a closeup of the ruffian lying at the foot of it, and a distance shot of a dummy falling all the way down it."

"Ain't nature grand!" apostrophized the Blanket Stiff, as Rucker paused. "But you're crumpling all my faith in pictures. D'you mean to say every movie fall, over a hundred foot cliff, is a fake? Nobody's really killed at all? Next, you'll be telling me there's no Santa Claus. Well, I take it you want me to play Brooke's part. Who's to be the ruffian? You?"

Again the assistant director checked his glare of disapproval, and continued his explanation: "We got an experienced stunt man and ex-boxer from an agency, to play the ruffian. He is supposed to be the strong arm man of a band that has been persecuting the hero. He hasn't been registered yet, in this picture; for he's only in it for one short scene with the master villain who gives him his orders; and then in the fight with the star. He is drunk. Dead drunk. He swallowed a pint of home made hootch that he made last night and——"

"Tck! Tck!" clucked the Blanket Stiff. sympathetically. "These guys never seem to remember that rum isn't built in a day. Do I gather you want me to play his part; and that you'll feed me ten dollars for being beat up and slid down a seven foot abyss?"

"Yes," returned the assistant director; adding cautiously: "That is—if you know anything about boxing and about rough and tumble work. I've heard that you Blan—that you men of the road are apt to be pretty good at it Well? Is it a go? You get ten dollars if you can do the job satisfactorily. A couple of dollars for your trouble, anyway; in case you don't suit."

"I think I'll suit," said the Blanket Stiff, simply. "I've boxed, once or twice. And I've done a bit of rough and tumble—not for fun, either."

"Good. Come along," answered the partly relieved Rucker, leading the way toward the group whence the director was even then striding angrily forth to meet his absent slave. "Only, it's fair to warn you that Mr. Brooke is an athlete. He may handle you a little roughly. That'll make you work all the harder, of course, and it'll show up better in the film. Mr. Grue, the director. will give him a hint to go easier with you than he'd go with a professional like that drunk, under the car, yonder. He——"

Rucker broke off to babble eagerly to his chief the news of his find and of the Blanket Stiff's possible ability to save the situation. The director said nothing, but gazed with impersonal appraisal at the stalwart man of the road, He eyed him as a buyer might inspect a prize ox.

The Blanket Stiff returned the gaze, his blue eyes playing merrily over the mist brown riding suit and blonde curls of the immaculate Grue.

"Funny thing!" he mused, addressing nobody. "I never yet saw a director on horseback, and I never saw one in California without riding clothes. Must be a lot of surplus saddle horses, somewhere, if there's a suit for every horse."

Grue did not hear. Indeed, he broke in on the monologue by nodding a grudged approval of his assistant's plan, and then bustled off to apprise the star and to make ready for the scene. In the assistant's wake plodded along the Blanket Stiff, to the impromptu dressing tent where he was to be made up and attired for his ruffianly role.

TWENTY minutes later he faced the star, Moreton Brooke (born O'Malley) on the plateau at the edge of a steep and high cliff, where the mountain shoulder had split off abruptly and had left a respectably terrifying chasm below. A quarter mile down the mountain was the seven foot ledge which. by dint of the rearrangement of a bush and a property boulder or two, was a fair counterpart for the higher cliff lip.

"Now then, Brooke," Grue was saying with honeyed deference, "you've been lured up here by the forged note, with Muriel's name on it. You come on, from that path top. You're just comfortably fatigued from the tough climb. You wipe your forehead—your brow—with your handkerchief. You throw aside your coat. As you do that, you're looking around for Muriel. You're surprised she isn't here, yet. You shade your eyes and look back over the trail. Then you light a cigaret and sit down on the log to wait for her. Then——"

"We did that, half an hour ago," objected the star. "If I've got to have a retake of——"

"No, no!" disclaimed Grue, lovingly. "I'm just going over it, to put you in the mood and to lead up to the scrap. You sit down on the log. Then," with an utter change of manner, as he wheeled about on the waiting Blanket Stiff, "then you stick your head up from behind that big rock. Slow and cautious; but not too slow. No use wasting footage on it; any longer than just to give the thrill. Later we'll shoot the scene of how you got up there and hid. You creep forward and you catch up that big stone and start to poise it for a smash on Mr. Brooke's head. His back is to you. See?"

"Yes," said the Blanket Stiff. "I see. But does he? If he's got his back to me, am I s'posed to make some noise to let him know I'm——"

His question was stopped by the stern uplifting of the director's shapely white hand.

"Mr. Brooke draws out his watch to see how late Muriel is," explained Grue. "It is a hunting case watch. An heirloom. In its burnished upper case he sees your reflection. He sees you, just as you poise the stone to bring it crashing down on his head. He flings himself forward on the ground and the stone whizzes over him and down into the gorge. By the way, make sure it does whizz above him. It's only papier mache. But it would mean a retake. Then, as you rush forward, he springs up; and the fight begins. We'll go through that first part right now, Brooke; you and—and—what's your name?" he broke off, turning to the Blanket Stiff.

"My real name," confided the Blanket Stiff, looking pleasantly down at the director, "is Montmorency de la Valliere Cholmondeley. But my screen name is John Kent. The 'Kent,'" he explained, oblivious to Grue's snarl, "is pronounced as if it was spelled K-e-n-t."

"How is it spelled?" asked Rucker, belatedly taking out his notebook to jot down the temporary employe's name.

"It's spelled K-e-n-t," replied the man. "That's the nice thing about my name. It's spelled just as a whole lot of folks would think it'd be spelled, and just the way it's pronounced. I mean my last name, of course," he expounded. "The first name is John. And the 'h' in that is silent, as in 'rabbit.' But——"

"Say!" demanded Brooke, forestalling Grue's cross interruption. "Have you people hired a punching bag or a clown? We can't wait all day while he—"

"I'm glad you reminded me how valuable my time is," said Kent. "Let's get on."

Grue's lips flew wide to discharge the sacrilegeous tramp. Then he recalled his own stark need to get the scenes filmed that day, and he said: "We'll go through the stuff now of your peeking up from behind the boulder and then crawling forward with the stone. After that we can get right on with the fight. Sorry to make you wait, Brooke. Get over behind that rock, Kent. You boys can eat another pound of cigarets," he continued, addressing the two cameramen, who, with golf caps turned hind side before on their tousled heads, were smoking idly at one side of the plateau. "You've got all your lines made, haven't you? Well, it'll be a solid half hour, most likely, before we're ready for you. Watch me, Kent. I'm going to do this scene for you, and I don't want to have to do it more than once. Now!"

HE was wrong in his forecast that a half hour would be needed to coach the newcomer in the simple technique of his scene. Kent proved unexpectedly intelligent. More, he had enough brain and little enough of self-consciousness to follow directions implicitly, and to throw himself into the spirit of his work. There was a hint of real histrionic skill in the slow apparition of his villainous head from behind the rock; in the sinister advance toward his victim; in the glint that smoldered in his eye as he caught sight of the stone and seized it. Even Grue rewarded his efforts with a grunt of qualified approval.

"Camera!" called the director.

With the two instruments grinding at him from different angles at the rate of sixty feet of film to the minute, John Kent went through with his work with the same concentrated intelligence as in the brief rehearsal.

Moreton Brooke dodged earthward and the flung rock hurtled above him. Then the star leaped to his feet and grappled his foe. After which, proceedings came to a halt while Grue outlined to the two listening combatants the routine to be followed by them in the big rough and tumble fight.

It was a long and tedious process, this rehearsing of every move, and Grue went through it with the painstaking thoroughness which marked all his major scenes.

Naturally the rehearsed battle was to follow well established lines. The star, from the first, was to have the better of it. Then Brooke's foot was to slip and he was to plunge to earth on the cliff edge, seemingly at the mercy of the hulking brute who sought his death. Kent was to draw a knife and hurl himself on his helpless enemy.

Then, by a wrestling trick, Brooke was to grip him, regain his own foothold, and, in the ensuing wrestle, was to heave the ruffian over the cliff. But at this point the film was to be cut and the actual fall was the occur from the lower and much safer ledge.

With the agile prowess of a trained athlete, Moreton Brooke rehearsed and rehearsed his part in the fight. Grue was amazed once more at the ease wherewith Kent followed the rather difficult instructions. The director's earlier despair began to give place to something like a grudging hope. Perhaps the big fight scene might not be a frost after all, despite the absence of the professional Human Punching Bag.

At last—a long last—the cameras were called into action. One of them was placed on the opposite cliff, across the narrow gorge. The second was at the cliff lip, ready to be moved to the left when the fight's climax should call for the wrestling heave, just before the cutting off of the scene.

Decks were cleared. The word was given. The two cameras began again to grind their sixty feet per sixty seconds. The nearer cameraman had his cue when to turn slower in order to speed the action. The fight was on.

It started with Kent tearing free from the clinch and trying to draw his knife. Brooke rushed him, driving him back and forcing him to use both hands so briskly in self-defense that the knife could not be brought from its sheath.

Twice Kent clinched, only to be thrown off and assailed again by that same two fisted rush, from which he was supposed to stagger back, outclassed. Brooke was an expert boxer and loved a hot bout. Into this fray he was putting not only spectacular but brilliantly scientific prowess. For his boxing knowledge told him he had found, an opponent who understood the art quite as well as did he himself; an opponent, too, whose ruggedness and speed and ability to assimilate punishment were stimulating.

Bit by bit the two forgot the precise order of the instructions they had received from Grue. They were boxers, and, for the moment, they were not merely staging a fake bout.

The director from just outside the line of camera focus saw what seemed to him a slackening of the mock fervor wherewith the fight had begun. Not being a boxer, he had no idea that the screen, for once, seemed likely to record a real sparring match.

"Hit her up!" he ordered. "Make it livelier! This is slower than a Shaker meeting. Fast, snappy work, there! Do something!"

Thus adjured, Moreton Brooke remembered belatedly that he was a screen darling and that thousands of his admirers were to gasp in rapture at this caveman scene.

Blocking a left lead of Kent's, he countered with his right for the face, driving a crashing blow for the Blanket Stiff's jaw. It was the swiftest and heaviest punch thus far struck in this exchange of light and spectacular blows. Kent's face showed surprise at its deadly vehemence. Yet he ducked it with a show of complete ease, and, stepping in, landed two sharp close quarter punches to heart and wind.

In jumping back his heel struck an outjut of rock and he lost his balance. Reeling backward, he sought in vain to regain his footing. For Brooke, smarting at the hurt and humiliation of the body blows, was after him like an angry cat. Taking him wholly off balance and off guard as well, while Kent was still lurching earthward, he swung his right to the defenseless man's mouth.

The smash sent the unbalanced Kent headlong to the ground, the blood spurting from his mangled lip.

"Good boy!" yelled Grue, delighted this bit of impromptu. "Now get up, Kent, and rush him. This is the time for you to slip, Brooke, and do your fall. Then whip out your knife, Kent, and go for him, and he'll get the wrestling grip from on the ground and——"

The bawled instructions trailed away. John Kent had obeyed orders to the extent of getting up and rushing Brooke. But there all resemblance to the carefully arranged program ended.

FURIOUS that such an advantage should have been taken in a friendly hippodrome bout, and with his mouth swollen and smarting, Kent was on his feet almost as soon as he was down. Incidentally, he was tearing into his antagonist with a professionalism and deadly grimness at utter variance with his earlier boxing.

Under this new and irresistible assault Moreton Brooke gave ground, battered and pummeled unmercifully at every step. Furious that he, the heralded amateur middleweight wonder of the Los Angeles Athletic club, should be outboxed and outfought in this whirlwind fashion, Brooke instinctively turned to a trick taught him long before his days of film stardom. Clinching, he brought up his left knee with all his force. It smote Kent well below the waistline. The Blanket Stiff slumped from the clinch at this foul, dizzy and green white. For an instant he swayed as if to a fall. Then, with a scream of rage, he leaped on his assailant.

Moreton Brooke was a crack boxer and wrestler and withal a powerful man. Yet against that onslaught he was as powerless as a sick child. True, he landed a stiff left and right full in the face of the charging Kent, who did not so much as bother to guard the blows. The two punches did not check for an instant his express train charge.

Disdaining the use of fists, Kent seized the star and swung him high in the air. Then, with all his mad force, he dashed him down.

From every throat went up a gobbling cry of crass horror. The two men had unconsciously come to the edge of the cliff in this last ferocious stage of their scrimmage. And, instead of smiting the rocky lip of the plateau, Moreton Brooke's hurled body went over the edge.

Over it spun and down out of sight of the dazed victor. Grue and the cameraman and Rucker rushed to the precipice edge and stared frenziedly down over the abyss. The cameraman on the cliff's opposite side had ceased his rhythmic grinding. From the far edge he was pointing and yelling something indistinguishable.

The awesome realization of what he had done dawned all at once on Kent. Staggering forward, he threw himself face down and peered over the verge.

There, not fifteen feet below him, lay Brooke. The falling man's descent had been broken by an outcropping dwarf pine whose roots had found clutching space in a crevice of the cliffside.

Across this frail barrier lay the man's limply inert body. A tap on the head from a projecting rock just above the tree had stunned him.

For a long instant only the Blanket Stiff, of all that group, could think clearly. The others stood gaping, wide eyed, and in panic. After that one all-comprehensive glance Kent awoke to action.

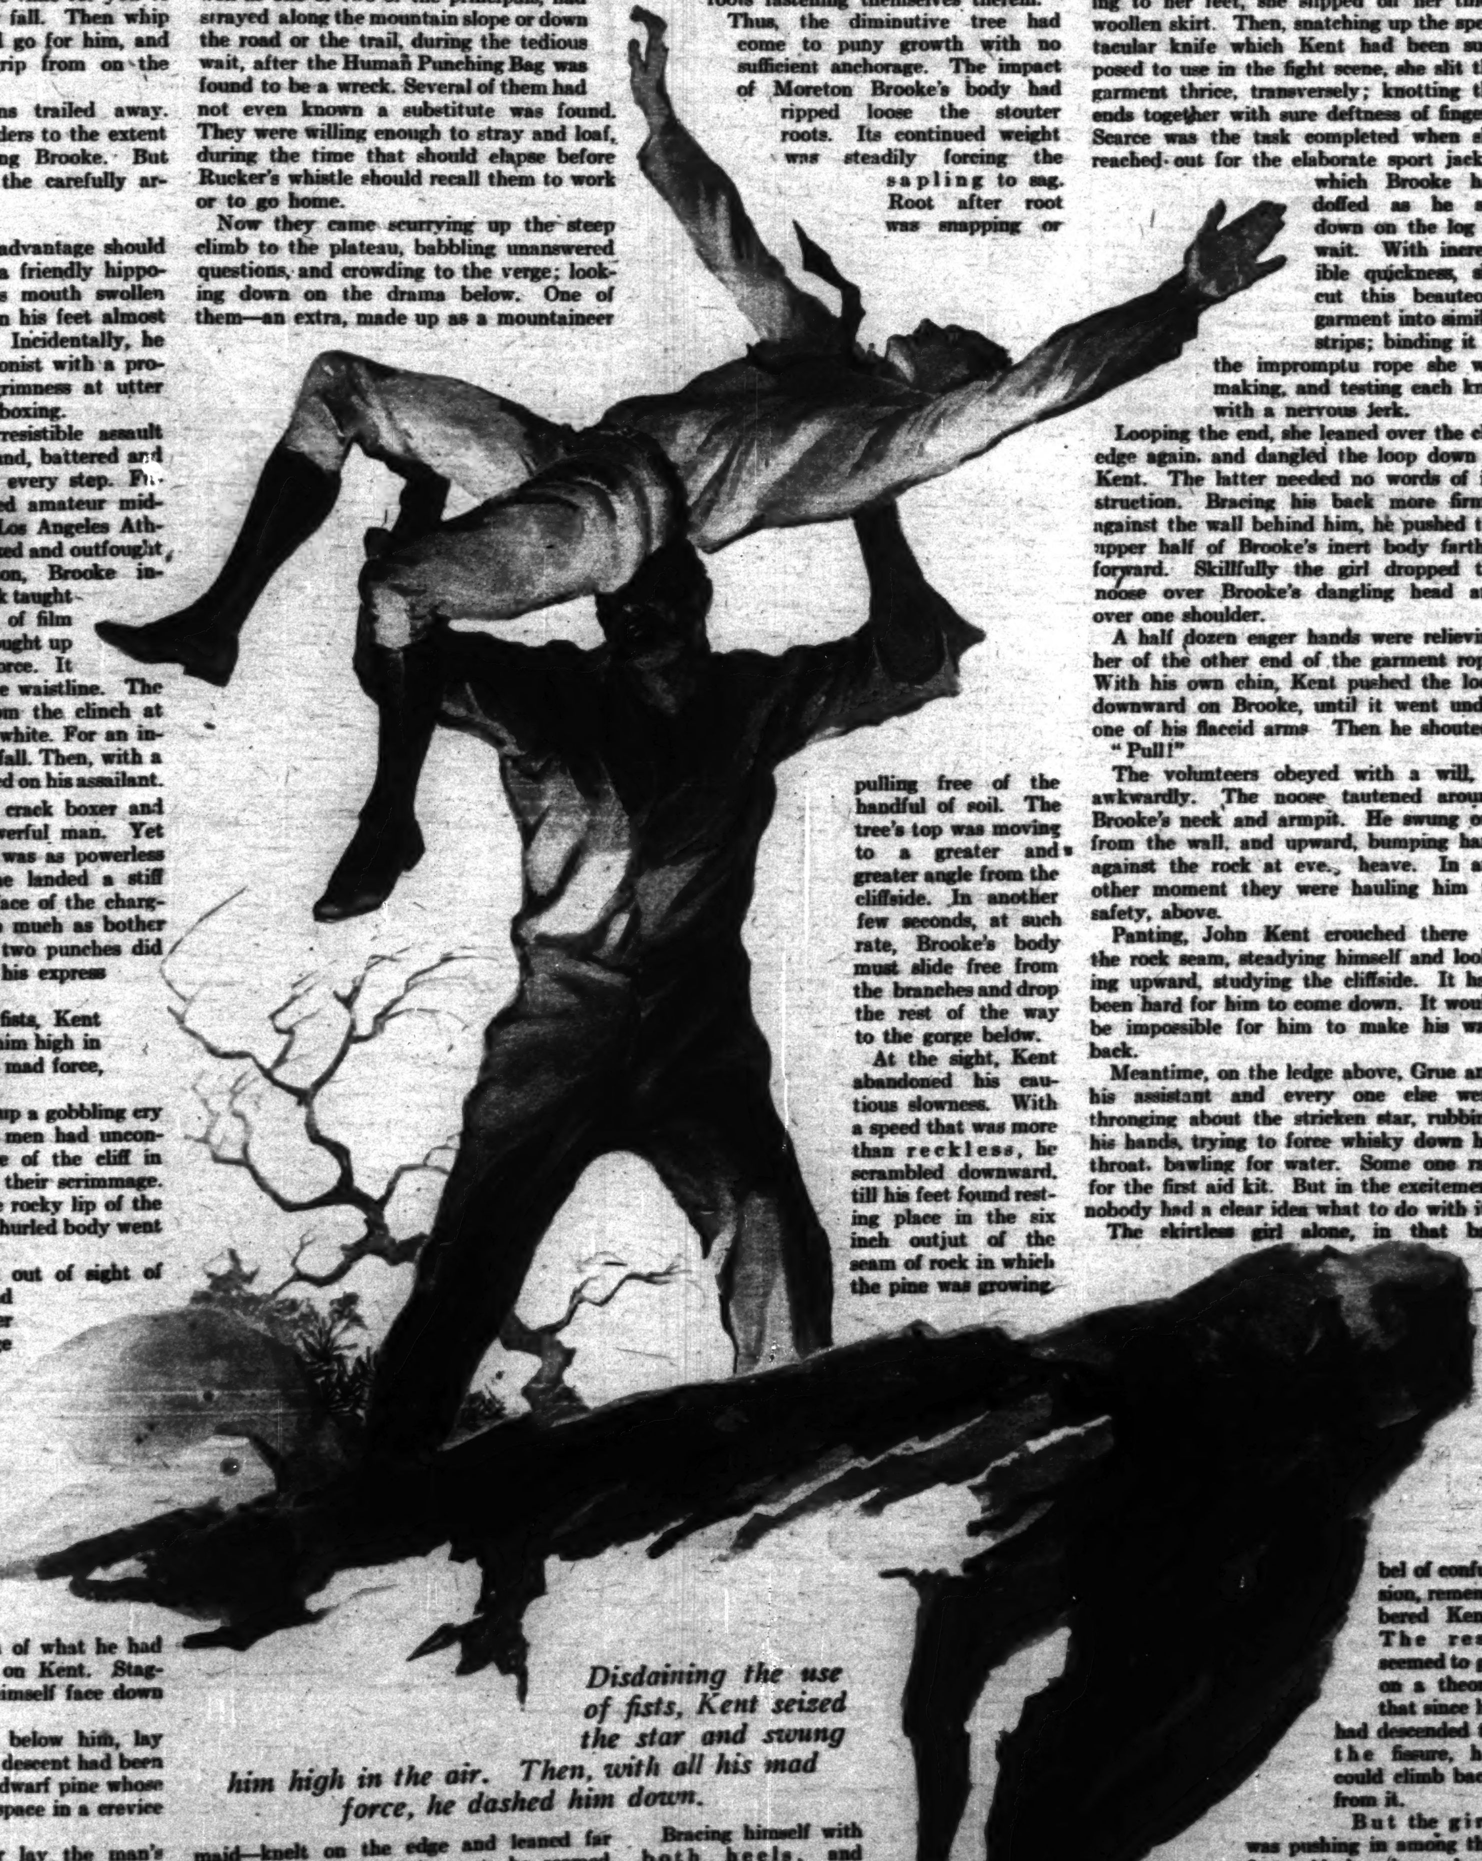
Eel-like, he wriggled over the cliff edge, clinging apparently to the precipice side by some mysterious power of suction. But as he went over the verge he had kicked off his heavy hiking shoes.

Now, with fingertips and toes, he was clawing for hand and foothold into the wrinkled face of the cliff. Strength, and nimbleness and a natural gift for balance—all were called for in such an exploit. And Kent had them all in abundance.

Flat against the rock, feeling with nails and toes for every inch of the perilous way, he began his descent. Grue and the others stared downward in mute horror. The supine body, athwart the pine sapling, lay as limp as a shot squirrel's.

The first multiple shout of the group on the ledge had brought on a run the others of the company. Most of the extras, as well as one or two of the principals, had strayed along the mountain slope or down the road or the trail, during the tedious wait, after the Human Punching Bag was found to be a wreck. Several of them had not even known a substitute was found. They were willing enough to stray and loaf, during the time that should elapse before Rucker's whistle should recall them to work or to go home.

Now they came scurrying up the steep climb to the plateau, babbling unanswered questions, and crowding to the verge; looking down on the drama below. One of them—an extra, made up as a mountaineer maid—knelt on the edge and leaned far out. In her eager excitement she seemed oblivious of herself and of the worse than precarious balance of her slender little body. The others were far too engrossed to warn her or even to notice her danger.



Disdaining the use of fists, Kent seized the star and swung him high in the air. Then, with all his mad force, he dashed him down.

Down she looked, at the stunned form across the pine stem and at the top of Kent's head as he worked his perpendicular way toward it. Then, through the looser volume of sound about her, the girl's clear voice called to Kent: "That sapling is beginning to give. Be careful when you get there. Don't put any more weight on it!"

At her warning, John Kent paused for a second, gripped the rock seam tighter, and looked up. His eyes met those of the girl, whose face appeared over the ledge, six feet above his own. Into both pairs of eyes sprang swift and amazed recognition. Then, reinforcing her words, the girl pointed toward the sapling.

SHE had been correct in saying it was beginning to give. The earth pocket wherein its seed had lodged was too shallow to afford the young tree more than spindling growth. Nor were the nearby fissures deep or moist enough to permit of strong roots fastening themselves therein.

Thus, the diminutive tree had come to puny growth with no sufficient anchorage. The impact of Moreton Brooke's body had ripped loose the stouter roots. Its continued weight was steadily forcing the sapling to sag. Root after root was snapping or pulling free of the handful of soil. The tree's top was moving to a greater and greater angle from the cliffside. In another few seconds, at such rate, Brooke's body must slide free from the branches and drop the rest of the way to the gorge below.

At the sight, Kent abandoned his cautious slowness. With a speed that was more than reckless, he scrambled downward, till his feet found resting place in the six inch outjut of the seam of rock in which the pine was growing.

Bracing himself with both heels, and pressing his back to the rock, he caught Brooke by the scruff of the neck with one hand, while with the fingers of the other he clutched a smaller fissure of rock, five feet above the seam.

As he did so, the pine's last root tore loose, and the treelet pitched out into space. It had been touch and go.

Swinging there, between earth and heaven, hugging the senseless man to him with one arm while the full strength of the other was brought into play by the need of holding on to the rock crack, John Kent glanced up again into the eyes of the girl directly above him. She was crying imperiously to those about her:

"Have we a rope in any of the cars?"

"N-no," bleated the property man, "we haven't. The script didn't call for——"

She did not wait to hear the rest. Jumping to her feet, she slipped off her thick woollen skirt. Then, snatching up the spectacular knife which Kent had been supposed to use in the fight scene, she slit the garment thrice, transversely; knotting the ends together with sure deftness of fingers. Scarce was the task completed when she reached out for the elaborate sport jacket which Brooke had doffed as he sat down on the log to wait. With incredible quickness, she cut this beauteous garment into similar strips; binding it to the impromptu rope she was making, and testing each knot with a nervous jerk.

Looping the end, she leaned over the cliff edge again, and dangled the loop down to Kent. The latter needed no words of instruction. Bracing his back more firmly against the wall behind him, he pushed the upper half of Brooke's inert body farther forward. Skillfully the girl dropped the noose over Brooke's dangling head and over one shoulder.

A half dozen eager hands were relieving her of the other end of the garment rope. With his own chin, Kent pushed the loop downward on Brooke, until it went under one of his flaccid arms Then he shouted:

"Pull!"

The volunteers obeyed with a will, if awkwardly. The noose tautened around Brooke's neck and armpit. He swung out from the wall, and upward, bumping hard against the rock at every heave. In another moment they were hauling him to safety, above.

Panting, John Kent crouched there in the rock seam, steadying himself and looking upward, studying the cliffside. It had been hard for him to come down. It would be impossible for him to make his way back.

Meantime, on the ledge above, Grue and his assistant and every one else were thronging about the stricken star, rubbing his hands, trying to force whisky down his throat, bawling for water. Some one ran for the first aid kit. But in the excitement nobody had a clear idea what to do with it.

The skirtless girl alone, in that babel of confusion, remembered Kent. The rest seemed to go on a theory that since he had descended to the fissure, he could climb back from it.

But the girl was pushing in among the first aid bunglers, shoving them angrily aside from the slowly recovering Brooke, and was hauling the rope from about his upper body. As she pulled free the noose she exhorted her companions in general:

"Here, you! Bear a hand while I lower this to him! He can't hang on there forever! Quick!"

"I think he's coming around nicely," purred Grue, unheeding, as he arose from an agonized inspection of Brooke's white visage. "See, his eyelids are beginning to flutter. Try the flask again. He——"

A tiny virago knocked the flask from his shapely hand and far out over the cliff. A tiny fury confronted him, stamping her foot and shrilling:

"Bear a hand with this rope, I'm telling

The Affair at Othman's by Will Payne

THE STORY THUS FAR.

FREDERIC OTHMAN is a man of some mystery, living in New York in a house of forbidding aspect, and a good deal talked about since the murder on his doorstep, some months before, of a Russian who had called on him. Othman is rich and a devotee of beauty—particularly of Titian's "Daphne," which he owns. He shows traces of oriental origin—"Turk" Othman, folks call him. To him, one night, comes

NELSON BARLOW, a young society wastrel who has forged and embezzled under circumstances that put him in Othman's power. In a moment of drunken indiscretion he has revealed that he "has something" on

STAMFORD MARSDEN, his friend and a business man of reputed probity. Othman demands that, as the price of his help, Barlow tell what he knows about Marsden. Barlow narrates a story, stumbled upon by accident, of a girl abandoned years before in a Maine village, and a supposedly illegitimate child. Othman thereupon announces that he is in love with FLORA MARSDEN, Stamford Marsden's daughter, and is determined to marry her. He is handicapped socially, and promises not only to help Barlow but to make him rich if he will bring about the match. Barlow agrees, proposing that Othman win favor by rescuing Marsden's unsuccessful shipping business.

INSTALLMENT II.

Teamwork.

"HOW lovely these roses are," the young woman remarked, merely in order to say something.

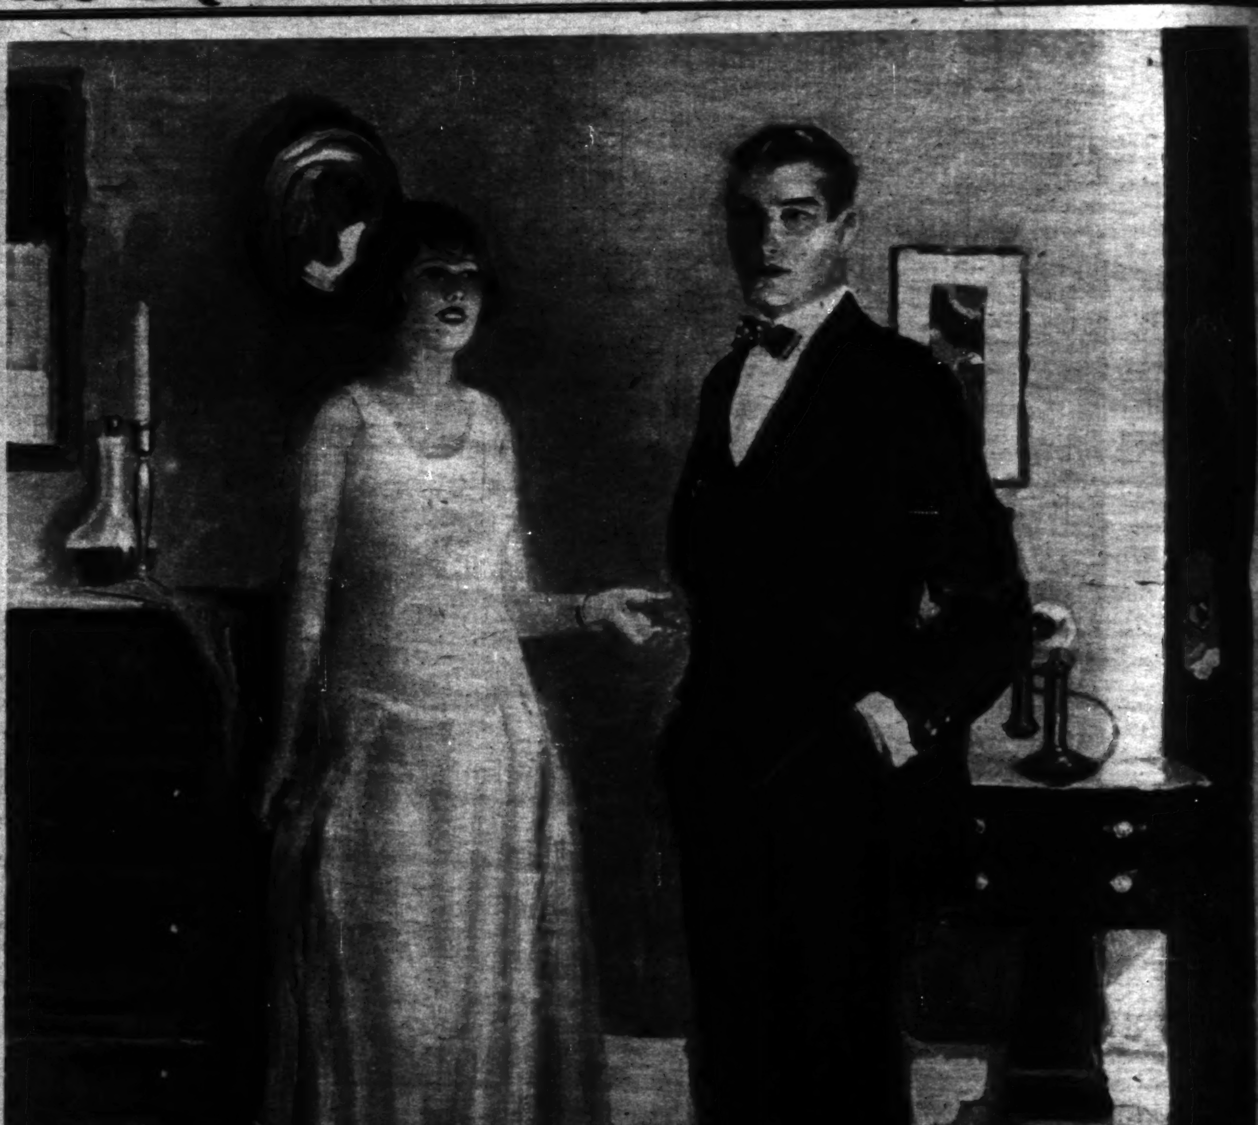
"Yes," the young man assented stupidly.

Springing up from the gay little silken divan, she glided over to the table on which stood a tall blue vase filled with flowers and lingered, inhaling the perfume, touching a leaf lovingly with the tip of her finger.

Her name was Flora Marsden. His name was Phillip Kendall. This was another of several recent occasions upon which, being together, they had nothing in particular to say to each other. She had let him know that she was going to walk uptown to the Ristel, where Nelson Barlow would meet her. He had dropped everything else and hurried to her house in an impatient fever. They had walked up Fifth avenue together in fine, crisp winter sunshine, her talk bubbling all the way. Taking his cues from her, he managed to converse so long as they were on their feet. They crossed the marble lobby of the Ristel to this cosy recess, with the gay silken divan in it and the table with flowers. Then, disconcertingly, the talk petered out; he sat beside her a mere tongue tied idiot. She casually mentioned the roses. His eyes helplessly rested upon her as she bent to inhale their fragrance.

Six months before this—after a lonesome half year in New York—he had made a pretext and sent off a note which would let his mother's rich, distant relatives know he was in the city. He sent it off much in the spirit of a gambler flipping a coin; but the answer had been an invitation to call. His mental occupation on the way to Washington Square had consisted mainly of calling himself a fool for having sent the note. He was a young man doomed to take life quite earnestly; something inherently sober and strenuous about him; he could not be light handed with himself.

Before stepping into the living room at Marsdens' he felt awkward, with sudden misgivings about his clothes and necktie—having no natural young man's aptitude for those things. Then he instantly forgot all that. A slender young woman was holding out her hand—in time he discovered the unexpected strength in that supple shape; for example, that she could wallop him at tennis handily and swim as far as he cared to. But the first impression was of something airy, dashing. Her hair was dark, her eyes brown, a tinge of dusky rose in her cheeks. Especially at first she seemed always on the wing, or just alighted, or just about to dart away; there was that impression of quick, springy nerves and muscles. He had the notion that she would swoop headlong at anything she had a mind to.



"I might consider a man above sixty if the doctors will warrant him not to hang on too long and he has ten millions."

After leaving the house at the end of this first call he wondered how he had looked to her, and that made him laugh. His hair was a sort of dusty brown, thick and stubborn; his eyes gray and round, probably much like an owl's; there was a cleft in his chin. No doubt his clothes looked seedy enough to her. Of course he could have found out the proper clothes to wear for an afternoon call; any Fifth avenue shop would have told him, and he could have bought them. But not for a whole regiment of charming cousins would he have done anything as silly as that. He was, for the present, a newspaper reporter, earning fifty dollars a week. To no charming cousin would he have presented himself in clothes which suggested that he was anything else than an obscure young man from Indiana earning fifty dollars a week. Cousins, and all others, must take him exactly for what he was or not take him at all.

This cousin did at once take him—under her self-confident wing, as Barlow said. Within six weeks she was surveying him critically and pronouncing judgment: "No, Phil, those studs aren't right. I'll show you where to get some. I saw 'em in a shop window the other day. They're imitation—only four dollars—but they're just as good. We'll go get 'em tomorrow afternoon—no, Thursday." Or, "Wait, let me fix it," and she reknotted his tie. With a laugh he let himself sink to the state of a sort of grownup infant in her hands, while she eagely showed him his way about town. He was presently invited to spend half of his two weeks' vacation at the Marsdens' old place on Cape Cod. By that time he understood that the Marsdens' places were no longer fashionable. Flora herself candidly told him about that.

"Find me a nice young man, sound, well broken, and gentle, not over thirty, with three million dollars; or, if forty, with four millions. I might consider a man above sixty if the doctors will warrant him not to hang on too long and he has ten millions."

She was gayly cynical about it. One must have plenty of money, because it was stupid always to be keeping an eye on the small change; that ruined the fun. As for love, that was so easy; no trouble at all about falling in love; one might just as well fall in love with a well lined man as with a man who had no lining. She took it all so blithely that he would have been shocked at overhearing Mrs. Vandermaas' opinion that Flora Marsden was a type of the new generation of girls who came out of the shell hard boiled.

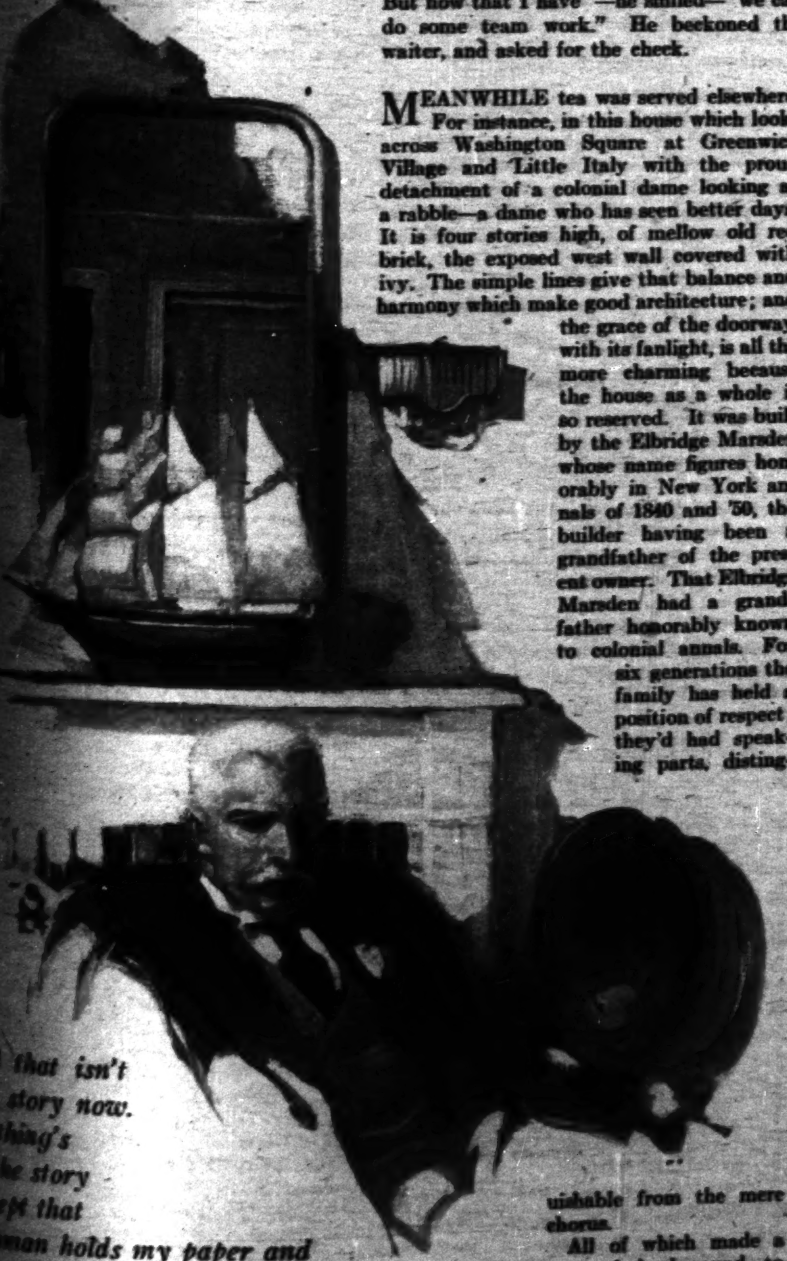
He was an empty handed beggar with a reporter's lodgings to offer her. At moments when he had poignantly realized what was in his heart regarding her he trampled himself under foot for an ingrate and ass. He carried a good deal of ballast—rock ballast, perhaps. Often that sort has a high pride also. He would as soon have jumped off the Woolworth tower as invite her to share his lodgings. Not, in fact, that he had any idea she would accept the invitation.

He thought he understood her attitude perfectly. To her he was the distant, unfriended, rather disadvantaged relation, trying to gain a foothold. When he finally told her the secret, she was all eagerness about the novel whose ground plan he was trying to get settled in his mind—taking him under her shining wing, as though her [illegible] worldly experience of New York made her the elder of the two. He thought he understood that, when she told him about the family's state and her matrimonial ambitions, she meant him to take the jests in earnest and be warned not to commit the dismal folly of imagining a romance between them. How forever kind and dear she had been to him, he would by no means repay that with the imbecility of making hopeless love to her.

Just now, while she stooped to the flowers, he stared over at her with a melting sense of her exquisiteness. With a wrench of the heart he shut his jaw, pushed the iron home, and got up with a smile, crossing over to her. They were laughing when Nelson Barlow came in to claim Flora.

A half minute of three cornered conversation before Kendall took leave would have been fairly obligatory. It strung out to two minutes; and Nelson Barlow, blandly observant, had a misgiving. There was something in the air; their eyes seemed to cling. H'm—possibly this young reporter was to be taken more seriously than he had thought. That might need looking to.

Barlow took Flora in to tea, and skillfully led the conversation round to the precise point he'd had in mind when he asked her to meet him, although the pretended reason was something altogether different. The idea seemed to strike him off guard; his brow furrowed; he looked embarrassed—fumbled at it a little and finally brought it out, appealing to her with a worried air:



"All that isn't the story now. Nothing's in the story except that Othman holds my paper and I can't pay."

"Tell me, Tops—your father, now; have you noticed anything of late—well, that gave you anxiety?"

Her heart caught the note of alarm and she answered, wondering: "Why, I know he's disturbed about business. Shipping's in a bad way, it seems. I know he's worried. He's spoken two or three times as though it might go to smash. But, why do you ask, Nelly? Is it going to smash?"

"I'm afraid it's close to the rocks," he answered soberly. "But it isn't that. Businesses do go to smash, you know. Often nobody can help it. Take this shipping business, for example. It's really a result of the war—beyond anybody's reach. It isn't that." He tapped the ash off his cigaret, and frowned down at the table, deliberating. "A business going to smash is one thing. A man going to smash is another. Do you think your father is quite well?"

"Why, I think so," she said, alarms gathering in her breast. "He's never been as rugged since that operation three years ago."

Barlow seemed to catch at that as a sort of solution. "No?" he said. "I thought so too. Of course, he's been under a big strain. He worked like a tiger all during the war, never sparing himself. At fifty a man can't stand twelve hours a day as he can at twenty-five. And that operation; a physical let down; that would have its effect on a man's mind. Of course, it's nothing to talk about. But it's sort of sticking in my mind. The other day he said something I wouldn't have paid any attention to ordinarily. He might, you know, be getting an idea of taking the bit in his teeth." He immediately added, "Don't say anything, Tops. Don't even think anything. But I know you've got sand. Keep steady and keep watch, will you?"

In spite of alarm. her heart paid tribute to Barlow, as a staunch friend of the family. "Yes, I will, Nelly! Indeed, I will! You must keep watch, too; but I know you'll do that!"

"I'll do what I can, Tops," he replied soberly, and looked at his watch. "Are you going home? I believe I'll trot down with you. I hadn't meant to speak of this to you, But now that I have"—he smiled—"we can do some team work." He beckoned the waiter, and asked for the check.

MEANWHILE tea was served elsewhere. For instance, in this house which looks across Washington Square at Greenwich Village and Little Italy with the proud detachment of a colonial dame looking at a rabble—a dame who has seen better days. It is four stories high, of mellow old red brick, the exposed west wall covered with ivy. The simple lines give that balance and harmony which make good architecture; and the grace of the doorway, with its fanlight, is all the more charming because the house as a whole is so reserved. It was built by the Elbridge Marsden whose name figures honorably in New York annals of 1840 and '50, the builder having been a grandfather of the present owner. That Elbridge Marsden had a grandfather honorably known to colonial annals. For six generations the family has held a position of respect; they'd had speaking parts, distinguishable from the mere chorus.

All of which made a sort of background to the thoughts of the present Stamford Marsden as he sat in that pleasant room on the second floor where the family usually foregathered, with its simple white wood mantel and the long gilt mirror above it that dated from Grandfather Elbridge Marsden. The present Marsden was fifty-one, a tall, generously framed man with the look of one who had worked hard and perhaps had lived hard—a slight stoop in the big shoulders, deep lines at each side of the mouth which was thatched by a heavy yellow mustache. Ample nose and chin thrust out vigorously, and the blue eyes were slightly filmy, as a seaman's eyes sometimes are. He would have made up very well for a somewhat aged Viking chief, but his large hand held nothing more formidable than a tea cup.

"Looks as though the flag would come down," he commented, staring at a window. "I thought Lehman would renew the loan—for old lang syne, maybe." A faint smile appeared under the heavy mustache as he confessed to that sentimental hope. "Ships! You couldn't borrow cab fare on ships now, with the business knocked into a cocked hat all over the world and the government's twelve million tons likely to come on the market for a song. And ships are all I've got." A dolorous little laugh escaped him. "Reminds me of a story they told me in Texas years ago. Sheep were so cheap that a carload wouldn't fetch enough in Chicago to pay the freight. An old sheep grower shipped three carloads to Chicago, and got a wire from his commission house: 'Sheep brought so much, freight so much, deficit so much, send money at once.' He wired back, 'They is no more money, will ship more sheep.' Well, that's the condition of the shipping business." He told the story sportsmanly, but ended with a little sigh, and raised the tea cup to hide it.

His wife asked low, with an anxious woman's sympathy, "They'll not renew the loan?" Her personal pronoun referred to the eminent banking house of Lehman & Company.

Marsden put the cup down and answered without looking at her, as though it were a sort of death sentence, "They haven't got it. They've sold the loan to Othman. He took over the Star and Triangle line last week."

Mrs. Marsden's soft, dark hair was peppered with gray, which made it all the softer. Her brown eyes were soft, also. She was still slender and graceful, dancing as well as her daughter when she was able to dance at all, for her health was precarious.

She bent her head, yet with pride, and observed, "I had no great opinion of Lehman & Company, but I shouldn't have thought they would have done that. I remember your father's telling me how Lehman came to him, hat in hand, to get the name of Marsden on his books. Of course he's dead now—and in heaven, I suppose, with the original peddler's pack on his back."

Marsden grinned a little, and answered, "All that isn't the story now. Nothing's in the story except that Othman holds my paper and I can't pay. Of course, he and Lehman work together. They'd toss me over to him if he asked it. Had to, maybe; he may own 'em for all I know. He bobs up owning all kinds of things." He brushed his big mustache with a bent knuckle, and glanced up at Grandfather Marsden's portrait. "Well, the flag's been nothing to be ashamed of. Naturally, I hate to be the one to pull it down; but crying will not help."

They were interrupted by the entrance of Flora and Nelson Barlow, the latter having an amusing story that set them all laughing. Flora slipped to a seat beside Marsden. When the laughter died she asked, brightly, "Tired, father?"

"Very," he replied soberly. As his slightly filmed eyes rested upon her, a faint, sportsmanly smile appeared in them. "More international complications. The Jews have handed me over to the Turk. League of Nations ought to stop it, I suppose." There was no point in making a secret of the matter from Nelson Barlow, an old friend of the house as his father had been before him. The house's emblem on the sea was a red half-moon; every steamer carried it on each side of the funnel. "It'll be handy for Othman. He'll only need to paint out a little of the half-moon in order to have a first rate crescent. Maybe he'll add a cross upside down." He used a light tone, but they all saw it was bitter jesting; the faint sardonic smile behind the big mustache seemed to be pulling his heart strings. Flora laid her hand upon his. It was the first time she had ever heard Othman mentioned in connection with their affairs; but she knew of his reputation.

Nelson Barlow stood by the fireplace in a judicial pose, his head a bit to one side. "Do you know, Stam," he observed, thoughtfully, "I believe you're wrong about Othman. I've had a better chance to know him lately, and I've seen some things first hand. Strikes me he's a proud sort of beggar—keeps his mouth shut and lets people say what they please. So all the talk about him is one-sided, and a whole lot of people, like you, take it for granted he's a raw head and bloody bones bogey man, without knowing anything about him. They call him a Turk uptown, and slip into the back door of his office downtown looking for crumbs. If they don't get as many as they want they go back uptown and say he's a blackguard. I happen to know of a case; some members of a club got Othman to let them put up his name, and then after a while went back to him with long faces and told him it wouldn't do; if they didn't withdraw his name he'd be blackballed. Then they went chuckling round town telling everybody how he'd been turned down. And it was all a put-up job from the beginning; their way of getting even with him."

Flora gave a shocked little "O!" She hated meanness.

Nelson continued judicially, "You can't treat a man that way without turning him more or less cynical. This club affair happened in the fore part of '19 when everything was booming and the goose hung high. A year or so later the goose wasn't hanging so high. One of those same chaps was holding on by his eyebrows; Bullion bank was carrying him. You remember, Stam, when the announcement came out that Othman had been elected a director of the Bullion bank; they said he'd taken over a big interest in it. Well, our club humorist was scared stiff—thought Othman was going to smash him. But the Bullion bank renewed his loans without any trouble, carried him right along. I had the curiosity one day to ask Othman about it. He answered simply that a man who carried mere personal likes and dislikes into directing a great institution like the Bullion bank ought to be shot. 'In my judgment,' he said, 'just as a matter of business, this man was entitled to a renewal, and I voted to give it to him. My personal likes or dislikes had nothing to do with it.'"

With a smile, like a connoisseur impartially savoring an example of human conduct, Barlow went on: "There it is, you see, Stam—on the one hand a man who seems to be indifferent to what people say about him, and on the other hand a lot of gossip—some of it spiteful. Listening to the gossip you get a picture of the man that's a mile away from the facts. Everybody knows he has one of the finest private collections of pictures in America, and he bought 'em on his own judgment. A man who cares that much for pictures and knows that much about 'em is a good way past the raw dog state, anyway. And we know of men who are spoken of quite respectfully who aren't more than half an hour past that stage. They don't eat their dog raw any more; they take it stewed." He asked plumply, "Why do you think he's after you?"

"He's buying up my paper," Marsden replied.

Barlow smiled. "But certainly there's no harm in that. Somebody's got to hold the paper. See here, Stam; if Morgan held your paper you'd go have a square talk with him, wouldn't you? Well, why don't you go have a square talk with Othman? Why don't you meet him as though you thought he was an ordinary white man—same's you would Morgan?"

This talk evidently made a strong impression; and upon no one, it seemed, more than upon Flora, whose natural impulse was to meet everybody as though she thought they were not merely ordinary white men but probably quite nice white men, too. "Why, yes, father, why don't you?" she urged.

Marsden combed his mustache with a bent knuckle and replied thoughtfully: "Well, I don't see any reason why I shouldn't try it."

"There is no reason," Barlow declared.

An hour and a half later Flora left her bedroom in a dinner gown to join the family downstairs. The alarm and depression which Nelson Barlow's confidential talk at the Ritzel had inspired still held her mind. The door to her father's room stood open. A fortnight before this, coming home from a dance at four in the morning, she had seen a light shining at the crack under his door and hesitated a minute and knocked softly. He came to the door. His big figure, with somewhat stooping shoulders—all the bigger in pajamas—stood in her mind's eye now. He had rumbled under his breath, so as not to waken his wife next door: "No, nothing wrong. I was awake and heard you come in and got up. Nothing wrong. Have a good time?" And smiled at her. Worried, she now thought, unable to sleep, pacing his room far in the night; the big figure somewhat bent and broken; deep lines in the strong jawed face. She stepped into his room; it seemed so intimately his. There was no particular object or motive in her mind when she stepped in, but moving lightly around in this empty room was almost like touching his hand when he lay asleep. There were three little drawers on each side above the dressing table. In the first one that she pulled open, on the right hand side nearest the bed, lay a heavy revolver. She stared down at it with a shock. Pacing the floor of nights, with that thing at hand! She waited a minute to settle her nerves before going downstairs.

SHE took care to be at home before five o'clock the next day, for usually her father came from the office about that hour. He had said that he would see Othman this afternoon. She and her mother heard him come into the house and prepared themselves to smile. When he entered the room Flora's eyes searched his face, but for a long minute she couldn't tell. He looked sober, like a man cogitating something unexpected, and settled himself into a chair.

"Well," he said presently, "I've seen Othman. I didn't offer to shake hands with him when I went into his office, I'm sorry to say. But I did shake hands when I came out."

In fine, it appeared that Othman had proposed not only to finance the Marsden line through this period of depression in shipping, but to increase its fleet by turning over the Star and Triangle ships and some others so that it would be a much bigger affair than ever before, and practically impregnable with his millions behind it. He stipulated that Marsden was to retain the presidency of the company and continue to manage it.

"He reminded me," said Marsden, "that he was an American citizen. He said we came out of the war with a great merchant fleet, government owned, and congress was fumbling and bungling with it—would continue to fumble and bungle with it. Probably in ten years we'd slide 'way down to the foot of the marine ladder again, where we were in 1914. But he'd given considerable attention to it; he believed the American merchant flag could be kept flying by private enterprise, with good, progressive private management—and enough money in the bank to carry through the next three or four years while this shipping depression lasts. At any rate, he'd made up his mind to lay a long bet on that proposition. We're the oldest American line and probably the best known, so he wanted to get the Marsden trade mark and flag for his fleet. He said he had intended to have a talk with me when he got the affair a little further along, and see if I would be willing to enlist with him; but since I made the first move by asking for an appointment today he might as well show me what he had in mind now as later on."

Marsden spoke with a half absent air, like a man whose mind is still engaged in digesting a surprise. But he looked round at his wife and concluded gravely: "No man ever met me with a fairer, more open air. So far from there being any bullying about it, he seemed anxious to have me enlist with him. He said for two generations we hadn't been a marine nation, and experienced shipping men were rare here. You could find first class steel men, railroad men, and so on; but to get a first class shipping man, with the experience and the big views that this venture needed, wasn't so easy. So he wanted me. Besides, he wants the Marsden name—the old trade mark. There's no doubt he's an able man and he's got no end of money. If he's made up his mind to swing this thing through he'll go far."

He smiled at his wife and daughter. "I was ashamed of myself because I hadn't offered to shake hands with him when I went into his office. Foolish pride, I suppose, as I was really coming with my hat in my hand. After all, forming your opinion of a man from gossip isn't an intelligent process. After today, if he's a Turk, I think pretty well of the Turks."

Flora's sweet voice piped triumphantly: "No doubt he's a perfectly nice man! Why don't we get to know him better?"

Mrs. Marsden soon did get to know him better, for Nelson Barlow brought him over to call on her one afternoon—clandestinely, for a secret discussion. The subject of this discussion consisted, on the physical side, of two rambling white houses, with verandas across the front, which stood on a shady hillside near Greenwich, Conn. Driving along the winding country road, one might take them for a simple kind of summer resort; but natives would inform an inquirer that the establishment was an orphanage for seamen's children. Marsden's father had been chief among its founders and chairman of the trustees during his lifetime. But the endowment consisted simply of the plant, running expenses being met by yearly contributions. Now that shipping dividends had ceased contributions dwindled and running expenses were twice what they had been before the war. Moreover, Little Harbor, as the orphanage was called, stood condemned by the best authorities.

Mrs. Marsden had appealed in its behalf to two philanthropic persons, who had beamed upon her and turned the appeal over to their experts in charity. The experts, after conscientious examination of cost sheets, per diems and per capitas, with due use of slide rule and the most approved efficiency charts, had reported that Little Harbor should be abandoned, the plant sold, and its juvenile inmates turned over to the far bigger institution down the coast, which was an up to date, scientific charity factory, with all the well known advantages of big volume production and low per capita overhead. Mrs Marsden felt, unscientifically but keenly, that Little Harbor under the management of Mrs. Beck, who had been its matron for thirty years, gave its intimates something that didn't go in a cost sheet. She was acquainted with the charity factory down the coast and doubted, with a sinking heart, that its inmates would be eagerly coming back, after they were men and women grown, to pay a visit as one visits home. Nelson Barlow knew all about this and suggested a clandestine call from Othman.

"He's a strange man, dear," Mrs. Marsden mused to her daughter that evening, a soft light in her brown eyes. "He was pleasant—but businesslike, too. He asked me all about it, you know; looked over the accounts quite carefully. Of course, I had to tell him what Mrs. Goldthwait's experts said, and Mr. Phillpot's. That seemed to impress him unfavorably, so I tried, you know, to show him the other side—the personal touch, Mrs. Beck's influence—that ours gave some love with its grub and schooling. That interested him. He let me tell him all about that side. Then he laughed and said, 'Well, I'll gamble on it for the next three years anyway.' And that settled it.

"But then I could see that he was embarrassed, and he finally said, quite apologetically: 'Please, Mrs. Marsden, you're not to tell anybody—not anybody, if you please. I have a superstition about it. The organized charity people who come around for subscriptions will tell you I'm hard boiled, and I am to them. They put it in the newspapers the first thing. If I give, I wish no one to know it, and I take care that no one shall—except the few who have to know because they're managing the affair. I'm superstitious about it.'

"Really, Tops, he seemed embarrassed, and he said, 'If you get credit in the newspapers, you get no credit with God, but discredit rather. They won't let you use the American flag for an advertisement, you know. God won't let you use him for an advertisement either. So please tell nobody, Mrs. Marsden.' Then he laughed and said, 'If you catch me doing anything mean or disreputable, as quite likely you will, go and put that in the newspapers, if you wish; I sha'n't mind.' And then he said, too, 'I come of a race that has thought a great deal about God.' Wasn't that strange, dear?" Her eyes shone softly.

Flora's bosom swelled, and she said with a musing smile: "Very strange—to wish to do one's good acts in secret and one's bad acts in broad daylight."

A few minutes later Mrs. Marsden remembered to tell her that Nelson Barlow was going to take them up to Othman's house some afternoon to see his paintings, which had never been exhibited to the public.

THE adventure excited her imagination. Often, casually, she had looked up at that unusual façade, with its blank lower story. A certain mystery invested it and she had supposed that it shut itself up from the street for good reasons. The mere air of mystery with a sinister tinge in it would have excited her imagination, now that she was going inside. But heretofore she had had little curiosity about Othman himself—a dark, indistinct figure from which she had simply turned away. Now a strong, new light shone behind that figure, and she was curious about the man himself. Regarding him with this curiosity, as he held out his hand, she decided he looked powerful and interesting.

The third floor was all a picture gallery, mainly splendid old pictures. Othman strolled around with her—her mother and Nelson following—offering but few comments of his own but responding to hers, and she was immediately aware of his virtuosity. He was at home among these canvases, not showing them off to her but letting her find her own values in them. Certainly all this meant wealth, great wealth, but wealth used with distinction, as it ought to be. Her eyes shone with admiration; she murmured here and there.

At length they went upstairs to see Daphne—a perfect thing, as Othman had said to Barlow. Set in the room especially designed for it and which the painting dominated, there was a splendor about it, a sort of Arabian Nights magnificence, like the last word that wealth and taste could achieve in that sort. True, there was something about the nude—well, too much flesh, too candidly sensual. It was not a room that she would have wished to live in; there was a subtle drawing back. But she reflected that Othman was really an oriental, not abashed by glowing color and shining flesh as chiller occidentals like herself were.

Rather comically, Willetts, the butler, coming in with a tea tray, seemed at once to make the room utterly respectable—he was so utterly respectable and English himself. Nelson Barlow engaged Mrs. Marsden in conversation some distance away. Flora and Othman, teacups in hand, sat together.

Then Othman told her of his bad inheritance. His father, when a young man in Armenia, had seen his parents and brother murdered by the Turks, his two sisters carried away. Often his father had told him of abominable conditions in Armenia; it had been a sort of obsession with the father, whose lifelong idea had been to get himself firmly established in the western world, with money for a weapon, and then work for the liberation of his people; he had impressed that idea upon his son.

Father, and the son after him, had striven to that end, and met with nothing but fair, empty words. Finally the son had perceived how useless it was. The Christian nations of the western world played their sordid game of politics with the Turk, each one caring for nothing but its own selfish advantage in the scramble for near eastern prizes. Time and again Christian nations of Europe had intervened to uphold the Turk and keep his chains on Armenia, always for selfish ends of their own. Doubtless she knew the story, from the days of Catherine the Great of Russia down to the world war when Christian Germany and Austria took the Turk as their ally and let him butcher half Armenia. One could get clergymen to pass resolutions; one could get applause at a massmeeting; but Christian Europe wouldn't lift a finger.

That was his bad inheritance; probably it had made him bitter and cynical—even brutal. It was quite true that he had sometimes done brutal things in business, with a vengeful feeling of 'Well, take that for your hypocrisy.' It had made him indifferent to public opinion, contemptuous of western morality generally. He didn't deny it, but regretted it now. For, after all, that was foolish; it got one nowhere. It was foolish and wrong to harbor a contemptuous feeling toward the people one lived among. The vast disaster of the war had helped to give him a new light. That was was what contempt and hatred came to. One must get it out of his system—try to live in peace and good will with his neighbors. He was trying to make amends by doing some good in the world.

He told her the story simply. Her mind was full of it as she and her mother drove home. "A strange man," she murmured. "How little we know, after all."

It gradually came to Mrs. Marsden, and through her to Flora, that Frederic Othman was quite keen about investments of a certain nature which other people called charity. He had done plenty of bad things in the world, he told Mrs. Marsden; he needed many items on the credit side of his ledger to balance the account. But all the things on that side of the ledger must be secret, for if they were told he lost the credit.

Presently it was not uncommon for him to drop in at the house on Washington Square. The Marsdens and Nelson Barlow made three of a dozen guests at dinner at Othman's house. They were Othman's guests at the opera. Other occasions for social meetings developed. Mrs. Marsden and Flora were willing agents in a scheme to make the forthcoming Christmas dinner to the poor under the auspices of the Salvation Army much more comprehensive than any of its predecessors had been. Of course, they were not to tell the Salvation Army people where the money came from.

During all this time, which continued from the middle of November to the end of January, Phillip Kendall was a voluntary exile from the house on Washington Square. It was a leaden time for him; but if a chap had nothing to offer—no money, no position, no future to speak of—and if such a chap's sweet tenth cousin took him up and showered her graciousness upon him, out of the blessed goodness of her heart, and if then the chap had no more brains or character than to fall helplessly in love with her, the least he could do, it seemed, was to keep away from her. Plenty of eligible young men would come courting her. On two occasions he had particularly noticed one such young man. He had called her "Tops," while she had called him "Buff"; he had seen her pat his cheek, and so had a dozen other people. He belonged in her own set—money, position, and so on; he had known her all her life. Undoubtedly he would be the one she would marry. Most likely they were engaged already. That pat on the cheek seemed to say so. Kendall thoughtfully felt his own cheek at the same spot. No doubt they would be married—and happy ever after. All the same, Kendall was insatiably hungry for any little hint or notice of her. He read the society columns as diligently as any romantic, motion picture fuddled shopgirl.

He rubbed his brows in a kind of outraged incredulity; for here, once more, was her name in the society column along with Frederic Othman's. It looked as though, at last, Othman was "breaking into" society under the wing of the Marsdens—of all the wings in New York!

Kendall reflected that Othman, with his great wealth and power in Wall street, could break into society any time he pleased. It was simply a question of hiring somebody to open the door; sufficient favors downtown would always bring due recompense uptown. But that it should be the Marsdens! He knew that Marsden's business was shipping and that shipping business was in a bad way. One might imagine that Marsden had needed a backer with a long purse. All the same, reading those society items, he thought poorly of Stamford Marsden.

All newspaper offices are wonderful repositories of unprinted—and often unprintable—local history; sponges that gather up the talk of the town. Often the boss himself has no idea how much his underlings know. In some newspaper men this sponge quality is developed to a sort of sixth sense. Such a one was Pat Cullen, now city editor of the Evening Forum. The old Forum was looking up; somebody was stocking its depleted system with fresh sinews of war. Within the half year Pat Cullen had been taken over from the Star, which meant that money was available from some source for topnotch salaries.

The city editor was a thickset man with a flat, blocky face, gashed across by a wide mouth. Reporters commonly viewed the face tilted back as the city editor looked up from under a green eye shade. When he laughed or smiled broadly his wide mouth turned up at the corners with a half moon effect, which some physiognomists hold to be the mark of a weak mind, but they had not met Cullen. The new city editor soon extended a special friendliness to Phillip Kendall. One afternoon, along the last part of December, he told Kendall confidentially that he had his reasons for believing the ownership of the Forum had passed to Frederic Othman's hands; also, discoursing like a cynical philosopher in an hour of relaxation, he told the young man some things about Frederic Othman's private life. He knew.

Therefore, Kendall now pitched his opinion of Stamford Marsden much lower down the scale. A man might be embarrassed financially and get assistance from a great capitalist; he might show his appreciation of that assistance in a social way; and no doubt Othman would break into society somehow if he had made up his mind to. But Flora Marsden side by side with that swine!

Then Kendall met Nelson Barlow and heard something that went through him like a sword.

The Blanket Stiff

yes, you fat head! Do you want him to fall to death, while you're petting that powder puff ham actor back to his half-witted senses? Help me pull up John Kent!"

"You're discharged!" flared the director whose boast was that he had never yet tolerated a word of impertinence from any subordinate. "You're discharged. I shall report you to your agency as insubordinate. Then see if you can get another job within fifty miles of Hollywood. Now——"

But she did not heed his awful edict of banishment. While he was still speaking she whirled on one of the extra men and peremptorily hustled him toward the cliff. At her sharp call another extra and one of the principals joined her. Over the lip of the cliff she lowered the noose, while the three men held its other end. And, heaving as one, to her commanding gesture, they brought the exhausted Kent up over the edge.

"THANKS," panted Kent, making shift to get to his feet. "But what detained you all? Do you s'pose it was fun, hanging on by my teeth and eye winkers to that measly wall? You took long enough to——"

He broke off, as his searching eyes located the girl. She had moved to one side of the group and was draping her bloomered [illegible] limbs in a coat one of the extras had laid down. Straight across to her strode Kent.

"I—I thought I was seeing things," said he, his hands both outstretched, "when I got that flash of your face above me. What in blue blazes are you doing here, Madge? I thought——"

"Nothing," she answered, laughing and thinking fast to hide her dire embarrassment. "I'm doing nothing at all. I've been fired. I'll be lucky if I don't have to foot it back to L. A. Till about ninety-two minutes ago I was an extra, with the Occident Film company. The circus went blooie, down at Venice. And I got some extra jobs 'till I could join up with some live outfit. But now I—John Kent!" she interrupted herself, plaintively. "it's no manner of use for you to stand there, holding out your hands to me! I can't take 'em. I need both of mine to hold this coat in place. But I'm just as glad to see you. Where did you drop in from? You weren't with us when we left L. A., were you? I didn't see you."

"No," he said, his keen gaze still fixed on her troubled little face. "I just drifted in. The fight game went blooie, too. At least it did for me. O'Halloran turned crooked and he got caught. And he passed the buck to me. He was the manager and I was only one of his pork and beaners. So they took his word. And the boxing commission canned me. I heard there was a three ring show opening at Bakersfield next week. So I started to hoof it across from the coast. I thought I might get some sort of job with it, even if I couldn't land the same one I had with Arden & Sears. I was a fool ever to leave a comfy circus job to try my luck in the ring. Just as you told me I was, when we had our spat. But you remember how O'Halloran said he'd be making a champ of me, inside a year. It listened grand to me. Better than twiddling my toes from a trapeze. I was on my hike to Bakersfield, just now, when this outfit corralled me for a ten dollar job. I needed the cash. So I——"

"I told you you were discharged!" boomed Grue, bearing down upon them and glowering at Madge. "Clear out! Kent," he went on, more civilly, "Mr. Brooke wants to speak to you. He has just come to, and the first thing he did was to ask for you. I didn't want to worry him with questions—it was bad enough for Rucker to blab the whole story to him the moment his eyes were open, without my exciting him any worse—but I suppose he wants to thank you for what you did, or even perhaps to reward you. So——"

"One thing at a time!" put in Kent, peremptorily. "You began your spiel by reminding Madge Bliss that she's fired and by telling her to clear out. I take it you have an option on the Sierras to talk like that. But till you put up your No Trespass signs she'll stay here as long as she wants to. As for my going to that fouler, to be thanked and maybe tipped—well, if he slips me fifteen cents for saving his life, I'll have to tell him I can't change it and that I don't want to be overpaid. Let it go at that. A man who'll 'knee' another man, in a friendly bout—or in a fight, for that matter—doesn't deserve to have his worthless life saved. Tell him so. As for the ten spot you owe me——"

"YOU'RE—you're dead right!" interposed a shaky voice from behind Grue.

The director turned around in obsequious anxiety to find a white and sagging figure advancing on Kent. Moreton Brooke had got to his feet. Supported between Rucker and a cameraman, he was coming close to his recent foe and more recent rescuer. Grue broke into a torrent of remonstrance with the star for exerting himself so rashly. Impatiently Brooke waved him aside and addressed Kent again.

"You're dead right," he said again, his voice feeble and wabbly. "I didn't deserve to be saved. I fouled you. I lost my head and I lost my temper with it. It was a mucker trick. And on top of it you saved my life. I—Lord, man, there's nothing I can say! If you don't know how I feel about it I can't make you know."

"Hold on!" interposed Kent, taking the hand so waveringly and appealingly held out to him. "Half that apology can be scrapped. If it was I who helped you up the side of the cliff, it was I who slung you down it. The last part of what I did only just squares the first part. So that brings us back to the foul. Let's forget that. You didn't do it like a man that's used to doing such things. I guess it was your first, and I guess it'll be your last. So the slate's clean. Shall we call it a day?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean I'm off for Bakersfield to look for a job. If you think you owe anything to any one, get this riding pants boss of yours to unfire Madge Bliss here. It was she who made the rope that yanked you up. If it hadn't been for her we'd still be down there—or maybe a hundred feet lower than we were. How about it?"

For a full quarter minute Moreton Brooke stared at Kent. Then his glance shifted to the girl. Last of all, he turned his dumb gaze on the fidgeting director. The spoiled picture star had been going through more genuine emotions in the last ten minutes than before in the last ten years. And that had momentarily scraped some of the rust clean from his soul.

"Grue," he said presently, "Miss Bliss stays on. She gets a regular position. On salary. Is that understood?"

"Why, of course, if you wish it!" prattled Grue. "Perhaps I spoke hastily. I——"

"Perhaps you did," drily assented Brooke. "But the next time you speak hastily to her the Occident will either get a new chief director or a new star. By the way," he added to Kent, "if that Bakersfield job can be sidetracked, Grue can use you to big advantage when we retake the fight scene. And, next time, I'll fight fair. My next picture calls for a fight, too. Will you stay on for a while?"

John Kent glanced sidewise at Madge Bliss. The girl met his eyes with the oddly direct look he remembered so well—the look he had never been able to get out of his mind. And in her eyes he read a tinge of appeal.

"You're on," he replied tersely. "We'll stay. It'll be a real joy to work for such a nice chap as Grue here. If I can keep from sending him to a hospital long enough to get real chummy with him. Yep—we'll stay. The two of us."

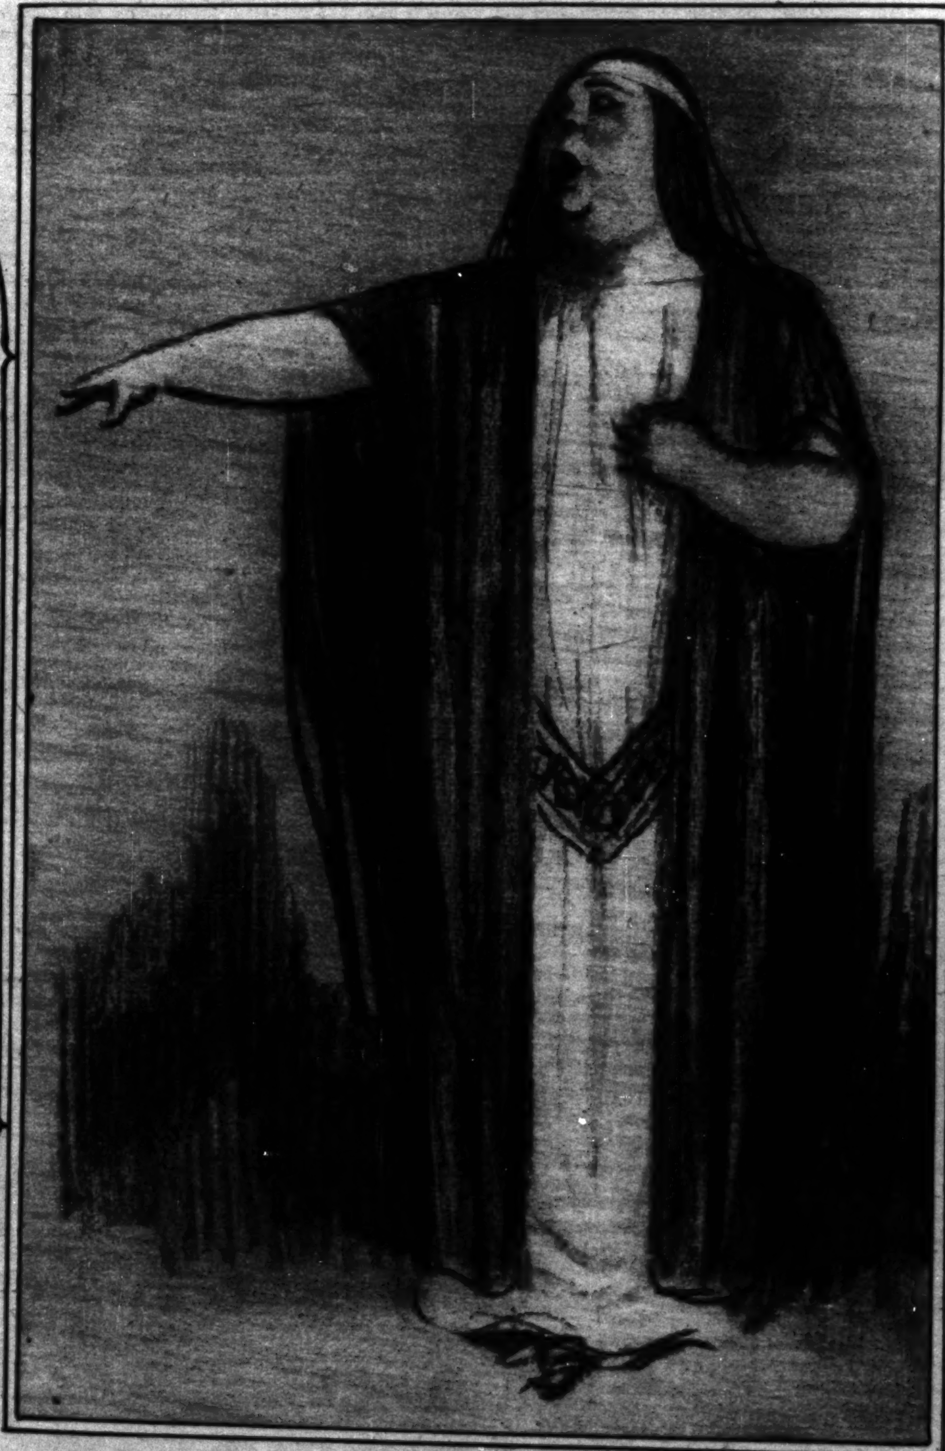
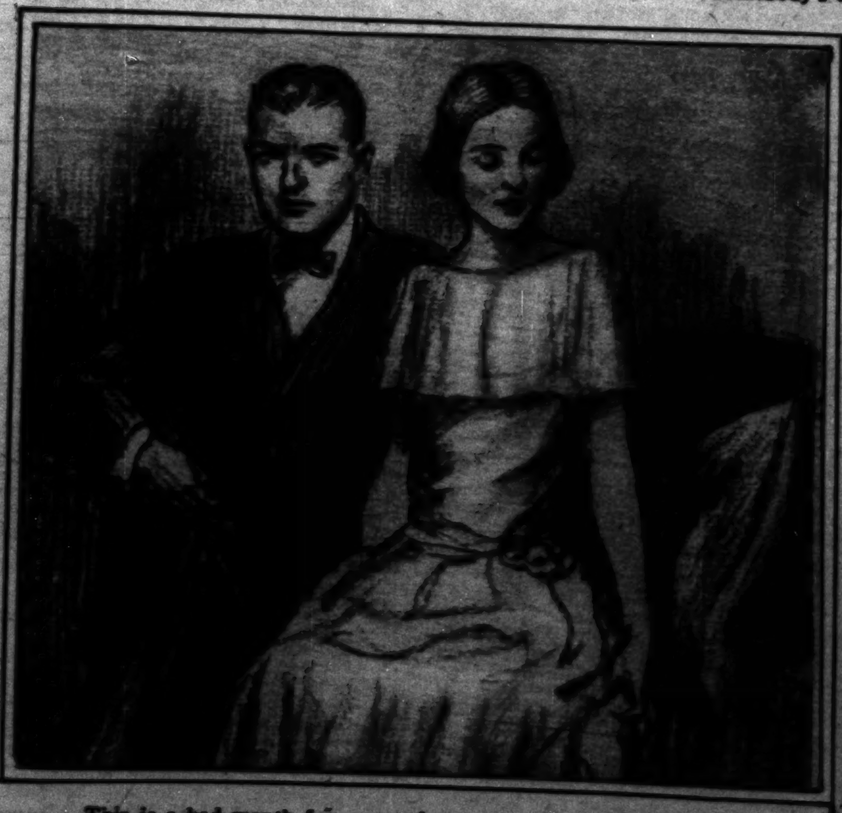
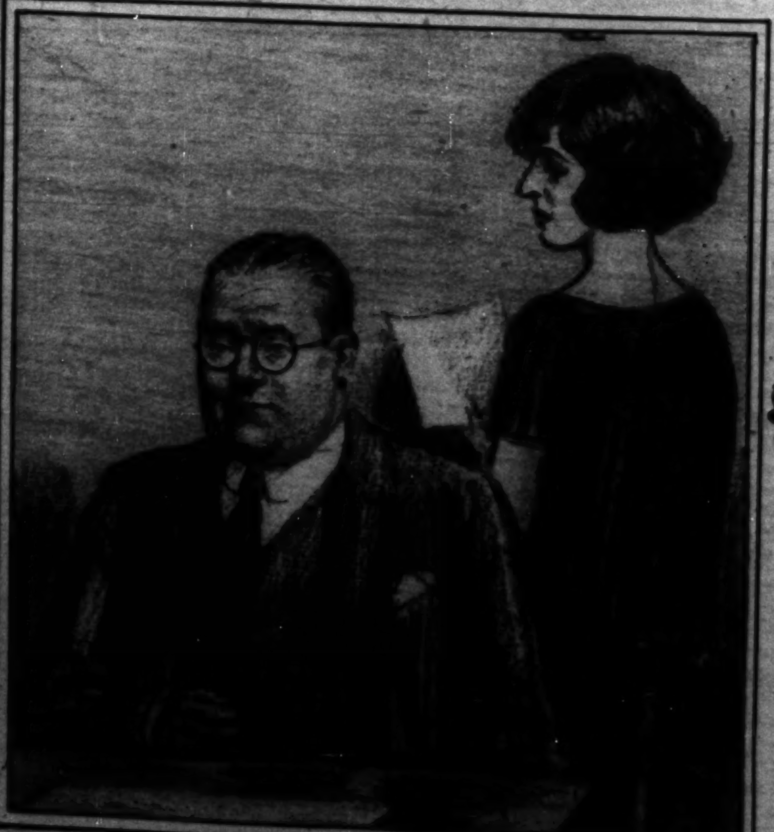
That low February blue feeling when the job seems all wrong and the prospect worse.



The tag end of the grand opera season is the open season for understudies. With only one rehearsal and having practically never looked at the score till 6:30 of that day, Mme. Perkinskowska is making the hit of her career as Ortrud in "Lohengrin." Somebody's tonsilitis did it for her.



This is a bad month for engaged couples. The only girl grows restive after so much winter, and like as not Pauline will begin to think up tests to try out Marshall's love. Then Marshall becomes a little restive on his own account and decides to make Pauline just a little bit jealous. And the fight is on.



The boss acquires a February cold in the head and the office force suffers accordingly from February grouch.

Advice from One Woman to Another on a very important hygienic subject

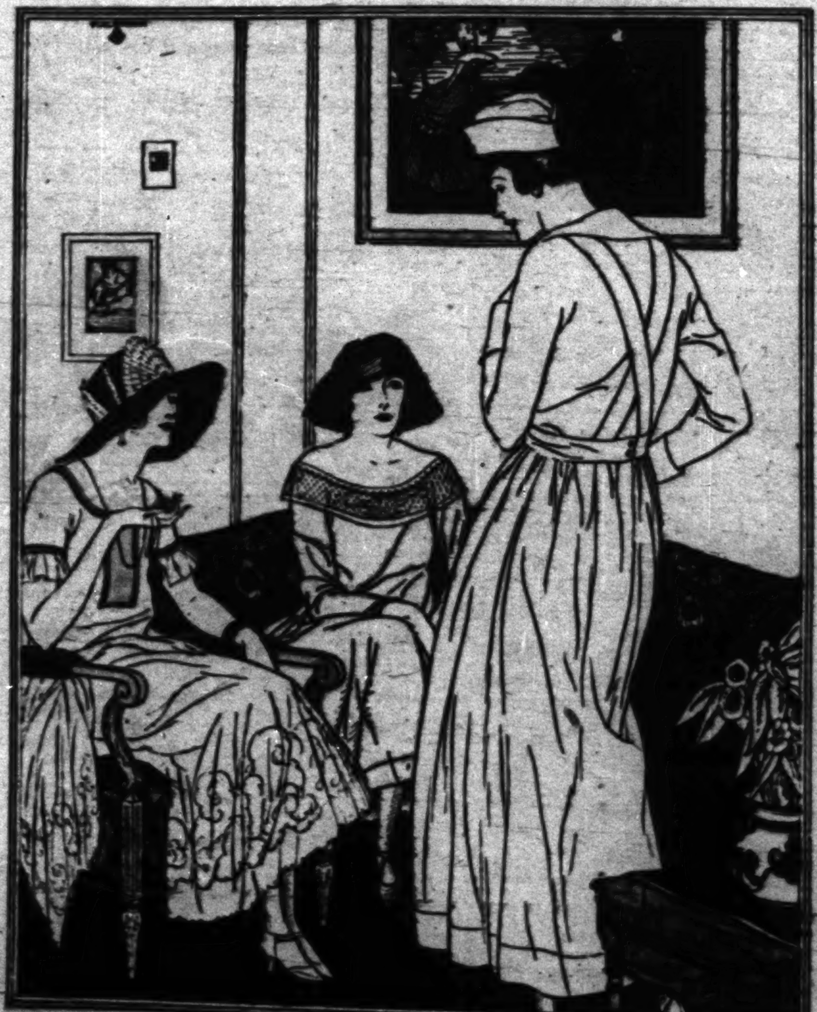
By Ellen J. Buckland
Graduate Nurse

Immaculacy, charm, exquisiteness under circumstances which most women find exceedingly trying



Charm, Exquisiteness, Immaculacy, under all and every condition EVERY day! Yet, under old methods the average woman spent at least 1-6th of her time in a state of discomfort, uncertainty—and frequently embarrassment.

THIS is a subject which only a woman can understand, and on which only an expert can advise with authority. I speak as both.

I, too, experienced the handicap which confronts women in social, business or professional life. As a practicing nurse I know how to lighten it.

For science has now perfected a product which helps women live an active life without interruption. Its convenience and efficiency are amazing, for it solves a special problem in a very simple way.

This new product is called "Kotex"

It was perfected during the war to provide a softer, more absorbent surgical dressing. Kotex is five times more absorbent than cotton.

After the war its makers felt that Kotex would be of infinite value to women—that it would effectually solve their greatest problem. And it has.

Women have only to hear of Kotex to appreciate what it means in comfort, convenience and relief from embarrassment. It is being adopted everywhere.

A sample—free

You can secure Kotex at practically all drug and department stores, but I want to send you a sample. It will come wrapped in a perfectly plain package. All you have to do is to fill out and mail the coupon.

Don't do yourself the injustice of overlooking this offer, which is so easy to accept. All you have to do is to tear out the coupon, fill it out and mail it to me.

Kotex is on sale at all drug and department stores. Two sizes: Kotex regular and Kotex-Super. Also dispensed in rest rooms from Kotex cabinets.

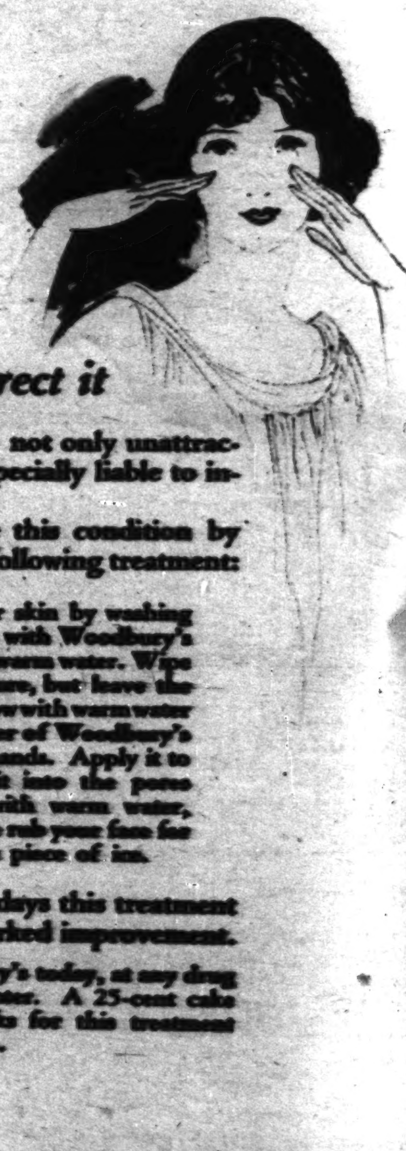
Oily skin



How you can correct it

An oily, shiny skin is not only unattractive in itself—it is especially liable to infection from dust.

You can overcome this condition by using, each night, the following treatment:

FIRST cleanse your skin by washing in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and luke-warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp. Now with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. Then rub your face for a few seconds with a piece of ice.

Within a week or ten days this treatment will bring about a marked improvement.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for this treatment and for regular toilet use.

THE CZAR'S JAILERS ON TRIAL—One of the most dramatic of recent events in Moscow was the prosecution of those who administered the prisons during the latter days of the Romanoff regime. Three of the men, charged chiefly with torturing their prisoners, were sentenced to be executed, but the sentences were commuted to ten year prison terms. Three others were sentenced to five years in prison. The chief defendants were the three seated in front—white haired Sementkovsky, administrator of all the Russian prisons from 1905 to the revolutionary period; "Bloody" Kovolov, a nobleman, chief of two Siberian prisons, and Dr. Riklinsky, physician at the most infamous prison in Russia, the Orlovsky jail at Orel.

THE DANGER LINE

The most beautiful teeth are relentlessly destroyed by Acid Decay at THE DANGER LINE

MORE people suffer from Acid Decay of the teeth than from any other known disease. Dental authorities estimate that nearly 97 per cent of all people have "cavities" or decayed places on their teeth.

This decay is caused by mouth acids attacking and eating into the teeth. It occurs most frequently on the grinding surfaces, and at the margin of the gums.

Acid Decay is more serious at the gum line than at any other place on your teeth. If neglected there, it spreads rapidly, often infecting the gums and causing abscesses. For that reason, this place on your teeth is called The Danger Line.

Poisons from diseased gums and abscesses find their way into your body. They are often directly responsible for lowered vitality, rheumatism, heart-disease and other serious conditions.

You cannot have sound teeth or perfect health unless Acid Decay is stopped at The Danger Line. To accomplish this, your tooth paste must neutralize mouth acids as well as clean your teeth. Ordinary dentifrices will not do this.

Squibb's Dental Cream does. It is made with Squibb's Milk of Magnesia—the best product known for safely and effectively neutralizing mouth acids. Brushing your teeth with Squibb's Dental Cream protects them from Acid Decay at The Danger Line and elsewhere. It also removes dental mucin, keeping the teeth bright, clean and attractive.

Begin to use Squibb's Dental Cream to-day in the interest of better health and sound teeth and gums. If your druggist cannot supply you, mail us the coupon below with ten cents for a generous trial size tube.

Nymfaun Double Compact

A NEW THIN-MODEL CASE

IT has the charming impudence of Paris, this double compact shaped like a cigarette case, yet enclosing the most feminine of toilet accessories.

—a powder compact of ample size, side by side with a rouge compact, conveniently placed for quick use.

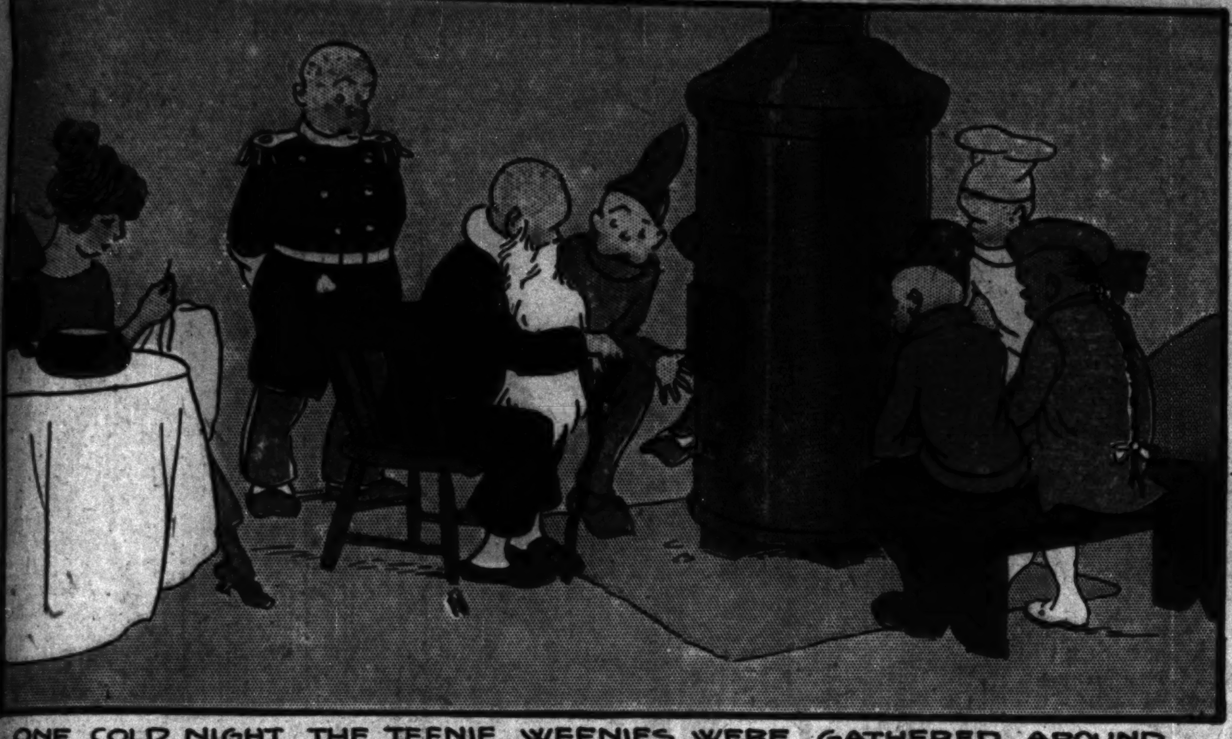
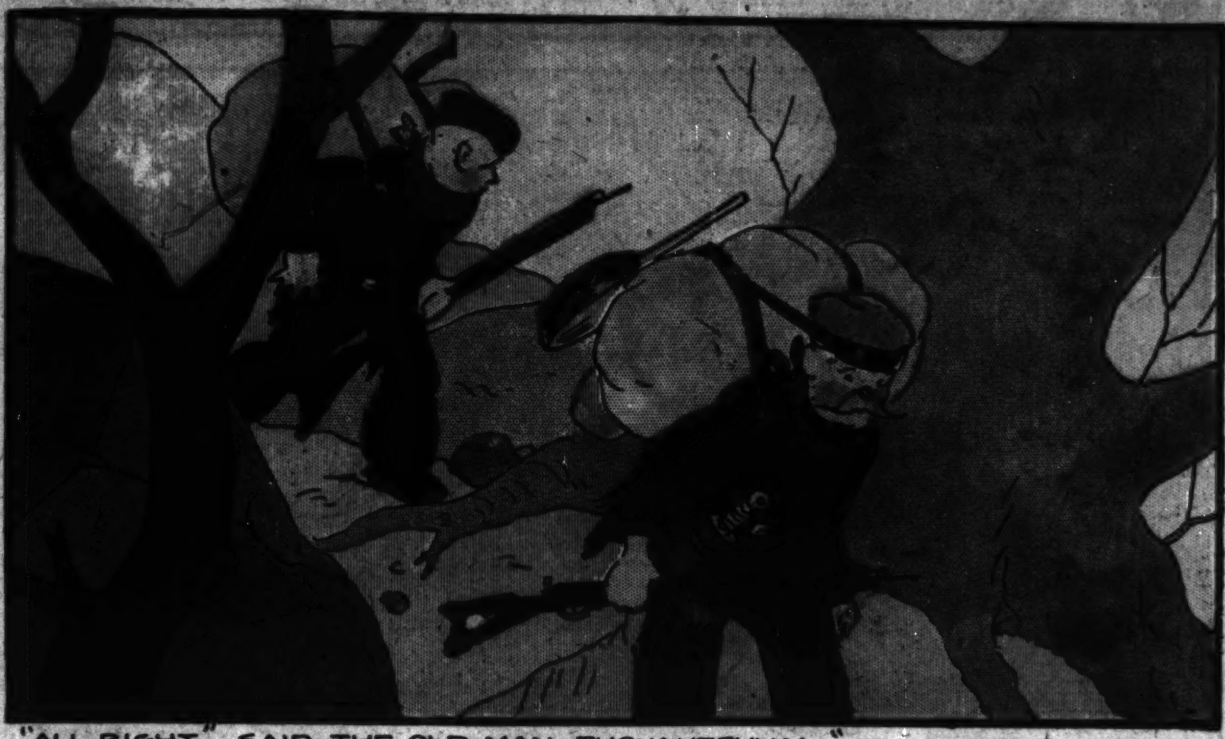
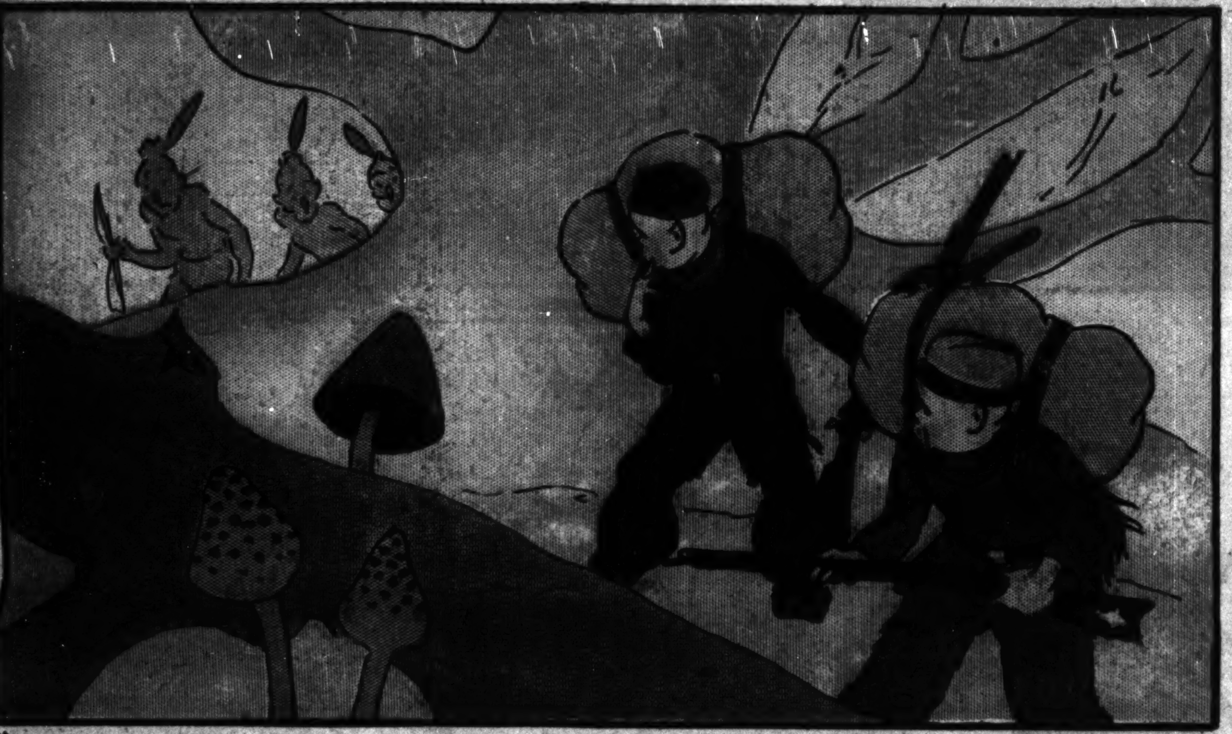
WM DONAHEY



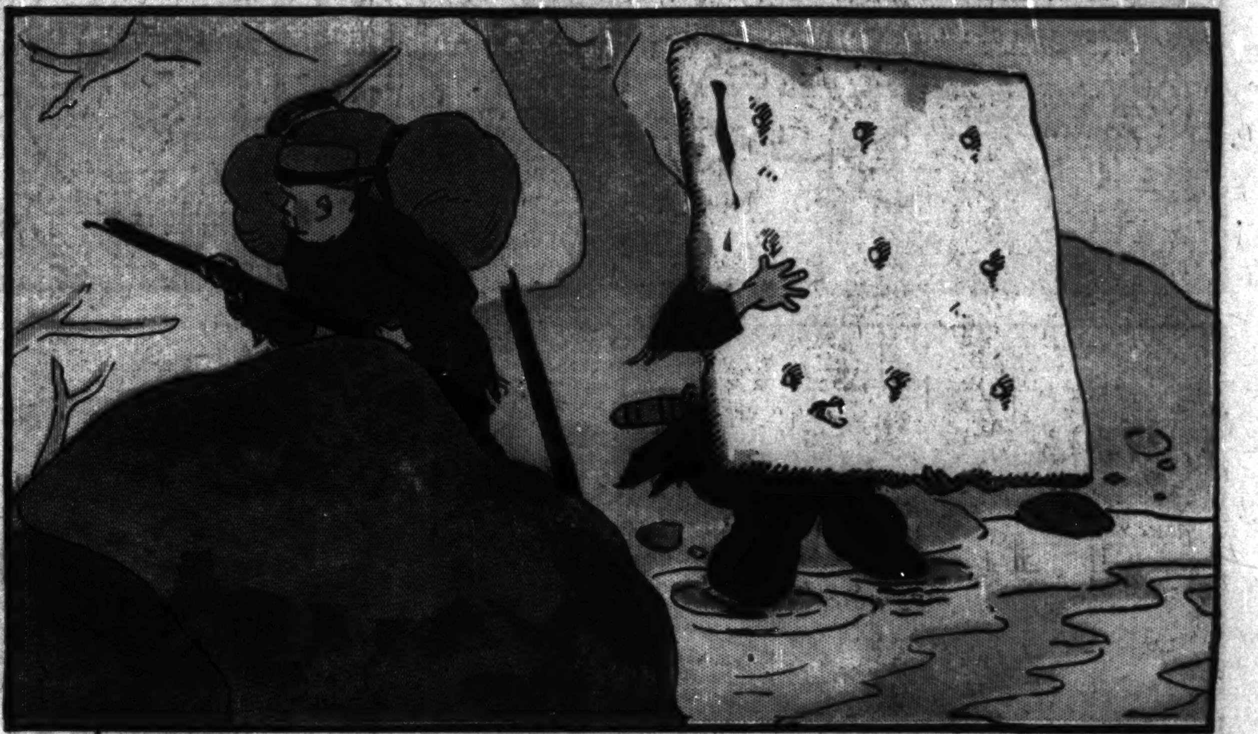
ONE COLD NIGHT THE TEENIE WEENIES WERE GATHERED AROUND THEIR TINY STOVE, WHICH BY THE WAY, WAS MADE OUT OF A TOOTH POWDER CAN, WHEN THE DUNCE ASKED GRANDPA TO TELL A STORY. "ONE ABOUT INDIANS" HE DEMANDED.



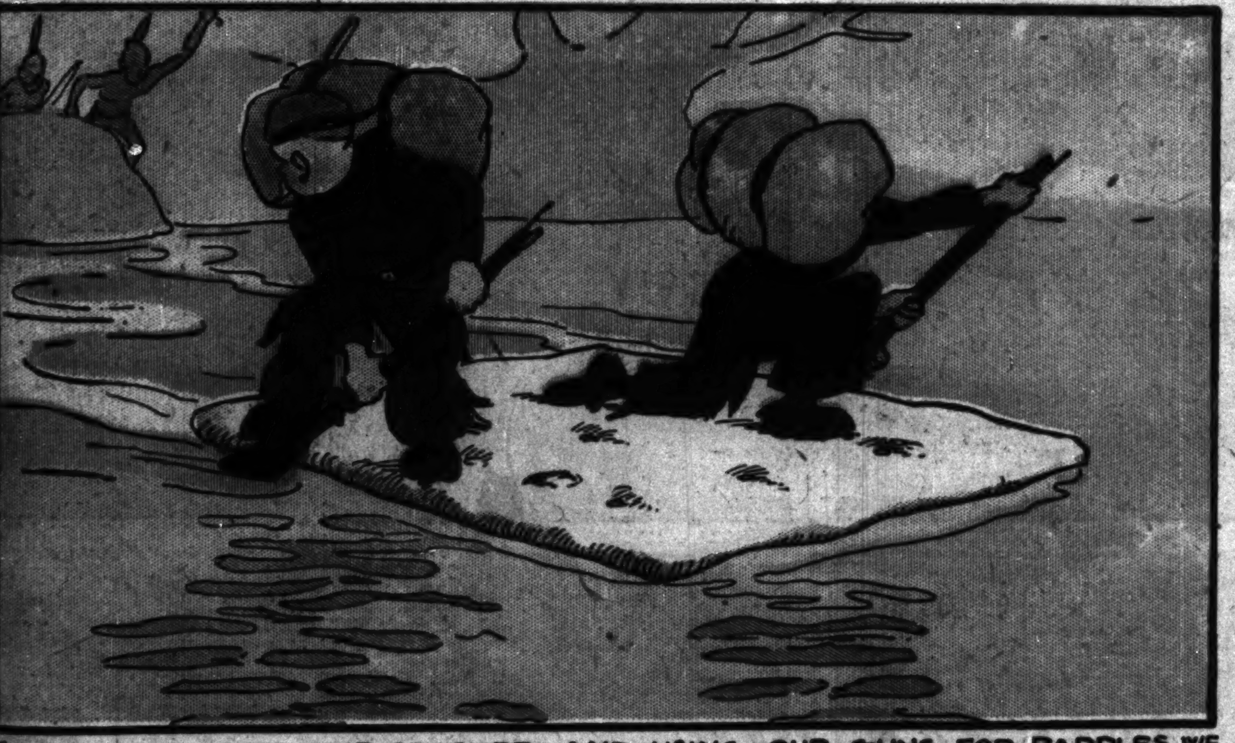
"ALL RIGHT," SAID THE OLD MAN THOUGHTFULLY, "BACK IN THE FALL OF FIFTY TWO JACK SIMONS AND I WERE IN THE FUR BUSINESS. WE HAD SPENT SEVERAL WEEKS IN THE "BRUSH" AND WERE ON OUR WAY HOME, EACH WITH A NICE PACK OF CATERPILLAR SKINS ON OUR BACKS WHEN—



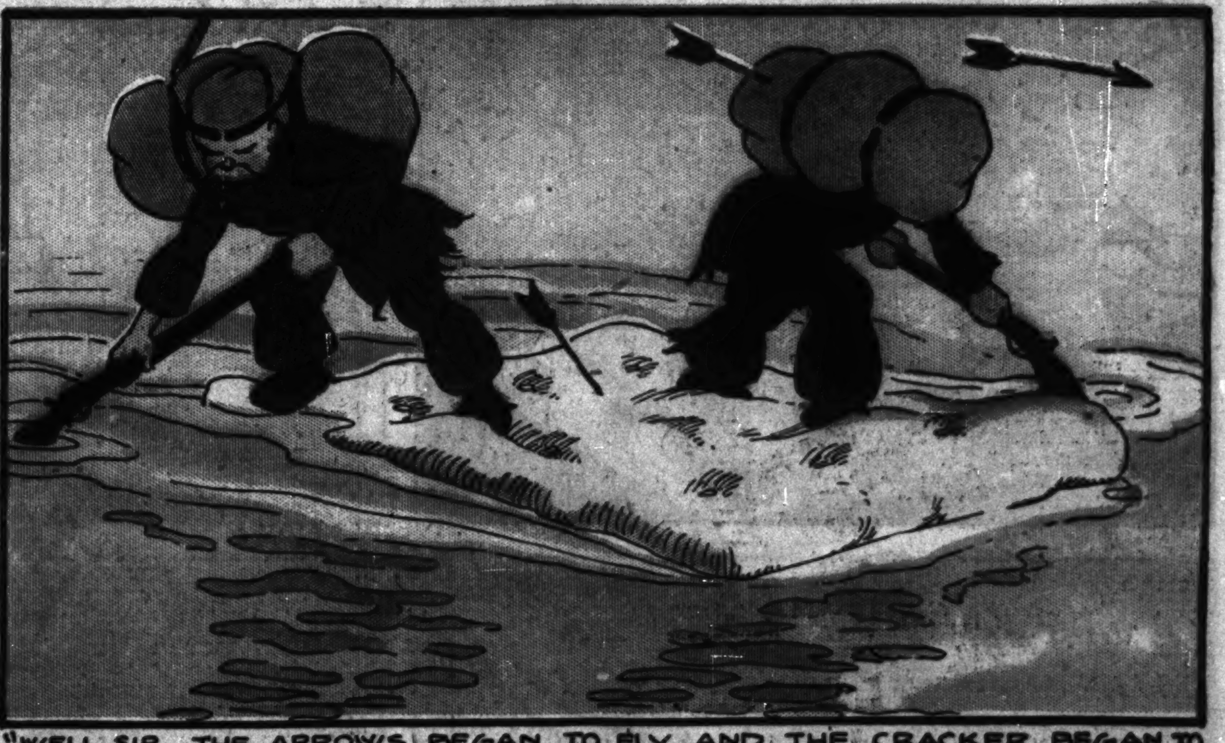
"WE SUDDENLY RAN ONTO A BAND OF TEENIE WEENIE INDIANS. IT WAS QUITE FOGGY AND WE WERE ALMOST ON TOP OF THEM BEFORE WE SAW THEM. THERE WERE TOO MANY OF THEM FOR US TO FIGHT JUST THEN, SO WE TOOK TO OUR HEELS AND HEADED FOR A CREEK NEAR BY."



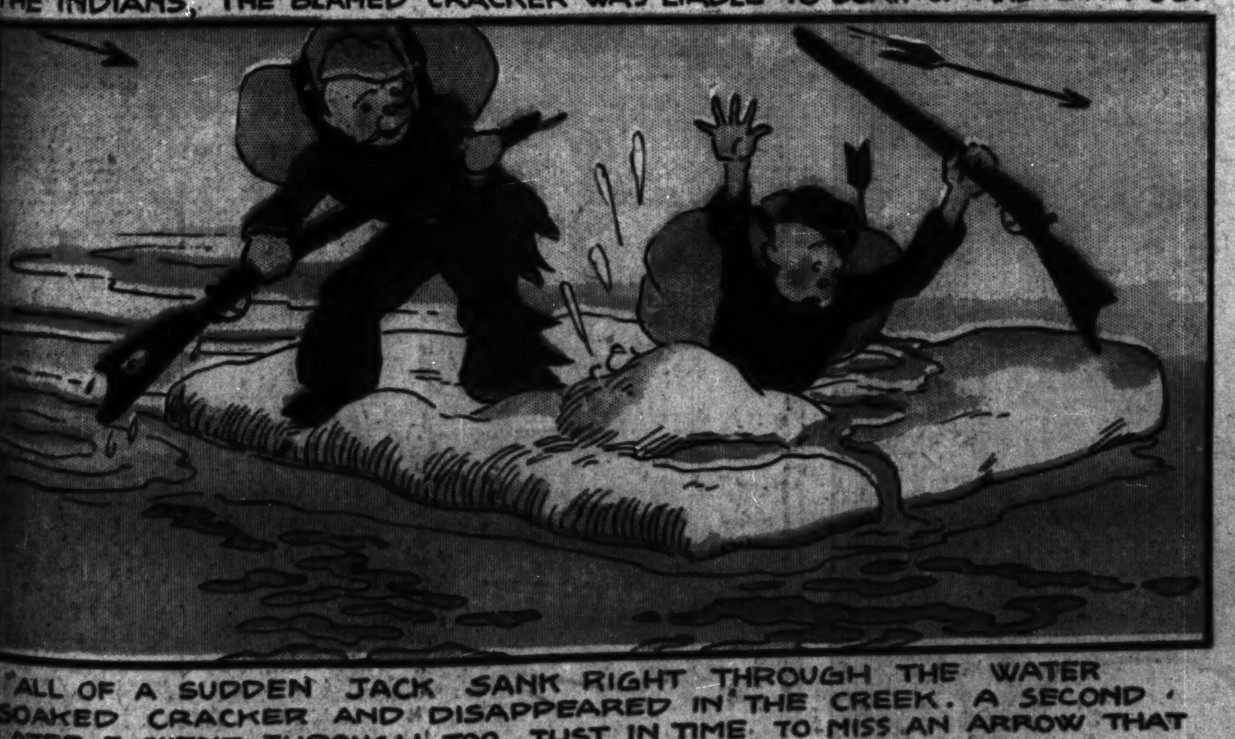
"AS WE DASHED UP TO THE CREEK WE SAW A CRACKER SOME BIG FOLKS HAD LEFT THERE AND QUICK AS A FLASH, JACK, WHO WAS AS STRONG AS A MOUSE, LIFTED THE CRACKER AND THREW IT ONTO THE WATER. I SAW HE MEANT TO USE THE CRACKER AS A RAFT TO CROSS THE CREEK."



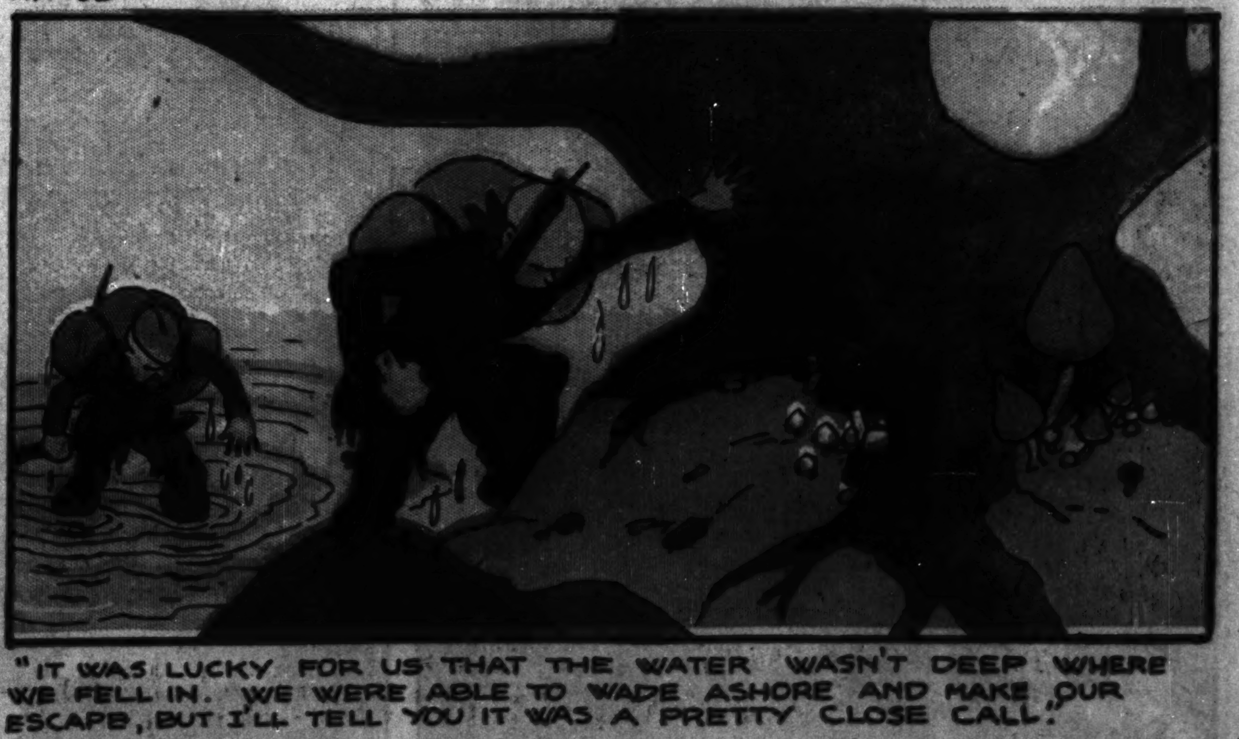
"WE JUMPED ONTO THE CRACKER AND USING OUR GUNS FOR PADDLES WE PUSHED OUT INTO THE STREAM, JUST AS THE INDIANS CAME UP. WE WERE BETWEEN A "WEASEL AND THE DEEP BLUE SEA." FOR IF WE DIDN'T GET SHOT BY THE INDIANS, THE BLAMED CRACKER WAS LIABLE TO SOAK UP AND SINK US."



"WELL SIR, THE ARROWS BEGAN TO FLY AND THE CRACKER BEGAN TO SWELL UP LIKE A THISTLE DOWN MATTRESS. WE PADDLED AS WE NEVER PADDLED BEFORE, PRAYIN' EVERY MINUTE AN ARROW WOULDN'T HIT US."



"ALL OF A SUDDEN JACK SANK RIGHT THROUGH THE WATER SOAKED CRACKER AND DISAPPEARED IN THE CREEK. A SECOND LATER I WENT THROUGH TOO, JUST IN TIME TO MISS AN ARROW THAT WAS HEADED FOR ME."



"IT WAS LUCKY FOR US THAT THE WATER WASN'T DEEP WHERE WE FELL IN. WE WERE ABLE TO WADE ASHORE AND MAKE OUR ESCAPE, BUT I'LL TELL YOU IT WAS A PRETTY CLOSE CALL."
